POSSIBILITIES OF THE LOWER RIO GRANDE VALLEY

The lower Rio Grande valley probably has developed and advanced faster during the past ten years than any other section of the state, and as soon as their water and transportation problem is solved the "Magic Valley" will rival Southern California in climate, beautiful scenery, crops and progressive citizenship.

The lower Rio Grande Valley is in reality a delta, having its apex a short distance from the town of Mission and expanding in a V shape eastward to the Gulf of Mexico, the Rio Grande river being its southern boundary, so far as the American section is concerned. The valley comprises a gross area of approximately one million acres, with a net irrigatable area of 755,700 acres, of this amount there are under irrigation systems now constructed or in progress of construction 418,900 acres, of which amount 169,000 acres were irrigated last year.

On this land there is grown practi-cally every known crop that thrives in other portions of the state as well as semi-tropical fruits, such as grapefruit, oranges and lemons. The winters are very mild, only one light frost being reported last winter—this makes it possible to grow fruits and vegatables the year 'round.

Palm trees, and other tropical plants and flowers are being planted through-out the valley, lining the streets of the towns and the country highways, giving one the impression of a real tropical country, making a very beautiful appearance and we do not believe that it will be many years before the Lower Rio Grande Valley will be attracting winter tourists-rivaling southern Call-

Thousands of acres are being planted in grapefruit and oranges throughout the valley. One hundred trees are be-ing planted to the acre and according to statements made by some of the farmers they harvested from six and seven year old trees last year from $20 to as high as $65.00 per tree.

An effort is being made by the people well as one of the most beautiful.

PEOPLE OF OUR TOWN

THIS BIRD REAL POLLYANNA

No Imaginable Adverse Circumstance Can Keep "Cucubore" From His Fit of Laughter.

The real Pollyanna of the feathered tribes has just arrived at the bird house in Central park, for if any one can bear up under the name of Cucuboro and still keep cheerful, it shows one of those persistently gay natures that nothing can mitigate. Of course, Cucuboro has won a better deal from the public at large than he did from the ornithologists who saddled him with his gloomy scientific appellation. for the people of Australia, where he comes from recognize his propensity to "Keep Smiling" by calling him the "Laughing Jackass,"

And, equally, of course, he has earned this soubriquet, for he is reported to thrive on vast quantities of water-no matter what other beverages are available-and to have a habit of laughing before he gets up. an hear or so before sunrise. Now, any one who can laugh an hour before dawn on just plain water-even Pollyanna and her followers never did anything so blatantly cheerful as that,

This kinefisher bird, for that is his family, is sometimes halled as the settlers' clock, because of his regularity in bursting out into a spasm of wild. ribald hughter, that surpasses any alarm clock in rousing the inhabitants of the Australian bush, while it is more than probable that a relanse into this flendish merriment that takes him about sugget serves for the dwellers in the hinteriand as a dinner bell, cathedral chines, and factory whistle, all in one. SPAIN GAVE WALES DAFFODIL

First Flowers Said to Have Been Received in Exchange for a Consignment of Coal.

According to an old legend, the first batch of daffodils ever seen in Wales reached there in return for a consignment of coal. The daffodil is indigenous to the Rilbon district, some of whose scafaring inhabitants were about two thousand years ago conveyed by the flow of the Gulf stream to Pembrok-shire. There they saw the inhabitants digging what is now known as anthracite, and making fires with it. They also noted that the Welsh were sun vorshipers. Taking some of the anthracite back with them, the Spaniards realized its immense superiority over charcoal for the purpose of smelting iron ore, for which the country round Ellbao was celebrated even in those days, so an expedition was organized to procure further supplies from Wales.

As barter for the "black stones" the Spaniards took a consignment of daffodil bulbs, because they thought that people who worshiped the sun would be impressed by the beauty of this flower as it unfolded itself and displayed its form and color, and that in its corona and radiating petals they would see reflected the glory of the sun. Thus used as barter and carefully cultivated by the ancient inhabitants of Wales, the daffodil eventually became the floral emblem of the coun-

Pity the Telephone Girl.

One hundred telephone calls a minute, as is usual after any sporting event, were coming in over the wires at the News office after the Kentucky Derby. The majority of the calls were inquiries as to the results of the race, which was won by Behave Yourself in 2:04 1-5.

One enthusiastic baseball fan asked the telephone operator who won the game between the Indians and the "Behave Yourself." was the answer.

and a cracked receiver at the other end of the line was the reply.

A little later some one asked how the race was at the quarter.

Another became indignant when the girl replied: "Behave Yourself," thinking she was "kidding" him.-Indianapolis News.

Colonial Styles Endure.

In many parts of this country there has been a decided tendency among manufacturers of furniture to comb European mansions, palaces and museums for possible inspiration in the domestic arts, apparently oblivious to the fact that we have in America what generally is considered one of the most graceful, simple and beautiful types of decorative art-that of the colonial period. That this style is authentic and of intrinsic value, artistic and useful, has been abundantly proved.

That manufacturers have been wise in modifying extreme period designs to meet modern conditions in this country seems pretty well established.

Woman Jurer Caused Trouble.

The question as to whether women will make successful "jurymen" has been raised in England by the recent collapse of a woman juror in a Manchester court. The woman became ill and almost swooned during the hearing of a charge of malicious wounding. The finally collapsed, had to leave the court and a substitute had to be found. Of course, the trial had to begin all over ugala.

COLORS DISLIKED IN CHINA

Green Considered Unlucky, and White and Blue, as Mourning Symbols, Are to Be Avoided.

Green, which is thought to be unlucky, is much disliked in China and a recent English consular report warns merchants against packing goods in green paper. White and blue wrappings are equally to be avoided, for in China they are the mourning colors. The report points out that English pins packed in blue paper proved to be unsaleable, while much inferior German pins put up in red paper were spapped up at once. Red is the color of good fortune among the Chinese. Brown is liked, if it possesses a reddish shade; so are the brighter tints of pink. Carpets and curtains should possess a yellow ground, which is an extremely popular color in both China and Korea as well as Japan. Purple, too, is liked, and gold is the imperial color. While yellow is so popular in China. it is by no means wise to use it in Japan. There yellow, or rather saffrom is the color of the robes of the Sadhu caste of Hindus, who are notorious sedition mongers. Dressed in flowing saffron robes, a number of mendicants of the Sadhu caste have been recently moving all over India. presching sedition. At Dinapur two of these men were caught in a barsick room, preaching mutiny to the native troops, and were promptly arrested. Upon them were found se litious letters written upon silk of the same color as their garments. The Sadhu yellow is supposed to repreent the combined color of sun and sky, and in India is as much the color of rebellion as the red flag in Europe.

BUDAPEST GRAND OLD CITY

Hungarian Capital Has Many Beautiful Buildings and Its Surroundings Are Charming to the Eye.

Although the Hungarian capital is best known as Budapest, the Pesth quarter of the city is by far the most important and old Buda is only a visual section across the Danube, on the right bank. Women Disregard Suffrage.

Suffrage still seems a long way off for women of the South American countries, but the subject is at least regarded with indulgence in Argentina. An informal election for city officials was conducted by the women of Buenos Aires with the permission of the government. Following the history of the movement in all countries the interest of the women themselves is hard to arouse in the Argentine, but four thousand voting at this election, although the city has at least three hundred thousand women. The ploneer woman suffragist of the Argentine, Senora Lopez-Nelson, and the group of women of which she is the head, have succeeded in securing widespread discussion of the subject and now are concentrating their efforts toward arousing the interest of women in a bill to amend the constitution providing for universal suffrage, which will be presented at the next national congress.

Fruit From South Africa.

Fruits from South Africa are the latest novelty in the New York city food markets. Not only do the African fruits appeal to the palate of those who long for peaches, plums and melons of summer time, but they are a delight to the eye. Strange crosses of peaches and plums and apples have resulted in colors of deep red splashed with yellow in odd shapes that are unfamiliar to most of us. The fruits are all carefully selected and packed in excelsior. They come under refrigeration, mostly by way of England, the trip taking a minimum of four weeks,-Scientific American.

Country ... s and primitive ways were necessaried things to the city bank ... And so long had be bent over outh drawers and intricate figureing in his impressive steel cage, that This is himself acquired an important alcofness born of his task. He fretted now indignantly against his doctor's unusual prescription.

"One restful day in the country," the great man said, "will do more for you than bottles of medicine. A restful month would do better." Thusleus rebelled against the month,that would be unbearable. He knew that his nerves of late had been piling up misery in many unexpected ways and he knew also that he must relax and find a changing of ways.

He thought, as he stepped distastefully over the dust, of his own gloomy home in the city, with crabbed Hannah in charge of constantly changing halds, and he wondered after all, while his struggle for money had amounted to, Certain it was that it brought no happiness nor happiness in store. But he had been placed in the tread-mill, and because of his skill, must go on and on, endlessly counting and accumulating more dollars. Perhaps it was a breath of sweet clover across the fields which caused him to think of love, something vaguely sweet and comforting, which had passed him by. There was not much chance now that love would come to him to stay. He was too busily absorbed and unapproachable. The manner had grown upon bim, with the loneliness of his years, and he was, after all, not sure that he wished to be shaken out of the accepted way. He stooped to brush a leaf from his palm-beach sult, and encounteredsurprisingly, a child's grasping hand.

"Daddy!" cried the child delightedly, "Daddy," Thadeus frowned, the warm moist little body was pressing against his immaculate trousers,

"Take me," commanded the intruder, "take me up. Ted's tired; Ted's lost." Gazing at the boy, Thadeus hesitated uncertainly, then with an inexplicable impulse lifted him in his arms: clinging small arms encircled the man's neck.

How trustfully now he lay in his arms. Thadeus reflected sinkingly, that no creature had ever before confidingly sought his protection or turned to him in seeking affection. That was strange-too. At the bend of the road he saw a young woman. She was seated on the clover dotted crass, resting against a tree, an open ook in her hands. At sight of himself with the boy's curly head on his shoulder the woman smiled-a wel-

"How do you do?" she said, "I see you have found my boy." Thadens, th he had for such a brief tent glimpsed her, was conscious distinct disappointment.

"Too bad," Thadeus murmured confusedly, "nice little chap. Rather took to me," he added pleased,

The girl raised her dark eyes to his. "Would you like," she asked calmly, to take Ted, and keep him?"

Thadeus gasped. She was evidently serious in her question, earnestly awaiting his reply.

"You could do so much for him," she explained, "so very much more than I. You see, I happen to know who you are. I have seen you in the bank-many years. Of course," she smiled again, "You would not remem-

LILLY OF THE COURT

By JACK LAWTON.

in the breeze was a hint of winter to come. Lilly dreaded winter because with fuel so high, she wondered how she was ever going to keep warm. She of never having had quite enough to eat-but heat was a different thing; one had to be warm. Especially when the doctor warned one against the danger of drifting into a cold, and when the same unreasonable doctor ordered fall days spent in the open, in particular to busy one's hands. The air of Brundage court was not clean with dust of traffic all about, and nimble fingers wielding the embroidery needle, could not of necessity be long idle. Lilly considered it kind of the department store buyer, around the corner, to allow her to embroider initials to order, on fine linen handkerchiefs. Lilly had acquired a skill of her own in drawing fanciful monograms, and her work was in such demand that it kept her bending to catch the window light of Brundage court, after lights had popped out everywhere to show that evening had come, and then, she was obliged to finish by gas light. Usually Lilly crept early into her hard bed, to get some refreshing sleep, before the morning sun shining through the window should make work again possible. Looking into the opposite lighted spartments at evening Lilly wondered. wistfully, what it might be like, to live in a real home with a real family to love and care for one; the small pale girl had never known. Mrs. Crosby. who had adopted her years ago from the orphan asylum, hoped to acquire a strong young housekeeping companion for her old age. In this, Lilly growing into frail young womenhood, disappointed. She had given loving kindness, and had won love in return, but when old Mrs. Crosby died, the only heritage left her adopted child, was the accomplishment of fine embroidering. Lilly liked to sit quietly and watch the country bus drive into the court at evening, awaiting possible passengers to a not far distant village, From it's mud spattered sides, the girl drew imaginary pictures of a rough country road, with late flowers blooming at the side, and red and golden leafed trees forming a canopy overhead. And as Lilly pictured, she laid aside, painstakingly, nickles and occasional dimes, toward her fulfillment of the doctor's prescription. For one afternoon she would breathe clean country air. In this same old bus she would ride to the village and back again, and the memory might be something to cheer winter hours. The bus-man smiled involuntarily when he saw her coming. the rusty black suit was a quaint little suit, made over from one of Mrs. Crosby's, while the velvet tam that went with it, was such a contradictory saucy tam-Litty's own work-and of flaming red velvet. The bus-man could not know that this red velvet had composed a best parter cushion, but he noted as Lifty came nearer the way her hair curied in soft rings about its brim, and he felt sorry in his kindly heart for the pearly pallor of the small girl's face. The bus-man was young and his customers bad grown to count in a whimsical way, on his helpful Interest in themselves. Big Bill Dawson gave to each one at evening his personal greeting and welcome, "You want to go out to Cloverdale?" he asked Lilly conversationally.

"I don't care about staying," Lilly told him, "I want the drive through the country air."

It was astonishing how much more she told him, as the two went rattling along the road together. Big Bill, had a way of winning confidence by his sympathetic personality. Little Lilly of the Court, was unaware that she was giving her life history, with the doctor's order thrown in, until Bill Dawson by a few apparently careless questions, had learned her simple story. It was a very pleasant ride. Lilly did not know when she had en-

Drawback to English Couple's Complete Happiness.

Transition From Poverty to Comparative Affluence Accompanied by Traditional "Fly in Ointment."

This is a story of luck following a sequel as the most imaginative writer of comedy could invent. And this Just play because I like to play, story is true, says a London disparch to the New York Sun. The hero is a young British ex-officer, Captain Greenwood, who, having been through a very rough time during the Russian compaign, managed to escape from the land of the Reds with his young Russian wife. They arrived in London some months ago, friendless, nearly penniless and with no prospects at

Captain Greenwood tried to get a job but, as previous to the war he had fived with his parents (now dead) in the country and had not yet ventured into a self-supporting state of existence, his wage-earning capacity was restricted to a narrow field.

Finally one day, borrowing enough daily paper, in which he stated that a young English officer who had to support his wife was "down and out" and that he was country born and bred, deal about farming, and was willing to serve "on the land" in any capacity.

Captain Greenwood received only one answer, and this was from a Mrs. Christie, resident in Shropshire. She said she liked the wording of his advertisement and as she was coming to London would interview him at her hotel on a certain day. He kept the appointment and within an hour was engaged for a position as a sort of manager and overseer of this wealthy woman's Shropshire estate.

He and his wife now live in a castle, rent free, food free, servant free. He receives a salary of $1,500 a year, has the use of horses and carriages and is in control of hundreds of neres of land. The only stipulation made by his generous and somewhat eccentric benefactress is that no animal in the castle or on the estate shall be killed. Fat cattle range the hills, rabbits infest the woods, cats raise name familles, dogs are to be counted by the dozen and there comes the dy in the oin(ment) rats as big as puppled roam through the corridors and rooms of the splendld Tudor muusion.

None of these creatures, nor any hard or fowl is allowed to die by any save a natural death, and Capt, and Mrs. Greenwood are obliged to be vegetarians. They can use all the butter, milk, eggs and other farm produce that they want, but if they have a yearning for a roast chicken or a beefsteak they have to drive to the nearest town and go to a hotel in order to gratify their desire for meat. It is easy to become a vegetarian under such delightful auspices, but Mrs. Greenwood is doubtful about those Oil-Burning Locomotives.

In England the London & Northwestern Railway company has converted some of its coal-burning locomotives into oil burners, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. The firebox has been lined with fire brick and "scarab" oil burners, of the type in which the oil is atomized by a jet of steam, have been installed so that there are three burners in a row across the firebox. The burners are supplied with oil by means of a pipe line running from an oll tank, with a capacity of 1,000 gallons, which is installed in the tender, in the space that used to be occupied by the coal. Adjacent to this tank is a heater. through which the oil passes on its way to the burner, and in which it is wormed sufficiently to make it flow readily through the reducing valves and to atomize freely.

Got In for Benediction.

Jeffersonville is running on "summer time." It took some of the citizens a day or two to get accustomed to the change. George was one of them. George is a devout and regular attendant at church, including the mid-week service. The first Wednesday evening after the change George walked into prayer meeting and was rather surprised to find the congregation singing. He prides himself on being a few minutes ahead of the preacher. He was still more surprised the next moment when the preacher pronounced the benediction Prayer meeting of this church lasts. exactly sixty minutes, which is onehalf of the explanation of George's experience. COPIED OLD ENGLISH BARREL

Pennsylvania Man Made First Standard Size Receptacle for the Transportation of Oil.

When crude oil was discovered in Pennsylvania in 1859, barrels commonly used for wine, beer, whisky, cider and other liquors were utilized by oil men as containers for their product. Anything that resembled a barrel was used and sizes differed so radically that there were many opportunities for fraud.

As an instance, it was discovered that frequently the staves were made extra thick, with the result that the content of the barrel was less than represented, and purchasers often found that they did not get as much crude oll as they were paying for.

In 1864-65 the first standard-size burrel was made by Samuel Van Syckie, at Miller Farm, near Titusville, Pa. It was of 42 gallons' capacity, the size fixed in 1461 in England for the herring barrel during the reign of plays." Edward IV.

Van Syckle specified the size of the state- to be used and made an honest 42-g line barrel, Almost immediately he had practically a monopoly of the busines and the odd-size barrels gratimity disappeared.

The present system of gauging oil tanks was started in 1865, when F. E. Hand and of Miller Farm, Pa., was Metarty, and that on the first hours of 10 a. m. and 4 p. m., by virtue to the highest tiddler, as the property of said levy and said Order of said of said II. T. Jeshins.

Collector Got His Half of Debt, but Creditor Is Wondering Where He Comes In.

A Vancouver man tells of a sea captain who, ashore, makes his home in that city, and who had loaned a sum of money to a neighbor. The latter, after the loan was a year or two old made no effort to pay it.

Now, the captain began to look upon the debt as a bad one, indeed. It was the fashion of a little time go to think scorn of the woolwork creens, the paper flowers, or the wax igures made by the women of the past, ut now they are engerly sought and dded to collections of articles illusrating home life.

History repents itself, and to this usy athletic age has come a wave of he old finger-work fashion. Lately it vas pictures made with feathers, now t is little figures made from rags. Breaking a Land-Clearing Record. A total of 18,000 acres of land in Marinette county, Wisconsin, were cleared during the season of 1920. This is a record, and the increase will represent at least $1,000,000 a year in crops. The closing of the task was marked by a great blast of an acre of stumps near Wausaukee. At this point 158 sticks of dynamite were set off simultaneously as an electric impulse was transmitted by a presiding official who closed a switch. A land clearing school and 57 educational meetings were part of the campaign that made their efforts so successful, and explosives to the extent of 14 carloads were used in the undertaking.-Popular Mechanics

Crossmith Defines Humor.

Lawrence Grossmith, the English comedien, is quoted as saying: "There is no more difference between English and American humor than there is between English and American tragedy. All humor, whether it be English or American, depends upon the seriousness with which the person trying to be humorous acts the fool. This may sound like a paradox, but it is one of the most extraordinary paradoxes which are vitally true. If an actor does not enter into his humor with the full possession of his senses and all his faculties he misses the most of It.

"To be humorous it is necessary to tose oneself in one's part, retaining inst sufficient introspective faculties to feel the sincerity of one's acting. Sincerity here as in all other branches of acting is the mainstay. And 'sincecity' gets across the footlights whether it is in Germany, France, England or America, whether in tragedy, comedy, musical or dramatic

SAW MIRAGE ON SIDEWALK

College Professor Records Interesting Observation He Made on the Streets of a City.

A curious case of sidewalk mirage was described by Prof. F. W. McNair of Michigan College of Mining. Prof. McNair wrote in Science:

"I was walking enstward on a cement sidewalk on a street running nearly east and west, and moving up a moderate grade which joins a nearly level stretch of walk. On reaching s point which brought my eye slightly above the level portion, and at which normally the 'evel stretch would have been seen in its entire tength, but much foreshortened, I observed instead what appeared to be a stretch of clear dark water covering the entire width of the walk and brilliantly reflecting moving persons and other objects in sight beyond it.

"The sky was clear, the air cool, the sun high. It was about 3 o'clock p. m., local time. There was a moderate breeze. The angle of observation was very small, probably not above three degrees. A step or two either east or west, and the water was gone. but within the proper limits, the Illusion was definite and continuing. The weather bureau report for the day indicated that approximately 30 feet above the spot where the mirage was observed the air temperature was about 60 degrees F. and the humidity about 63 degrees."

The resemblance between conditions here described and those which produce the mirage on the plains is ob-

BELIEVE DEVIL RULES EARTH

Probably Queerest Religious Faith Is That of Tribe of Kurdish and Arabian Blood,

One of the strangest religious sects in the world is known as the Yezed! a race of mixed Kurdish and Arabian blood. They worship the devil, and believe he will rule the earth for 10,000 years, 4,000 of this number having already passed. On the theory that Jesus is good, and will not harm them, they give most of their devotion and sacrifice to the devil who, they assert, will at the end of the next 6,000 years, be put into hell, where he will weep so hard he will put out the fires, and then will be pardoned and given back his rightful place in heaven.

The Yezedi believe that there were 71 Adams and a similar number of Eves, and that the originals once had a great dispute as to who was the most important, the man or the wom-To prove the matter the women spit in one great jar and the men in another, and the jars were the sealed for nine months. At the end of that period they were opened, and from the women's jar leaped a pile of snakes and worms, while from the men's jar came a beautiful boy and girl. In spite of their strange beliefs they are very industrious, honest, hospltable and kindly, although steeped in dense ignorance, one phase of their religion forbidding them to learn letters.

Words in English Language.

The number of English words not yet obsolete, but found in good authors, or in approved usage by correct speakers, including the nomenclature of science and the arts, does not probably fall short of 100,000, says George Perkins Marsh. Few writers or speakers use as many as 10,000 words, ordinary persons of fair intelligence not above 3,000 or 4,000. If a scholar were to be required to name, without examination, the authors whose English vocabulary was the largest, he would specify the all-embracing Shakespeare, and the all-knowing Milton. And yet in all the works of the great dramatist there seem not more than 15,000 words; in the poems of Milton not above 8,000. The whole number of Egyptian hieroglyphic symbols does not exceed 800, and the entire Italian vocabulary is said to be scarcely more extensive.

Egg Shows Miracle.

One cannot find among the multinude of wonders in nature anything more marvelous than the development of an egg, writes Elsa G. Allen, in the American Forestry Magazine, Whether it be a butterfly which flourishes for a day, only to die after depositing its eggs, or a reptile which lazily leaves its eggs with only the warm sand to mother them, or a fish, like the salmon, which with incredible strength, jumps the rapids to spawn in the upper reaches of rivers, or most appealing of all a bird which builds a beautiful nest for its treasures, the egg in every case is structurally the same, and the miracle of life unfolds according to the same laws of cell

Modern Words Traced to Trees. While the ancient Greeks fancied that every tree was possessed of its own peculiar spirit, and nature lovers insist that trees have personalities even as men and women, it is only natural that men have paid tribute to the tree. The leaves of plants named the leaves of books, and the word "folio" traces back to "foliage." The word paper comes from the old papyrus plant, and the word "Bible" is the Greek name of the plant, accoring to the Minneapolis Journal. The word "book" is derived from "beech," and the "codex" originally means the trunk. It is because men have for the trees kind friends and interests subjects that they have been pared much tribute.

ON GUARD AGAINST FORGERS

Men of Money Device Secret Signs Which Inform Bank Cashiere That Checks Are Genuine.

So clever is the modern forger that the man who relies on a signature which is hard to copy is liable at any moment to find himself victimized and his account depleted.

In order to prevent the successful uttering of a forged check, several men have his upon devices which even the smartest criminal could hardly de-

For instance, there is an American millionaire who makes a tiny blot on some part of the check as a sign to the bank cashier that it is genuine. Not one forger in a thousand would attribute a blot to anything but carelessness, and quite a number of wouldbe swindlers have found themselves pulled up sharply on presenting an unblotted check over the counter.

Another man has hit upon the idea of apparently making a mistake in the date in the right-hand top corner of the check, which mistake is rectified by the crossing out of the wrong numeral and the substitution of the correct one. The check forger would hardly regard such an apparent blunder as the result of deliberate intention.

A Frenchman with whom this subject was discussed stated that his own method is an almost infail ble one. Whenever he writes a check, he takes the precaution of tearing it out of his check book in such a manner that a tiny shred of the counterfoil remains attached to the draft. This is an intimation to the bank that the check is genuine.

Perhaps, however, the most extraordinary device is that adopted by a wary Hebrew. He makes a point of carefully perfuming every check bearing his signature with a certain scent which is very difficult to obtain.

Johnson's Tour of 1866.

Johnson's "Swing 'round the Circle" was an expression frequently to be met with in the fall of 1866, and was applied to a speech-making tour made by President Johnson about that time. President Johnson left Washington August 28, 1866, in compliance with a request that he would lay the cornerstone of a monument to be arected to Stephen A. Dougias, in Chicago, September 6. He was attended by a distinguished party, including several members of his cabinet. General Grant and Admiral Farragut also were in he party. The route was by way of Philadelphia, New York and Albany. In one of his speeches the president referred to himself as one having 'swung around the entire circle" of public service, from alderman to president. The phrase "took" with newspaper reporters, and so came to be generally applied to his tour. Johnson's welcome was mixed, for passions ran high in those times. The general attitude was, however, courteous, and even cordial. In this respect St. Louis contrasted very favorably with some other large cities. Cleveland, Chicago and Springs had extended to him no official recognition, while at Indianapolis he was hooted. On the whole, Johnson's tour did not strengthen his position in the country, serving, as it did, but to intensify the fury of the opposition .-Kansas City Star.

Tasmania's Artesian Water.

The dry season experienced in Tasmania last summer caused the state government to examine the county known as the Midlands for artesian water. The area surveyed was approximately 500 square miles. The investigation has shown that there is no artesian water in the Midlands, in existence, containing more than 5,but that there exist definite sub-artesian basins from which appreciable quantities of water of very fair quality may be drawn. The investigation, the first of its kind in Tasmania, will make a valuable asset of the Midlands, and will furnish data from which valuable conclusions can be drawn as to the conditions affecting irrigation.
