

Mail Fraud Could Cheat The Unwary

Whether you're eight years old or 80, you're never too young or too old to become a victim of mail fraud.

There are phony offers aimed at a variety of age groups and interests, ranging from coin collecting to vacations and miracle cures.

Even though most mail order firms are honest, providing the buyer with exactly what was ordered and on time, the tiny percentage of promoters offering something worthless, or almost worthless, is still ripping off millions of dollars from thousands of Americans each year.

Offers for "free" vacations continue to ruin holidays for tens of thousands of people each year. Hyman Weiss, now vacationing in jail, sent out 300,000 postcards at a time nationwide, requiring those who responded to pay between $20 and $30 for handling, postage and processing, plus another $15 to make reservations. He was the operator of Continental Vacations, American International Travel, World Class Travel and Trans Global Travel. Weiss admitted during his trial in Phoenix, AZ that no more than four to six people out of the thousands who sent money actually received a free vacation.

Countering the effects of aging has kept promoters of fraudulent products in the money, and postal inspectors in pursuit, for many years. Just recently, they stopped the promoter of a pill, called Blue Green Manna, from selling the fake cure. He claimed it would heal, correct or prevent arthritis, leukemia, Alzheimer's disease, high blood pressure, blindness, obesity and leprosy, but all it did was make the swindler richer.

Assistant Chief Postal Inspector Jack E. Swagerty told a Washington, DC conference on aging earlier this month that the public is often frustrated because medical science is unable to provide a complete, inexpensive solution to their particular problem, and they are taken in by slick advertising. The best advice the Postal Service can offer is to not believe the claims of a secret cure or miracle drug and, more importantly, don't trust your health to a salesman.

One particularly vicious scheme took postal inspectors down a new trail recently, but it is the kind of swindle likely to be copied by those who prey on the unwary. By placing fraudulent advertisements in local newspapers and on several radio stations, the operator claimed he could respond from a communications center staffed 24 hours a day to requests for emergency assistance from heart patients, senior citizens, the handicapped and others living alone. An investigation showed he took money from victims as an equipment leasing fee, plus a quarterly monitoring fee, but in fact there was no transmitting system and no actual monitoring service of any kind.

The postal service offers the following check list on how to avoid mail order swindles:

Beware of exaggerated claims or unusually low prices.

Don't be rushed. Avoid offers that claim to be your "last chance" to get a bargain.

Keep a copy of the advertisement from which you ordered, a record of the date of your order and the number of your check if you pay by check, and retain the cancelled check when it is returned to you.

Never send cash. Use a check, money order or credit card because they can be traced.

If you have doubts about a company, check with the Postal Inspection Service, the Better Business Bureau or a local consumer protection agency to see if there are any complaints on record against the company. And do the checking before ordering.

NICHOLS' WORTH

By: Nanalee Nichols

June is over...July began with fireworks and festivities that made the nation proud.

Gazing sleepily over the rim of my coffee cup at the peaceful scenery from the front porch Monday morning, it was with a feeling of disquiet that I realized half of 1986 is gone. Past, unrecalable, opportunities either taken advantage of or through forever.

It began to bother me. How do the days slip on by so quietly? How do the chances we could take seem to go unspoken?

The New Year's resolutions we make so solemnly don't get broken deliberately...they simply just don't take place somehow.

Most of us live lives of routine...work, play, eat, sleep, the basic necessities that keep us all going.

But most of us have dreams too. They may be small, such as a new house, learning a new craft, getting a better job. They may be large, such as becoming rich and famous, owning a huge chunk of land. That's the wonderful thing about dreams, they are custom tailored for each individual's needs.

But somehow, most of us are always going to begin making them come true...tomorrow.

The excuses we can invent are so clever. Too tired, too hot, too cold, nothing to begin with.

And time slips on by, turning, changing, occasionally interrupting with a crisis or special pleasure.

But nothing stops it, nothing keeps it from taking our allotted time away. And if we do nothing but our routine, those dreams will fade away.

1986 is half gone. What the rest of the year holds is unknown. But perhaps we should pause at mid-year and reevaluate our lives, reevaluate, too, our dreams and aspirations.

And make a mid-year's resolution. If it's worth doing, if we REALLY want to do it...begin now. Not tomorrow, not next month, but now. Set our goals and stick to them.

Because time is ticking along, time is moving forward exactly as it always has. And we must follow our own internal directives if we wish to truly accomplish anything.

World War I Veteran Recalls Those Times

By Mollie Williams

Our United States of America has just celebrated her 210th birthday. The founders of the new nation considered Independence Day an important occasion for rejoicing. John Adams said, "I am apt to believe that it will be celebrated by succeeding generations as the great anniversary festival. It ought to be commemorated as the day of deliverance, by solemn acts of devotion to God Almighty. It ought to be solemnized with pomp and parade, with shows, games, sports, guns, bells, bonfires and illuminations, from one end of this continent to the other, from this time forward for evermore."

John Adams was right in his prediction and although people of the United States have celebrated the 4th of July in all the ways that he thought it ought to be, many of us cannot really know the full extent of joy felt by the early founders. All of us appreciate our freedom, but for those who were a part of the wars that were fought for the freedom of this great nation, July 4 has an extra special meaning.

One of those who joined the military ranks during World War I to do his part for our country was Milburn Hinson, a Bogata resident. He will be 90 years old in September, yet he recalls his days in France during that war with clarity.

Mr. Hinson joined the armed forces at the age of 19. Although the age limit to join was 21, his uncle who was on the board in Clarksville at that time allowed him to join. He was sent to France shortly after his training where he was a member of the Quarter Master Corp, Motor Truck Co. No. 1. He was a 1st class private and received $21 per month salary. His job was to haul supplies to the front line. This was done at night with no lights except a man with a lighted cigarette walking in front of the truck. He was in constant danger of being spotted and shot by the enemy. Mr. Hinson recalls that life at this time for those living in France was very hard. Food was scarce. People would come to the units to collect the scraps from the military men to take home and feed their families.

At one time, Mr. Hinson, as driver of the truck, and one guard took 50 prisoners to do road work. A rag was stuffed in the end of the guard's gun to keep it dry. During the time spent there, a rabbit appeared and the guard, forgetting the rag, shot at it, thus causing the gun barrel to burst. The prisoners all ran and hid behind trees and laughed at the guard. "They weren't about to run far, though, because they were being fed too good in our prisons," explained Mr. Hinson, smiling.

The war finally came to an end and Mr. Hinson recalls that he was preparing to return home by ship somewhere around July 4, 1920 when he received news from the states that Jack Dempsey had won the heavyweight boxing championship title.

"The Statue of Liberty was a warm welcome for our eyes as we pulled into New York harbor. It was good to be home at last," said Hinson.

When asked about the dangers he had been through, Mr. Hinson was quick to reply, "It was well worth the risk for freedom."

Milburn Hinson resides in Bogata with his wife, Lee Parker Hinson. They will be married 65 years in October of this year.

Cunningham Houses Burglarized

Two homes in Cunningham were apparently burglarized sometime Saturday when the two families were gone to the lake.

Eugene and Geneva Norwood returned home Saturday night, and discovered the theft of several gold necklaces belonging to Geneva.

Upon closer inspection, the adjacent house, belonging to Scotty and Treda Norwood was checked, and the theft of a gold nugget ring was discovered.

Mrs. Norwood noticed the theft because of boxes left out on her dresser, which she knew were put away when she left.

The items taken have a value of approximately $1,700, and the matter is under investigation by the Lamar County Sheriff's Department.

Ticks, Fleas Around This Year

By Paul D. Payne

A bumper crop of fleas and ticks had been produced in the area this year much to the displeasure of everyone. Many calls have been received from pet owners, outdoorers, city dwellers as well as rural residents, so they are no respecter of persons.

In order to control the pest, one will need to be persistent. A single shot treatment of your pet will not get the job done. One will want to treat the pet, the inside of the house, yard and surroundings at the same time and then repeat in about ten days in order to break the cycle.

Dursban insecticide is a fairly new chemical and good reports have been received from those using it. We have used so much Diazinon and Sevin in the past that some resistance is beginning to show up. Other materials are labeled and should be effective, but persistency is the key to success.

Red Spider Mites are back again with us this year and individuals with tomatoes, peas and marigolds should go ahead and make an application of Kelthane at this time. You will recall that this is a tiny insect about the size of a needle point. They suck sap from the plant and a heavy infestation will kill plants.

In the advanced stages webs are evident on the leaves, and one really does not want to wait until that stage of development before attempting to control. A miticide, such as Kelthane, is the only chemical about which I know that will control.

It is just about time for mildew problems to appear on crepe myrtles, watermelons, cantaloupe and cucumbers. You will recall that mildew is greyish powder on the leaves.

A new fungicide, Bayleton, is labeled for use on these plants, and it will do a super job of preventing the disease. Bayleton is a systemic fungicide that gets into the sap stream of the plants and fights the disease. It is generally thought that upwards of three to four weeks of protection is received from a single application.

Rains cannot wash this material off the plate as it does other fungicides. It is a wettable powder and must be mixed with water and applied to the plant. The fungicide is higher than other fungicides. You will not be able to find it at retail outlets. It is manufactured by Mobay Chemical Corporation.
