Agriculture Commissioner Susan Combs recognized Maxine Johnson and her two daughters, Mallie Wilson and Mary Sherrard, of M. Johnson Ranch in Callahan County. The M. Johnson Ranch has been in operation by the same family since 1892 and was inducted into the Texas Department of Agriculture's Family Land Heritage Program for 100 years of operation at a recent ceremony in Austin.

M. Johnson Ranch Is Honored At Texas Family Land Heritage Ceremony Founded in 1892, Ranch Has Been Family Operation for 100 Years

By Margaret Hetrick

Who would dream that the trim, attractive lady with the engaging smile sitting across from my desk at the Baird Star had continued the operation of a large ranch - through a flood, two droughts and a tornado, as she put it - after the death of her husband Maurice in 1980.

This same lady, Maxine Johnson of the Oplin community in Callahan County, was recognized as Outstanding Conservation Rancher of the year in 1989, and continues to manage her land to this day.

On March 21, 2003, Mrs. Johnson and her family received another recognition regarding 640 acres of her land, which belongs to the M.

Johnson ranch of Callahan County.

The 640 acres have been owned and operated by the family for over 100 years, and the ranch was honored by Susan Combs, Texas Department of Agriculture Commissioner, at a ceremony held in the LBJ Auditorium in Austin, TX, recognizing 2002 Texas Family Land Heritage farms and ranches.

The number of farms and ranches meeting the requirements for the Texas Family Land Heritage is not thickly sewn, - particularly in this part of Texas. The land under consideration must meet the "old U. S. Census definition of a farm", and must have been agriculturally productive and owned by members of the family for 100 years or more.

The family members submitting the application must actively manage and direct the everyday operation.

The M. Johnson Ranch of Callahan County (founded 1892), the Lovell Farm of Eastland County (1889), and the English E-Bar Ranch in Shackelford County (1902) were among the few added to the honor roll from this region.

The history of the M. Johnson Ranch started many years ago as a enterprising young man, Thomas E. Johnson, born in Norway and seeking "more opportunities and a better life", came to Callahan County in 1875.

In 1880 he married a young woman born in Straussburg, Germany, Mary Betcher, whose family had immigrated to Texas and settled at Colony Hill in 1878.

The number of acres in the founder's original ranch was 125 8/10 acres. Thomas Johnson acquired his title to the land on May 1, 1901. He added 640 acres to this amount. The land track can be traced back to the original grant holder, George Hancock, - granted to him by Texas Governor E. M. Pease.

Thomas Johnson raised cotton, milo, wheat, oats, corn, cane, cattle, horses, mules, hogs, chickens and turkeys on his land.

If that wasn't enough to keep any one person busy, he also worked as a rock mason, and hand dug water wells for himself and his neighbors. He dug tanks with a mule team, and cleared his land of rocks and brush so that it could be plowed.

Thomas and Mary Johnson donated land for the town site of Oplin, and also gave the land on which the Oplin Church of Christ was built.

The couple had eight children. Two died in infancy.

A reporter for the Baird Star wrote an obituary for Thomas Johnson honoring him after his death in 1915.

"He was an honorable, upright man, modest, unassuming and straight as a gun barrel in all his dealings," the article - signed W. E. G. -

It continued: "He has been a subscriber to The Baird Star most of the time for 27 years and we feel that we have lost a valued subscriber."

Mary Johnson's obituary state. "Mrs. Johnson was converte

Church at the age of 13 and since that time had lived a consistent Christian life and was an active church worker."

Hard times would befall the ranch in the years following the death of Thomas Johnson. His son Edd, who then became owner, died at a young age. His widow Mary Elizabeth (Mamie) Johnson, appointed guardian of the land, was left with three young boys - Frank Edward, Eldon Maurice, and Tommie Waymon - and would face the dust bowl and depression years.

Maurice Johnson became next in line to own the ranch. He married Mary Maxine, also a native of Oplin, in 1948.

Maxine had received a teaching degree from Abilene Christian University, and taught in Oplin until the couple married.

Maurice and Maxine Johnson had two children, Mary Maurice, and Mallie Elizabeth.

Maurice served overseas during World War II. "He was happy to serve to preserve the freedom of our country," Maxine stated.

Later, they both were 4-H project and demonstration leaders, and thus helped young people attain their goals. Maurice also helped with the Future Farmers of America.

As Maurice Johnson acquired the ranch, it consisted of 640 acres. He added 300.

Crops of wheat, oats, milo, and hay grazer, were raised on the ranch, along with cattle, horses, hogs and chickens.

Maurice Johnson was very proud of his land, and open to ways of improving it. In 1979. he entered into a Watershed Critical Area Treatment (CAT) contract, but was unable to see all the final results of his efforts before his passing away in 1980.

His widow Maxine, however, who shared his pride and interest in the land, did not give up. She, with the help of her brother Lowell, continued to run the operation.

In 1988 Maxine entered the Conservation Reserve Program (CRP), and was recognized as Outstanding Conservative Rancher of the year by the Callahan Divide Soil and Water Conservation District in 1989. She now manages a ranch operation totaling 1680 acres, which produces wheat, hay grazer, permanent grass for hay and grazing, and cattle.

The M. Johnson Ranch is presently owned by Maxine and co-owned by her two daughters, Mary (Johnson) Sherrard of Houston, TX, and Mallie Elizabeth (Johnson) Wilson of Ranger, TX.

The family loves to spend time on the ranch, Maxine said. "Good and wise stewardship on my part will ensure future generations a beautiful and profitable land," she stated.

Gill also showed a flag that his wife Judi sent him to carry on his missions over Iraq during the Persian-Gulf war. The Airforce pilot knew that if the enemy captured him and found his flag, they would most probably not only execute him, but also torture him before the execution.

In spite of this knowledge, he proudly carried the treasured flag with him on every mission, he said.

Russ Gill, now a rancher and pilot with Delta Airlines, lives with his wife Judi and sons Brandon and Taylor in Abilene. The family spends as much time as possible on their ranch west of Baird, TX in Callahan County. Gill's parents, Russ and Hurley Gill also live in Callahan County.

The two-hour rally also included patriotic music, speaker State Rep. Jim Keffer (District 61), and speaker Dr. Jim Hays, a retired lieutenant colonel from the Texas Army National Guard.

The uncle of Marine Pvt. Nolan R. Hutchings, missing in action in Iraq, spoke in honor of his nephew. Brown described his nephew as a sincere Christian, and said that he was proud to serve his country." It really hits home," Brown said. A moment of silent prayer for Marine Hutchings' safe returned was held.

Later that night, however, office. the family of the Marine Private received the sad news that the Marine's status had been changed from missing in action to killed in action.

After learning of his death, Jim Brown called his nephew his new hero, and asks that prayers be continued for the troops in Iraq.

Author Joan Stocks Nobles Brings Spirit To Big Bend

By Viola Payne

Eastland Memorial Library was filled with people on April 11 who had come to meet Joan Stocks Nobles and hear about her book, "Run With The Horses."

Mrs. Nobles was dressed in ranch attire, something she felt quite comfortable wearing. She showed an old boot jack which held carvings by her grandfather, Joe Stocks. Her book is dedicated to him.

Joan Nobles and the audience were welcomed by hostesses of the event, Kay Mabry, Librarian, Melba Carter, Dorothy Perkins, and Mary Lou Perkins.

Dorothy Perkins, a special friend of Joan Nobles, introduced the author to the crowd. She explained that they first met in Midland.

There were others in the audience who were acquainted with Mrs. Nobles and her family.

Before the review began it was fun to listen to their brief exchange of Big Bend ranch lore.

One guest who understood this first-hand was Tom Nevill of Eastland, who lived on a ranch near the Rio Grande when a child.

As Joan Nobles told about her own life, the audience found her personal experiences just as riveting as her book.

"Run With The Horses" is actually a spin-off from those early years she spent on a ranch west of Fort

She described the Big Bend this way: "It's the most fascinating country in the world. If you've ever lived out there you'll never get

She explained that the story in "Run With The Horses" is a tale she heard from her grandfather, Joe Stocks, as she lay in the ranch home with red measles.

You could die with that kind of measles, and nine year-old Joan was apparently dying. Her inborn toughness and her grandfathers lessons on endurance were failing.

Then Joe Stocks began this family epic to encourage her to hand onto life so she could hear it all!

The saga begins in 1866, with little law and order in the Big Bend. Confederate veterans were attempting to survive on outlying ranches, Union soldiers were at Fort Davis, Apaches were roaming through the mountains, and Mexican bandits were raiding north of the Rio Grande.

The husband and son of Carie McKittrick, a tough young grandmother, are kidnapped by bandits, who demand a large bunch of horses as ransom.

Carie enlists the help of her three young grand-children - and anyone else who is decent - and begins the impossible task of rounding up and delivering the horses.

But she also has other plans - she is going to capture the bandits when the horses are delivered.

Joan Stocks Nobles uses vivid prose to describe the bitter beauty of the land, the strong people, the habits of animals, and especially the horses.

"I've had a fantastic life, all wrapped around horses," she said.

She explained that she first won a horse show at age 3, when her family had ranches in the San Angelo

Later they sold out, and Joe Stocks bought his ranch in the Big Bend.

Joan's parents divorced, and she and her brother Banky lived on the ranch with the grandparents.

When she was nine years old one of Joan Nobles jobs was breaking five year-old thoroughbred horses in the corral at the ranch.

Long before the "horse whisperers" became famous she had learned that kindness and communication goes a long way.

Joan mentioned seeing the last of the horse calvary from Fort Bliss, El Paso out on bivouac in the Big Bend. Her grandfather furnished a lot of horses for the calvary. It was disbanded in 1944.

Joan said she married into a wealthy Midland family in 1947. After her divorce some years later she took her three children to Van Horn to live, "So they would have some idea of what the real world was like, and what it would take to make it," she said.

She raised them there, then later ran a hotel in Fort

She said that when she was 70 years old she got sick, and realized that if she

After her Review the audience stayed to visit and enjoy refreshments served by the hostesses.

Many had Joan Nobles autograph their copies of her book.

Most realized she was leaving some things even more priceless - a glimpse of ranch life as it really was, and a liberal dose of her courage and spirit.

'Higher Ground' To Perform At Folklife Festival

Question: What do you get when you cross four guys with full-time regular jobs with guitars and drums, and mix in the Cisco Folklife Festival?

Answer: good nononsence rock'n roll delivered by a band isn't taking itself too seriously.

Fresh off their most recent ig at Stoker's Ice House in Dallas, where they rocked a crowd of at least 30 bikers, Higher Ground storms into town Saturday, April 26th for its second annual appearance at Cisco's Folklife Festival. The band will kick off its 2-hour rock extravaganza at 3:00 p.m. Higher Ground won't be hard to find on the festival grounds. "When my ears stopped ringing last year, I thought, Hey, those guy good!" were pretty Remarked one local fans.

Higher Ground is comprised of four Dallasarea "Musicians", Ken Hawari (raised in Cisco and son of Kay Hawari and Diz Howell, who actually preferred not to be named in this article), Mike Cooper, Paul Holser and Lee Brookman. Although the four men hold real jobs as marketing attorney, manager, software engineer and advertising guru, and practice only once a week in a church youth hall, they bring a passion and flare to the music that can only be described as fanatical. "Speaking of fans," said Mr. Brookman, the band's druminer, "we sure hope the rreschooler that actually got ip and danc d to our music last year comes back for

B.A.C.A. Riders Saturday To Raise Awareness About Child Abuse

Canton Texas, April 26th 2002 - In an effort to raise awareness about child abuse, the Big Country Chapter of Bikers Against Child Abuse will ride 100 miles throughout East Texas on Saturday, April 26th. The Big Country Chapter will not be alone. Over 30 Chapters in 16 states will be riding at the same time.

At Noon on April 26th multiple chapters of B.A.C.A Texas including: Big Country, Cross Timbers, Ft. Worth, Wichita Falls, Austin, San Antonio, Houston, will depart from the Piney Woods Biker Blowout Rally in Canton Texas. B.A.C.A. is hired each year to work security at this Rally and this year seeing as how this event is at the same time we will incorporate our ride into the scheduled Poker

Run which is 70 miles. We will add an additional 30 miles to ride to make our 100 mile ride.

· Ride will begin and end in Canton Texas and include 100 miles of the scenic Piney Woods area

• This ride is solely for the means of raising funds and awareness of the horrific injustice that abused children have endured.

• B.A.C.A Big Country is a non profit 501 (c) 3 organization and your pledge will go directly to helping children who have been abused who have contacted us for our support.

In the November 2002 B.A.C.A Big Country Chapter was formed. Since that time our chapter has already assisted 4 children. During the month of April there are already 5 new adoptions scheduled. We adopt the children into our fold and help to empower them to be strong and not to be afraid of the world in which they live. In all of the cases in Texas where B.A.C.A. appeared in court to support the children last year we received a guilty verdict or strong probated sentence in ALL but one of cases.

The group works with abused children and their families by empowering them to face what has occurred and put closure to the tragedy that has struck their lives. All families need to remember that anyone can be a perpetrator and that any child can be a victim. All individuals within the organization are volunteers and must pass a criminal background check.

For more information about the organization or about the 100 Mile Ride, phone (254) 442-1671 (Croc) or (254) 629-1333 (Zoom).

Who Cares By Wanda Skinner

The Reader

Life sometimes seems to be a treadmill where we run and run and run and get nowhere. We seem to dream dreams that appear unrealistic.

We strive for goals we cannot reach and we become discouraged and seem unfulfilled. Why can't we care enough to reach out and make our dreams and goals correspond to being and doing the best we can each day we are allowed to live on this earths.

Care enough to tell how much you appreciate what they do and what they mean to you.

Care enough to be a friend to those who need more

Keep Your Cool Texas

By Wes Sims

Texas Farmers Union President

A few corporate giants, and the groups that represent them, would have us believe the country-of-origin labeling law (COOL) that was included in the 2002 farm bill is actually a farm-of-origin labeling law (FOOL). However, that claim lives up to its acronym.

The COOL provision requires grocery stores to label fresh meats, fish, fruits, vegetables and peanuts with the country in which it was grown and processed. Beginning in September 2003, this new law will give American consumers the ability to make informed choices about their food and will give farmers and ranchers the opportunity to stand behind the commodities they produce.

As an independent Texas agriculture producer, I am offended by the scare tactics that large agribusinesses are using to deter farmers and ranchers from supporting this beneficial law. Unfortunately, their claims are being backed up by recent USDA cost estimates that assume each of the 2 million farmers, ranchers and fishermen in the country will need to implement a record-keeping system. That's just not COOL.

The COOL law states that the secretary of agriculture "shall not use a mandatory identification system to verify the country of origin of a cov-the burden of proof on the importer, not the individual farmer or rancher.

It doesn't make sense to impose unnecessary paperwork on Texas' farmers and ranchers when records are already kept on animals and produce imported into this country. The COOL law encourages use of certification programs that are already being used by federal agencies.

Many producers have received threats of third-party verification meatpackers. Don't be FOOLed. There is nothing in the country-of-origin labeling law that requires third-party verification or burdensome audit trails. While packers may impose their own interpretations of COOL, the law is directed at retailers, no packers. There has been some question about whether these threats violate the Packers and Stockyards Act.

I believe that country of origin labeling, long supported by Farmers Union and many other farm, ranch and consumer groups, is one of the most important efforts to ensure the survivability and enhance economic opportunities for the U.S. independent livestock and produce farmers. In the global economy, our producers play on an unleveled playing field, disadvantaged by the value of our dollar and forced to compete with countries whose farmers, ranchers, and processors produce in a system with much lower labor, environmental and sanitation standards.

As an American producer, I am very proud of the "Cadillac" quality products U.S. farmers provide. Yet, at the current marketplace, this "Cadillac" product is not differentiated from the lower valued, imported model with its uncertain assurance of quality and safety. Surveys prove that consumers, if given a choice, will demand our U.S. premium product and support the U.S. farmer and the U.S. worker who provide them with that quality product.

I am excited about the potential benefits of a successfully implemented COOL law. I believe that stronger farmer-consumer relationships will be forged. Consumers will support our U.S. farm families and demand and choose our quality products. Family farm operations will become more profitable and the consumer will be assured safe, wholesome food. It's a win-win situation.

The COOL law was written to protect producers, not additionally burden them. For this reason, Texas Farmers Union has advocated country-of-origin labeling for years and will continue to stand behind the law and make sure it is implemented in a farmerand rancher-friendly way.

Texas Farmers Union works to protect and enhance the economic interests and quality of life of rural citizens through legislative representation, educational opportunities and support for farmerowned cooperative ventures.

Galations 6:4 NIV "Each one should test his own actions. Then he can take pride in himself, without comparing himself to somebody else."

People today seem to be finding fault with things that others so on a regular basis.

Let's plant seeds of making certain our actions are not giving others reason to criticize us.

If we could learn to keep our own lives under control, we could soon find that the actions of others would not brother us quite as much.

We each come from different backgrounds and different places and parents, so we are different people.

Stop and think for just one minute what the world would be like if every person in the world was exactly like you!

Plant seeds of accepting others as they are and being the guard over your own actions.
