By Thomas R. Nichols The ink was hardly dry on last week's paper when a very special person to me popped the question, "Well, have you learned how to cook beans yet?" Not wanting this person to loose any respect for me, I hurriedly responded, "Oh, I know how to cook beans! It's just that the pot wasn't seasoned properly!'

Last Saturday morning at the Kiwanis Club meeting, I asked the officers pose for a picture, and I heard someone say 'I bet he can't take pictures, he can't even cook

A couple of hours later that same day, Richard Nance and myself sat with a couple of chicken fried steaks preparing ourselves for the hay meadow at a local business, when this outstanding gentleman in the community walked up, looked me right in the eye and said, "It's a shame to ruin a good pot of beans!" The only reply I could muster was, "Yes, it really is but you know, I think that armadillo did eat some of those beans!'

His reply was, "He probably did. I was up that way last week, and I heard an armadillo go rattling by, I thought he had been eating marbles, but I bet it was those beans!"

I knew by then my reputation was in the balance.

My long-standing friend, Dicky King, said the other night that his five-year old daughter didn't want to go to school anymore after only three days of exposure to that new way of life. I have decided it's not the school she doesn't like, it's because she is ashamed of Daddy Dicky and Uncle Thomas, whom thousands of people have read in the newspaper, how the bumbling fools can't even cook beans!

Folks, I plead our case. Those beans were as black as a tractor tire, but not burned. The cast iron pot, our wives sent us to Oklahoma with, had not been used in quite some time.

Dicky and myself cleaned the thing out with a wire wheel on the end of an electric drill.

This woman I married, put a little cooking oil in it, put it on the kitchen range for fifteen minutes, and sent us packing off to Oklahoma with two little kids, whom I might add, need to be looked after, to cook a nice pot of beans for supper. Our first mistake was when we stopped over at Fulbright on our way to Oklahoma, and didn't stay for a while longer. Dicky's mom was cooking beans that very afternoon!

If we had just staved around there until her beans were cooked off, scooped up enough for our supper, poured them in our pot, we would be heroes today instead of trying to defend our reputation.

The next time, this is what we intend to do. Now, we think we can cook but why take a chance, when nom's or Dicky's mom's beans, we will have a sure thing.

Talco Book Fair Set

Talco Elementary School is holding a book fair at the school from September 22 through September 29.

A wide variety of paperback books for children of all ages, priced from $1 to $6, and parent/teacher books are included in the selection at the fair. The public is invited to attend during regular school hours.

Special evening sale hours will be on September 29 from 7 to 9 p.m. for people who are unable to attend during school hours.

Farmers Defeat Rebels

The Rivercrest Rebels traveled to Farmersville last Friday night looking for their first win of the young season. But instead the Rebels ran into Anthony Craddock, a 195 pound senior fullback, who dashed any hopes the Rebels might have of victory.

Farmersville wasted little time moving 70 yards to take an early 6-0 lead with only two minutes gone from the clock. Anthony Craddock accounted for the bulk of the drive, but the Rebels answered with an impressive drive of their own. The drive started on the Rebel 20-yard line and with a good mixture of passing and running, they pushed the ball to the Farmers' 15-yard line. Then disaster followed as the Rebels lost a fumble to the Farmers. Farmersville mounted two more offensive drives late in the second quarter, but a swarming Rebel defense ended both possesions forcing unsuccessful field goal attempts, thus leaving the score 6-0 at halftime. Both teams opened the third quarter eager to play, but the Farmers proved too much for the smaller Rebels. Farmersville scored quickly in the third quarter on a run by Anthony Craddock. The Rebels were unable to put together a sustained drive in the third quarter but allowed the Farmers one more touchdown in this period.

In the forth quarter, Rivercrest was still unable to generate any offense. but Anthony Craddock continued to pound away at the Rebel Defense. Despite a fine effort by the defensive line and secondary, Craddock gained 225 yards on 20 carries for the

The Rebel offense fared much better this week than last. Sporting a new split-back offense Rivercrest gained 134 yards total offense. Senior wingback Amos Brown acocunted for the bulk of the Rebel rushing attack as he had 82 yards on 16 carries. Quarterback Jimmy Lewis passed for 42 yards, four to split-end Chris Anderson and one to split-end Marvin

The Rebels will be at home Friday night to meet the AAA Mt. Vernon Tigers. Kick off is at 8 p.m. at Rebel of sky blue, lavender and pink held in brass holders of tiering heights adorn-

The refreshment table was covered with a pink cloth overlayed by beige lace. The center arrangement of lavender flowrs and greenery intermingled with a brass tabletop candelabra was mirrored by glass trays. The arrangement was accented by a pair of white ceramic doves and clear glass votive cups which held pink candles and ribbons in the bride-elect's chosen colors.

Cake, frosted punch, nuts and butter mints were served. Appointments were of silver and crystal. Napkins were of light blue, pink and lavender.

Special guests were the bride-tobe's mother, Mrs. Verena Gayler; the prospective groom's mother, Mrs. Pat Smith; his grandmother, Mrs. Luther Price; and the bride-elect's sister, Mrs. Sherry Huddleston.

Out of town guests included Betty Allen, Wanda Cooksey, Carol Hammond, Lucille Lawler, Vicky Mezzacappa, Sharon Price, Pat Rea, Barbara Shelby, Jana Snow and Pam Wood.

Hostesses for the event were Mrs. Shirley Anderson, Joan Barnett, Marilyn Garretson, Barbara Ward and Leilani Ward.

Many lovely and useful gifts were displayed throughout the house.

Why Weatherstrip Your Home?

Keeping your home comfortable throughout the winter months can be costly, especially when heated air inside is lost through the seams around your doors and windows.

You can prevent such heat loss by weatherstripping. Found at your local hardware store, weatherstripping materials are inexpensive. You can easily install weatherstripping in only a matter of minutes. Stop by our office for a free brochure on weatherstripping. Sealing your home from heat losses will help make your home more comfortable. We're here to help with more information on energy management. Call our office today.

Area Resident Recalls Life In War Torn Germany

Crystal Maria Elizabeth Weinert Mayfield became a United States citizen in 1964 by naturalization.

Lisa, as she's called by family and friends here in the states, was born in Berlin in 1939. Although she speaks with affection for her native land, when asked about her allegiance she quickly replies, "I'm a genuine Southerner and Texan from the good

Lisa recalls with sometimes painful clarity, the rise of Hitler's power and her life in Germany during World

At age four, she remembers walking through the market place in Berlin with her mother and seeing three people hanged there with a sign over them which read "Punishment for speaking against your Fuhrer."

In the years that followed, she recalls the scarcity of food and standing in long lines in freezing weather for hours to receive her family's rations only to be turned away because the store had run out of supplies. Even friends could not be trusted during this time. There was always the possibility that anything said against Hitler would be reported.

Lisa's father, Carl Weinert, was serving as Master Sergeant in the German Infantry assigned to the Russian front. He refused to become an officer for the Nazi force. Lisa's mother took great risks by warning her children about the evils of Hitler and the Third Reich. She also risked her life and that of her family's by hiding and feeding many of the persecuted Jews.

Bomb raids and enemy attacks were daily happenings and frantic flights to bomb shelters for protection were common for Lisa and her family

On May 9, 1945, Lisa recalls that the Russians marched into Germany. They were told they had nothing to fear from the Russians, however, many of the soliders looted the houses, raped the women, and brought fear and terror to the people. Lisa's grandmother barely escaped being shot by a group of these Communist terrorists when they broke down the door of their house and entered. Lisa's mother was able to slip out and run fo rhelp and the family was spared.

Lisa's father was captured while retreating by the English and was hospitalized because of severe frost bite to his feet. He was treated and allowed to return home in August of 1945 only to be picked up two hours later for interrogation by the Russians. Although he was soon released, he realized what was sure to happen to East Germany due tot he Communist take over, so through contacts with the black market, he planned the exodus of his family. He was able to escape into West Germany with the two older sons and plans were for Mrs. Weinert, Lisa and the younger brother to follow at a later date, however, a neighbor reported to officials that Mr. Weinert and the two boys were missing and a surveillance was placed on the remaining family. The family was separated for seven

Mrs. Weinert developed a severe gall bladder infection and was sent wiht Lisa to West Germany for an operation. The younger brother was kept in East Germany as "insurance" that they would return. While in West Germany, Lisa was able to see the freedom fo the people there and the availability of food and clothing which could not be obtained in East Germany. After returning to East Germany, Lisa was enrolled in the Communist school. One of the Communist teachers began teaching the students that the Americans had destroyed all the crops in West Germany and the people there were staving. Lisa stood and reputed these accusations, relaying the facts about West Germany that she had learned form her visit. She was promptly called to the office and confronted by Russian officials and the German Police. Through efforts of another teacher, whose Jewish wife had been helped by Mrs. Weinert, Lisa was released from the

Realizing the grave danger their lives were in, Mrs. Weinert worked feverishly trying to find a way to get to the other side. Finally, by giving an official some very expensive paintings which she had kept hidden, she was able to secure passports for herself, Lisa and the younger child.

By using these passports, they were able to board the train just three miles from the West German border. Just before the train was to leave, Mrs. Weinert was escorted from the train by Russian officers, tal room next to the train, strip searched. As she was being allowed to get dressed, she heard the train whistle blow in departure. Realizing that the train was leaving with her children on board, she had only enough time to grab her coat, rush from the room and jump the train. She rode the three miles on the outside of the train in freezing rain. At the West German border, American soldiers came aboard and found Mrs. Weinert, her hands frozen to the rails. The first American words her mother recalls hearing in West Germany were those of one of the soliders who said to her, "Did you make it, Baby?"

The family was reunited in West Germany and Lisa lived there until 1956 when she married an American soldier of German descent and came to the United States.

Although most of the memories Lisa has of her life in East Germany are ones of sorrow, she tells her story with no tone of bitterness. In fact, it seems the hardships have had an influence on making her the kind and loving person she is.

Lisa now lives with her husband, Clyde Mayfield, on Highway 910 between Cuthand and Clarksville. She returns to West Germany to visit her family about once every two years. She has four children, Fred Hildebrand of Houston, and Greg Hildebrand, John Haynes and Tina Williams, all of Bogata

Time To Spray Weeds

By Herb Brevard The next 30 days is the time to put a preemerge herbicide application on home lawns to control winter and early spring weeds, says Dr. Sim A. Reeves, Jr., agronomist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. The herbicides, if properly applied, take out winter weeds and help the desired grass spread quicker in the spring by eliminating competition.

Balan, Simazine and Ronstar are examples of the type herbicides which can be used in lawns. Others are also available. These herbicides come in liquid or granular form or may be purchased already mixed in fertilizer. All are effective if used properly.

Most of the approved products can be used around trees or shrubs that have been planted for at least one year. Herbicides should be kept out of flower beds, especially where flowers

Approved preemerge herbicides can be applied to bermudagrass, centipede and St. Augustine grass. The herbicides need to be applied now, especially to centipede and St. Augustine. The reason is that after the weeds come up, chemicals that will kill the weeds will also kill the centipede or St. Augustine. Post emerge herbicides are available for bermudagrass lawns that w and not har bermudagrass.

When using the fertilizer with the preemerge herbicide mixed in, do not double fertilize with the fertilizerherbicide combination. The extra herbicide can damage trees, shrubs and the grass.

Read and follow label directions on both the herbicides and fertilizer and herbicide combinations

Keeping Healthy

Household Bleach Plus Ammonia Toxic Combination

The combination of household bleach with ammonia, two relatively safe cleaning agents when used separately, can cause toxic pneumonitis -severe airways irritation and inflammation. According to Medical Times, two University of Missouri, Kansas City, School of Medicine doctors treated patients who had combined these household chemicals. The patients exposed to the combination of chemicals required hospitalization, needed antibiotics, and suffered from lasting lung function impairment (reduced vital capacity) and shortness of breath.

Whatever happened to old Bob Vinson? For those of you who do not recognize the name, he was the town hobo several years ago. He slept in various old buildings around town and worked at odd jobs for those who would use him. He ate some of his meals at Mrs. Bogie's Cafe, which was located at that time on 271, where Guess Feed Store is now. The meals he ate were usually consisted of chili nd crackers and lots of water to

Bob was a fairly large man and was very shabbily dressed. This was evidently a chosen way of life for him. Often people would buy or give Bob new clothes, but he'd usually discard them for his old tattered ones. Bob was always kind and no one seemed to be afraid of him. I don't ever remember him causing any trouble or bothering anyone.

When he needed money for a meal. he would sometimes come to ourhouse and ask for work at my dad's awmill Daddy would something for him to do. On those days when he worked at the mill. after we had eaten lunch, Daddy would call Bob and feed him. There was never anything left over when he finished. He could consume a great amount of food.

On Sundays, it was common practice for my married sisters and their husbands to all come for Sunday lunch at our house. On one of those Sundays, when we arrived home from church, Bob was there waiting. He a little startled at first, but I think it told my dad he was hungry and asked if he would give him something to eat. My dad invited him in and when thought about this act of kindness by the meal was prepared, Daddy called Bob to the table and sat him at the head of it. Grace was said and the food was passed around. Old Bob ate to his fill that day. The rest of us were made an impression on us all. I know for sure it made one on me. I've my dad a lot through the years. I had always been taught the Golden Rule, but this was the rule in action. There's an old saying that I've found to be true, "Actions speak louder than

Bob left Bogata after a few years. Many have reported seeing him in different places from time to time, still living the way he likes--as a hobo.
