"I'm going to cut hay....that heifers going to calve this afternoon and YOU can help her". So said my husband with a big grin on his face as he left the house on a recent Thursday afternoon.

He was joking, of course he was. But, naturally, he hadn't much more than left when the heifer waded off into the pool and began trying to produce a calf. I ran her out of the pool, went to visit my Dad, and upon my return found the silly heifer where? Back in the pool, of course. Once again I ran her out of the shallow water, this time driving her completely to the back side of the pasture.

Thus began an afternoon routine. Clean house for 30 minutes, go run the heifer out of the pool. Clean house 30 minutes, go run the heifer out of the pool. The heifer was definitely going to calve, and definitely had her mind made up that the water was the accepted place to do so. So the afternoon went, clean, check cow.

At about 6:00 P.M., after 5 hours of this stupidity I drove up to the barn to check once more on the heifer. To my horror, as I pulled in the gate I saw the heifer had calved...and sure enough, flopping like a fish, there was her newborn in the water. He looked like a landed bass!

I considered the situation for a split second, and realized that my worn out knees were up to the task of wading into the muddy shallows and holding the calf up....but not to carrying it out. There was a time when lugging 80 pounds of slippery calf through the mud wouldn't have been a problem, but that time is passed. I used the mobile phone to dial the closest, strongest neighbors, Donny and David Darden. Then, I bailed out of the vehicle and ran into the water. I managed to grab the calf's tail and yank it towards me enough to help it stand up. Letting it go for a moment to try and get hold of it's little head, it's mother promptly tried to lead it away from me...by taking it further out in the water. I quickly got a grip back, intending to stand there until my help arrived.

About that time the new mom decided I didn't need to touch her baby and began butting me. Fortunately, she was kind of half-hearted about it. I retreated, dragging the calf with me, and finally arrived at the edge of the pool. The little fellow seemed to find land very attractive and began wobbling around his mother looking for that first meal. My help arrived right then, and I realized that this little saga had only taken a minute or two, even though it seemed to last forever!

It took quite a while for the heifer to get it through her head that the pool isn't where newborn babies belong, and we edged her away from it.

Now she is quite silly about her baby and doesn't let it near the water. Apparently going under water three or four times hasn't hurt Tuffy, he's just fine.

My shoes are dry now, and I may soon attempt to crack the mud from them.

I'm grateful for neighbors who come so quickly to help.

I keep looking at my husband and wondering how he knew what kind of problems were going to occur that afternoon. And Thomas keeps insisting "I was only kidding, really, I didn't have a clue". Yeah, right!

Country Cooking

By Liz Irwin

This is the time of year that fresh fruit is usually on hand and is ready for the picking. Because of the inclement weather that we had during the winter, the early fruit and most of the rest was lost. We have to rely on crops that are shipped in from California, Florida or the Rio Grande Valley. A lot of these areas also lost most of their crops due to the cold weather and a lot of flooding, not only bringing on a shortage of crops but the usual...high prices. But what little fruit that was grown, there is no better way to prepare it than a fresh, hot, fruit cobbler.

I can remember sitting in front of a very large (at the time it seemed to be gigantic) metal washtub, filled to the brim with water and fresh, mouth watering peaches, waiting to be peeled. I preferred mine half-green with a lot of salt and ate as many as I peeled. Apples were also abundant and we peeled, sliced, diced, cooked, preserved and froze many, many bushels. I ate a lot of these too, but peaches were my favorite.

Blackberry Cobbler is also an all time favorite, if you can get past the thorns. Nowadays, they have the thornless berries, but they just don't taste the same. There are several varieties of the Peach Cobbler. One is for a Sugarless for folks that are trying to cut back! Also included are two crust recipes. I use the Never-Fail recipe. I can't count the times that my crust has ended in the garbage and it took me several years to "perfect" my pie crust. There is also a all-purpose recipe for using different varieties of fruit.

Included is a recipe for an Old-Fashioned Vinegar Cobbler. A variation for this is to add 4 tablespoons of margarine. This recipe was used before the Civil War and was used much when fruit and berries were not available while traveling by covered wagon and riverboat, when supplies were limited. Also used in the Depression days, when money was scarce, making do with what was on hand.

There is also a Bread Pudding recipe that several folks have asked for and we will see you in the kitchen!

Blackberry Cobbler
1 stick margarine
2 pie crust
2 cups blackberry juice
2 cups water
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 cup flour
1-1/2 cup sugar
Melt margarine in large bowl. Cut 1 crust into strips and put strips on top of margarine. Mix together blackberry juice, water, salt, flour and sugar. Cook in microwave oven for 5 minutes and pour over crust. Put remaining pie crust on top. Cook in conventional oven for 30 minutes at 350 degrees or until brown on top. Peaches or other fruit may be used instead of blackberries.

Sugarless Peach Cobbler
6-8 fresh peaches-sliced
Fruit Fresh
1/2 cup water
8 packets Equal
1 tablespoon Sweet-10
3 tablespoons butter or margarine-melted pie crust-to cover
Sprinkle peaches with Fruit Fresh and add water, Equal, Sweet-10 and margarine. Top with pie crust and prick. Bake until crust is brown in 400 degrees.

Peach Cobbler
2 cups sugar
1/2 cup flour
1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
1 stick butter
1 cup water
2 tablespoons lemon juice
2 quarts sliced frozen/fresh peaches
Mix sugar, flour, nutmeg and cinnamon together in a large saucepan. Pour in batter, water, lemon juice and peaches. Cook until bubbly and pour into a 9x12 buttered dish. Top with strips of pastry that are at least 1/8 inch thicker than you would use for a pie shell.

Bread Pudding
1/2 loaf bread
3 eggs
1-1/2 cup sugar
1/4 teaspoon salt

Pour mixture into pan. Sprinkle with cinnamon and allspice. Dot with butter. Bake at 350 degrees until golden brown.

Crust for Cobblers
2 cups flour
2/3 cup shortening
6 tablespoons ice-cold water
dash salt

Cut in strips or large squares and place on cobbler. Sprinkle with cinnamon and sugar mixture. Bake 1 hour at 350 degrees. Do not cover with foil or anything that will cause moisture and make crust soggy.

Never-Fail Pie Crust
3 cups flour
1 cup Crisco
dash salt
1 egg
1 tablespoon vinegar
1 egg-well beaten
1/3 cup cold water
With pastry blender or fork blend flour, salt and Crisco until crumbl consistency. Beat egg into water and vinegar; add to dry ingredients. Blend well and shape into balls for three crust or cobblers.

1 cup white vinegar
2 pie crust-unbaked
In a Corningware skillet or 10-inch iron skillet, bring water, sugar and vinegar to a boil. Continue to boil for 10 minutes. Cut pie crust into strips. While vinegar mixture is boiling, layer 1 crust into mixture. Layer second crust crosswise and continue boiling mixture for another 10 minutes. Bake in moderate oven at 350 degrees for 30 minutes.

Fruit Cobbler
1 quart fruit (berries, peaches, apples, etc)
1-1/2 cup sugar
1 cup flour
1 beaten egg
1 stick butter
Place fruit in a 9x12 baking dish. Mix sugar, flour and egg in separate dish. Pour over fruit, but do not stir into fruit. Melt butter and pour over mixture. Bake at 350 degrees for 1 hour or until golden brown.

NOTICE OF RATE CHANGE REQUEST

For Texas-New Mexico Power Company customers within the State of Texas, the Company announces that it has filed, on May 2, 1996, an Application for Approval and Statement of Intent for Transition Plan in accordance with the regulations of the Public Utility Commission of Texas. The effective date of such change is June 10, 1996. All classes of customers receiving service from Texas-New Mexico Power Company will be affected by said proposed rates. TNP serves approximately 170,000 customers in Texas. The proposed rates, for all of TNP's Texas operations, will not increase gross revenues to the Company over adjusted test year revenues.

The purpose of this filing is to obtain approval for TNP's transition plan, known as Community Choice, which will address potential stranded costs and increasing competition in the electric utility industry. Community Choice is comprised of the following three major elements:

(1) Effective Aggregation of Small Electric Loads. Community Choice aggregates electric service customers at the community level for the purpose of purchasing bulk electric energy. This approach to aggregating customers will provide residential and small commercial customers some of the same buying power that large commercial and industrial customers likely will enjoy in a competitive environment.

(2) An Opportunity to Recover Stranded Costs. During a five-year transition period (1997 - 2001), in which TNP will implement Community Choice, TNP will have the opportunity to reduce the so-called "stranded costs" associated with TNP One, TNP's generating plant. TNP's stranded costs are the difference between what it costs TNP to produce electric energy and what a customer is willing to pay for electric energy in a competitive environment. Rates, including charges associated with fuel and purchased power, will remain constant during this five-year period at 1995 levels. TNP will use normal depreciation, depreciation shifting, and any fuel or purchased power savings to reduce the capital cost of TNP One. In addition, Community Choice will include a mechanism for using some earnings above a specified level to reduce the capital cost of TNP One.

(3) A Commitment to Provide Customer Choice. Beginning on January 1, 2002, TNP's customers will have the opportunity to choose their suppliers of bulk electric energy and energy-related services. Customers will be able to choose which company provides these services to them, while TNP will continue to provide transmission and distribution services.

A complete copy of the requested rate filing package is on file with the Public Utility Commission of Texas. You may inspect a copy of the filing during normal business hours at the business office of Texas-New Mexico Power Company in your area.

Persons who wish to intervene in or comment upon these proceedings should notify the commission as soon as possible, as an intervention deadline will be imposed. A request to intervene or for further information should be mailed to the Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard, Austin, Texas 78757. Fine meals and orphan lambs

By Nanalee Nichols
Installation 2 of a series on vacationing in Ireland

An afternoon and evening in Galway is a good way to spend time.

One of the neatest things we did was wander through an antiques and jumble sale around the old city walls of Galway. Here people had everything from furniture to penknives for sale. It's probably for the best we couldn't ship most of the things we wanted back....it kept us in line!

A live band entertained the crowd, and we adjourned from that after a little while for a walk along the beach to pick up a few sea shells.

Our bed and breakfast that night was on Threadneedle Street, a lovely two story home called Clare Villa.

Tea and biscuits (what we would call cookies), a hot bath and a pleasant, sunny room refreshed us. Slowly, jet lag was wearing off. That night we dressed up and went for a special meal at The Malt House. How pleasant to set at linen covered tables with fresh flower arrangements and attention service. Deep fried camembert cheese, garlic butter crab claws, scallops, shrimp, olive bread...oh my! It was an evening to "wonder what the pore folks were doing".

From Galway we traveled through beautiful country in Connemara. Many of you will remember a John Wayne/Maureen O'Hara movie called "The Quiet Man". That movie was filmed in the area, and in the town of Cong. The lovely mountains, chattering streams sharing secrets as they joined together, and stone bridge seen several times in the movie made it easy to understand why it was chosen as a movie location.

We had not seen the movie until returning home, and it was delightful to find that I had taken a picture of the vicarage that matched the scenes in the movie, as well as several others. We had a stop in the pub used in the movie, also interesting and pleasant.

We took a walk to Ashford Castle, which is magnificent. It's another one of those castles turned hotels with rates too high for the likes of us. The grounds are just beautiful, and the tulips, long gone here, were still in full bloom.

One of the fascinating things to an

East Texan is the number of beautiful wild swans regally drifting down rivers and on lakes.

Sandwiches and chips (what we call fries) in Handley's Pub took care of lunch and we reached the Northwest of the Republic of Ireland. I think our guide wondered why we wanted to return to Sligo and the Drumcliffe area, and I was at a loss except to tell him that I felt drawn back to the area by the quality of light. Later, settled into our B&B at the end of a series of long, winding roads, the light on Benbulbin mountain and the bay far, far beyond began to prove my point. My cousin, Medora sat in breathless excitement as a rain storm swept across the bay, and the light changed from pinks to purples to deepest blues and night settled in. It's hard to explain why I love that country so much, but I thoroughly enjoyed our return.

Earlier, the three of us wandered down the lanes, watching lambs cavort around their mamas, and enjoying the scenery.

Inside our B&B we chatted with some Australians who were staying their also, then went down to Drumcliffe to Yeats House to eat. It was across from the churchyard where the poet, W.B. Yeats, is buried.

It occurs that not all readers may be familiar with a "B&B". This means, obviously, bed and breakfast, and that's exactly what one gets. The rooms are attached to a private home, and the family lives in another part of the house. Ours all had ensuite bathrooms. There is a central sitting room where tv, books and radio are available. At Benbulbin Farm we visited with Mrs. Cummins and learned that the family has six girls and one boy. The boy had meningitis at age 9, and is almost completely deaf.

"I fear we indulge him too much" she said. As well behaved and friendly as the children we met were....no fear!

We asked if there was an orphan lamb Medora could feed, since she had never done that. In short order "Bobby" came around behind the three youngest girls, who were so sweet and attractive. Medora giggled and giggled as the lamb took the bottle, and one of the girls brought her rabbit for us to pet too. Being animal lovers we all enjoyed that immensely.

The next morning Robert came to collect us and we were off for the Belleek factory in Northern Ireland.

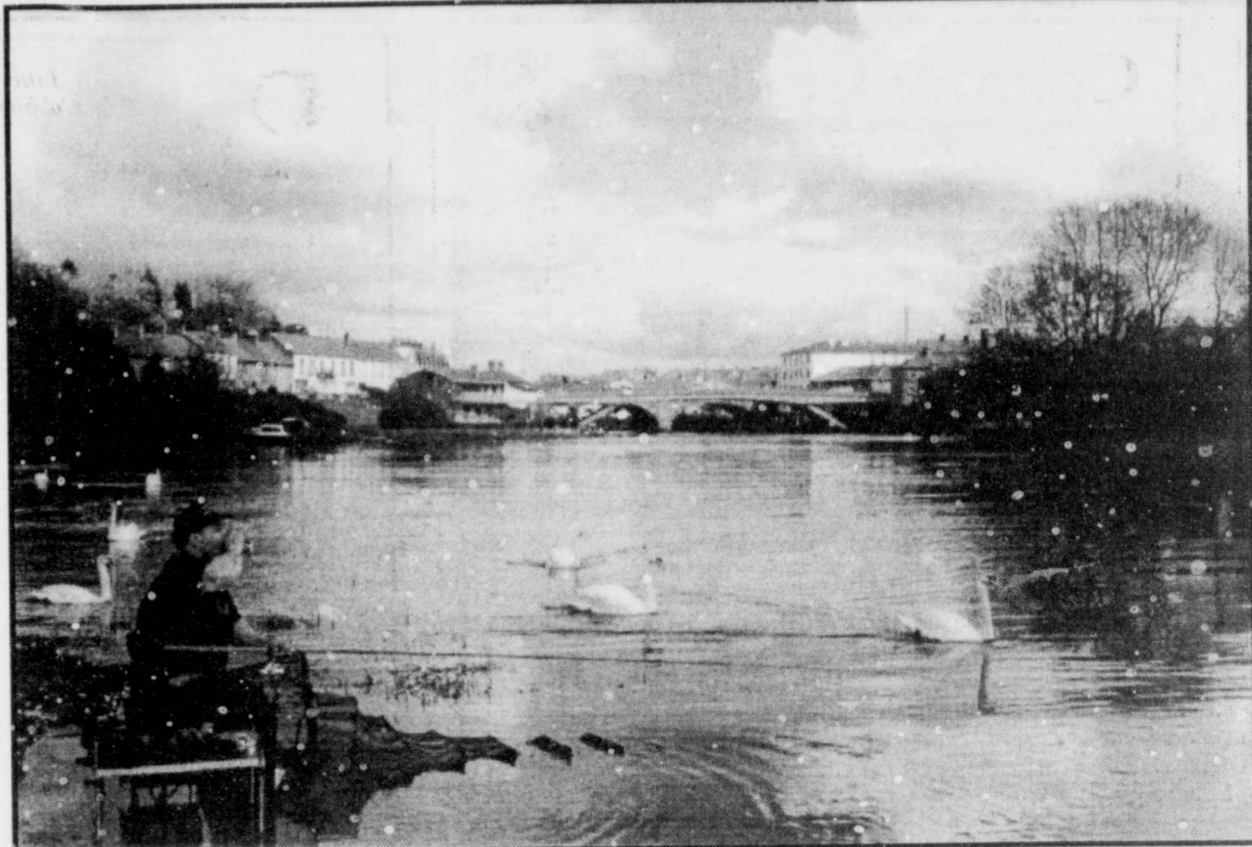

We talked about the troubles between the Republic and the north with Robert. He says that the media refers to it as a Catholic/Protestant problem, but that it is really more of an English/Irish problem". Sadly, it seems that millions of pounds are poured into Northern Ireland to station the military there, and that there are many who don't want true peace because of the economic benefits of the problem!

At the Belleek factory we toured to see how the fragile, almost transparent pariah pottery is made, then (naturally) Medora and I had to buy some. From there we traveled on into Northern Ireland, including Inniskellig, where there was a terrible bombing some years ago during a parade.

At a park in Inniskellig we stopped on the spur of the moment to see swans and fishermen. The fishermen were sitting in chairs on the riverside, with long poles, bobbars and a reel. They would use a bean flipper or throw out by hand dry fish food and small larvae around the hook to attract the fish. My cousin, the fisherman extraordinaire, was fascinated.

We drove through land that was much less rocky and very lush. Of course, by this time my cousin was thinking I was quite nuts...I had told her it rained nearly every day and to bring her raincoat and umbrella. We had about two 15 minute showers the whole trip! Well, I could only judge by our first time, I didn't know it would be dry!

Back into the Republic of Ireland we made our way towards Dublin, and stopped off for the highlight of the trip for me, at least. Newgrange is an ancient burial tomb, known as a passage tomb. It was constructed 5000 years before the pyramids, making it 5000 years old. We'll cover more of that next time...and our "brush" with the Druids! Now that was interesting!

A BEAUTIFUL spring day, a bevy of swans, and fishing....in Ireland, as in everywhere else the world over, fishing has it's appeal! This fisherman is fishing at a river in Inniskellig in Northern Ireland. (Staff Photo by Nanalee Nichols)

Texas traffic deaths increased in 95

Traffic deaths increased by 1 percent in Texas in 1995 compared with the year before, but the number of fatalities per 100 million miles driven dropped to the lowest level in the state's history, Department of Public Safety statistics show.

The record-low death rate of 1.7 means that the chance of being killed in a traffic accident in Texas was the lowest it has ever been.

There is concern that the actual number of deaths was up slightly, but considering our large population, rapid growth and the amount of driving we do in Texas, the situation certainly could have been much worse.

Statistics compiled by the DPS show 3,172 persons died in traffic crashes in 1995, up 1 percent from 1994, when 3,142 fatalities were reported.

Another encouraging sign seen is that alcohol and drug related traffic fatalities were down in 1995. Accidents involving intoxicated drivers were down 2.7 percent. Still, intoxicated drives accounted for 1,138 deaths; 35.9 percent of all fatalities.

Though the speed limit on some Texas highways increased beginning Dec. 8 last year, it is too early to tell what effect this will have on traffic safety in the state. Even so, motorists need to keep in mind that exceeding the speed limit is dangerous.

Traffic fatality reports for 1995 showed a slight increase in the number of motorcycle fatalities and an increase in pedestrian traffic deaths.

No traffic fatalities were reported in Texas on Feb. 28, 1995, the only day during the year no traffic deaths occurred. Twice during 1995, single accidents claimed six or more victims. Texans are encouraged to obey speed limits, wear safety belts and avoid alcohol when they plan to drive. Keeping traffic safety in mind can save lives during 1996.

Emergency farm loan applications being accepted

Applications for emergency farm loans for damages and losses caused by excessive high temperatures, drought conditions, unseasonably cool temperatures, and an early freeze, which occurred August 1 through December 31, 1995 in Oklahoma, also contiguous counties of Bowie and Red River are being accepted at the Farm Service Agency (FSA) office located in Mt. Pleasant, Sheila L. Osbourne said today.

Bowie and Red River Counties are included in 20 in Texas recently named by Secretary of Agriculture, Dan Glickman eligible for loans to cover part of actual production losses resulting from damages and losses caused by excessive high temperatures, drought conditions, unseasonably cool temperatures, and early freeze conditions which occurred August 1 through December 31, 1995.

Ms. Osbourne said farmers may be eligible for loans of up to 80 percent of their actual production losses resulting from damages and losses caused by excessive high temperatures, drought conditions, unseasonably cool temperatures, and early freeze conditions which occurred August 1 through December 31, 1995.

Ms. Osbourne said farmers may be eligible for loan of up to 80 percent of their actual losses or the operating loans needed to continue in business or $500,000 whichever is less. For farmers unable to obtain credit from private commercial lenders the interest is 3.75 percent.

"As a general rule, a farmer must have suffered at least a 30 percent loss of production to be eligible for an FSA emergency loan," Ms. Osbourne said. Farmers participating in the PIK or Federal Crop Insurance program will have to figure in proceeds from those programs in determining their loss.

Applications for loans under this emergency designation will be accepted until January 6, 1997 but farmers should apply as soon as possible. Delays in applying could create backlogs in processing and possibly over into the new farming season," Ms. Osbourne said.

FSA is a credit agency of the U.S. Department of Agriculture. It is authorized to provide disaster emergency loans to recognized farmers who work at and rely on farming for a substantial part of their living. Eligibility is extended to individual farmers who are U.S. Citizens and to farming partnerships, corporations or cooperatives in which U.S. citizens hold a majority interest.

The FSA office in Mt. Pleasant is open from 8:00 to 5:30 Monday through Friday.

Contestants are left to right: Lauren Beers, representing the Pee Wees, Megan Horn, representing the majors, Molly Hare, representing the minors and Kimberly Ross, representing the Pony League. Each year a queen's contest is held as a fundraiser for the league. This year the princesses and their teams will be accepting donations for a drawing that will be held at the Bogata Rodeo for a $200.00 Wal Mart gift certificate. The princess who raises the most money will be crowned Queen of the Bogata Baseball and Softball Association for 1996.
