

I can't stand much more! All this beautiful weather is about to kill us. We don't think we can take too much more of this gorgeous, fantastic, glorious weather!

What am I babbling about? Working.

After summers' grinding heat, terrible drought and then the long spell of amazing rain, the autumn has been as perfect as an autumn can be. Moderate temperatures, dipping into a pleasantly crisp nighttime low and rising to a bone warming, golden high, have resulted in us working ourselves nearly to death!

It's too beautiful to stay inside. So, we've done things like pressure wash under the eaves and porch, shovel sand, and run the weed eater until the world looks level. In addition we mowed, shredded, push mowed, pulled weeds, sprayed weed killer and generally got everything tidied up for winter.

Now, let me explain about shovelling. My back isn't so good. Thomas had back surgery and is just now gradually getting back to doing such things.

So, I shovelled sand into the flower beds and he shovelled it into a spot near the deck that was washing out. We paid for it. Oh, yeah, did we pay for it. We're in our fifties now, folks, and when we went to bed last night we compared symptoms. My arms hurt. So did his. His back hurt, so did mine. My wrist hurt, his thumbs hurt. We moaned and complained for a while before aritting off to sleep. Getting up Monday morning would have made a great comedy video!

Stiff, sore and groaning, we stumbled around getting ready for work. Work? Ah yes, work? You know, that restful place where all we have to do is run the computer and sell ads, and take phone calls? Compared to our leisure activities, it's a breeze! So, I've made myself a promise, for the next week or so I'm going to enjoy all this weather without actually hammering, shovelling, painting or cleaning. I think. Like I said, all this good weather may kill me. But it's going to be a beautiful way to go!

Country Cooking

This week's cook deals with the wonders of yeast breads. Most people won't even attempt yeast breads because of the time it takes to mix, set, rise and roll out. Most things that are good, do require some time in preparation. Well, I found this great recipe and there is no kneading involved.....just mix, let rise and shape into rolls or whatever takes your fancy! They do work.....I tried them!

There are a variety of recipe out there.....some easy and some not! Try some of these and see where you end up! Light up that oven since the weather is getting chilly and try your hand at one of these recipes! See you in the kitchen!

No-Knead Yeast Rolls-these are great and really work using eggs and very little time! Guaranteed and let me know how they turn Jiffy Rolls-this recipe uses a box of Jiffy White Cake Mix!

Butterhorn Rolls-cut these into pie shape wedges and roll into butterhorns! Yummy!

No-Rise Rolls-self-rising flour and I package of yeast does the trick for these rolls! Coffee Can Bread-bake in a coffee can for a little different flair!

Golden Egg Bread-this recipe uses eggs also and is braided for a wonderful look!
