The "Star Spangled Banner" is playing, the stars and stripes are waving under brilliant light. The field is bright green and the crowd, young and old alike are united for a moment in harmony. Your scalp tightens across the back of your head, and goose bumps prickled your arms.

Ever had that happen? Most of us, no matter how un-sentimental we are, have had a similar experience. It may not have been the national anthem, it may have been when we won a big award, or watched a child take his first steps. It might have been as we listened to words of inspiration, or heard praise given to someone we love.

Or, the reason might have been a song with a line that touched something within us.

The causes of goose bumps and that scalp tightening are many.

It's not at all the same as a fear or instinctive dislike reaction. THAT reaction comes from a surge of fear or anger. Screaming sirens, close calls, anger will produce the "raised hackles".

That reaction quite literally makes the hair stand up on the back of our necks. The goose bumps come up, but they don't FEEL the same!

That scalp tingling, heart-tugging reaction to something that pulls within us very deep is a separate, different thing altogether.

Why it happens is a mystery. Oh, sure, the medical experts or scientists can explain about a rush of blood, or tightening nerve endings or whatever the physical cause of this little reaction is.

But that doesn't explain what triggers it!

The triggering varies from person to person.

What brings goose bumps to one makes another bored or skeptical.

But it's a fair bet that it's a rare and rather inhuman human who doesn't have anything that moves them enough to make it happen.

So, next time you feel strongly about something, and emotions are high, consider the little mystery of your reaction!

LETTERS

Dear Editor:

We recently have been doing some work on our house. We have had lots of water running to soften the holes and green up the yard. The water department called in the middle of the month to let us know our water consumption had changed dramatically.

I really appreciate their attention. The first one to complain of poor service would be me, so let me be the first to applaud good service.

Thanks to Jerry, Sharon and Randy.
Sincerely,
Charlene Borders

Voters Still Confused By Amendments, Two Ballots

This Saturday's election has received little attention, and is very confusing. Yet the results could make a big difference in the tax bill of everyone.

There will be a joint election, between the County Education District and the County.

Even the polling places will be confusing, in certain locations.

Those people who normally vote at Prairiland High School in a School election will vote at the Pattonville Community Center, where the County Election is being held.

Those people residing in the Blossom area who normally vote at the Blossom Elementary School will vote in the school portion of the election at the First Methodist Church of Blossom. Persons in the Voting Box 408 area will vote on the County Election at the Blossom Church of the Nazarene. They must go to the First Methodist Church to vote in the school election.

There will be, in other words, two ballots. One is from the State of Texas with two constitutional amendments, and the other from the Lamar County Education District with two exemption propositions and one tax proposition.

The first amendment on the State of Texas ballot deals with County Education Districts (CED) and reads: "The Constitutional Amendment to allow the voters of a county education district to adopt certain exemptions from the district's ad valorem taxation for residence homesteads and to provide for the taxation of certain tangible personal property."

If this first amendment is approved by the voters, then the propositions on the second ballot from the CED will be permitted to take effect, if the voters also approve it.

The First and Second propositions on the CED ballot would allow certain homestead exemptions (percentage homestead and disabled and elderly).

The third proposition on the CED ballot is a proposal to tax non-income producing personal property.

Voters may approve the exemptions on the CED ballot and not approve taxation of personal property. To pass, each amendment on the state ballot, and each proposition on the CED ballot must receive a majority vote in favor of the measure.

The exemptions on the ballot are a maximum percentage of 20% of the market value of a residence homestead, and an exemption of $10,000 of the market value of the residence homestead of a person who is disabled or at least 65 years of age.

The measures approved by the voters will become effective on election day, August 10, 1991.

Proponents of the constitutional amendment and the third of the propositions on the CED ballot say that approve would correct a problem that arose with the passage of the recent school finance bill which created the CEDs to collect and distribute property taxes. Without the amendment, past exemptions granted by local school districts would be gone, causing substantial increases in property taxes on certain residence homesteads.

The amendment simply allows the homestead exemptions to be continued, but at the option of the voters, rather than the option of the CED.

Critics say that a minority of Texas' school districts currently grant either the percentage homestead exemption or the flat-rate exemption to elderly or disabled persons, and granting the exemptions would diminish the tax base of CEDs. The residential homestead exemptions shift the tax burden from residential property to businesses.

The tangible personal property proposition is another question, however, opposed by Prairiland School Superintendent Max Ballard.

Ballard stated that "Collecting taxes on personal property would be a nightmare. It often costs the taxpayer more to collect the tax than it brings in."

The second constitutional amendment on the state ballot reads: "The Constitutional Amendment providing for the issuance of general obligation bonds to provide educational loans to students."

The measure would allow the state to issue up to $300 million in general obligation bonds to finance educational loans to college and university students.

Letter To The Editor

To The Editor:

Voting is a privilege and an obligation. I feel at times it is difficult or impossible to be certain we are voting the way that we really think is best. On August 10 a general election will be held to vote on two amendments to the state constitution.

The first amendment concerns ad valorem tax exemptions for several groups including the elderly and the disabled. Surely, most everyone will favor this. However, to vote for this one we will also be voting in favor of a personal property tax as this is included in the first amendment. This could be a disaster for nearly everyone!

The second amendment concerns issuing three billion dollars in general revenue bonds for student loans. This would be great if the budget were balanced. Still, at this moment, the legislature threatens to drastically reduce all educational funding. Does it make sense to increase the deficit to give student loans at the same time that educational opportunity and excellence is being taken away?

After completing the state ballot, the voter will receive another ballot for local school districts. The first issue concerns ad valorem tax exemptions. The second also concerns other ad valorem tax exemptions. The third concerns creating a personal property tax. In other words, the voter votes here for three different proposals when all three of the same are included in the first constitutional amendment. Obviously, a constitutional amendment would overrule a local school district resolution!

I talked with a member of the state legislature who surprised me by indicating that he thought we would be voting on three amendments. He strongly opposed a personal property tax indicating that historically this tax had cost more to collect than the tax had brought in revenue.

I am sure that we will be told that a personal property tax would be modest. However, it seems apparent that the state is trying to reduce the deficit by shirking their responsibility to education and by shifting more responsibility down to the local educational districts. This would mean that these small taxing units would have the ability to tax all individuals possessions--most of which have already been heavily taxed before and when purchased. The majority of these taxable items would not be income producing.

This could be the straw to break the ranchers' and farmers' back, when he (or she) is taxed on livestock and equipment. This was tried once by a taxing agency in this area. Hopefully, another tax will not be voted in that would require another revolt to correct an injustice. I hope the media will again publish the proposals along with the pros and cons of each. This election will probably have a light voter turnout, so each voter should be well informed.

Also, we should inform our legislators that we never again wish to have to vote on a single amendment that contains multiple non-related issues making voting as we wish impossible.

Town Dog Is Gone

"Red Dog", who for the past six years has served faithfully as the "Town Dog of Deport", is dead. Red was a favorite among the employees of the bank, grocery stores and a number of other local businesses. He was fed, vaccinated and cared for exclusively through the people he encountered. His noisy greetings to those who came to work each morning resulted in milk bones, dog food and lots of attention, and his friendly tail wagging made many a passerby smile. He died of unknown causes over the weekend, and was given a respectful resting place. Many people have noted his absence, and this item will serve to explain why he will be seen no more.

An Editorial

Points To Consider On The Saturday Election

The Texas Legislature has succeeded in passing its murky thinking to the voters in the August 10 election. So confusing are the issues and the ballot that it is feared that many will stay away from the polls simply because they do not understand the issues. But, staying away from the polls this Saturday could result in lighter wallets for taxpayers!

The first thing that voters must do is to approve the constitutional amendment that gives County Education Districts the authority to adopt exemptions and to tax personal property. That is amendment number one on the state ballot. If they vote on the state ballot to NOT have a personal property tax they are also voting to eliminate homestead exemptions and disabled and elderly exemptions. Voters can decide for themselves on the second amendment, it, at least, is fairly straightforward.

The second thing they must do is defeat the personal property tax proposition, which can be done on the CED school ballot. In other words it must be voted for on the state ballot and against on the school ballot. There are a number of reasons for defeating the personal property tax proposition. First, this tax would be assessed against cars, boats, airplanes, campers and other big ticket items, except manufactured homes. It would not apply to property used to create income, to household goods or to personal effects such as jewelry. No one wants to pay more taxes, and it could very well cost this district as much to collect the taxes the district would gain in revenue.

The third thing would be to vote for both the property tax exemption proposals on the ballot. These exemptions look great on the ballot, but remember, the school district must have a certain number of dollars to operate and the exemptions will force the district to collect the same number of dollars from a smaller tax base. In short, we may reduce the taxable value of our home by voting in the exemptions, but we will be paying a higher rate on the value that is left. All in all, though, we are better off with the exemptions than without them.

It is important to remember that the CED cannot grant the additional exemptions unless the first constitutional amendment passes.

If you are still confused, you can take comfort in knowing that confusion seems to be the mindset of our state legislature, and the same people in Austin who came up with this election are now applying themselves to the state budget. Isn't that great?

Country Cooking

By Genie Bankhead

The Country Cooking column is coming to you this week from the kitchen of Bocky Norman, a resident of the Deport area for almost 65 years. Bocky was married to Delbert Norman for 38 years prior to his death three years ago. They had two children, a daughter, Abigail Strickland, husband Sammy and two children, Philip, age 16 and Amy, age 12, all of Deport; and a son, Dana, wife Terry and two children, Amanda, age 8 and Stephen, age 5, all of Deport.

Having worked for Campbell Soup for 24 years, Bocky has been retired for 1 1/2 years and hasn't slowed down yet. She is very active and busy with volunteer work at the Ella C. Hospice Center at the St. Joseph's Hospital in Paris, is a member of the RSVP in Paris for three years, and has been doing volunteer work at the Deport Nursing Home for many years. Bocky has also been a life-long member of the First United Methodist Church in Deport where she is chairman of the Sunday School Outreach Association.

Since her retirement, Bocky works part time at the Deport Nursing Home. Between volunteer work and her job, Bocky's hobbies include cooking, sewing and painting T-shirts. The favorite foods she enjoys cooking is making fancy party trays for holidays and special events and she loves to fry chicken. She also loves to make her favorite old time chili. She uses her late father's recipe so the only way you'll know what is in it, is to eat a big bowl of it sometime. Among the fancy foods she makes is her deviled eggs which she works up with flowers on them.

Bocky recalls the times she cooked special foods which she enjoys carrying to the sick or whatever the need might be and to help her family out she would put signs on the dishes and write "Nope" on the signs. Bocky also loves to read cookbooks. She can sit for hours reading them. She never cooked as a youngster at home so she had to learn to cook after she married. She shared that Delbert was always easy to please and never complained about anything she cooked and whatever she tried to learn, he accepted it.

Sewing is another of her favorite things to do. She sews a lot of clothes for herself and her granddaughter Amanda. She also loves to paint T-shirts. She took a class a few months ago and has been carried away with it ever since. She has painted every kind of pattern she can think of on a T-shirt.

Bocky contributes much to her dear mother, Edna Bell, who is a resident of the Deport Nursing Home. She says that whatever good has come from her life, she owes it all to her mom.

The Ice Box Cookie recipe came from her mother and she found it in a Yukon Best Cookbook, published in the early 1900's. This recipe is really good to have on hand and bake as needed.

Bocky first ate the Squash and Meat Casserole in the early 60's at the VA Hospital in McKinney where her dad was a patient at that time. She came home and worked up her version and has enjoyed it ever since.

The Cornmeal Dumplings have always been a favorite of hers. She has smixed and remixed to get her recipe to taste as near as her grandmother's did many years ago. She fed a big family and had to learn to make do with whatever she had. She hopes you enjoy it.

The Bocky's Chicken recipe is one of her children's favorites. She adapted it to fit a low cholesterol diet many years ago and has prepared it many times.

If you've enjoyed the article, request a recipe or have a recipe to share or suggest a feature, please call 652-6032 or write Rt. 1, Box 67A, Deport, TX 75435.

By Bocky Norman Ice Box Cookies

1 cup butter
1/2 cup brown sugar
1/2 cup white sugar
1 egg
2 cups flour
1/2 tsp. soda
1/4 tsp. salt
1 tsp. vanilla
1/2 to 3/4 cup finely chopped nuts

Combine all ingredients well. Shape into rolls on wax paper. Chill several hours, slice 1/8" thick and bake at 350 until light brown. You can use raisins, coconut or whatever in these. Freezes well.

Squash & Meat Casserole

4 cups squash (cook with onion until tender, drain)
1 medium onion, chopped
1 1/2 tsp. chili powder
1 can cream of mushroom or cream of chicken soup
1/4 to 1/2 cup chopped green peppers
1/4 cup chopped pimento
salt and black pepper to taste
1 lb. ground meat in 1" cubes

Brown meat in a little oil until done, drain. Mix all together in ovenproof dish. Bake at 350 until hot and sprinkle with grated cheese an bake until cheese melts. Good without the cheese.

Cornmeal Dumplings

2 cups meal
1/2 to 1 tablespoon salt
3 tablespoons Mexine chili powder
2 cups boiling broth
garlic to taste

I like to use a ham bone or ham hocks. Boil until meat will come off bone easily. Shred or chop finely enough meat for about one cup. Leave rest of meat in chunks. Have enough broth for about 4 cups. Mix meal, chili powder, salt and minced garlic with two cups broth to make a stiff mush. Mix a little chili powder with shredded meat. Have two cups broth boiling, mix mush around a small amount of the meat and add to boiling broth, when all dumplings have been added, turn down heat and cook until done. Ad chili powder (1 tablespoon) to broth and a little garlic. Cook uncovered. Mixture will thicken as it cooks. Do not get too thick. Check for doneness by removing a dumpling and check in the middle. Add chunks of meat to broth while cooking.

Bocky's Chicken

1 fryer or chicken pieces of choice
1 stick corn oil oleo
celery salt
8-10 green onions
1/2 to 3/4 cups green pepper salt
black pepper
1 cup rice cooked per directions
four for dipping chicken

Cut chicken into pieces, remove skin, roll pieces in flour, melt oleo and have hot in large skillet. Brown chicken on both sides in oleo. Sprinkle with celery salt, salt and black pepper. Add chopped green pepper and green onions (some tops). Reduce heat and cook covered about 10 minutes. Add 3/4 to 1 cup water, cover and cook slowly until chicken is done.

Strain or use as is the drippings from chicken, pour over cooked rice and heat. A little sage could be added to the rice to taste like dressing.

Frosted Apricot Salad

2 cups boiling water
1-6 oz. orange jello
1 can-17 oz. apricots, do not drain
1 can-8 1/2 oz. crushed pineapple, do not drain pecans
2 bananas
1 cup whipping cream
3 oz. cream cheese
2 tablespoons powdered sugar
1/2 tsp almond extract
2 tablespoons coco nut

Add water to jello, let cool slightly. Stir in apricots, pineapple and pecans. Put into serving dish. Put pineapple and apricots in refrigerator for a while and it will congeal faster. ## VFW Will Host "Lite A Bike" Program, Bicycle Rodeo Reflective tape will be applied in a "Lite A Bike" program to be conducted by the Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 3990 and Ladies Auxiliary at the Post Home in Reno on August 10 at 1 p.m.

Strips of reflective tape will be applied to the rear fender or high rise bar, handlebars, frame, front forks and wheels of the bicycles, making each bike more visible after dark from all angles. The highly reflective tape is visible in the headlights of an automobile. The program places greater emphasis on outlining the shape of the bicycle at night. Drivers will no longer have to guess what spots of reflected light mean, as the shape of the bicycle at night will more closely resemble its shape in daylight.

"Youngsters should not be out bike riding after dark, but if they are, their bikes should have reflective tape," said Pat Friday, Chairman of the local Lite A Bike program.

He pointed out that some 800 persons are killed each year in bike accidents, with 62% of them are children under 14. Another 28,000 persons are injured each year in such accidents. Four out of five fatal bike accidents occur after dark.

"The extra warning provided by reflective tape may help save a child's life," the VFW Auxiliary official said.

In addition to applying tape, VFW and auxiliary members will inspect the bikes for proper equipment, horn or other signaling device, headlight, rear reflector and functioning brakes.

A bicycle rodeo with an obstacle course will also be held. Ribbons will be presented to the ones who do the best and a watermelon and refreshments will be served to all. The public is invited to attend. The VFW, Junior Girls and area Scouts will help with this program.

For information call Pat Friday, 982-6732 or Shirley Smith, 982-5583.

The Amazon River has 1,100 tributary streams.

Bingo Played At Deport Nursing Home

Thirty-two residents and three volunteers played Bingo on Monday with Mrs. Floy Sparks, Mrs. Gail Langston and Mrs. Dorthea McDowra volunteering their services for the residents. Popcorn and drinks were served and everyone had a good time. New residents at the home are Terry Johnson and Mrs. Jessie Lawrence, along with Edgar Malard. Angie Bratton joins the kitchen staff as a new employee at the home.

Popsicles and a Purple Face, Much too Small To Win A Race, Now's He's Thirteen, What A Trip...All We Get Is Smart Alec Lip! HAPPY BIRTHDAY CARY!

This week I decided to go back a few years. All the way back to the August of 1943. There the first thing that caught my eye was an article about a young boy missing in action in the Pacific Theatre. His name was Donald Roach. The son of Dr. H. D. Roach and Mrs. Florence Grant Roach of Bogata.

There was also a headline that read price of cotton seed had been raised to $7.00 a ton by OPA order.

I also found an ad from the Bogata Lumber Co. They were selling a new kind of paint. It was called Miracle Wall Finish. It was supposed to cover wallpaper and anything else on your wall. All you had to do was mix it with water and spread it on your walls and it wasn't supposed to have a paint odor and it only took one hour to dry. It only cost $2.98 a gallon.

I also found in the paper several ads wanting people to recycle their empty coke, milk, and beer bottles so they could help conserve everything needed for the war.

The Deport Theatre also had an ad announcing that they were going to start opening on Tuesday nights which meant they would be open every night of the week. The charge was 22¢ for adults and 11¢ for children on week nights, but on weekends it was 17¢ for adults and 11¢ for children. Playing at the Deport Theatre was "Junior Army," "Reap the Wild Wind," "A Stranger in Town," and "They Got Me Covered."
