Why do the PETA people think they have the right to impose THEIR way of thinking on everyone else...and the animal population too?

Who is PETA and why am I writing about them? PETA stands for "People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals". They are, I think, "Humaneiacs", totally devoted to an irrational cause.

I've written before about them trying to turn the world into vegetarians. This past weekend, at a cat show, I talked with several cat owners who tell me that these PETA people have begun campaigns to prevent people from OWNING animals! They say no one has the right to own an animal. They expound, lengthily, on the subject of animals "living in their natural state" instead of being kept by humans.

To begin with, I hope no one ever tells my six cats and three dogs that they are owned by us...they are convinced that THEY own US! They are comfortable, well-fed, receive excellent medical care and allow us, occasionally, to sit in their favorite chairs.

Secondly, have these nuts ever seen what animals can go through in their natural state?

Wild cats with sores, ribs showing, infected with worms and desperately fighting to stay alive don't seem to me to be so very happy. The poor things would probably gladly trade their life for the life of a pampered show cat, dining on steak, flealess, wormless and cuddled and loved constantly!

Dogs? Have these PETA people ever seen dogs trying to live in their natural state? Ribs sticking out, coats ragged and burr filled, the poor things don't exist for long unless they join a pack. And a pack of wild dogs is a danger both to themselvers, other animals and even humans!

Cows, horses, pigs, chickens, turkeys, ducks, rabbits and guinea pigs....without serving a purpose, either as food or as a pet, they wouldn't exist for very long. Could herds of wild cattle exist roaming the highways and byways of the nation? Couldflocks of wild chickens exist in a natural state? I don't think so.

What really disturbs me about these vocal, violent PETA people is that they really DON'T seem to love animals.

At this cat show they had threatened to turn all the cats loose! Why would they think that these animals would be better off running terror-stricken through traffic than safe with their loving owners?

No, I don't think they do it for the sake of animals. I think they do it because they can..because they want to force their views on others.

If they are so very keen on living things going back to a natural state why don't they just go out in the woods, live in a hut, hunt with their bare hands and munch on roots and berries. Oh, that's right, they are vegetarians....they won't be able to hunt for meat. Hmmmmmm, sure hope their are lots and lots of roots and berries for em! Otherwise they are going to be very, very hungry.

Paris Social Seculrity Office Hiring Household Help? Don't forget your Social Security obligations.

In millions of families, both the husband and wife now hold full-time jobs. Many of these families are hiring household workers to help them care for pre-school-age children, or to keep up with daily household chores.

What these increasingly typical American families may not know is that when they hire household help, they are probably required to pay Social Security taxes for the person they employ.

"Family 'employers' may not even realize that they are employers," says Social Security Commissioner Gwendolyn S. King. "And even those who are aware of that fact may not know that their household workers are sacrificing valuable Social Security protection when Social Security taxes aren't paid and when the employee's wages aren't reported to Social Security. These workers could lose their eligibility for survivors, disability, retirement, and Medicare benefits-the entire Social Security coverage package.

How does a family who hires household help know if they are considered an "employer" under the Generally, if an employer pays a household worker $50 or more during a three- month period, that employer must also deduct Social Security taxes and report the wages to both Social Security and the Internal Revenue Service.

Also, people who hire a housecleaning firm should check to make sure that the company is meeting it's responsibilities of paying Social Security taxes for their employees. A call to any Social Security office or to the Internal Revenue Service can clarify individual situations. Why is the issue of coverage so important for domestic workers?

All Social Security benefits are based on a combination of how long an individual works and the amount of wages reported for him or her by each employer. Even part-time, seasonal or temporary work can increase the future benefit amount for workers and their families.

It also may provide current insurance against loss of income if the family breadwinner is disabled or dies before retiring.

Social Security officials note that household workers should make sure that they are getting proper credit for work and that Social Security taxes are paid on their behalf. They can check their wage records regularly by asking the Social Security Administration to provide a free Personaal Earnings and Benefit Estimate Statement that shows year-by-year figures of the actual wages reported to the agency by employers since

HEAT or ICE? How To Treat Those Aches & Pains

(First In A Series)

A question I encounter often as a physical therapist is whether it is more effective to use ice or heat in the home treatment of everyday aches and pains. The answer is that both are effective if used at th proper time. Since most injuries such as sprains, bruises and pulled muscles cause localized bleeding, ice is the treatment of choice immediately following the injury. Application of ice to an area effectively slows blood flow, resulting in less bleeding an swelling of the area. By controlling bleeding and swelling, an individual's recovery time is decreased significantly. In addition, ice is an effective way of decreasing pain, without the use of medication. If symptoms of pain, swelling or loss of function persist, you should contact your physician promptly.
