Many people don't particularly care for June. After all, the freshness of April's promise of green to come has long since worn off, and the glorious new blooms of May are fading fast.

June, most of all, seems to be humid and hot. Sometimes smotheringly hot and humid.

But, in spite of the heat, June is a month of natural wealth.

The trees are in full glory, without the ragged edges they bear later in the summer.

The grass grows so fast it's almost unbelievable, while roadsides still proliferate with flowers...black eyed susans, cone flowers and more.

The birds are busy, raising families of frizzy little ones so ugly it's difficult to think that within short weeks they will take to the air as graceful and heart-stopping as their parents.

Martins and swallows, mockingbirds and jays, they fly to and fro, feeding their young and performing a public service in the form of insect control.

The air, although it may feel like breathing water, is still so full and fabulously loaded with the smells of rich growth that it feels good.

Garden harvests are coming off, with their promises of age old comforts. Whether it be a tomato plant in a small yard or a half acre "truck patch" the food grown by one's own hands still has a better flavor.

Cattle are slick, fat and sassy, while cats and dogs have finished shedding out and have taken up their lazy summer ways.

Fishermen seek the shade and keep on hoping.

Summer storms brew up in power and majesty, piling snow white thunderheads one upon another like mounds of angel ice cream.

Skies have blue tints so royal the finest royal families can only look at them with envy.

June is a beautiful time, a month of promise and praise to sumemrttime.

Hot, yes, humid, undoubtedly, but still, a beautiful season for those who will enjoy it.

Task Force Destroys Sixty-Nine Marijuana Plants

Area residents have been most interested over the past week, in what a helicopter was doing making low sweeps over an area just south of Deport, and in other areas.

Commander J.W. Sims of the Regional Controlled Substance Apprehension Program (better known as the Drug Task Force) has reported that as part of an ongoing investigation the task force has located and destroyed 69 marijuana plants. The marijuana was growing in eight different locations, including one in Red River County.

No arrests have been made at this point.

Commander Sims stated that "we figure each plant will produce a pound of marijuana. A pound of marijuana has approximately $1,000 street value".

Sims stressed that they are continuing in their investigations.

NEW SCORE BOARD-the Deport Ball Association has been very busy this year keeping the field in shape and raising funds.

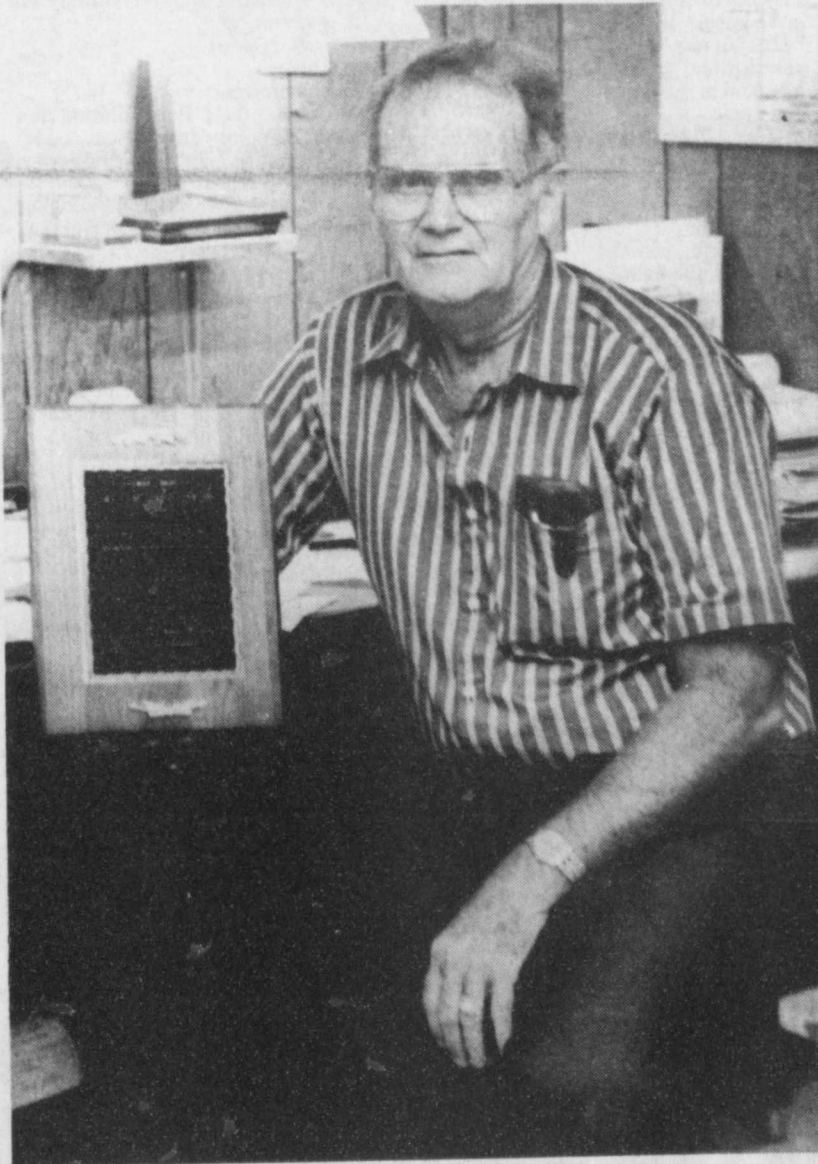

Among the things new are this electric scoreboard, shown with some of the association mem-

The Rodeo Is Back In Town!!!

By Scott Denny

Well rodeo fans, it's time to wipe the dust off your saddle, get Trigger up out of the pasture and trim his feet, hook up to the trailer and pull into Bogata for the annual Bogata Rodeo and Frontier Days.

The Bogata Rodeo Association and Wing Rodeo Company have teamed up to produce another action-packed three nights of rodeo performances on June 27-28-29. This year's rodeo is sanctioned by the Cowboys Regional Rodeo Association and is co-sanctioned by the Central Rodeo Association.

The Bogata Rodeo Association officers for 1991 are Mike Williams, president; Eddy Denny, vice-president; and John Ragsdill, secretary-treasurer. The directors for 1991 are James Lawson, Ray Byers, C.R. Williams, Jim Branch, Todd Denny and Raymond Knight.

The Wing Rodeo Company, owned by Jerald and Joan Smith of Bogata, bring award-winning style that we are familiar with and appreciate. Wing Rodeo Company wins many awards for their rodeos and rodeo stock. In 1990, they were voted the Stock Contractor of the Year in the C.R.R.A., as well as receiving the Bucking Bull of the Year and Saddle Bronc of the Year awards for their livestock.

Performing this year, other than the many cowboys and cowgirls, are bullfighter Rodney Hayes of Linden, TX and Brother and Vicki Taylor of Wimberly. Vicki is a trick rider and Brother has dog acts and horse and mule tricks. This duo has been performing together for 12 years.

To kick off the festivities, there will be a parade at 5:00 p.m. on Thursday, featuring Kennedy's Sausage Hitch and the local faces of the people we all know. Another parade will be Saturday at 5:00 p.m.

Each night the rodeo begins at 8:30 with a "Grand Entry" of cowboys, cowgirls, friends and family. Later in the program each night there will be a calf scramble for the youngsters with a prize of $10 nightly.

Thursday night is dedicated to Hub Whiteman and there will be a drawing for a $100 savings bond given in memory of Hub by Mrs. Whiteman.

There is $2,800.00 in added money to the seven championship events this year at the Bogata rodeo and a belt buckle will be given to the All Around Champion Cowboy.

Tickets to the rodeo are available at Huddleston's Grocery, Peoples National Bank, The Movie Shoppe and Buckman Drug Store in Bogata. Prices are $3.50 advance for adults, $4.00 at the gate. Children 6-12 tickets are $3.00.

Next Saturday night will mean one more year until our local rodeo will be back in town. So everyone take out your hats and polish your boots and come on down to the Bogata Rodeo for a great time and to see those familiar faces you haven't seen since last year.

Beware Of Scams That Could Call Loss

The scene, the home of an elderly woman. The doorbell rings and a pleasant looking young woman is at the door. She reports that she has had car trouble, and has a repair truck on the way, but since it is hot, can she please have a glass of water.

The elderly lady goes to the kitchen and gets her one, with the younger woman trailing behind her. She is never out of sight, thanks the lady politely, and leaves.

It is only a little later that the victim realizes that someone else had come in and taken her purse while her at-temptation was engaged by the woman wanting a drink.

It's only one version of a scam that it is easy to fall victim to.

Refusing someone a drink of water is just unthinkable. However, latching the screen or door while going to get a drink!

The story above did not take place in this vicinity...but easily could have, and it is suggested that it might happen in this region.

Such vicious, cruel scams take place particularly at the first of the month when many retirees receive their checks.

Country Cooking

By Gerrie Bankhead

Country Cooking is coming to you this week from the kitchen of Lucy Fowler of Cunningham. Lucy grew up, went to school, and graduated from Cunningham and this is where she has spent most of her life. After 53 years of marriage, she lost her husband about a year ago and has since then tried to rebuild her life.

Lucy and Willie Joe had four children: a daughter, Barbara and husband Delano Dunlap of Mesquite. They have three children, Steve, Jim and Pam and they have two grandchildren, Lauren and Megan. A son, Talma and wife Margaret of Pattonville and they have one child, Melanie. A daughter, Carol Dorsey of Cunningham and she has one daughter, Jennifer. A son, Michael and wife Delores of Mesquite and they have two children, Kristi and Mandy.

Lucy has been a member of the Cunningham Baptist Church in Cunningham for 58 years.

Among the favorite hobbies of Lucy's is quilting, crocheting, gardening, fishing and going to granddaughter Jennifer's baseball games about twice a week. One of Lucy's previous thrills was getting in the kitchen and cooking up something good for her family. Since Lucy lives alone now she doesn't do this too often. She still enjoys this when family members come in to visit.

Lucy likes to crochet bedspreads, afghans and doilies. She gives most everything away to her children and grandchildren. Last Christmas Lucy gave every member of her family a quilt she had made. Already this year she has quilted 15 more. Lucy says that quilting is something one does, only if you really like it. It is hard work and is very time consuming. Lucy has sold quilts to the public and if anyone is interested, just call her.

This year Lucy is cutting down on her canning of vegetables and fruits. It's such hard work. She does have a garden, but on a smaller scale.

Lucy always loved to fish. She would get in a boat and really enjoy fishing. She doesn't get to fish much anymore but it is a sport she really enjoyed.

Lucy has worked mostly at home. The few years she lived in Dallas, she operated a small shop where she sold fabric. She continued this business in Cunningham for a few years after they returned here to make their home.

The cabbage slaw recipe Lucy is sharing came from a paper article about three years ago and she has certainly enjoyed it. This recipe is very timely since cabbage is almost ready in the gardens. The recipe for the Heavenly Salad came from a friend, Pat Norwood, about a month ago. Pat served it at church and Lucy really liked it and asked Pat for the recipe. The Pear Preserve Cake recipe came from an article in a local paper a few years ago. This cake and the Heavenly Salad Pie are shown in the picture.

The Heinz Sweet Pickles are very delicious. There are a lot of steps to this recipe but it is definitely worth it. She has used this recipe about 20 years. It is very different and she hopes you enjoy it.

During the next few weeks I am enclosing a recipe for diabetics and cholesterol watchers. I hope you enjoy them.

If you've enjoyed the article, request a recipe or have a recipe to share or suggest a feature, please call 652-6032 or write Rt. 1, Box 67A, Deport, TX 75435.

McDowell Reunion Held

The annual reunion of the McDowells of North Carolina was held in Dunlap, TN on Saturday, June 8 at the Rescue Squadron Building.
The McDowell's, large land owners in the upper Sequatchie Valley as early as 1830, came from Pennsylvania and their sister, Mary, married Jessie Day in 1809 in Stokes County, NC and she, her husband, two brothers and a sister, along with their aunt after the division of her father, John McDowells estate, came to what was called Nine Mile. The brothers married into the Close and Hankins families and were members of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church.
William McDowell, born in 1800, started the McDowell Cemetery at Nine Mile on his farm on a mountainside that can be seen for miles with the large tombstones of his own son, Jesse, a Union soldier and nephew, the son of his brother, Joseph, a Confederate soldier also named Jesse.
After much strife and disappointment, some of the families moved to McMinnville to Warren County.
A large number attended from various states and throughout the state of Tennessee. A brief business meeting was held and the president, Willburn McDowell, presided, introducing Ruth Dan O'Brien of Garland, who gave a short history of her family and of her father, the late Herman Day and her grandparents, Jesse L. and Mary Lizabeth (Bettie) McDowell Day's family who came to Lamar County in 1901 and are buried in Shady Grove Cemetery. She also introduced Earnest Lee Day, 86, of Pikeville, TN, the second cousin of her father, one Day she has searched for and located him at a funeral home, who had recently held the services for his wife, Elizabeth Robinett also a descendant who is historian of Bledsoe County, spoke on the family genealogy and their land holdings and occupations in Bledsoe County.

A catered lunch was served and special recognition given to Mr. Day for being the coldest in attendance. Ruth and Stanley O'Brien had traveled the farthest from Texas.
The group posed for their annual photograph, exchanged genealogy reports and elected new officers for the 1992 reunion to be held there on the second Saturday in June.

PUBLIC NOTICE

BRIEF EXPLANATORY STATEMENTS OF PROPOSED
CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENTS
SPECIAL ELECTION
AUGUST 10, 1991

PROPOSITION NO. 1 ON THE BALLOT

Senate Joint Resolution 42 proposes a constitutional amendment that would authorize the newly created county education districts to hold elections to exempt from ad valorem taxation a percentage of the market value of the residence homestead of a married or unmarried adult. The percentage exempted could not exceed 20% of such market value, and the amount exempted could not be less than $5,000. The amendment would also authorize county education districts to hold elections to exempt from ad valorem taxation not less than $3,000 of the market value of the residence homestead of a disabled person or a person sixty-five years of age or older. Finally, the amendment would authorize elections in county education districts for the taxation of certain tangible personal property exempted from ad valorem taxation by the legislature.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows:

"The constitutional amendment to allow the voters of a county education district to adopt certain exemptions from the district's ad valorem taxation for residence homesteads and to provide for the taxation of certain tangible personal property."

PROPOSITION NO. 2 ON THE BALLOT

Senate Joint Resolution 5 proposes a constitutional amendment that would allow the legislature to pass general laws authorizing Texas Higher Education Coordinating Board or its successor to issue and sell up to $300 million of general obligation bonds to finance educational loans to students. The maximum net effective interest rate to be borne by the bonds would be set by law. The amendment would also authorize the legislature to provide for the investment of bond proceeds and to establish an interest and sinking fund to pay the bonds and provide for the investment of such fund. Bonds authorized under this amendment would be paid from the first money coming into the treasury in each fiscal year that is not otherwise appropriated by the constitution, less any amount in an interest and sinking fund established at the end of the preceding year that is pledged to the payment of the bonds or interest.

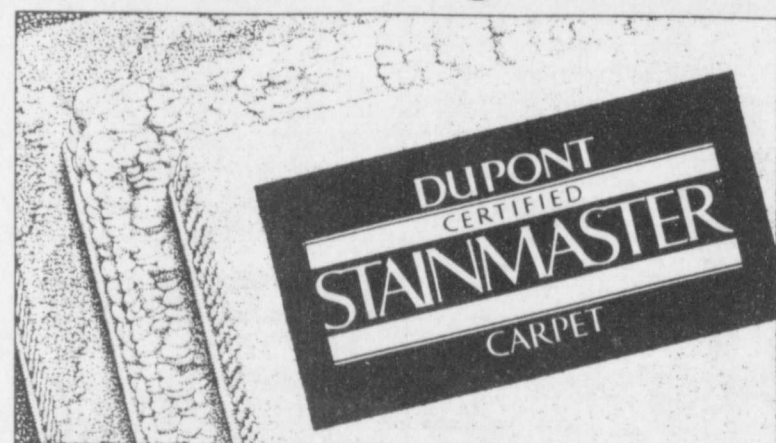

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows:

"The constitutional amendment providing for the issuance of general obligation bonds to provide educational loans to students."

Some Chose To Climb, And Some Died..Mountain Cemetery Tells Tales

By Nanalee Nichols

Editor's Note: For those interested in hearing about a trip to Switzerland, here's your chance. If you aren't, feel free to read something else...this article is definitely for those with travel in their hearts!

Space limitations made us cut this article off rather short last week. You may recall we were talking about the flocks of goats going up and down mountains. The goats are always black at the front, white at the back. In this manner one can tell if a flock is going up or down the mountain...because the front half of the goat is always black, the back half white!

We prowled around the old section for some time. Cats wove in and out of the buildings, searching for rats.

The buildings were set up on stone stilts to keep them above heavy snows and help keep rats out.

"Kitty, kitty" brought not a second glance from the felines we encountered. Finally we realized that in German the word isn't "kitty, kitty" and they don't speak English!

The next morning we took the Gornergrat cog railway up to the top of the Gornergrat Glacier.

Soon we were surrounded by a ring of glorious mountains, still covered almost completely in snow. Fresh snowfall veiled the trees, and snow banks fifteen or twenty feet high loomed on each side of the tracks.

At the top were views that cannot be described, only experienced. The walks weren't clear yet, with only narrow paths beaten through the snow.

We watched as a photographer faked "mountain climbing" pictures by having his clients climb up the side of a rock building. By squatting down on the ground and shooting upward he made the photos look as if the subject were climbing. In the background were mountains.

At ten dollars a picture, I felt he was doing a grand business.

We proceeded upwards to the hotel and cafe, where we sat in the sunshine on the terrace. The crows flocked to the rails, begging bits of food.

Thomas and Richard toiled up a steep slope to an observation deck. I passed because it was so slick, and so did Helen.

When they arrived at the top they found a narrow trail beaten down, and the telescopes and information boards were covered in snow. Thomas stepped out of the track and sank up past his knees in the glistening cold stuff.

Words simply cannot describe the ring of silvery splendor around us, as the chill winds blew.

Coming back down the train ground and grated as marmots scampered alongside. A sobering sight was the occasional cross on the mountainside, sad testament to the death of a skier or climber.

Back in Zermatt once more Helen and Richard decided to have lunch and take a long, slow time toiling back up the steep hill to the hotel.

Thomas and I decided to skip food and go locate the center of town. We found the old part of Zermatt quickly. Here the shops and hotels were made of solid logs, and the river chattered and tumbled around as it plied through.

We located the cemetery, and lifted the latch on the wrought iron gate to make our way inside.

As always in Europe we found the graves in immaculate repair, with flowers blooming in every niche. At the foot of many of the graves a vigil light burned, and birds sang and rustled in the overhead branches of graceful chestnut trees.

Wooden crosses marked some graves, others were marked with crucifix or black stone markers.

It was only after a long time that one particular section of the cemetery began to "soak in".

First of all, we noticed that a number of the stones had coils of rope and strange picks carved on them.

Then, we found one in English, which read "He was not afraid" and gave the name and date of a very young man. At the end it were words "He fell from the Matterhorn".

Closer inspection revealed more graves of a like nature. There, in neat rows, were dozens upon dozens of young men, and a few young women, who had fallen from the surrounding mountains in an attempt to conquer them.

"They chose to climb" one marker read. People from all over, Germany, England, all over the United States and Canada found their final resting place in the tiny, sleepy cemetery in Zermatt.

The Matterhorn, Schlitterhorn, Monte Rosa, and many other peaks had taken their victims. At the entrance to the cemetery was a huge stone chisled with rugged hands, and a rope, the hands were reaching up towards a cross. Belong, seventeen plaques bore the names and ages of the people whose bodies are still entombed in the surrounding mountains! I began counting and soon realized that in a place that may have contained only 300 graves, 82 were of those who "fell from the mountain".

While it seemed something of a waste at first, as I sat on a stone bench and pondered this, looking upward to the mountains I began to understand the pull...the challenge and the satisfaction that mountain climbers must surely feel!

Strolling across the street to the fairy-tale towered church, I peeked inside the door...to be met by a burst of sound from the pipe organ. Entranced, Thomas and I slipped into pews to listen to a man, high in the loft at the pipe organ, playing contemporary music! For nearly an hour we sat as he played favorites such as "Desperados" and "Phantom of the Opera".

In the meanwhile, as in most European communities, people came and knelt, said their prayers and left.

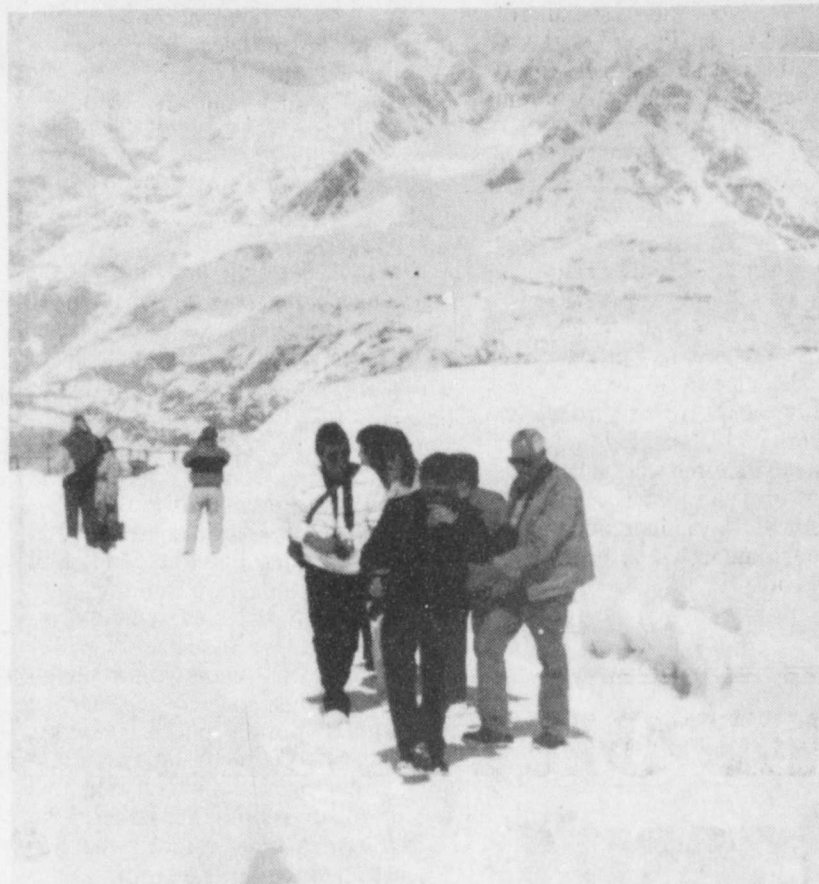

The church is very old, but the inside has been refurbished. Antique altarpieces of gilt and carved wood were set off my pale walls. Overhead a contemporary mural depicted first the ark and the world washed anew, then, beneath it, a statement on contemporary life. Pollution boiled from industrial smokestacks, a death's head grinned from a television set. Other odd tidbits of modern life were tucked away throughout the mural.

We wanted to tell our organist "Danke" (thank you) but he just kept playing, so we finally left.

In the cool of the late evening we took the hike back up to the Alpenroyal hotel and compared notes with our friends on what we had discovered.

Early next morning we took the train down the mountain, leaving the quiet atmosphere of Zermatt behind. Loaded on the bus we passed the huge rock slide that had caught our attention on the upward ride. Only 3 weeks old, our guide told us it still made her very nervous to drive past it. We noticed the air was filled with dust, but thought little of it. Imagine our surprise to learn that only a few hours after we passed the slide the mountain crumbled again, sealing off Zermatt from all except helicopter traffic for a whole week! While the knowledge that we might have been buried in the hundreds of tons of rock was disconcerting, the idea that we could have spent a week in the idealic setting of Zermatt was appealing!

Now, however, it was time to consider the French portion of Switzerland

Letter To The Editor:

Dear Editor:
You probably don't remember me, but I'm the one who used to write for the paper more than 50 years ago.

Well, here I come again, from where, you might say, I was writing from then.

My wife and I bought the old farm and moved back to it. Of course, we never let go of it in our hearts. It had such a hold on us. And it's holding us now.

This old beat-up typewriter looks like the one I pounded on then. It's solid metal. I found it in a junk room and cleaned it up. The dirt-dobbers had found it first, so it took some cleaning.

The old house was still standing, sort of leaning crazily in the wind. We had it restored to its original discomfort and fitted our furniture in it somehow.

The old barn was past resurrection. We just pulled a few props and let it fall to the ground. Hen house the same way. The hog pen was long gone, but the jimson weeds still grew and stank like they used to.

Let's see. We found the remains of the old two-holer in weeds head-high. Down the road, where the school house used to sit, I found a ter model. The pit-toilet, which we called the "FDR". It had fallen into the hole and all I could see of it was the air-pipe sticking up and leaning toward the sun.

The FDR never caught on. It died with school consolidation, good roads and school buses. It never was popular as the standby, the Chic Sale, which was a masterpiece and a dire necessity.

I could go on to tell you where the roads went, and the people and how much we have reclaimed of the old farm, but you may not be interested in looking back that far. It might turn you around. Anyway and yours truly, Lonesome Bill.

Paris Junior College Honors Eugene Norwood Family

The Paris Junior College Board of Regents honored the Eugene Norwood family on Tuesday, June 11 in the home of Daon and Pat Wall.

A buffet meal was prepared and served by the food service department of the college, and Geneva Norwood was presented Gene's gold medallion and a plaque recognizing his 22 years of service on the PJC Board of Regents.

Geneva, Neva, Frankie and Scotty were each presented a framed copy of the Resolution adopted by the PJC Board in memory of Eugene Norwood. The Resolution reads as follows: Whereas, it is appropriate that recognition be given to the memory of outstanding and distinguished citizens who have rendered dedicated service to their fellow man; and whereas, Paris, Cunningham and Lamar County have had the good fortune to claim such a distinguished Texan, who, during his lifetime, qualified for honor and tribute through his many contributions to the welfare of all those who have come under his influence; and whereas, Eugene Norwood, was born January 17, 1930 on the Norwood homeplace in Lamar County, a son of Almer and Alma Baker Norwood; he married Frances Geneva Watson on June 26, 1948, and they had three children, Neva Jean, Frankie and Scotty; and whereas, he served Paris Juniro College as a member of the Board of Regents from 1969 until his death Thursday, February 28, 1991, rendering outstanding service and leadership to both the college and the community which it serves; and his service since April 28, 1986 as Board Vice President was handled with earnest attention to the duties of that office; and whereas, he promoted and assisted Paris, Cunningham and Lamar County by his membership on the Cunningham School Board from 1956 to 1970, and as President of the Prairiland School Board; and whereas, his benevolent service included much time and effort assisting members of the Life Tabernacle Church; and his sincere efforts on behalf of the church touched the lives of many; and whereas, he was a member of the Masonic Lodge, a position which allowed him to become further involved in the community; Now, therefore, be it resolved by the Paris Junior College Board of Regents that on March 25, 1991, this resolution be adopted in recognition of the service and leadership of Eugene Norwood, a dedicated servant to the people and family whom he loved.

The resolution was signed by each board member.
