Worth

By Nanalee Nichols

I write from a woman's perspective. There really isn't any other way for me to write for the simple reason of my gender.

But, I would like to take up for the other gender for a while.

I was at a wall paper store over the weekend, and there was a sign posted on the wall that read "Men attempting to match colors must bring a note from home". I cracked up laughing, because it seems to be true that men don't match home decor colors very well. My husband, who also admits to that particular problem, was highly amused too.

But, upon careful reflection, I realized that this is stereo-typing.

I'm not one of these people that thinks this is a case for a harassment suit. I think most of those suits are unwarranted. But I have most definitely been a woman in a man's world many times, and it isn't always easy.

When we were farming for a living I ran into man after man at grain mills and parts stores who automatically assumed since I was picking up parts for my husband that I didn't know what I was doing. I have had to argue more than once that "no, I didn't want THIS, I wanted THAT" because they were just sure I was wrong.

I tried to tell a man at the mill once that we needed to use the dump bed on my old grain truck, because if we used the lift the carburetor would drain, and the fuel pump wasn't strong enough. He insisted on putting the truck on the lift. I announced that when it didn't crank he would get someone to help him pull it until it cranked. I drank a nice cold softdrink under the office air conditioning while he and another man dragged that blasted truck all over the mill yard until it finally fired up! He didn't, however, argue with me anymore.

When I first started in the newspaper business I dealt with prejudice and rejection because women were not usually found at crime scenes, fires, deaths and sports events. My theory was "Do the job well and don't back down and the "come around". Most of them did.

Over the years I have maintained that there are very few places a woman doesn't belong, but that they have to do the job as well as a man with no special concessions. It doesn't count if you don't do it on an equal basis!

Women have made great strides in being able to choose what career they wanted instead of what was "appropriate".

But, we've backslashed. After seeing the wallpaper sign I began thinking about all those incredibly stupid commercials on TV that make the husband or father out to be a bumbling idiot! While they are cute, they probably aren't too amusing to the men watching them! Sitcoms make men out to be fools, frequently and that's not accurate either. Of course men can run a house if necessary, and of course they can fill roles "traditionally" filled by women. It's as bad to typecast them as it is to typecast females!

I didn't appreciate being made fun of because I was a woman in a "man's world" and I don't figure men appreciate being made fun of in a "woman's world".

What I really can't figure out is why it's necessary to run either men or women down. We're different from one another, that's a fact, but why does that matter? Wouldn't it be boring if all human kind was exactly the same?

It's up to consumers to protect themselves from unwanted phone services

By Nanalee Nichols

Remember when you didn't even really need to check your phone bill to see if it was correct? Well, those times are gone with the intense competition within the telemarketing business of today's high-tech world. And, if people aren't very careful, they can end up with charges on their bill for services they can't even use. Please read the following and perhaps it will help you avoid what I went through.

Recently I had a charge for "Voice Mail Services" appear on one of our phones for the newspaper. The services were sold by a company who subcontracted to another company who actually provided the services. The service had nothing to do with the phone company my service is with. I called the toll free number on my bill and learned that a teenager who occasionally answers the phone for her mother had spoken with the telemarketing company. She was asked "do you understand how this card works" and she said yes. That was all it took for voice mail charges of about $20 per month to show up on our bill...at a location without the capability to use voice mail! And, I learned that anyone can sign you up for these services whether you want them or not! After doing so you can cancel them, but it is very difficult to get those charges removed and many people just go ahead and pay them instead of going through the major efforts to recover their money.

It has been a big hassle to get the service cancelled and the charges removed, and it has taken many letters to the Public Utility Company, the phone company, the people selling the service, etc. to accomplish this.

Upon speaking with other people I have discovered a number of others have gone through the same thing. I discovered that sometimes people thought they were agreeing to a free psychic reading instead of signing up for a service! One customer was signed up by someone who has never even been in his house! I began questioning and prying into this matter, and have learned that it can be very difficult to protect against this kind of thing, as well as long distance phone companies constantly coming up with new (and often devious) ways to get you to change your long distance services.

I have spoken with helpful people at the Consumer Protection Division of the Office of the Attorney General of Texas, and the Public Utilities Commission. Here is what I have learned and what people can do to protect themselves.

1. Be very, very careful when talking to anyone on the phone about any phone services, or free offers. People frequently agree to a 30 day free trial without realizing that if THEY don't call and cancel the service after 30 days it automatically continues and you will be billed for the services.

2. Some very unethical companies will even tape conversations and splice voices so that it appears you have agreed to services when you didn't. Don't say "yes" or "Okay" to anything. In fact, in my opinion, the best thing to do is simply say "No" or "not interested" and hang up. Don't worry about being rude, these people are often being worse than rude!

3. Check your telephone bill carefully. Always look at every page. The charges for all kinds of services will be listed on there and usually have a toll-free contact number. This is not the telephone company's number. Whether we agree with the practice or not phone companies routinely have contracts to place billing charges from various companies on their bills. My phone company was, however, very helpful in assisting me with removing charges.

4. If you have a charge on your phone bill don't just wait for it to be corrected. Call immediately and be firm about wanting it cancelled and removed. If you are asked to put something in writing do so immediately. Document all phone calls, get names or operator numbers, write them down and keep a record of everything you do and are told and on what date.

5. Calling Consumer Protection or the PUC is all right to begin with, but I was told that to really help stop these things they need written letters. It's a lot of trouble, but do it, write them. The more complaints they have, the quicker they can investigate and make sure companies are operating within legal bounds.

Remember, telemarketing has very few controls, and it is basically up to the consumer to protect himself or herself. The most important thing is to not agree to anything without really knowing what it is, what it costs and how it works.

The following addresses are to write to when you have complaints. They will help!

Country Cooking

By Liz Irwin

Our featured cook this week is camera-shy and refused to have her picture made for the column. She says that she does not do pictures, I can't say as I blame her, I don't like to have mine made either! She is Nancy Brown of Talco and is the Talco correspondent.

Thomas, here at the paper, made us get our picture made earlier in the year and came up with the bright idea of press badges. We have both refused to wear them. . . . we may have to take pictures from across the fence if they won't let us in!

All kidding aside, Nancy does a great job for Talco and covers a lot of the Rivercrest School events that none of us are able to do. She stays very busy and is active in Talco Little Dribblers and Girl's Softball Summer Leagues. She and her husband Eddie also belong to the Maple Springs Missionary Baptist Church. Eddie is a long-time employee of Tumco and is president of the Rivercrest School Board.

They have both lived around that area all their lives. They have a daughter Kim, who is a nurse and a son Jack, who plans to enter Austin College in Sherman this fall as a freshman. He graduated from Rivercrest in May and is one of the basketball players that will be sorely missed.

Nancy enjoys all types of sports, being an athlete herself in high school. She also gardens and cans and enjoys decorating cakes for all occasions.

Since she stays so busy, I asked for some recipes that are quick and easy. She submitted Squash Pickles, Quik Cobbler, Easy Apricot Pie, Ice Cream Cake, Broccoli Cornbread and Gravy Icing.

They all sound great and we will see you in the kitchen!

Dean Scoggins attends Olympic Games

Dean Scoggins vacationed in Alabama and Georgia week before last. He has three sons who live in Huntsville, Alabama, Scott and family (includes grandson, Andrew Scott), Pat and Mike.

Mr. Scoggins and his three sons made the trip back to Atlanta, Georgia from Huntsville, Alabama. They had tickets for some of the swimming events. The ladies' freestyle, ladies' butterfly and the qualifying meets for the men's swimming events. They also had tickets for some of the minor competitions but decided not to stay for them. Mr. Scoggins and his sons found that prices were much higher than they were willing to pay. At places a hamburger and a coke could cost from $12.00 to $17.00. The souvenir pins (the authentic ones) were $25.00 apiece and the phony ones were $10.00 each. They had parked on the west side of Atlanta and had ridden the MARTA to within about a mile of where their particular events were scheduled. They report that after they got on the MARTA traffic was fine with someone else driving, but when just driving down the streets the traffic was bumper to bumper.

After seeing much of what Atlanta had to offer, Mr. Scoggins and his sons returned to Huntsville where they went out on a yacht and cruised the Tennessee River.

Mr. Scoggins returned to Bogata last Monday.

BRO/Super Bull merge for exciting new season

Rodeo history was made recently when the Wrangler Bull Riders Only series, the world's first televised professional bull riding tour announced that it has agreed with FOX to televise the WBRO World Championships live in prime time from the Thomas and Mack Center in Las Vegas, Nevada on April 5, 1997. Charles Sampson, the 1982 PRCA World Bull Riding Champion and PR Director for Wrangler Bull Riders Only series said "It's overdue recognition for a group of athletes who have been financially under-appreciated for the amount of skill and risk that it takes to compete in such a phenomenal sport." BRO also announced the inclusion of the Superbull Tour in BRO's 1996 season including three jointly produced events. The Supebull Tour was the first ever bull riding series beginning in 1989 and producing over 200 performances of bull riding. "Led by Joe Welby and George Marshall, they paved the way for companies like the Wrangler Bull Riders Only series to get on television." Sampson continued. "We are excited and honored to be able to work with all of the great bull riding producers out there, our sport will make great strides and the FOX deal and the million dollar finals are two great examples of what we can accomplish when we work together. They bring production expertise that will greatly improve the show, we help them with TV, it's a perfect fit."

A Tradition for 49 years

CRP extends forage available during drought

Many livestock producers in Red River County are taking advantage of a USDA program that allows for emergency haying or grazing of Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) lands during the 1996 drought. The program, in effect since February 1996, allows for CRP participants to graze their fields or lease them to a neighbor for a limited time period, provided they obtain a grazing plan from the USDA Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS).

Originally, the grazing period was set to begin in February and end on April 1. Counties experiencing a 40 percent or greater loss of available grazing during the January through March 1996 period were initially eligible for the program. The USDA extended the grazing period as the drought deepened and the program was recently extended through the summer and now expires in September. The cost to the producer for grazing the CRP land is five percent of the annual rental payment per month, not to exceed 25 percent of the total payment.

The USDA-NRCS is currently working with people to assist with stocking rate recommendations, grazing schedules, and other aspects of grazing management. Most of the people who take advantage of this program are owner/operators who are utilizing the grazing opportunity with their own livestock. However, some of the participants are leasing acreage to other producers. The nature of the leases vary. Some are leasing to their neighbors at cost and others are charging for the grazing on a per head per month basis.

This has been a good program all the way around for livestock producers. In addition to providing low cost emergency forage, grazing the CRP is giving ranchers an opportunity to rest their pastures. Allowing desirable grasses enough time to recover their vigor and develop seed is critical for future productivity. Controlled grazing is also beneficial for the CRP fields. Most of the grasses established under CRP are well adapted to grazing. A grazing cycle or two will remove thatch, increase tillering, and even allow for additional seedling development over the long term. The fact is, grazing older CRP fields will increase plant vigor and rejuvenate the established stand that may be a little decadent from lack of grazing.

USDA-NRCS employees have been kept busy this year helping producers realize the benefits of CRP grazing and how to avoid the pitfalls of overgrazing. These grazing plans include a recommended number of livestock to graze in a given field over a prescribed period. The agency has had to move away from that concept somewhat, as the program has been extended through the spring months. The rain that has been received has resulted in good growth in many fields. USDA-NRCS is now focusing on assisting producers to maintain adequate grazing heights on their important forage grasses. The amount of forage available has been increased by pulling livestock for a time and allowing CRP fields to recover before another grazing cycle.

Grazing plans are being written to address the Emergency Grazing Provisions. At least 25 percent of the forage in the CRP field must be maintained for wildlife cover. The recommended procedure is to fence off 25 percent of the field which will remain ungrazed. As an alternative, the entire field may be grazed if the stocking rate is reduced by 25 percent and/or the minimum stubble height is increased proportionately to leave the required cover.

For more information on USDA programs that allow emergency haying or grazing of CRP lands, please contact your local USDA-NRCS office at (903) 427-2975 or stop by at 1606 East Main Street in Clarksville.

NOTICE OF EFFECTIVE TAX RATE

1996 PROPERTY TAX RATES IN CITY OF BOGATA

This notice concerns 1996 property tax rates for CITY OF BOGATA. It presents information about three tax rates. Last year's tax rate is the actual rate the taxing unit used to determine property taxes last year. This year's effective tax rate would impose the same total taxes as last year. This year's effective tax would impose the same total taxes as last year if you compare properties taxed in both years. This year's rollback tax rate is the highest tax rate the taxing unit can set before taxpayers can start tax rollback procedures. In each case these rates are found by dividing the total amount of taxes by the tax base (the total value of taxable property) with adjustments as required by state law. The rates are given per $100 of property value.

LAST YEAR'S TAX RATE:

Last year's operating taxes	$80,841
Last year's debt taxes	0
Last year's total taxes	$80,841
Last year's tax base	$17,806,900
Last year's total tax rate (per $100)	0.45399

THIS YEAR'S EFFECTIVE TAX RATE:

Last year's adjusted taxes	$80,258
(after subtracting taxes on lost property)
/ This year's adjusted tax base	$17,663,740
(after subtracting value of new property)
= This year's effective tax rate (per $100)	0.45436
x 1.03 = maximum rate unless unit publishes notices and holds hearing (per $100)*	0.46799

THIS YEAR'S ROLLBACK TAX RATE:

Last year's adjusted operating taxes	$80,258
(after subtracting taxes on lost property and adjusting for transferred function)
/ This year's adjusted tax base	$17,663,740
= This year's effective operating rate (per $100)	0.45436
x 1.08 = this year's maximum operating rate (per $100)	0.49070
+ This year's debt rate (per $100)	0.00000
= This year's rollback rate (per $100)	0.49070

* If the rollback rate is lower than 1.03 times the effective rate, the unit must publish the notices and hold the hearing to adopt a tax rate that exceeds the rollback tax rate.

SCHEDULE A

UNENCUMBERED FUND BALANCES

The following estimated balances will be left in the unit's property tax accounts at the end of the fiscal year. These balances are not encumbered by a corresponding debt obligation.

TYPE OF PROPERTY TAX FUND	BALANCE
GENERAL OBLIGATION	$12,794

SCHEDULE B

1996 DEBT SERVICE

The unit plans to pay the following amounts for long-term debts that are secured by property taxes. These amounts will be paid from property tax revenues (or additional sales tax revenues, if applicable.)

Description of debt	Principal or Contract Payment to be paid from property taxes	Interest to be paid from property taxes	Other amounts to be paid	Total Payment
	$0	$0	$0	$0
Total required for 1996 debt service				$0
- Amount (if any) paid from funds listed in Schedule A				$0
- Excess collections last year				$0
= Total to be paid from taxes in 1996				$0

Jean Upchurch is St. Jude Bike-A-Thon coordinator

St. Jude Children's Research Hospital has announced plans for the Bogata "Wheels For Life" Bike-A-Thon to be held on September 7, 1996. Coordinator for this year's event is Mrs. Jean Upchurch, who encourages all residents and businesses to support this community effort.

St. Jude Children's Research Hospital, founded in 1962 by the late entertainer, Danny Thomas, is the largest childhood cancer research center in America in terms of the number of patients treated and treatment success. Treatment is provided at no cost to the family and all findings are shared freely with doctors and hospitals all over the world. Thanks to St. Jude Hospital, children who have leukemia, Pediatric AIDS, sickle cell anemia and other life threatening diseases now have a better chance to live.

Ten year old Amy Lyon of Chicago, Illinois represents all the patients who have received the benefits of St. Jude's research. Amy was diagnosed with ependymoma - a form of brain cancer in August, 1994. After surgery, Amy had a series of radiation and chemotherapy treatments which ended in December, 1994. Amy loves to swim and is an avid reader. She also enjoys rollerblading. Thanks to everyone who supports events like the "Wheels for Life", St. Jude Hospital will always be available for children like Amy.
