other day, recalling his very first airplane ride.

The column on the Steerman ride sparked his memory, and he wrote that in about 1928 two barnstormers lit in the Westbrook meadow north of Deport and scared the pants off adventurers. Apparently there were two pre-requisites to taking a ride, courage and two dollars.

Ed recalls them cranking the hand-propped machines. He and Doris Shelton paired up for the ride, and Ed claims that Shelton was "such a fool for dives and turnovers that I threatened to choke him if we ever landed".

Ed Brson apparently was not terribly impressed with flight at that time!

Which put MY mind into gear. Just why is it that some people like to do one thing while another person loves to do something else?

Why is it that two country boys like Ed Bryson and Doris Shelton, both raised pretty much the same way, and with exactly the same amount of air time (absolutely none) would find one of them loved aerobatics while the other hated them?

As an example. I feel whole on the water....the minute I indulge in my favorite hobby of white water rafting every wound in my soul heals.

Yet others absolutely hate it. Many people find soul-healing through fishing...others through gardening, while others can play baseball all year long, losing themselves in the dust, the heat and the pleasurable sound of the bat cracking against the ball. Hobbies abound in this world, some as simple as needlecraft, others as complex as restoring antique cars or searching world wide for antiques.

While some people love to run, or cycle or pursue some strenuous form of exercise, declaring it clears their minds, others cringe at the mere thought and find that losing themselves in a book accomplishes the same thing.

There never seems to be any explaining this phenomenon. People in the same family may enjoy totally different pursuits.

So far, I've never been able to learn to like fishing, even though I've had every opportunity to...with relatives that took me and were sweet and patient. My cousin, on the other hand, adores it, and had virtually the same influence that I did!

Speculation on this leads me to believe that it is just born into us. There is nothing that can be done...what we like to relax and do can't be taught, and we can't just decided that we are going to learn to enjoy this no matter what.

No, the things that satisfy our souls simply happen...and we might as well accept the fact. And, most importantly, learn to do them as often as we can...and enjoy doing them. They help us stay happy and helathy...and it doesn't matter what pursuit we choose..the key is just pursuing!

Gin Is Ready For Cotton Season With Innovations

By Thomas Nichols

If cotton gins are obsolete in most of this area, the reverse is certainly true of Blackland Prairie Gin in Deport. Owners and operators Earl and Nancy Gresham take pride in the fact that their gin is constantly being updated and modernized.

The Greshams leased the gin operation from 1984 through 1986, and then purchased the business. They have seen a steady increase in the number of bales of cotton ginned at the facility...from 800 to the highest figure, 6,035 in 1988

The ginning operation has been automated by the Greshams in order to improve efficiency and keep costs down.

One of the first improvements added was a travelling suction. This system has turned what was a three man job into a one man job.

Earl added that putting people out of work wasn't his intention, but making the work easier and the job more efficient was his intention.

To prove the point the Greshams state that they employ approximately 30 employees during ginning season, with a hefty $86,000 labor bill for last year's season.

According to the Greshams they employ local people as much as pos-the local economy. Digital scales were added along with a new gin office, and a computer has eased the bookkeeping load. The computer has also elimnated the use of the venerable gin tickets, and provides valuable information from the U.S. Department of Agriculture on a daily basis.

Other state-of-the-art ginning improvements include a green boll catcher billed as "the best money we ever spent on the gin". This system takes green bolls out before they get in to dull the saw blades. This results in much cleaner seeds and saves a lot of valuable "down time".

Air vibrators have been installed on the seed bin to make seed flow better, and the old Deport Co-Op gin building has been completely outfitted to store seed in. The empty building, located across the road from the Blackland Prairie gin, now is useful

Another innovation is the digital scale installed over the cotton bale hoist that moves the ginned bales out to be loaded onto trucks.

Even the loading dock has undergone changes, with a new loading system.

sible, and hope that this is good for to be physically moved after loading every six bales... with the new system seventy-four bales can be loaded by moving the truck only once.

> The latest change is to accomodate the cotton modules.

Modules, which are becoming more and more common in this area, are a compacted rectangle of cotton instead of a trailer load of loose bolls.

The Gresham's son, Randy kEarl, drew up the plans for the big gray apparatus. The system consists of a huge lift, capable of lifting an entire mobule up to where it gravity flows into an auger that takes the cotton on into the ginning phase of operation. One man can operate the stystem with automated switches making it faster, easier and more efficient. The cotton module also eliminates the need for a number of cotton trail-This new system is officially safety approved, and will go into operation this fall. The cotton season is currently about two weeks away from starting, and being the planners and "doers" that they are, the Greshams are all ready for the season, whether it brings 800 bales or 6,000.

Dear World... My Young Son Starts To School Today....

It's going to be sort of strange and new for him for awhile...and I wish you would sort of treat him gently

You see, up to now he's been king of the roost...He's been boss of the backyard...his mother has always been near to sooth his wounds and repair his feelings.

But now things are going to be different.

This morning he's going to walk down the front steps, wave his hand, and start out on the great adventure...It is an adventure that might take him across continents, across oceans...It's an adventure that will probably include wars and tragedy and sorrow...To live his life in the world he will have to live in, will require faith and love and courage.

So World I wish you would sort of look after him.. Take him by the hand and teach him things he will have to know. But do it gently, if you

He will have to learn, I know, that all men are not just, that all men are not true. But teach him also that for every scoundrel there is a hero...that for every crooked politician there is a great and dedicated leader...teach him that for every enemy there is a friend.

Steer him away from envy, if you can...and teach him the secret of quiet laughter.

In school, World, teach him it is far more honorable to fail than to cheat...teach him to have faith in his own ideas, even if everyone says they are wrong..teach him to be gentle with gentle people and tough with tough people.

Try to give my son the strength not to follow the crowd when everyone is getting on the bandwagon..teach him to listen to all men..but teach him also to filter all he hears on a screen of truth and take just the good that siphons through.

Teach him, if you can, how to laugh when he's sad...teach him there is no shame in tears...teach him there can be glory in failure and despair in success.

Treat him gentley, World, if you can, but don't coddle him...because only the test of fire makes fine steel let him have the courage to be impatient...let him have the patience to be brave.

Let him be no man's man...teach him always to have sublime faith in himself...because then he will always have sublime faith in mankind. This is quite an order, World, but see what you can do...He's such a nice little fellow..HE's MY SON.

Hello, Doctor? It's my daughter...she's running a fever and it's getting worse...Can you...hello..

At Contel, we know how important a properly functioning phone system is. Sometimes, it can literally be a matter of life or death. Unfortunately, not everyone understands. Every month-especially in the springnumerous phone cables are cut in Contel's local serving area due to digging. Contel posts warnings on telephone line pedestals and along cable routes indicating where cable is buried in the area. A toll-free 24-hour telephone number (1-800-628-2DIG) is printed on those warnings so that anyone immediately dispatch someone to mark the exact cable location, free of charge. Please, call Contel before you dig. Because when you cut a phone line, it is more than just inconvenient. A lot more.

We go out of our way.™

WORK AND PRAYERS HAVE MADE OUR LIFESTYLE WHAT IT IS

Throughout our life's productive years We all perform our chores. Now some develop their careers In offices and stores, Or work with a computer screen, And thereby earn their bread; While others choose the farming scene To help them get ahead. In any case, we have progressed And raised our status quo; Our living standard is the best, Because we've made it so. Our House of Worship says, "Well done!" To all who work and pray;

You've earned the right to have some fun, So Happy Labor Day!

The work of the remains the spark that moves mankind forward. Igor Sikorsky
