A few weeks ago my husband and I were trying to finish baling a small meadow of hay. Naturally it came up a rain and soaked everything. It was nearly two weeks before it dried out sufficiently to bale...and it wasn't real good hay by then.

This put me to pondering the perfect hay baling system. I think I have it! Picture a one step machine. Run out and jump on the tractorhooked to this machine, which will cut the hay, crimp it and then use a super-heater to dry the hay. Then the hay will go down into an area which will bale it. Plunk, instant hay bale. One tractor, one machine, one step. No more of this bouncing around and around and around with rakes, no more rained on hay! Looks rainy? Just bee bop out and cut and bale as much as you can before that downpour...the rest will still be standing, unharmed!

Of course, that put me in mind of a few other grand inventions. There are definitely some improvements that could be made in our modern machinery...as useful and wonderful as it already is.

Take the waser and dryer for instance. Couldn't they make those two into one unit so we didn't have to go to the laundry room and transfer the wet clothes to the dryer? I know that some of our readers recall washing by hand with a wash pot and an open fire...but if today's washer and dryer is good...let's make 'em better!

Of course, if the dryer could just be rigged to fold and hang clothes too it would be an ultimate achievement, but I'm afraid there might be a little problem separating his from hers and the kids from theirs!

As a person who isn't really "into" cooking I'm waiting for them to come up with a machine that I can dump my food ingredients into and a few hours later it will crank out a completely cooked meal. Hey, a computer ought to be able to handle that!

How about a completely self cleaning bathroom? Perhaps some sort of ultrasonic sound waves could bombard tub, lavatory and toilet at intervals, loosening dirt so that it could be rinsed away?

Back to the outside...why, oh why can't they come up with a riding lawn mower that has a trimmer-edger on it too? Perhaps it could be in a fixed position when mowing next to walks and structures, then have an arm to swing out and reach into corners and tight areas? A small weed killing spray boom on that rig wouldn't be bad, either.

I'm sure that you have your own ideas for the perfect machine...perhaps a machine to tend children or clean their rooms...or a machine to clean the work shop? Think up your own, it's lots of fun.

Observe Veterans Day November 11

Veterans Day will be observed Friday, November 11 all across the United States with different activities to honor the memorable occasion.

Veterans Day, 1994 marks the 75th anniversary of the signing of the armistice, which ended World War I in 1918.

For more than 25 years, November 11th has been observed as Armistice Day, commemorating the end of World War I.

In the mid-1950's, Congress designated November 11th as Veterans Day, a National Holiday to honor the men and women who served in the uniform of the United States. It is dedicated to the ultimate goal which they all sought with their sacrifice and service, i.e. world peace with honor.

The observance of this special day should begin with the Flag of the United States on display at each home and business, as a reaffirmation of pride in America and the community's contribution to a coast-to-coast expression of national unity.

In a proclamation calling upon the citizens of this community to observe the holiday, Commander Rhodes asked that the day "be observed with appropriate ceremonies in honor of those who have served the national purpose to preserve the principles of Justice, Freedom, and Democracy."

More than 15,000 American Legion Posts and over 3 million members throughout the United States and in many areas of the free world will be joining together to make this day special in commemorating the veterans of this country.

Dear Editor,

Thanks for running my ad asking people for sausage seasoning recipes. So you can tell Mrs. Mary Jackson I had good luck in getting 6 sausage seasoning recipes and 2 recipes for curing meats. I haven't had a chance to try any of them yet. The weather has not co-operated. The ideal time is when the temperature gets around 35 to 38 degrees for several days. Cured meats taste better when nature has a hand in helping.

I have an old refrigerator in my shop I use. It has a freezer in the top for my sausage, but I put 2 hams in the bottom part, and set the temperature for 38 degrees, for curing takes about 21 days.

Myrle and I have a wonderful nephew and niece, Bobby and Sue Davis, who are a lot of help to us. They really enjoy doing this sort of thing.

I can remember the days when I was a young boy, during hog killing time.

Everyone around would bring their hogs to Mr. Jess Elder's place, where there was a big vat full of hot water.

We put the hog into this vat for about 4 or 5 minutes. Then we'd take him out and scrape the hair off. Then the rest was easy; gutting the hog and cutting it up.

For lunch we had spare ribs and fried liver. I couldn't hardly wait. In today's hog killing we don't go to all that trouble. We hang the hog and take the skin off, then cut it up.

So I would like to thank everyone for their recipes.

Country Cooking

By Nanalee Nichols,
Guest Columnist

Now is the time of year when we see lots of wild mushrooms and puffballs in pastures and woods. Have you ever wondered which are good to eat?

Most of us have, but it's a rare person who can actually tell the difference! Jim Womeldorf can.

"Turtle Jim" of Spavinaw, Oklahoma not only knows the difference but shares his delicious finds with friends, neighbors and even visitors!

When my husband, Thomas and I went to visit my aunt and uncle and my cousin and her husband a few weeks ago we made the drive through the Ozarks to the small town of Spavinaw, Oklahoma, which is located about sixty miles northeast of Tulsa.

Turtle Jim is a neighbor to my kinfolk, and he has in the past shared such treasures as picked out black walnuts. Anyone who has ever shelled, cracked and picked out black walnuts can agree that this is, indeed, a generous gift!

His nickname comes from his habit of trapping turtles and preparing the meat for speciality restaurants in places like Tulsa. He also can sell one of his favorite mushrooms, called the "Hen of the Woods" for about $15 per pound. There's a California variety that is similar but only grows in salt air called the Cauliflower mushroom which markets for $50 a pound!

While visiting with Jim we talked to him about mushrooms and puffballs, which are the round white balls we see. He explained that he has studied many, many books and spent a lot of time with the Indians in the area learning which fungi are safe to eat and which are not. The hen of the woods is also known as "Wooshi" by the Indians. It is layered, crinkled up mass which can only be found under mature oak trees in the fall of the year.

It has a rich, almost nutty flavor that is exceptional.

After admiring the taste of them, we were really excited when Jim came back late that night with a huge one for us to wash, shred and fix to take home to Texas with us.

Jim says that he never takes chances with mushrooms that have poisonous "twins".

"There are too many perfectly safe, good mushrooms out in the woods for me to find without taking a chance on picking something that might be poison" he grins. This is in spite of the long-standing joke that he brings any he has doubts about to my uncle, Blake Miller, and if it doesn't make him sick he eats them too!

"Seriously" Jim continues, "there are several rules to go by, but one of the best rules comes from the Indians who tell me if it looks good and smells good it most likely is good. There is one kind of mushroom that in the spring I pick and eat and they are delicious. In the autumn there is a variety that looks like the spring ones, but it has a nasty, almost rotten smell".

Jim's knowledge of wild things, of woods and natural foods is extensive. He is a pleasure to talk with.

He and his wife, Connie, a nurse, live in a comfortable cabin in Spavinaw, and he is known locally as a naturalist.

While he was visiting with us the local constable came by. She had become interested in the hen of the woods and had gone hunting for her own. She was "just checking" with Jim to make sure that she had the right thing...which she did. He explained how to cut them so that they would return the following autumn, too.

Jim will stress that books and advice from folks who know is the only way to learn about fungi. There isn't any use being foolish and risking becoming ill by eating something you aren't absolutely sure about.

We shared Jim's generosity with friends, and one set went straight out into the woods looking for hen of the woods while the other couple wants to make their trip to Spavinaw to visit with Jim and learn about them.

So, here are a few recipes for hen of the woods mushrooms...but they work with the fresh mushrooms found in stores, too.

November 10, 1994

Sautéed Mushrooms
Shred fresh hen of the woods mushrooms or chop store-bought fresh ones, saute in real butter with some fresh garlic, simple and delicious!

Battered Mushrooms
Shred Hen of the Woods or chop Fresh Mushrooms, dip in egg wash then in flour with a small amount of salt and pepper. Fry for a real taste treat

Freezing Mushrooms
To prepare wild mushrooms for freezing or store bought ones either they should be boiled in plain, unsalted water for from thirty to forty minutes. Then, drain and put in small amounts in small ziplock freezer bags. Freeze.

Dried Mushrooms
If you have a dehydrator the wild or tame mushrooms can be sliced or shredded and dried, then stored in jars until needed. They can just be added to soups, casseroles or dishes as needed. Try a decorative, ribbon trimmed jar or container of the dried mushrooms for a special gift.

Remember, don't use wild mushrooms unless you have made sure that what you have is safe to eat!

Rebel Basketball Begins

The Rivercrest Rebels, defending champions of 17-AA boy's basketball, began practice officially Saturday, November 5. Practice was required for all 10-12 graders going out for basketball. Practice was optional for 9th graders.

Avery and Hugo, Oklahoma came to Rivercrest for a 3:30 game. Saturday, November 12, the Rebels will go to Clarksville to scrimmage the Tigers. They are one of the top ranked teams in 3AAA in the state. The first game will be at Mt. Pleasant on November 15. The 9th grade and JV teams will play early games while the varsity plays at 7:30. The Rebels have not beaten the Tigers of coach Ted Heers in three years. The Tigers, a strong AAAA team will heavily favored.

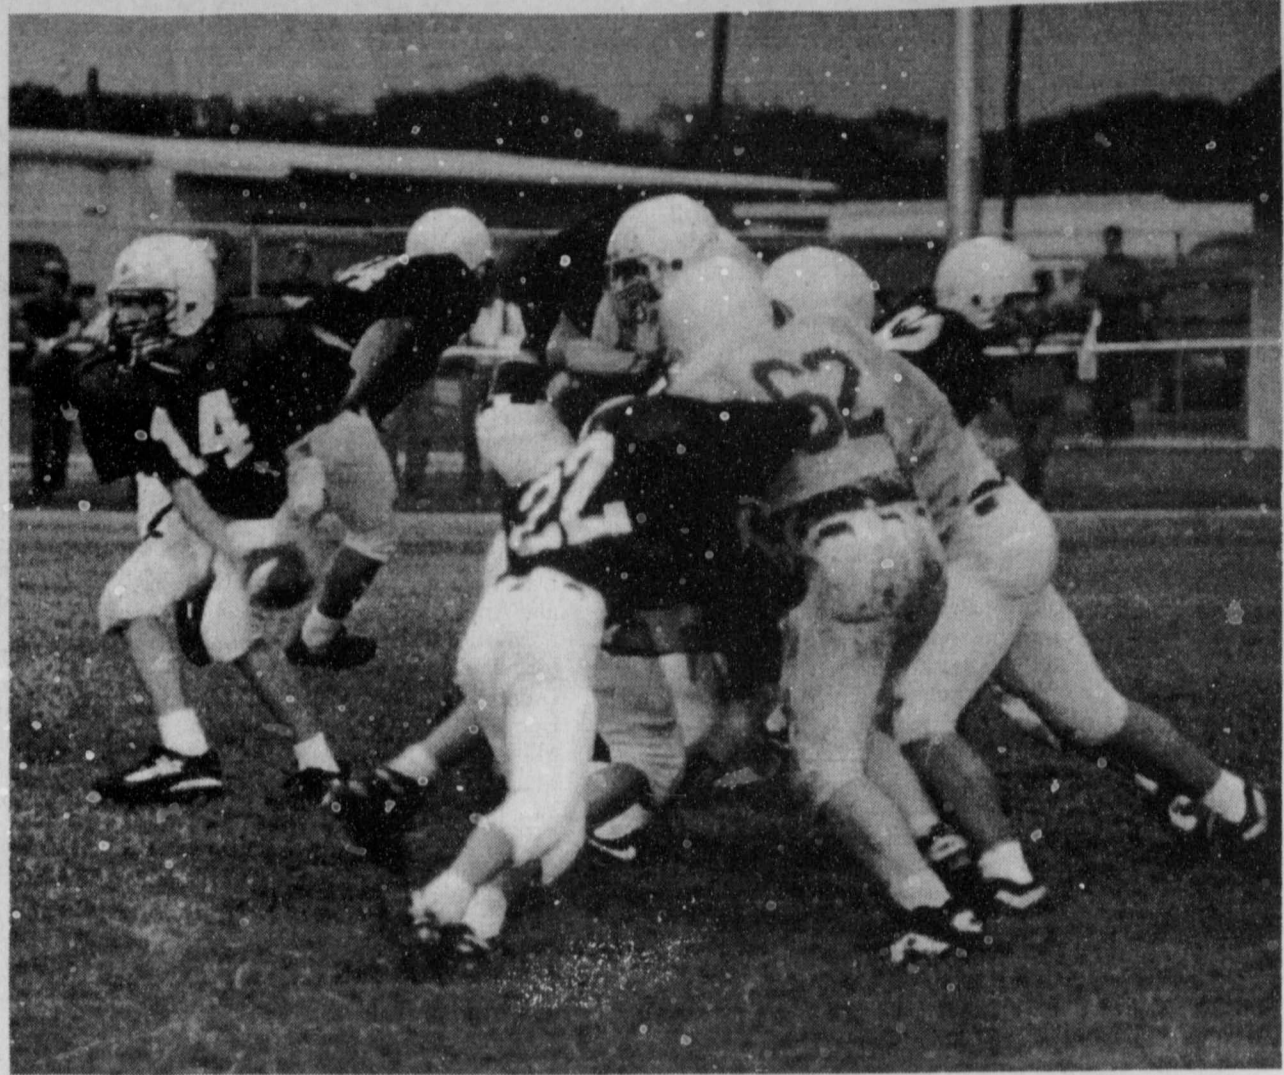

Coach Wood comments, "I am really looking forward to the challenge this year. We lost six great seniors by graduation last year. Therefore, this will definitely be a rebuilding year. Our players will have to dedicate themselves to train properly and work hard. We do not have much size or wickness, so we must rely on depth, endurance and determination. We will be inexperienced and this usually costs us team victories, especially in close games. I feel that Prairiland should be considered the favorite to win district title this year. They have basically their entire team back, along with a district champion, JV team and a great 9th grade team. They have size, experience, depth, a great tradition, a great coach and strong support from their communities."

"For our team, I just want them to set reasonable goals and try hard daily to achieve them. I want us to play a harder game than any body and never let up. I certainly expect us to make the playoffs. As always, my goal is to win a state championship for the Talco-Bogata communities that make up the Rivercrest district.

This is Coach Wood's 26th year as head coach of boy's basketball at Rivercrest High School. Coach Wood starts the season with a total of 580 career wins. Coach Wood is listed number 18 of all active basketball coaches in the state of Texas. That is, of over 1000 active basketball coaches in Texas only 17 coaches have won more games than Coach Wood. Coach Wood has 28 years experience as a head coach. He has averaged almost 21 wins per season over these 28 years.

Coach Wood's comments, "I would like to have averaged 30 wins a year. I feel like a failure after each loss. However, I do feel good about my record because we have never padded our schedule. We are real close to a 90% win ratio against schools of our size. Most of our losses have been to 4-A schools. If you take this into consideration, then it is obvious we could have won a lot more games. But playing these larger schools helps prepare us for district. I contribute our success to the young men who have played hard and to their parents for supporting the program. The coaches who have worked with me have been great. My assistant Gary Schultz is a great asset to me and our program. Coach Schultz has really worked hard for our program and has done a great job preparing kids to handle the rigors of becoming a varsity player. Our communities are the best at supporting our basketball programs. I really appreciate the support of our fans."

Shake Em Up

JH Rebels Lose To Como-Pickton 20-12

The Junior High Rebels traveled to Como-Pickton last Thursday night to end their season with a disappointing loss, 20-12.

The weather didn't dampen the spirits of the young Rebels or Rebel fans.

The Rebel defense led by Aaron Martin, Coleman Brown, Jerry Cruz and Philip Rolen worked hard against the Eagle offense.

The Rebels were down until the last quarter when the Rebel offense finally clicked and were able to take advantage of outstanding runs by Chad Holland, John Ross and Cruz. The Rebels, if given a few more seconds on the clock, could have put an extra point on the board.

The young Rebels ended their season with only two wins, but the experience they gained will enhance next year's play.

REBEL SPORTS REPORT

Rebels Close Season With Loss

By Tammie Case

The Rivercrest Rebels met the Como-Pickton Eagles on a rained soaked field last Friday night to end their season. The Rebels took the loss 21-0.

Before the Rebels took the field, senior band members, cheerleaders, football players and their parents were honored. These young people and parents were thanked for their dedication to the Rivercrest Athletic Program and school.

The game began after a 40-minute rain delay with the Eagles taking charge from the word go.

The messy field conditions made it difficult for both teams to get good footing and the Rebs had a hard time holding on to the ball.

The Eagles offense used mostly a ground attack but was able to get a few passes in the air to keep the Rebs honest.

The Rebels were able to use the talent of many JV players during the contest. These young men will be an asset in next year's program.

Key plays made by Rebels were Beers, Ellis, A. Savage, Green, Hancock, Gage and Deming.

The Rebels ended their season with a 1-9 record.

Go Rebels!

Dr. Thomas Speaks To Concerned Citizens Group

Interested adults in Bogata met Wednesday, November 2, with Dr. Ken Thomas, of the St. Joseph's Hospital Substance Abuse Center, to discuss ways and means to meet the crisis of drug and alcohol abuse that is prevalent in the culture of our youth and children. This meeting took place in the Bogata First United Methodist Church.

Future meetings are to hopefully involve local, county, and church leaders from the larger community.

Dr. Thomas reported that findings are that the time to say, "No," is before ever taking drugs; after that it becomes extremely difficult for immature persons to sense the damage until use of drugs begins to be more painful than pleasurable.

Among other items agreed upon was to request that the county present a more visible police presence in the south part of Red River county in order to return the community to all its citizens after dark.

Guaranty Bank Offers Image Technology

Guaranty Bank announces its new system for handling customers' checks and it is attracting a lot of attention.

Because of the rising costs of processing checks, Guaranty Bank has adopted the new system called Image Technology. Guaranty Bank is the first in this area to offer this service. It is felt that most banks eventually will adopt this system because of the cost savings.

Chuck Capel, Data Processing Manager for Guaranty Bank, commented, "With this state-of-the-art technology, Guaranty Bank is able to offer a high quality statement product at no additional cost to the customer. Our imaged statement provides our customers with their checks printed in check number order, with multiple checks per page, making it much easier for the customer to rec-oncile their monthly statement."

Every month, the bank sends to its customers "images" of checks printed on standard sheets of paper that have holes punched in them so they can be stored easily in a three-ring binder the bank is providing to its customers.

An image of each check is kept on the bank's computer files indefinitely. As a result, customers can request an image check at any location, and receive it within a short period of time, with dramatically reduced research time.

When asked about the legality, Capel replied, "The Internal Revenue Service has issued an opinion ruling that image statements satisfy all requirements as proof of payment, and are accepted as legal documents."

Bogata Marine Responds To Arabian Threat

When Iraq's president Saddam Hussein recently moved approximately 80,000 of his elite Republican Guard troops to within a few miles of Iraq's southern border with Kuwait, the United States responded with a tremendous show of force. Marine Corps Lance Cpl. Jason E. Reed, the 22 year old son of Charlotte Crow of Bogata, is aboard the USS Tripoli, an amphibious assault ship, and was part of the force positioned off the coast of Kuwait within 24 hours of the threat.

Read is a hydraulic mechanic who works on helicopters. The Tripoli, which carries sailors and marines, is one of four ships that comprise an amphibious ready group (ARG). The ARG includes 2,000 marines from the 15th Marine Expeditionary Unit and is capable of launching a powerful, amphibious Marine assault, day or night, under any weather conditions. The other amphibious ships joining the Tripoli are the USS Cleveland, a transport dock ship and the USS Rushmore and USS Fort McHenry, both landing dock ships.

"We were the first of the forces that were readily available and could be mobilized to arrive in this theatre," said Captain Robert F. Willard, Tripoli's commanding officer. "I think we can all be very proud of the fact that we were called in to deal with this crisis."

Also aboard the ARG in the Arabian Gulf area to deter the Iraqi aggression were other American warships. These included the aircraft carrier USS George Washington with its 80 tactical aircraft onboard and accompanying battle group ships.

During the heightened operation, Reed and his 1,300 fellow shipmates were visited by the Secretary of Defense, William R. Perry, who praises the sailors and marines for their efforts.

"The military power you represent has saved the United States and the world from war," said Perry. "I came here to thank you. You should be very proud of what you've done and I can tell you as your Secretary of Defense, I'm proud of you, the President's proud and the American people are thankful."

Tripoli, homeported in San Diego, left last June for its final deployment before being decommissioned. Prior to participating in the Iraqi crisis, the ship supported the United States humanitarian relief effort in Rwanda, Operation Support Hope.

James Wood Receives "Outstanding Official" Award

The National Federation of Interscholastic Officials Association has selected James Wood of Bogata to receive its annual award of NFIDA Boys Basketball Outstanding Official for the State of Texas for 1993 season.

Wood was recommended by a number of boys high school coaches and a national committee selected him from these recommendations.

The award, presented to Wood at the State Basketball Officials Association annual meeting at the Radison Plaza Hotel in Ft. Worth this past weekend.

Wood has officiated basketball and football for almost 20 years and this marks the second time he has received this award which is based on outstanding service and outstanding devotion to interscholastic athletics.

Wood said he was surprised as well as honored to receive this award again and felt it proved it is not necessarily how good you are at officiating but rather how well you treat the kids and coaches with your attitude.

Little Dribblers Organize For New Year

The Talco-Bogata Little Dribbler Association met Tuesday, November 8 to make plans for the coming year. President Charlie Hines called the meeting to order. The first order of business was to elect officers for the coming year. Charlie Hines was re-elected president; Kim Stansell, vice-president; Denise Chaloner, secretary, and Mary Jane Savage, treasurer.

Kip Stansell reported after speaking with the Talco Principal Johnny Gable, he felt the organization should do one of two things, do away with the "no pass, no play" rule or set one six week period as the guide for students.

Mark Hare made the motion after discussion of the subject to let the third six weeks be the deciding time. Students must pass the third six weeks, which began November 6 and ends December 19. Forms will be sent out the week students return from Christmas break. Notices will be sent to let students and parents know this is the important six weeks period for those interested in playing Little Dribbler basketball. Divisions will be first, second and third boys an girls together; fourth, fifth and sixth boys teams and girls teams. Pplay will be on Saturday only. The fee will be $5.00 per one child and $3.00 for each additional child. Play will begin on January 28 if possible. The group will meet to discuss referees and other rules at a later date.

OFFICERS of the Talco-Bogata Little Dribblers Association for the 1994-95 season are: Charlie

Citizens Group Mounts Drive To Keep RRAD Off Base Closure List

A community-wide campaign has been mounted to keep Red River Army Depot off the base closure list in 1995. Swede Lee, President, Texarkana Chamber of Commerce, is chairman of the RRAD Defense Committee which is spearheading an effort to assure that members of Congress and Department of Defense officials fully understand the military value of the depot. At the present time, 25 citizens representing 16 local communities comprise the RRAD Defense Committee.

Red River is at risk to be among the depots scheduled for closure under the Base Realignment and Closure Commission initiatives to be announced in early 1995. There are currently five Army depots and two of these will possibly be earmarked for closing, Lee said.

What is at risk? In dollars, a loss of $330 million a year. In jobs, 4,200 jobs at the depot and at least another 4,200 outside the depot. "What we're talking about is 4,200 jobs and $330 million a year economic loss," Lee stressed in a recent meeting. Closure would have a "devastating" effect on the entire community—businesses, hospitals, churches, schools and the general quality of life would be hit hard.

Saving Red River will require hard work, smart planning and money. The Red River Defense Committee has established a budget of $320,000. While this is a lot of money, it represents only one-tenth of one-percent of RRAD's annual input into the area economy. The money will be used for printing, postage, telephone, travel, lobbyists, and economic analysis experts. Having enough money does not guarantee success, but lack of funds virtually assures failure.

The next twelve months will be critical as we face the possibility of Red River Army Depot being closed during the 1995 Base Realignment and Closure Commission (BRAC) process.

The BRAC time table is as follows:

1. By January 1, 1995, the Department of the Army will submit a list of installations to be closed or realigned to the Department of Defense.

2. March 1, 1995, the Department of Defense submits list of installations to be closed to the BRAC Commission.

3. July 15, 1995, the BRAC Commission submits list to the President.

4. September 1, 1995, the President submits BRAC list to Congress. Congress must accept or reject the list; they cannot amend the list.

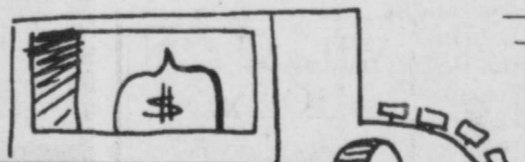

The community must work together as a team if we stand a chance of saving Red River from the closure list, Lee emphasized.

Donations are being solicited from private citizens, local businesses, employees of RRAD, and from civic, service and professional organizations. Everyone is urged to contribute to the RRAD Defense Fund.

Donations may be forwarded to: RRAD Defense Fund Account No. 567011RR, Red River Federal Credit Union, P. O. Box 5909, Texarkana, TX 75505-5909.

Red River has built a reputation of responsive and efficient service to the nation during a 53-year period. "We must all work to assure that it remains a viable part of the national defense structure," Lee added.

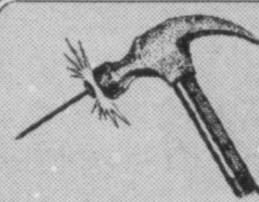

IN GOD WE TRUST,

Our national motto, "In God We Trust," probably originated from verse 4 of the Star Spangled Banner—"And this be our motto: 'In God is our trust.'"

Nuts & Bolts

By Judy Screws

I mentioned to someone that I was bad to become teary eyed at some events, such as very patriotic, occasions, and some religious ceremonies. I also mentioned that it embarrassed me when I was the only one in a crowd who wasn't dry eyed. This person reassured me that producing tears at moving moments was not something about which I should be embarrassed. Flag ceremonies, Pomp and Circumstance, and Baptisms are just a few of the things which can make my eyes water up.

November 11 is near at hand. Veteran Day, or Armistice Day, or whatever you choose to call it, can, if I will let myself, bring me to tears when I think about what it represents and how little we know about the hardships and abuses our military men and women went through and are still going through to make this a better world for you and me.

I heard a lady talking yesterday about how her husband who is a prisoner in Guatemala is being treated. It makes me cringe and change the channel as I listen to these atrocities from the safety of my living room.

Just in the last few years have we been able to get Daddy to talk about things which the men and women in World War II went through. Those folks didn't have any choice about going into service. They were called, and they went, and some of them came back and some of them didn't, and some of those who came back were never the same after the experience.

I know that we say how much we appreciate what the military does for us, and I think we really mean it when we say it, but I don't think we can ever mean it enough. Try sitting in your nice home and just for a moment think about fox holes in freezing weather, and mutilated bodies coming home in bags, and if you can remember, go out and find yourself a veteran and give him an "attaboy."

Outdoor grilling is a Texas tradition. You've probably collected lots of great recipes for barbecued ribs, chicken, steaks and burgers. But now there are two ingredients you won't need.
