We are authorized this week to announce B. M. Whiteker of this city as a candidate for Representative of the 102nd District in the State Legislature. Mr. Whiteker is probably one of the best known men in Haskell county and needs no recommendation from us. He has been one of the leaders in every progressive movement for the betterment of Haskell and Haskell county for the past few years. He is an earnest worker, and has never known defeat in any undertaking. He is familiar with the needs of the state as well as the 102nd District and will make West Texas a creditable representative if elected.

Mr. Whiteker expects to see the majority of the voters of the district before the primary next July and will appreciate your vote and influence.

HARMONY CLUB CONCERT A SUCCESS

The second annual Sacred Concert given by the Harmony Club Sunday evening proved a splendid success in every way.

Long before the opening of the program the large auditorium of the Christian church was filled with people from Stamford, Rule, Weibert and many other surrounding cities.

The Soloists were Mrs. Jno. Baker of Dallas and Mrs. Jas. A. White of Rule who gave beautiful numbers. The Duet rendered by Misses Kinnard and Pinkerton and Mesdames Baker and Morrison were beautiful and greatly appreciated by all. The Harmony Club Chorus composed of fifty voices gave several selections evidencing their splendid talent. The Concert was given under the direction of the Club's director, Mrs. Hardy Grissom, whose talent in music is unsurpassed.

Mrs. Grissom has spent much time and effort with the Club during the past two years. "That music is a labor of love" proved that much love had been inducted in this splendid chorus of voices. Haskell's proof of their pride in the Harmony Club and their director was evidenced in Sunday evening's large and appreciative audience. One visitor in the audience from Houston remarked that "Haskell's Harmony Club compared with any he had ever heard, which included the best." Haskell feels deeply indebted to the Harmony Club and their director for such programs, and are grateful, the Sacred Concerts have become an annual event.

POST SCHOOL WILL HOLD SECOND FAIR

The Post school ten miles south of Haskell is one of the most progressive rural schools in West Texas. According to a statement given out Tuesday by R. E. Lee, one of the trustees, the school is planning its second annual Fair. The patrons and citizens will hold a meeting next week to make plans and arrange for the premiums. The exact date of the fair is not made known but it will be held some time in May.

A Pig Club has already been organized with 28 members and a Poultry Club will also be organized at an early date and a contest will be held between the members on the day of the fair. Also a splendid livestock exhibit will be shown as the Post School District has some of the prize winning cattle of West Texas.

Prof. Lee Humphries is principal of the Post School for this term and is one of Haskell County's best teachers. He is working in hearty co-operation with the patrons and citizens of the district to make the fair a success.

The first date of the fair began last year with a large attendance and an excellent patronage. The plans for this year will be considerably enlarged and improved upon, and those who attend this year will see a real County Fair.

AGED CITIZEN DIES TUESDAY MORNING

The funeral of Paul Josselot, age 78, was held at the Methodist church in this city, Tuesday, at three p. m., Rev. J. H. Morris of Stamford conducting the services. The death of Mr. Josselot occurred at his home in the Howard community, 12 miles south of this city at 1 o'clock Tuesday morning after a brief illness.

He was born in Belgium, spent seven years in France, and came to America in 1873, and has spent most of his life in Texas, living in Haskell county many years. He was a member of the Methodist church and his life was spent in the service of his master. He is survived by a wife and one daughter and many relatives who live in Haskell county. He was one of Haskell county's best citizens and his passing away leaves a vacancy that will be hard to fill. A large congregation of friends were present at the funeral and followed his remains to its last resting place in Haskell's beautiful Cemetery where the body was interred.

STATE HEALTH NURSE COMING FEB. 6TH

Mr. C. C. Minatra, Supt. Haskell Public Schools, Haskell, Texas.

My Dear Mr. Minatra:

I want to thank you for your letter of January 12th relative to the proposed visit of Miss Seymour to Haskell to examine the school children.

We are so glad that February 6th is a convenient time for her to begin the work. Our schedules for the nurses are so full for the remainder of the school year that we are very loath to lose a single day's work. I am asking Miss Seymour to write you direct if there is anything of special benefit that can be done in preparation for her visit.

The only things that I can think of are that proper arrangements be made for a comfortable rooming and boarding place for her, and that scales be installed in the schools before her arrival.

Since I'm very thankful for your interest in this very important work and trusting that much good will be derived from the examinations.

Very cordially yours,
Winnie I. Bracy
Assistant Secretary.

The above letter, the most recent communication regarding the coming of the State Health Nurse, makes patent two needs: First, a good private boarding place; Second, a pair of scales for weighing children. Information regarding either of these necessities will be gladly received. It is hoped that some home will be patriotic enough to open its doors to Miss Seymour, and that some firm will be kind enough to loan the scales.

The bride was attired in a beautiful brown Tricotone suit with hat and accessories to match. They were accompanied by Miss Louise Brooks of this city and Marion Hoy of Seymour.

After a week's honeymoon they will be at home to their many friends in Rule, where the groom is engaged in the garage business.

Something to Think About

By F. A. WALKER

WHAT CAN YOU DO?

TYOND the earth, to minister to the suffering, to venture forth into fields of thought still unexplored, are achievements which call for the highest types of human quality.

The doing of such things as these develop strength of purpose and heroic character. They enlarge the heart and mind, open new vistas where scenes are changing constantly, give exquisite pleasures, besides storing the soul with knowledge found only in pursuit of the Infinite.

Can you do any one of them and remain yourself satisfactorily?

Have you the fine patience and the penetrating vision on which you can rely when put to the test?

Going round and round, day after day, takes to nowhere beyond a weekly pittance.

The man or woman who in his or her own strength breaks through routine methods and keeps looking for substance rather than "such stuff as dreams are made of," is doing something along this line.

Both are moving towards a new world, where there is no boundary to opportunity and no limit in the field of operation.

Though up-hill intimacies are without charm of freedom, of which youths of the present seek more than is good for their bodies and souls, these close associations with difficulties, accompanied with earnest work, take by easy stages to great heights.

Up hill intimacies!

Are you, young man and woman, familiar with them?

Do you hold communion beneath the evening lamp with instructive, uplifting books, instead of idling your time in frivolous amusements that gnaw regularly great holes in your weekly or monthly earnings?

If you do, you will come in some solitary night of your study and meditation, face to face with smiling Hope, holding her torch high to light and cheer your way.

Then you will drink in the inspiring ether of the higher altitude and feel commendably proud in the thought that this big world is reserving a place for you, where you may sit among the honored guests at a bountiful table.

Success rests on just such a basis as this; it is nature's way of making choice and bestowing reward. Unless you pull yourself up from the lowlands you never will know the joys of a heroic life.

By MARY MARSHALL DUFFEE

WITH THE FORK

No rule is so general, which admits not some exceptions.—Robert Burton.

ABOUT the fork centers a good deal of controversy, and on this subject the well-bred English person always disagrees with the well-bred American who is as yet uninfused by British notions. The Englishman insists that the fork, when used with the meat course, should never be taken from the left hand, and that it should be held always tines down; while the average well-bred American sees no harm in shifting it to his right hand when he is using it to convey food from his plate to his mouth, and in turning it tines uppermost when he finds that most convenient. When he does this, the Britisher says he is using his fork like a shovel, and this to him is unpardonable.

The fact seems to be that the British mode is spreading and that in many, if not most, boarding schools, where good manners are insisted on as much as French or English and rather more than arithmetic and geography, the British way with the fork is insisted upon. But remember that there is authority for both methods and that many well-bred persons are none the less well bred because they cling to the American method.

But however you use your fork, see that you don't clutch it too greedily, and likewise see that you do not cram the fork with food with the aid of the knife. It is extremely awkward and bad manners to use the fork as a masher in eating potatoes and other vegetables. You should simply detach a bit of the potato by means of the tines of the fork, and carry this to the mouth without crushing it between the tines. Never put more on the fork than you can take in one mouthful. Some persons you know take a large morsel on the fork at once, and then take it in two mouthfuls at once. This is a small matter, but it is one of those little things that constitute bad table manners.

Never use the fork in order to reach for anything that is not on your own plate. If food is served to you or serving dishes, there should be service spoons or forks, and you should help yourself by means of these just as you would in your own home. If the bread plate is out of reach the very ill-mannered person sometimes reaches it by means of his fork.

Some persons forget that when the fork is not actually in use conveying food to the mouth that it must be laid across the plate. It should not simply be laid with the prongs resting on the plate, much less should it be held in mid-air. Some persons, when they wish butter on potatoes or other vegetables, take it from their butter plates by means of the fork. If there is no butter knife, then the regular knife should be used. On no account should the fork be used for this purpose.

THE HAND OF A SAILOR

THE hand of a successful sailor should be strong, short, firm and broad. A characteristic sign is a well-developed mount of Luna, lying on the outside of the palm near the wrist. It denotes great love of the sea. If there is a star on this mount, it means danger by water, to which naturally, every sailor is exposed.

A line of Mars, paralleling the line of life, on the inside, shows endurance and protection from great dangers. The sailor's hand contains, also, well-marked travel lines; that is, lines extending from the first bracelet and going upward to the mount of the moon, or coming in at the wrist from the side of the hand. If a travel line strongly marked is terminated by a cross appearing on it, that is a sign that a journey will end in misfortune.

The line of life of the sailor should be well separated from the line of the head, since such separation signifies plenty of self-confidence.

THE SAFE AND SANE WAY TO REGAIN YOUR HEALTH

You may have little or no faith in efficacy of the drugless health science of Chiropractic for the simple reason that you know nothing about it.

Let us give you an illustration which even a child can understand

Your watch having given you good service for several years, and always kept good time, suddenly "Goes Back" on you and begins to "LOSE TIME." You naturally take it to the watchmaker who, after examining it more or less carefully, says "Oh, yes, I can soon fix this for you. I will take out one of the wheels and then it will go as well as usual." You immediately snatch the watch out of the hands of the "FOOL", for such you mentally call him and try some other machinist. Your next watchmaker is saner. He also examines the watch carefully and says, "Yes, I can soon fix that, it needs a little adjusting and if you will leave it with me for a day or so, I will guarantee to adjust it so that it will keep as good time as it ever did." You leave the watch with him and in due course you get your watch back, keeping perfect time as of yore.

Your precious body is as intricate and delicate a piece of mechanism as any watch that was ever manufactured. Something goes wrong, you are sick, unable to sleep, cannot enjoy your food, your body is wracked with pain, etc. The cause can invariably be traced to subluxated (displaced) vertebrae (small bones of the spine) pinching the nerves and preventing the normal flow of the vital force from the brain through the nerves to the various organs of the body. Why you should allow any surgeon to remove part of your bodily mechanism is more than any sane person can understand. How much more reasonable it would be for you to consult a Human Mechanist (Chiropractor) and get him to adjust the cause, which consists in adjusting the subluxated vertebrae back to their normal positions, thus relieving the pressure and getting rid of the cause. Does not this seem reasonable to you.

Think it over carefully, read this article again and the next time you or any member feels a little "Off Color", consult a Chiropractor. The Safe, Sane and Satisfactory way to regain your Health is by Chiropractic Vertebral Adjustments.

Much enthusiasm was shown in the prospective new years work. Also much interest in the lesson, which was very ably conducted by Mrs. Clyde Elkins. Something to Think About

By F. A. WALKER

WHAT CAN YOU DO?

TO MASTER despair, to look beyond the earth, to minister to the suffering, to venture forth into fields of thought still unexplored, are achievements which call for the highest types of human quality.

The doing of such things as these develop strength of purpose and beautify character. They enlarge the heart and mind, open new vistas where scenes are changing constantly, give exquisite pleasures, besides storing the soul with knowledge found only in pursuit of the Infinite.

Can you do any one of them and neglect yourself satisfactorily?

Have you the fine patience and the penetrating vision on which you can rely when put to the test?

Going round and round, day after day, takes to nowhere beyond a weekly pittance.

The man or woman who in his or her own strength breaks through routine methods and keeps looking for substance rather than "such stuff as dreams are made of," is doing something along this line.

Both are moving towards a new world, where there is no boundary to opportunity and no limit in the field of operation.

Though up-hill intimacies are without charm of freedom, of which youths of the present seek more than is good for their bodies and souls, these close associations with difficulties, accompanied with earnest work, take by easy stages to great heights.

Up hill intimacies!

Are you, young man and woman, familiar with them?

Do you hold communion beneath the evening lamp with instructive, uplifting books, instead of idling your time in frivolous amusements that gnaw regularly great holes in your weekly or monthly earnings?

If you do, you will come in some solitary night of your study and meditation, face to face with smiling Hope, holding her torch high to light and cheer your way.

Then you will drink in the inspiring ether of the higher altitude and feel commendably proud in the thought that this big world is reserving a place for you, where you may sit among the honored guests at a bountiful table.

Success rests on just such a basis as this; it is nature's way of making choice and bestowing reward. Unless you pull yourself up from the lowlands you never will know the joys of a heroic life.

By MARY MARSHALL DUFFEE

WITH THE FORK

No rule is so general, which admits not some exceptions.—Robert Burton.

ABOUT the fork centers a good deal of controversy, and on this subject the well-bred English person always disagrees with the well-bred American who is as yet unfluenced by British notions. The Englishman insists that the fork, when used with the meat course, should never be taken from the left hand, and that it should be held always tines down; while the average well-bred American sees no harm in shifting it to his right hand when he is using it to convey food from his plate to his mouth, and in turning it tines uppermost when he finds that most convenient. When he does this, the Britisher says he is using his fork like a shovel, and this to him is unpardonable.

The fact seems to be that the British mode is spreading and that in many, if not most, boarding schools where good manners are insisted on as much as French or English and rather more than arithmetic and geography, the British way with the fork is insisted upon. But remember that there is authority for both methods and that many well-bred persons are none the less well bred because they cling to the American method.

But however you use your fork, see that you don't clutch it too greedily, and likewise see that you do not cram the fork with food with the aid of the knife. It is extremely awkward and bad manners to use the fork as a masher in eating potatoes and other vegetables. You should simply detach a bit of the potato by means of the tines of the fork, and carry this to the mouth without crushing it between the tines. Never put more on the fork than you can take in one mouthful. Some persons you know take a large morsel on the fork at once, and then take it in two mouthfuls at once. This is a small matter, but it is one of those little things that constitute bad table manners.

Leading does great harm. Everyone should not work constantly when not asleep. Health and happiness demand that each person should have sufficient spare time to read, rest and enjoy himself.

With so many profitable ways to occupy days and evenings "off," it is difficult to understand why men—many of them young and active—waste their spare moments, but always hang their heads and growl when the whistle blows for work.

Those who don't find reputable means of enjoying themselves and of improving their mental and physical lives during spare times seldom do the world much good.

To find happiness and to advance one's position there must be constant constructive thought and endeavor.

The happiness of every individual in large measure depends on the part he plays in the progress and joy of the world.

No Virtue in Divining Rod. So general among European peasants is the belief in the power of the witch hazel as an efficient divining rod for finding water, or pointing out where water may be found if you but dig deep enough to find it, that the French Academy of Sciences determined to make an investigation of the witchiness of the hazel divining rod, and it has made a report on it. It has reported in very fine French, in French that is nearly as good as most Americans speak, that the witching influence of witch hazel has been over-estimated. The fine French of the French Academy of Sciences might be rendered in English as "Nothin' to it," or "Nothin' doin' in the witchcraft line."

THE FUGITIVE

Who is it lurks and glares at me, From out the crimsoning bush? Over the road there falls a shade, And darkness haunts the golden glade: A shudder runs along the breeze And "Hush!" soft sigh the shimmering leaves— "Old Age is waiting thee!"

Old Age, thou art a fearsome thing, Lurking just down the road, But, strange, as I approach the hedge Whence frowns the dark and dreaded shade, It flies apace, and further on Calls softly from another glade— "Old Age is waiting thee!"

Always a little further on, Always beyond the way; And life and love and song are sweet, And youth with smiles and dancing feet. Perhaps I'll never gain the hedge Where thou dost crouch and wait for me, But just slip by and down the road— Into Eternity! —Mary A. Kirkup in New York Times.

NEVER LACK OF EXCITEMENT

Railway Workers on East Indian Lines Surely Need Not Complain of the Monotony.

At lonely spots on the Madras railway, in India, may be seen small stone-built huts with iron gates. They are referred to by railway men as "tiger boxes."

The object of these little cabins is to afford protection for pointmen and other workers against the tigers that frequent the jungles in the vicinity.

These ferocious animals have in the past manifested a peculiar taste for railway men, and it was found necessary to place retreats at the more isolated parts of the track. In each hut is placed half a gallon of water and a rough bunk.

In East Africa railway workers use monkeys to warn them of the presence of lions and other wild beasts. The monkeys are placed in cages on high posts or other prominent positions. They scream when they scent the approach of lions.

On the Uganda line, a telegraph operator, on returning to his station, found the stationmaster and staff barricaded in a hut, while two big lions patrolled the platform! He wired the information down the line, and a locomotive carrying a crack shot was sent to drive the animals away.

Farm Animals Puzzle Japs. One day in Tokyo, when I happened to turn over the photograph of a British woman war worker feeding pigs, a Japanese clerk looked over my shoulder and asked if the animals were sheep. Sheep are so rare that an old ram was once exhibited at a country fair as a lion.

The difference between the agriculture of the West, based on live stock, and the agriculture of Japan, based on rice, could not be more amusingly illustrated. But a section of the Japanese agricultural world turns its eyes longingly to mixed farming; and so, when I returned to Sapporo from my trip to the north of Hokkaido, I was taken to see a government stock farm, with a smoking volcano in the background.

There were fine cows, some pigs and sheep, two self binders, a dairymaid who looked to the manner born, and colliers.—J. W. Robertson Scott in the London Daily Telegraph.

Counting Done First on Fingers. Men learned to count in tens because they happened to have ten fingers. Primitive man would count ten on his fingers, then make a mark. One South American tribe was discovered by the historian Cantor to be counting in this way; three men sat facing a fourth man, each of the three holding up his fingers for the fourth to count. The first man's ten fingers and thumbs represented units, the second man's fingers and thumbs stood for tens, and the third man's fingers and thumbs meant hundreds. The fourth man could thus count up to 999. —Cleveland News-Leader.

Lightning Stroke Got Both. During an electrical storm in Ontario, a farmer and his wife, while endeavoring to close the windows, received a shock. The farmer was closing a window at the top of the stairs, while his wife was at the foot of the stairs. Lightning entered the upper window and struck down both the man and woman. When the farmer came to he found his wife unconscious, and it required great effort to revive her.

PLUM PUDDINGS AND CAKES

THIS is the season when the plum pudding is enjoyed. Little Plum Puddings. Pour one cupful of scalded milk over one pint of bread crumbs taken from the center of a stale loaf of bread; when cool add three-fourths of a cupful of sugar, one teaspoonful of salt, the yolks of four eggs beaten until light, one-half pound of suet mixed with one-half cupful of chopped almonds, one-half pound of currants and one-half pound of seeded raisins; lastly, add one-third of a teaspoonful each of cloves and nutmeg and one teaspoonful each of cinnamon and nutmeg, then fold in the whites of four eggs beaten stiff. Pour into buttered individual molds and steam one hour. This recipe makes twelve little puddings. Serve with hard sauce.

Molly Cake. Cream one-half cupful of shortening; add gradually one cupful of sugar, two egg yolks beaten light; then add alternately one-half cupful of milk and one and one-half cupfuls of flour, sifted with two teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Lastly, beat in two egg whites beaten stiff and one teaspoonful of vanilla. Bake in a tube pan for forty-five minutes. Cover with boiled frosting and ornament with citron leaves and cinnamon berries.

Little Cakes. Cut small cakes from a sheet of pound cake. Beat the white of egg enough to make it liquid and mix it with a little sugar. Brush over the surface of the cakes and allow them to stand until dry. The next day dip on a fork into fondant, invert and slip from the fork. Decorate with nuts and emilies or both.

Fondant. This is the basis of all cream candies. Cook two cupfuls of sugar and one-half cupful of water and when boiling begins wash down the sides of the pan to remove any grains that have formed; cover and boil a few minutes. Now add one-fourth of a teaspoonful of cream of tartar and cook until a little dropped into cold water will make a soft ball. Set away to cool, then beat and knead until creamy. Set away in a buttered bowl covered with paper and let it stand for a day or two to ripen, then it is ready to use.

THE OLD NEST WILL BE SHOWN NEXT WEEK

When "The Old Nest" comes to the Haskell Theatre on Thursday and Friday of next week, Jan. 20 and 27, the people of Haskell will have a chance to see a picture that has been hailed by critics and reviewers as the most satisfying all-American picture that has ever been produced. The theme, that of a mother who sees her six children leave her, one by one, is common to American families. All the poignancy of feeling that these leave-takings arouse in real life have been caught on the screen.

Report Hughes is the author of this unusual tale of mother love. He has sought to present a cross-section of a universal theme as applied to an American family. All the joys and sorrows connected with raising a family have been dramatized. Each of the children grew to manhood or womanhood with his own individual interests, then leaves the old nest to follow the call of his desires. Only their mother is left in her loneliness and her memories. But, as in every American family, the young remember the old nest and return to it.

The picture was produced by Goldwyn and was directed by Reginald Barker. Mary Alden plays the old mother, and her performance has been said to be a masterpiece of screen acting.

Original Meaning of "School." While a school is now a place of industry, it was not always thus. In fact, the word itself is derived from the Greek "schole," meaning leisure. Probably this arose from the fact that only people with leisure were able to attend school.

Some Aspects of the Farmers' Problems

By BERNARD M. BARUCH

(Reprinted from Atlantic Monthly)

The whole rural world is in a ferment of unrest, and there is an unparalleled volume and intensity of determined, if not angry, protest, and an ominous swarming of occupational conferences, interest groupings, political movements and propaganda. Such a turmoil cannot but arrest our attention. Indeed, it demands our careful study and examination. It is not likely that six million aloof and ruggedly independent men have come together and banded themselves into active unions, societies, farm bureaus, and so forth, for no sufficient cause.

Investigation of the subject conclusively proves that, while there is much overstatement of grievances, and mis-consideration of remedies, the farmers are right in complaining of wrongs long endured, and right in holding that it is feasible to relieve their ills with benefit to the rest of the community. This being the case of an industry that contributes, in the raw material form alone, about one-third of the national annual wealth production and is the means of livelihood of about 49 per cent of the population, it is obvious that the subject is one of grave concern. Not only do the farmers make up one-half of the nation, but the well-being of the other half depends upon them.

So long as we have nations, a wise political economy will aim at a large degree of national self-sufficiency and self-containment. Some fell when the food supply was too far removed from the belly. Like her, we shall destroy our own agriculture and extend our sources of food distantly and precariously, if we do not see to it that our farmers are well and fairly paid for their services. The farm gives the nation men as well as food. Cities derive their vitality and are forever renewed from the country, but an impoverished countryside exports intelligence and retains unintelligence. Only the lower grades of mentality and character will remain on, or seek, the farm, unless agriculture is capable of being pursued with contentment and adequate compensation. Hence, to embitter and impoverish the farmer is to dry up and contaminate the vital sources of the nation.

The war showed convincingly how dependent the nation is on the full productivity of the farms. Despite herculean efforts, agricultural production kept only a few weeks or months ahead of consumption, and that only by increasing the acreage of certain staple crops at the cost of reducing that of others. We ought not to forget that lesson when we ponder on the farmer's problems. They are truly common problems and there should be no attempt to deal with them as if they were purely selfish demands of a clear-cut group, antagonistic to the rest of the community. Rather should we consider agriculture in the light of broad national policy, just as we consider oil, coal, steel, dyestuffs, and so forth, as sinews of national strength. Our growing population and a higher standard of living demand increasing food supplies, and more wool, cotton, hides, and the rest. With the disappearance of free or cheap fertile land, additional acreage and increased yields can come only from costly effort. This we need not expect from an impoverished or unhappy rural population.

It will not do to take a narrow view of the rural discontent, or to appraise it from the standpoint of yesterday. This is peculiarly an age of flux and change and new deals. Because a thing always has been so no longer means that it is righteous, or always shall be so. More, perhaps, than ever before, there is a widespread feeling that all human relations can be improved by taking thought, and that it is not becoming for the reasoning animal to leave his destiny largely to chance and natural incidence.

Prudent and orderly adjustment of production and distribution in accordance with consumption is recognized as wise management in every business but that of farming. Yet, I venture to say, there is no other industry in which it is so important to the public—the city-dweller—that production should be sure, steady, and increasing, and that distribution should be in proportion to the need. The unorganized farmers naturally act blindly and impulsively and, in consequence, surfeit and dearth, accompanied by disconcerting price-variations, harass the consumer. One year potatoes rot in the fields because of excess production, and there is a scarcity of the things that have been displaced to make way for the expansion of the potato acreage; next year the punished farmers mass their fields on some other crop, and potatoes enter the class of luxuries; and so on.

Agriculture is the greatest and fundamentally the most important of our American industries. The cities are but the branches of the tree of national life, the roots of which go deeply into the land. We all flourish or decline with the farmer. So, when we of the cities read of the present universal distress of the farmers, of a slump of six billion dollars in the farm value of their crops in a single year, of their inability to meet mortgages or to pay current bills, and how, seeking relief from their ills, they are planning to form pools, inaugurate farmers' strikes and demand legislation abolishing grain exchanges, private cattle markets, and the like, we ought not hastily to brand them as economic heretics and highwaymen, and hurl at them the charge of being seekers of special privilege. Rather, we should ask if their trouble is not ours, and see what can be done to improve the situation. Purely from self-interest, if for no higher motive, we should help them. All of us want to get back permanently to "normalcy;" but is it reasonable to hope for that condition unless our greatest and most basic industry can be put on a sound and solid permanent foundation? The farmers are not entitled to special privileges; but are they not right in demanding that they be placed on an equal footing with the buyers of their products and with other industries?

Let us, then, consider some of the farmer's grievances, and see how far they are real. In doing so, we should remember that, while there have been, and still are, instances of purposeful abuse, the subject should not be approached with any general imputation to existing distributive agencies of deliberately intentional oppression, but rather with the conception that the marketing of farm products has not been modernized.

An ancient evil, and a persistent one, is the undergrading of farm products, with the result that what the farmers sell as of one quality is resold as of a higher. That this sort of chicanery should persist on any important scale in these days of business integrity would seem almost incredible, but there is much evidence that it does so persist. Even as I write, the newspapers announce the suspension of several firms from the New York Produce Exchange for exporting to Germany as No. 2 wheat a whole shipload of grossly inferior wheat mixed with oats, chaff and the like.

Another evil is that of inaccurate weighing of farm products, which, it is charged, is sometimes a matter of dishonest intention and sometimes of protective policy on the part of the local buyer, who fears that he may "weigh out" more than he "weighs in."

A greater grievance is that at present the field farmer has little or no control over the time and conditions of marketing his products, with the result that he is often underpaid for his products and usually overcharged for marketing service. The difference between what the farmer receives and what the consumer pays often exceeds all possibility of justification. To cite a single illustration. Last year, according to figures attested by the railroads and the growers, Georgia watermelon-raisers received on the average 7.5 cents for a melon, the railroads got 12.7 cents for carrying it to Baltimore and the consumer paid one dollar, leaving 79.8 cents for the service of marketing and its risks, as against 20.2 cents for growing and transporting. The hard annals of farm-life are replete with such commentaries on the crudeness of present practices.

Nature prescribes that the farmer's "goods" must be finished within two or three months of the year, while financial and storage limitations generally compel him to sell them at the same time. As a rule, other industries are in a continuous process of finishing goods for the markets; they distribute as they produce, and they can curtail production without too great injury to themselves or the community; but if the farmer restricts his output, it is with disastrous consequences, both to himself and to the community.

The average farmer is busy with production for the major part of the year, and has nothing to sell. The bulk of his output comes on the market at once. Because of lack of storage facilities and of financial support, the farmer cannot carry his goods through the year and dispose of them as they are currently needed. In the great majority of cases, farmers have to entrust storage—in warehouses and elevators—and the financial carrying of their products to others.

Farm products are generally marketed at a time when there is a congestion of both transportation and finance—when cars and money are scarce. The outcome, in many instances, is that the farmers not only sell under pressure, and therefore at a disadvantage, but are compelled to take further reductions in net returns, in order to meet the charges for the service of storing, transporting, financing, and ultimate marketing—which charges they claim, are often excessive, bear heavily on both consumer and producer, and are under the control of those performing the services. It is true that they are relieved of the risks of a changing market by selling at once; but they are quite wit-

Sleeping Chamber Considerably Less "Stuffy" After George Had Broken That Window.

Two motorists arrived late one night at the village inn, engaged a room, and went straight to bed. After the light had been blown out they discovered that the room was so stuffy that neither of them could sleep.

"Where are the matches?" growled Cuthbert. "There ain't any!" groaned Clarence. "Well, I'm going to open the window, anyhow."

Barking his shins as he went, the courageous Cuthbert reached his goal and tugged at the window-pane.

"Can't open the rotten thing now I've got here!" he panted.

"Break it, then!" grunted Clarence.

Crash! The tinkling sound of falling glass filled the room as Cuthbert hit the window with his boot.

"That's better!" he said, as he pulled the clothes over his head.

"Rather!" answered Clarence. "A fellow can't sleep without proper ventilation!"

When they awoke the next morning they were surprised to find the window untouched, but the glass door of a big bookcase was smashed to pieces.—London Tit-Bits.

AIDS STUDY OF GEOGRAPHY

Device That Holds the Attention of Small Scholars and Is by No Means All Toy.

Ellen Hendry of Fresno, Cal., has newly patented what she calls an "inflatable globe," for instruction in geography.

It is a small balloon of rubber, contained in an outer envelope of linen or other suitable fabric, the latter being made of two pieces resembling in form those made of a baseball cover and stitched together.

The deflated balloon is inserted into this envelope through a slit in the latter, and is then blown up with the breath, the air being prevented from escape by twisting a button, which, in connection with a second button surrounding the balloon-neck, serves the purpose of a valve.

The air pressure inside the balloon holds the two buttons together, thus, with the help of the twist, makes the balloon perfectly air-tight. The above-mentioned slit is laced up, and the result is a sphere suitable for geographical study, inasmuch as a map of the world is printed on the envelope in colors.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Queer Matrimonial Alliance.

Dan Merrill of Chelsea, Mass., ninety-two years of age has received a license to marry for the third time. His bride is sixty-four years old. A correspondent tells that two brothers came to a small town in Newfoundland to work. In course of time they met two sisters and married them. The curious part of the incident is that about one hour before the wedding was to take place, the brothers arranged to change wives, the ladies consented and the wedding took place with the change.

In Alphabetical Rotation.

"We have in our midst three children whose initials are, or begin with E. C. D. and E. Bert, Clinton and Eileen," says a subscriber in Lunenburg, N. S. "Bert was born on his aunt's birthday—his mother's sister, ninth of June. Eileen was born on her grandmother's birthday—her father's mother, tenth of June. Clinton was born on his little uncle's birthday—father's brother, 11th of June."—Exchange.

Remarkable Kitten.

A kitten was born in Nova Scotia, with three eyes and two mouths. Every time it would "meow" both mouths opened simultaneously. It lived only two weeks and is now preserved in alcohol.

Cow's Peculiar Accident.

A valuable cow belonging to a man in Weybridge, Vt., broke her neck by getting her foot entangled in her horns.

Who Gets Your Hand-bills?

—You pay out good money for a lot of paper stock, and more good money to have your message printed on it.

—Then comes the problem of reaching your prospects. Mailing out circulars is expensive and they usually reach the waste basket without even being opened at that.

—The next best way is to give Willie or Jimmie half a dollar and an armful of circulars with strict orders to shove one under every door in town.

—Willie (or Jimmie) does nobly until the temper come along to inform him "they're bitin' swell down to Skinner's Creek" and your precious circulars are delivered in one expensive bunch—into some ash barrel!

—The same amount of money invested in newspaper space would bring better and surer results.

—It is the only medium through which you can really reach the people of this community. Going into almost every home and being read by an average of four people to each family, you can readily see the value of newspaper space in reaching the greatest number of prospective customers.

—Advertise in this newspaper and reach the nine out of every ten who do not read or receive your handbills.

—Have your advertising manager call and show you what a sure result-bringer our newspaper is.

But Say—

—If you think we don't know what we are talking about and you believe handbills are the stuff—just call us—we print them—all sizes and at prices that please.

Poultry School

The first "Poultry Special" exhibit car ever run in Texas will be handled over the entire Denver System including the Wichita Valley railroad starting January 16th. This car is run in co-operation with all the counties along the line which are making local arrangements for holding a One Day Poultry School. Each county is arranging for a school and wonderful interest is being shown in every county. It will be the biggest Agricultural event ever held in any county. And Haskell County can make it as big as they want to.

The A. & M. College Extension Service is the third link in the chain of co-operation. They will place a splendid poultry exhibit of an educational nature in the car, and will furnish two poultry Specialists as speakers for the Poultry School.

The exhibits which the College Extension Service prepares will consist of a few of the common breeds, some baby chicks, incubators, brooders, model houses, a model of a poultry farm, egg testers, trap nests, feed hoppers, etc.

A meeting will be held at Haskell, Friday February 3rd, in the forenoon at the Courthouse. In the afternoon the Poultry Special will be open from 1:30 to 4:30. The Poultry Specialist will be there to show you through and answer questions.

Premiums will be given by R. C. Montgomery of the Farmers State Bank of Haskell in three prizes as follows: $3.00 for the best dozen eggs; $2.00 for the second best, and $1.00 for the third best. The egg show is arousing a great deal of interest. Bring in your eggs and have them tested free, and learn what your hens are doing. Come early and remember the date—February 3, 1922.

Indigestion

Many persons, otherwise vigorous and healthy, are bothered occasionally with indigestion. The effects of a disordered stomach on the system are dangerous, and prompt treatment of indigestion is important. "The only medicine I have needed has been something to aid digestion and clean the liver," writes Mr. Fred Ashby, a McKinney, Texas, farmer. "My medicine is for indigestion and stomach trouble of any kind. I have never found anything that touches the spot, like Black-D Raught. I take it in broken doses after meals. For a long time I tried pills, which griped and didn't give the good results. Black-D Raught liver medicine is easy to take, easy to keep, inexpensive.

Your Own Home

The revolt against rent-paying is growing. There is a wide-spread revival of the ideals of the early American settlers when every family owned the roof over its head.

The country is now beginning what is probably the greatest home-building movement in the history of the world.
