

Shooting, Burglaries Rock Tuesday Calm

The Lamar County Sheriff's Office, with the help of numerous citizens who called in information, put a speedy stop to a crime spree Tuesday morning that resulted in the serious wounding of Clayton Bogart, a Pattonville man.

According to Chief Deputy B.J. McCoy, a confession from one of the two arrested indicates that the pair, one adult, one juvenile, had burglarized two residences, stayed away from a third because someone was home, and finished with a fourth when they were seen.

The residence of Ralph Kutzer, located five miles from Pattonville, was the last of the burglaries. At the first, according to McCoy, they only took a washing machine. At the second, they apparently stole the guns, one of which they used to shoot open the gate and the front door of the Kutzer residence. They were leaving the house when Mr. Bogart, who has land leased nearby, drove up to see what was happening. The pair went by him, drove approximately one mile, and, McCoy says, he was told the driver then said "this won't do, he's going to identify us."

Reports indicate that they then drove back to the scene and fired a shotgun blast at Bogart, hitting him in the neck and upper body.

They then fled the scene in a faded red vehicle.

According to reports, Johnny Garrett, a nearby resident heard the shots and saw Mr. Bogart staggering. He took him directly to St. Joseph's Hospital, where Bogart underwent surgery and was reported in satisfactory condition.

Lamar County officers immediately began looking for the suspect's vehicle.

Sheriff Jim Parker says that "without the complete cooperation of citizens it might have taken several days to apprehend these suspects. As it was, they were in custody by 2:30 p.m." He and Deputy McCoy continued to express their appreciation to all those who called in reports of the vehicle's location and movements. The duo were arrested at the home of some relatives near Shady Grove Community.

Charges of attempted capital murder and several counts of burglary were expected to be filed Wednesday at press time, and it was hoped that the juvenile could be taken to Texarkana and certified as an adult.

Most of us are familiar with how the sight of something can bring back memories.

But how often do we notice that sounds and smells can bring recollections flooding in?

We tend to discount smells and sounds as being major in the list of senses, but they influence us more than we realize.

Somehow, in cleaning out an old cabinet here at the office, I got the smell of iodine on my hands. The sharp smell sent me skimming back in time to my grandmother's house, and medicine cabinet.

Hopping from one foot to the other, I would submit to administration of iodine to my latest cut or scrape. (My own mom used mercurichrome, which didn't burn so fiercely.)

Memories of standing on tiptoe to quietly reach the band-aids before grandmother would see a cut mingled with recollections of sneaking out grandfather's can of shaving creme to mix with pokeberry dye.

The click of high heeled shoes on a tile floor will almost always prompt visions of myself lying on the cool tiles of my great aunt Maia's entrance hall, playing with tiny plastic figures.

The smell of homemade potato soup always draws up a pleasant memory of rainy winter days and my mother serving up the thick soup to the whole family.

New mown hay can bring back all the long summer days of the hay meadow, and water rushing will bring back mountain streams from favorite vacations.

Each of us carries a wealth of short stories and memories from childhood on into adulthood.

We cannot voluntarily trigger them. We never know what will. They are unstoppable. Some are bittersweet, some wholly pleasant.

But the next time some memory comes, try and recall exactly what started the filmstrip to rolling. More often than you realize, it will be a sound or smell rather than sight!

LEON and Francis Anderson are proud of the candy business in Blossom. Francis, filling in for a

Anderson's Peanut Rounders Really Get Around!

Back in 1980, Leon and Francis Anderson decided they needed a change. They changed from the grocery business to the candy business.

Now, Anderson Candy Company in Blossom has not only doubled, but tripled in size, and has an eye on expansion to distribution in Canada and California!

Leon sits in the front office to talk about the business as rich, delicious smells drift from the back of the building.

Anderson Candy Company only produces one product...the thick, rich delicious peanut rounders that almost everyone is familiar with.

Everyone may not be aware, though, that from a very small, local distribution, the peanut rounders are now available in San Antonio, Houston, Gainesville, Dallas, all the way to Oklahoma City!

Last year, after some rough calculations, Leon totaled up his figures on the calculator and realized he had produced well over a million of the tasty treats.

He smiles as he recalls purchasing the business. He bought it from Dan Hearn, who told him that the business was "too much work, you don't want it." Hearn told him to go back and think it over, which Leon did, then proceeded to go back again. All the way to the paper signing, Hearn kept asking if Leon was sure he wanted the business.

From a tiny operation in the workshop of the Anderson's house, the candy company is now in a new building in downtown Blossom. They have six full time employees, and Francis and their 16 year old daughter, Lee Ann, help out when someone is ill or on vacation. Leon does much of the delivery work himself, traveling a route from up in Arkansas to Oklahoma City.

In remote areas, the candy is shipped by freight.

The Andersons produce a quality product. They purchase number one grade Spanish peanuts from a supplier in Madill, Oklahoma. Huge sacks of dehydrated corn syrup and stacks of sugar and peanuts fill the warehouse. Ceiling high columns of cardboard boxes, display cases and rolls of clear plastic wrappers fill other areas.

The production of the candy begins with solid copper kettles. The syrup recipe is boiled, then the peanuts added, and more cooking takes place. Then an ingenious system created by Leon from a couple of boat winches and barn door tracks takes the big kettles over to a "holding fire" which keeps the mixture liquid while the girls dip big dippersful of the candy into molds. Leon says they tried an expensive automatic mold-filling machine, but it never worked right and they went back to the hand-filled method.

After the molds are filled, they are placed on tall racks and put in a hot room. This room must be kept at 90 degrees or more in order for the candy to set properly. Even the molds are kept there when empty, for if the mixture becomes chilled, the candy turns

Fund To Aid Day Family

Donald Day, who lives near Minter, sustained a broken neck and lacerated face Saturday afternoon when the horse he was riding ran under a tree limb.

Surgery is expected to be performed later this week to transplant bone from another part of his body to his neck. Day is recuperating satisfactorily at this time, and is not paralyzed.

to gooey, stringy taffy-like "stuff".

After four hours or so, the rounders are ready. The red patties are unmolded by a special machine that Leon again designed. A salesman told Leon that his $200 machine would have cost nearly $20,000 if bought from a manufacturer!

An older model wrapping machine encases each patty in a plastic wrapper, then slides on down to where an employee takes the stack and sacks them, then deftly ties the sack shut and boxes them up.

Anderson Candy Company cooks up nearly a ton each day of these popular rounders.

Clean up is done with a high pressure hot water washer. The stickiest mess, near the kettles, is taken care of with a layer of newspaper spread out before cooking ever begins.

Recently, the business has been doing some private label production. They make the candy, and a company puts their label on it. It's just another market to expand for Leon, whose enthusiasm and eye to the future sees no bounds.

For the Andersons, they have experienced, quite literally, the "sweet taste of success". By carefully keeping quality and homemade flavor in their product, they have built a business to be proud of, and their dreams of expansion haven't stopped yet!

Give Thought To Driving

Defensive driving, don't drink and drive, they are phrases that are frequently heard. And they aren't empty phrases either. One of the most dangerous things anyone does is drive.

The statistics to support this were released from the Texas Department of Public Safety recently.

From 1975 to 1984 there were 1,186,654 Americans that have died in all the U.S. Wars combined. That means the Revolutionary War, War of 1812, Mexican War, Civil War, Spanish American War, World War I, II, Korea and Vietnam.

Since 1900 to 1984, there have been 2,533,765 Americans that have died in U.S. highway accidents!

That means that in 84 years, a substantial number more people have died on the road than in 209 years of war!

Other statistics can bring home even more the wastefulness of auto accidents.

In Texas alone in 1984 there was a loss of $3,795,000,000 in one year from traffic accidents.

These losses would buy 10,000 homes at $80,000 each, 10,000 refrigerators at $700 each, 10,000 electric ranges at $600 each, 10,000 TV sets at $700 each, 10,000 dishwashers at $500 each, 10,000 automobiles at $10,000 each, and furnish the head of each of the 10,000 households with a bank account of $284,500.!

But these monetary statistics mean nothing compared to the heartbreak and pain that results.

These statistics don't even begin to count the numbers of crippled, handicapped or scarred people that are the results of traffic accidents.

There isn't any reason to become paranoid about driving, but there are plenty of reasons to be careful, drive defensively, and never drink and drive!

Band Booster Club Meets

The Prairiland Band Boosters Club met Thursday night, July 18 at the high school band hall to discuss future fund raising events and to meet the new band leader, Frank Garza, who was the director at Paris High School last year.

Club president, Jerry Gillie, brought the meeting to order with prayer and Mrs. Ritchie led the pledge to the flag. The club will be selling ads for the football programs in the next few days as one of its projects.

The next meeting will be August 8.

The 1910 Clam Dig

mouth of the Wisheaw River on the bay. A small steamer made Sunday trips across the bay to Westport, a small ghost town on the peninsula that separated Grays Harbour from the Pacific Ocean. Dad took advantage of excursion rates to Westport one Sunday and I went along. Mother gave me a bucket and shovel so that we could dig and bring back some clams. We embarked from the wharf at the foot of Heron Street and wee off. After an unevenful trip of about three hours, we arrived at the Whaling Station dock at Westport.

The whaling station had been a rendering plant where whale blubber was cooked out for the oil and the rest of the whale carcass was made into fertilizer. It was about the stinkingest place I ever saw, the stench was almost overpowering. My ancestors had been whalers for some three generations after they first came to America. If a whaling ship smelled as bad as this station did, I can understand one of the reasons why they quit the whaling business.

It was only about one-quarter mile walk across the peninsula to the Pacific Ocean beach. Digging clams was fun. A big wave would break upon the beach, and when it washed back out we would follow it, watching for signs of clams. When we saw a string of bubbles coming from a small hole in the sand, and we dug down real fast, we would get a clam. The waves were coming about a half minute apart. When I saw one coming, I had to outrun it to higher ground. The clam digging got so interesting that I got careless. One of the big breakers caught me. It knocked me down and rolled me over and over, and then when the wave began to wash back, I began to roll over and over in the other direction.

Just about the time that I thought that I was dead, Dad ran and caught me and carried me out. I didn't have any dry clothes, so we walked back across the narrow neck of land to the wharf.

The steamer soon cast off, and we were on our way home. Dad was acquainted with the engineer down on the engine deck. My clothes were still a little damp from my rolling in the surf, so we went down below so that I could dry out and Dad could visit with his friend. The space was small and full of machinery. I was fascinated, furnace roaring, boiler hissing, shaft turning, engine throbbing.

While standing near the boiler and trying to see everything at once, the glass tube for the water gauge accidentally got broken. Hot water and steam began to pour out. That gave a pretty good scare, but the engineer soon had the valves cut off and a new glass for the gauge in place. When things settled down after the water gauge incident, I happened to look through a hatchway in the deck and could see water sloshing around down below as the boat rocked and rolled through the waves. That upset me again, I thought the boat was sinking. Dad finally convinced me it was only bilge water and there was no danger.

That had been a pretty big day for me and I had a lot to tell my Mother that night after I got home.

Adjustments In Operations May Be Necessary

By Herb Brevard
 About this time of year, many farmers and ranchers begin thinking about making adjustments in their operation. This is especially true if returns so far this year have been less than projected or labor requirements more than expected, etc.
 Whatever adjustments are considered, the net economic impact must be projected, says Wayne Taylor, economist-management for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Any changes in management practices or changes in enterprises will result in some changes in capital investments, annual costs and annual returns. In many instances, with proper planning, cost reductions may occur while the returns remain the same or even increase.
 Taylor says it is important to get out the calculator or computer and determine the net returns that would result from a change in operation. If capital investments are projected, the manager should make certain that the investment is profitable and that future cash flows are sufficient for debt service and added operating costs.

 Many practices or changes in an operation can be profitable, but the paper work, or figuring, must be done first. Mistakes can be devastating to the entire farming or ranching operation.

 Budgets for numerous agricultural enterprises are available at local county extension offices. These budgets serve only as a guideline but could be helpful in estimating costs and returns from these enterprises. Taylor says the best information can be obtained from good records kept by the farm operator.

Midge Infections Heavy In Milo

By Paul D. Payne
 Grain sorghum that is still in the bloom stage or will be blooming later this summer could be in serious trouble with Midge, one of the most damaging pest of the crop. This past week I stopped at random from Paris to Roxton checking fields for midge. Three of the four fields checked averaged four to five midge per head. Infestations this high have the potential of seriously reducing yields.
 One of the things that one should remember is that midge can only lay eggs in flowering sorghum heads. Sorghum is blooming when one can see the yellow anthers exposed on the individual grain spikelets. Once the anthers turn orange or drop, the grain cannot be damaged by the midge. Many producers waste money each year by applying insecticide too late thinking that some good is being accomplished.
 Due to the rainy spring at planting time, many grain sorghum fields do not have uniform flowering period. This presents problems for the producer contemplating the proper times to apply an insecticide.

 As a general rule, the economic threshold is when 25 to 30 percent of the heads are flowering and midge infestation averages one per head. It is quite possible that fields that are just now beginning to bloom will need more than one chemical application.
 I would suggest that produces check fields daily. Wait about three days after fields are sprayed and make another insect count. If midge are still present and the plants are still blooming, another chemical application will be needed.
 There are a number of insecticides cleared for sorghum midge control, Parathion, Malathion, Ethion, Sevin, Diazinon, Lorsban, Lannate, Nudrin and Di-Syston.
 Grain sorghum producers throughout Texas have called for a referendum on a statewide checkoff on grain sorghum. If approved it will provide funding for development and expansion of markets for their grain. Ballots will be mailed to 63,000

Texas sorghum producers by July 22 and they must be returned by August 15. Ballots will also be available in our office for those not receiving one.

NEW 2157 2165 Superior grain yields with a good grazing bonus. Excellent straw strength, too!

Our researchers were impressed by the tremendous pasture production and grain yields from these new varieties during the winter. And now that the varieties have stood the test of actual production on many farms under many conditions, the proof is in!
They grow off well and show strong resistance to SBMV, leaf rusts, fungal leaf blights, and the Hessian fly.
• New 2157 gives you good, early grazing, then stays with you through the winter. And the grain yields are right up there with anything you care to compare it against. Choose 2157 for dryland or limited water production.
• New 2165 works with your irrigation program to make the most of all you put into the crop. Pasture comes on strong in the fall and grain yields are among the best you'll find, bar none.
See your Pioneer dealer right away. He'll show you yield results and interesting new facts about the advantages of pure seed.

Deport... Looking Back!

Some of the early history of Deport the way my mother and father told me, and as I remember it:

By Mrs. A.L. Stalls

The first automobile in Deport was owned by Dr. J.H. Moore and made its appearance in 1908 when there were only 36 registered in Lamar County. Dr. Moore's machine was a Studebaker with right hand steering and with the gear shift and brakes on the outside of the right hand door. Dr. Moore's son, Maurice T. Moore, later became a director in the Studebaker Corporation.

Deport got natural gas on April 22, 1930, and a banquet was held on April 25 to celebrate the event.

Deport's first lights were naturally the kerosene-type. Later there was artificial gas created with a mixture of water and carbide. About that time, lamps which burned gasoline under air pressure with mantels came into use.

In the spring of 1971, Deport made her first real effort to secure an electric line from Paris. A Deport committee made several trips to Dallas to see J.F. Strickland, head of the company. In those days, a trip to Dallas meant two full days by rail only.

In July, 1911, they agreed to build the line. The following month, war was declared in Europe. Capital ran to cover and copper was worth three times as much. The line was not built.

Prosperous war years followed. Deport residents began buying individual power plants. Pop-pop was a familiar sound.

In 1919, there came out of Arkansas, a man named Roy Bryant. Bryant built a line from Blossom to Deport at a cost of $2,000 to Deport men. This connected with a line to Paris abandoned by Postal Telegraph. This wire was iron and often the load was too great. Then out went the lights.

In 1928, Texas Louisiana Power Company, now Community Public Service, purchased Bryant's holdings, paying him $40,000. The entire system was rebuilt with first class material. Now we have the best of lights.

The Deport Fire Department was organized in 1937 with 25 members. In the years gone by, many fires have happened in town causing great loss. In 1936, the loss was so big that something had to be done. Community Public Service's loss was $3,000, Masonic Lodge $3,700 with all records lost back to 1907 along with pictures of groups that cannot be replaced. Kelsey Motor Company lost $3,500, First National Bank $553.53, Deport Lumber Company $873.49 and City Barber Shop $453.49.

This fire raged for two hours. Paris firefighters put out the fire. Deport citizens sent $150.50 in appreciation. The City of Paris refused to pay for the use of the pumper that came to Deport but granted Mayor Hutcheson permission to give money to the fire department direct.

The next year, the fire department was organized with it's willing workers. The firetruck was purchased that same year. There was a bond issue and the W.P.A. combined for a $7,800 water and sewer system. In 1938, a building was built.

Deport boasts two of the strongest banks in Lamar County. Few, if any, towns of the same population have one bank as strong as either of Deport's institutions. That they serve a wide territory and enjoy the confidence of thousands of people is shown in their deposits which are large.

The First National Bank opened for business on October 10, 1902 with a capital of $2,500. (First published statement in November, 1902, showed deposits of $13,368.86 and loans of $20,226.35). The money to establish the Deport Times was loaned by the First National Bank on the advice of Dr. Moore, who said, "The Times is the voice of the people. It is a good investment."

The first and second Masonic Hall was built by the same person, Newt Keys. The first was built in 1910 and was destroyed by fire. The carpenter work was supervised by C.R. Thompson of Pattonville.

Deport voted to incorporate as a school district on April 16, 1904. There are no recorded returns of this election. There was another election for school incorporation on March 6, 1905 and this was adopted 63 to 20. On July 1, 1911, an election was held on petition of Joe Grant and 25 others for incorporating Deport as a town with an area of 575 1/2 acres of which 56 acres were in Red River County. The returns showed 84 to 21 in favor and Judge Wells ordered an election July 29 for selecting officers with W.K. Jeffus presiding. On May 30, 1914, on petition of W.W. Ferguson and others and on March 4, 1916 on petition of J.R. Kelsey and others, elections were held to decide if the incorporation should be abolished. Both failed.

Tom Jeffus was elected as Deport's cotton weigher in 1904. Other candidates were Judge Harrington, Joe Temple, Buck Thomas and R.O. Story. There was no run-off that year because it was before the days of the second primary.

One of the first moves Mr. Jeffus made after being elected was to secure a cotton yard. For this purpose, he leased a lot where W.T. Ferguson's house now stands. No shed was provided and the cotton was weighed and left lying on the ground until hauled to shipping points at Blossom or Detroit.

Mr. Jeffus recalls he weighed about 6,500 bales of cotton the first year in office and says that this was a fair average of cotton weighed each year he was weigher.

Weighing cotton in those days was not so easy as it is today. Freighters would load up the cotton, haul it to the railroad at Blossom or Detroit and return with merchandise and other supplies for Deport businessmen. Since it took a long time to make a round trip in the heavy wagons over the deeply rutted roads, the freighters would load at 3 o'clock in the morning. It was Mr. Jeffus' job to help them.

Average price of cotton ranged from 6 to 10 cents.

One incident that stands out sharply in his memory concerns three or four hundred bales of cotton bought by H.L. Edwards Cotton Co. in the fall of 1905 and left on the yard. Acting on his own initiative, Mr. Jeffus kept the bales turned to prevent rotting all during the winter. About the middle of March, a representative of the company visited the yard and commented favorably on the condition of the cotton. The next mail brought a surprise. It was a check for $125 to pay for his trouble.

The Deport Times was established on February 10, 1909 by Claude Council of Detroit and published by him until 1912 when he sold it to the present owner, Sam C. Holloway. There were other newspapers published in Deport before the advent of the Deport Times, but they were of short life due to a lack of patronage. There was the Red-Mar named for the county lines that run the eastern part of the town. This was published by Bill Crooks who was one of those early day fighting journalists. He later moved the paper to Rosalie and established the Rosalie Courier.

Then there was the Deport Triumph established by S.S. Howie on October 30, 1902, just a few days after the First National Bank opened for business on October 10 of that same year.

Then there was the Deport Chronicle established by Ulin L. Jolly in 1904. Jolly moved his plant to some town in Oklahoma in 1906 and the Deport Times was established by Claude Council in 1909. Deport may have had other newspapers, but this is all the information I could find.

Quite a few honors have come to Deport during the forty years it has been published. It won the Dallas

News cup awarded by the State Fair for best small town paper in 1933 and placed second in the contest a year later.

It won second place for the best editorial column, among newspapers of Texas, Louisiana, Oklahoma and New Mexico as a State Fair award in 1938.

In 1933, The Deport Times was one of two newspapers given a Class A rating for general excellence by the University of Illinois in a national contest.

In 1941, the paper was awarded first place and presented a trophy for the best set advertisements by North and East Texas Press Association.

These awards gave Deport and the Deport Times statewide recognition and people quit asking what part of Texas Deport was located in.

Claude Council said that when he first moved to Deport that money was very scarce. One night a few days after they moved here, his wife told him they didn't have any flour to make bread for breakfast. He went to town without any money hoping to get some flour. He said some newspaperman before him had left owing everyone in town. He went to Sam Bell's store. Mr. Bell's wife and children were there. He got Mr. Bell in the back of the store and explained the situation to him. He said Mr. Bell looked him straight in the eye and told him that he did not give a darn about him. Then, after half a minute, he began to laugh and said he couldn't let his wife and children suffer and let him have the flour.

This story is told by George Bartlett who used to live here. He said he dressed up in his Sunday duds and with Sam Horne went to the Grant home. Miss Nita had a pet, a tall gangling deer. She could make him do all kinds of tricks. So she put him through his morning exercise. Both boys thought they could make the deer perform. After Miss Nita had gone back into the house, they tried it. Not being successful, Sam tried to show the deer how tricks were done by standing on his head. The deer didn't seem interested. Well, finally, Sam got astraddle the deer's head and told George to hoist his hind-quarters to an angle of 90 degrees. He tried. The result, they got kicked all over, clothes torn badly and some hide was lost. They were never sure whether Miss Nita knew about their stunt or not. Her dad promised not to tell her.

Weekly Agricultural Update

By Steve R. Smith

"Water is a very important part of conservation, as well as improved pastures, livestock management, or wildlife management," said Ralph Elliott. He has recently installed a farm pond with a trickle tube through the dam on his place west of Clarksville.

According to Mr. Elliott, this pond will be used for erosion control measures, livestock watering, wildlife watering, recreation and to improve beauty of the land. The pond will also allow better distribution of grazing, but the primary purpose is erosion control.

The pond was built with cost share assistance from the Agriculture Stabilization Conservation Service. The assistance is approximately 75% of the total cost, not to exceed a $3,500 maximum limit per landowner each year. The SCS personnel provided the technical assistance on staking and calculating the total cubic yardage in the dam. After the pond was completed, the SCS personnel made the final check out to be certain that the pond met specifications.

Elliott is one of many absentee landowners who is doing a good job improving their land. The pond was built as a part of a total conservation plan that he has with the Red River County SWCD. There are over 1,200 conservation-minded farmers and ranchers who are members of the District.

For further information on farm pond construction and other conservation measures please, contact your local Soil Conservation Service personnel. The SCS office is located in the City Hall Building.

Summertime Tips For Show Cattle

By John R. Senter

As we begin to leave the month of June and head into July and August, it will become evident that summer is here, whether we like it or not.

Many 4-H'ers have already gotten their 1985-86 show cattle projects. Still others have got to decide on just which calf they will feed. In any case, these calves, regardless of age, will also know summertime too. Despite the heat and humidity we will be forced with, there are some things you may do to make it more comfortable for your calf and give you a boost going into show season.

There are two main problems that haunt summertime calf feeders. One is keeping the calf on feed to insure maximum gains and the other is the total loss of the all important hair coat.

One of the best bets for a summertime ration is a good growing ration. A ration that is consistent in its makeup is important. You do not want to buy 500 pounds of feed and find that each bag is different in the makeup and or consistency of the ration. Stick with a feed that will be pretty much the same bag after bag.

Protein percentage is another important factor to consider, most good grower rations are about 12% protein. This is a good number to keep in mind as the ration is not too low in protein but it is also not too hot either.

The key to a summer feeding program is to get as much growth and as much bone and muscle development out of a calf as possible. Anything you can do to achieve this now will be worthwhile later.

The second problem with cattle and hot weather is the drastic loss of the hair coat. Whether it be bulls, steers or heifers, show cattle must have hair.

The key to keeping as much hair as possible is simple. Keep calves cool.

Provide clean quarters with plenty of air circulation and give the calves a place to get out of direct sunlight to prevent fading of hair.

Wet your calves down as much as possible. Notice I said wet, not wash. Occasional baths are good but too much soap is not good for the hair. The idea is to cool the calf and open the pores of the skin to promote hair growth. Plenty of combing and brushing is essential as it serves several purposes. One, it encourages and stimulates hair follicle growth. Two, it provides early training for any present hair coat and three, it helps gentle your calf.

Whether you feed breeding or market cattle, long or short haired cattle, the above thoughts could help you as we move into the dreaded months of summer. If you have questions, let us know.

The way to stop financial "joy-riding" is to arrest the chauffeur, not the automobile. Woodrow Wilson

Stretching Routine Increases Flexibility

Here are some exercises that can be used safely to stretch your muscles and increase flexibility. They're from John R. Downs, D.O., Center for Elite Athletes,
Michigan State University,
East Lansing, MI, who says that it's important that the exercise be held in a stationary position for a minimum of 30 seconds. They should also be repeated at least three times. Do not bounce when stretching. Dr. Downs, an osteopathic physician, reminds, because it may cause a slight tearing of muscles.

Low back and back of legs:
Bend at waist and allow your arms to hang down as far as possible. Hold position for at least 30 seconds. Then, arms raised above head, stand on tiptoes for 30 seconds.

Groin and buttocks: Sitting on floor, knees bent and soles of feet together and back against the wall, push knees down to floor as far as possible. Hold 30 seconds.

Lower back, entire spine:

Health for the Whole Family

OSTEOPATHIC MEDICINE ®

Sitting, soles of feet together, grasp feet and pull head down
as close to the toes as possible.
Keep knees flat against the floor while bending down.

Back of legs: lean forward into wall, one leg outstretched straight behind and other leg bent. Arms should be outstretched in front of you against the wall. Keep heels flat on floor.

Low back stretch: On all fours, arch your back up, head dropped and looking toward knees. (Hold stomach and buttocks tight.) Hold for five seconds. Let back drop, relax and look up.

He has done radio and TV work.

Sixteen years of marriage counseling. Taught in the Great Commission School in Nashville, TN, and presently teaches in the school of Ex-offenders in Corpus Christi.

Preaching. However, Joe says, "I believe the greatest accomplishment one can have is to be a man of God, preaching the word of God, in the power and the spirit of God."

Tractor Pull This Weekend

The Lamar County Young Farmers will be sponsoring their truck and tractor pull Friday and Saturday, July 26 and 27.

There will be as usual, those noise-making, action shaking tractors in modified and super stock categories, plus two wheel drive and four wheel drive trucks to rock the area.

The event will be held at the Lamar County Fairgrounds, with improvements in lighting, seating and area.

The pull starts nightly at 7:30, and advance tickets, which will save money, can be purchased at any area implement dealer.

Cairo Offers Even More Surprises

By Nanalee Nichols

It was with some sadness that we said goodbye to the friends we had made on our boat. During our six day stay, we had made friends with a number of people, including two of the sweetest British ladies imaginable. We had taken part in a fancy dress party that proved to be quite an exercise in imagination, and we had been unofficially "adopted" by a British tour group.

After exchanging addresses, snapshots and promises to write, we boarded another Air Egypt plane back to Cairo.

A flight on Air Egypt isn't quite the same as a domestic flight in the U.S.

You sit in the airport hoping against hope that you will be able to distinguish the flight numbers, because you certainly can't understand the rest of the monologue.

Upon boarding the plane and rolling down a runway, the pilot will yank the plane into a near vertical climb as possible.

When everyone has retrieved all the scattered belongings the stewardesses will wander down the aisle dealing out plastic-wrapped croissants like a car hand. There is no accompanying butter or jam, although they do hand out tea or coffee.

Upon having your baggage searched, X-rayed and checked, you are free to go. (I don't blame them for checking things thoroughly...I'm glad they do.)

We were sure that Cairo couldn't offer much more in the way of ruins and treasures than we had seen. But we hadn't bargained for the Egyptian Museum of Antiquities.

The building is old, unairconditioned, but filled with treasures almost beyond comprehension.

Tuthankaman's treasures, one of the few grave robbers never found, feature solid gold coffins, elaborate jewelry, beautiful works of art, furniture, chariots, harnesses and clothing. That one treasure alone fills over two huge rooms.

Life-size statues with agate eyes so real that they sent the first archaeologists stumbling backward in fright are mixed with tiny clay everyday cooking utensils and monoliths of gigantic design.

Then, of course, there is the experience of riding a camel. Everyone should try it. The beasts kneel obediently for their passenger, then lurch upwards, hind end first, leaving one hanging over the saddle horn at a rather alarming angle.

Then they rock slowly back and forth as they plod softly and silently across the hot sands.

The whole process of hanging on for dear life is repeated, of course, when the ride ends and the camel again kneels.

There is little to be said about the pyramids. They are bigger, stranger and more amazing when actually seen than any film or photo can convey.

Standing at the base of the great pyramid of Cheops, one is overwhelmed at the idea of modern man attempting something of such a scale...much less ancient man!

Workmen smooth stones in the same manner that they always have, and peasants dig irrigation trenches to water their abundant crops.

Egyptians can sleep anywhere, and during the heat of the day, often do.

They can be seen curled up under shrubs, in the shade of a brick wall, or under palm trees. The chaotic noise of the city doesn't seem to bother them at all.

We rounded the corner of a road and looked in horror at what we thought to be a terrible accident. A man lay on the side of the road, completely surrounded by a flock of sheep. Only his head rested on the edge of the pavement. It was with relief, as well as astonishment, that we realized him to be sound asleep, not dead!

The heat makes afternoon naps almost a necessity. We found ourselves adapting to the custom with ease. Little work can be accomplished under the glare of the afternoon sun.

We had only one day left in Egypt, and anticipated the bazaars and mosques we were to tour then.

The Scarey Phonograph

By Wm. C. Barnard

Record players were not always the high fidelity, complex, electrical instruments that they are today.

Edison discovered the principal of reproducing the sound of human voices in 1877. This was a mechanical contraption, and no electrical components were involved.

The machine did not come into general use until about 25 years later because no one had come up with an economical method of making the records.

About 1910 the record manufacturing process was solved and graphophones or phonographs began to appear on the market.

We lived in Aberdeen, a small frontier lumber town on Grays Harbor in Washington. A family who lived in the next block from us got a graphophone.

The lady invited my Mother, along with several other neighbor women and children to come see and hear the new curiosity.

My Mother went and I went along. The thing wasn't very impressive to look at, just a little box sitting on a stand table. However, there was a great big horn that looked like a mammoth morning glory blossom sitting at an angle on top. After a little visiting and small talk with the guests, the hostess cranked the spring motor and started the turn table.

That is when things began to happen. The big horn started talking in a screechy, scratchy voice and the kids started running. I ran through the door and didn't look back until I got home.
