

Let us prove that you can make 150 per cent more profit from Acala Cotton.

Acala Cotton does net the grower a much greater percent of profit

Figure this for yourself: Say that cotton is selling on the market for ten cents per pound—you will receive $50.00 per bale, take from this amount $15.00 (which is very conservative) for producing a bale, 25 per cent or $12.50 for picking, another fourth or $12.50 for rent—this will leave you ten dollars per bale profit.

Acala Cotton

On the same market should bring you an average premium of 4c per pound more, which means $70.00 per bale—deduct $15.00 for making crop—$12.50 for picking—and a fourth or $17.50 for rent; this leaves you $25.00 profit per bale instead of $10 which means that you will make 150 per cent more profit by growing Acala Cotton.

The following report was made by a committee of eight farmers and business men, sent by the banks and business men of Mebank, Texas, to make a thorough investigation of Acala Cotton:

Committee Well Pleased

The committee returned home thoroughly convinced that Acala cotton was a great thing; that its planting in the Mebank territory would pay a big bonus to those who planted it. Of course those who prefer to plant the old short staple cotton and sell it at bankruptcy prices, have that privilege; but the man who is abreast of the times and realizes his own welfare cannot fail to grasp this opportunity.

Committee Report

To the Farmers of Mebank:
We, your committee selected to investigate the adaptability of the Acala cotton for our territory, made the trip to Waxahachie and Italy, Texas, and made a thorough and impartial investigation of all matters pertaining to the growth, yield and marketing of Acala cotton. We interviewed both interested and disinterested parties of all classes—planters, pickers, buyers, ginners, merchants, bankers and professional men, and found them unanimously enthusiastic in favor of the Acala cotton. We here summarize our findings in the following ten points of merit:

1. It is an early maturing cotton.
2. The stalks are short limbed, allowing s in penetration.
3. It produces about the same seed cotton as Rowden and Mebane.
4. It is a storm proof cotton.
5. It picks as easily as Rowden and other standard cottons.
6. The turn-out is about 32 to 38 per cent.
7. The staple is from 1 1-16 to 1 1-4 inches.
8. The fiber is tougher than other cotton and has a good drag.
9. Because of the strength and length of its fiber it brings about $40 per bale more than other cottons on the same market.
10. The seed also brings a very attractive premium.

We will plant this cotton on our farms next year, and heartily recommend to our friends and neighbors that they do so. We believe that if a certain acreage can be had here next year it will be mutually beneficial to us all, and will ultimately take our market out from under the black list brought about by the planting of half-and-half and other short staple cottons in our vicinity.

Signed: Committee.

STOP—Mr. Cotton Grower and consider these facts—then think whether or not you are doing justice to yourself, and others in whom you are concerned. Are you not entitled to double the profit on your cotton the same as your neighbor? If so, look these facts straight in the face—admit that you have lost dollar upon dollar by not growing COTTON, and promise yourself that in the future you will plant the cotton that will make you "more dollars per acre."

The object of this ad is more to help the farmer and Haskell Cotton Market than to sell you seed at a profit—seed are scarce and are high and I could not buy the seed I am selling at the price I am selling them for—I want to put these seed out in Haskell County, because I think they are the best for our country. If you have your own seed, I will take them in exchange, or if you have a good place I will try and arrange for every good farmer to get some of these seed.

Without Being Out All Cash

We have a good season now

Plant this cotton early and you will be marketing lots of cotton in August and Sept.

STRONG IN BODY

Men of Genius by No Means an Unhealthy Lot.

Lives of Many of the World's Greatest Men Show That Mental Power and Strength Go Together.

The popular idea that geniuses are usually physical weaklings or men of poor health is vigorously combated by Prof. Rudolph M. Binder of New York University. As a matter of fact, says Professor Binder, according to the New York Sun, it is only because there has been so much comment about the comparatively few physical weaklings who were geniuses that the tradition has grown that exceptional mental power and bodily weakness are related conditions.

Declaring his belief that there is no weakling genius who would not have been a greater one had he been of sound body, Professor Binder points out that most of the world's greatest geniuses were not only healthy, but often of more than ordinary physical strength.

"Illustrations of this could be extended indefinitely," said Professor Binder, "but it is necessary to mention only a few shining examples down the ages. Let's begin with Socrates. The great philosopher served as a hoplite, which means that he was a member of what we in modern terms would designate as shock troops. He was seventy years old when he was condemned to drink the hemlock.

"Coming down many centuries, Sir Isaac Newton lived to be eighty-five, and was strong and healthy and a hard worker till within a short time of his death. Darwin was born with a rugged constitution, which he ruined by his failure to care for it, but it enabled him to accomplish a remarkable amount of work before he died at the age of seventy-three.

"If proof were needed that Herbert Spencer was born with an iron constitution it would be provided by that incident of his boyhood when at the age of thirteen he walked 48 miles one day, 47 the second and 29 the third, and with very little food during the three days. Spencer is another man who injured his health by the lack of care of himself, but if he had not been naturally strong he would not have lived to be eighty-three.

"Even Shakespeare who died at fifty-two, might be said to have lived a good life considering the amount of work he did as playwright, actor and manager. Goethe, an exceedingly busy man, was in good health almost to the time of his death at eighty-three.

"Of the four probably most famous Italians Dante lived to be only fifty-eight, but his life was one of arduous labor; Leonardo da Vinci, an athlete who outstripped far younger men in feats of strength, was nearly sixty-seven; Michelangelo worked furiously most of his life, and Galileo enjoyed good health till his death at seventy-eight.

"It was because the population as a whole was strong in body that Athens produced such a remarkable number of geniuses in the days of its glory, and if we want to increase the number of geniuses in the world today the way to accomplish it is to improve the health of all the people."

Flowers Unfold in Four Series.

A flower is usually made up of four different kinds of parts, arranged in circles, or whorls, one within the other. Outermost are the sepals, making up the calyx; they are usually firm and green. They protect the bud and steady the opened flower. Next comes the petals, making up the corolla; they are usually delicate and colored, often fragrant and often making nectar; they thus attract insect visitors, and they are also useful in protecting the even more important parts further in.

The third whorl consists of the red-like stamens, whose heads or anthers make the golden yellow fertilizing dust or pollen. The innermost parts of the fourth tier are the carpels, which bear microscopic egg cells, each of which, if fertilized, will develop into an embryo plant; or, to put it in another way, the carpels bear possible seeds or ovules, which become real seeds when the fertilizing golden dust penetrates into them.

How Rodents Spent Nights.

Spying on the night habits of mice and other small rodents is now occupying the attention of Vernon Bailey of the biological survey of the Department of Agriculture.

He lets some of them sleep on a sleeping porch and flashes a light on them at various times. Others spend the evening with him in the library. Another lot he has placed in a room at outdoor temperature so that he can find out how they hibernate for the winter.

Mr. Bailey is observing a bat in addition to 15 different kinds of rodents that he captured alive in Arizona last spring, and he also is studying his beavers that live at the National Zoological park.

THE NEW FAMILY

By JULIA A. ROBINSON

The little village of Dunbar was filled with excitement. A new family was to move into the place, a rare event for that remote country town.

The Coney farm, as it was called, had long been vacant, and run-down. Now a new owner was coming, and interest ran high.

"His name's Jenkins," Mrs. Jones informed her neighbors. She had been making inquiries about the expected newcomers. "They've been living down in the city. He's got a wife but she's slim, and five children."

All were eager to see the new family arrive. Some of the women even went down to the small flag station.

The whistle sounded, the train came to a stop, and the new family alighted, all of them. A trunk, well strapped, was set down on the platform, a hoe and a buggy.

"He's got a buggy," whispered Mrs. True. "Ain't it fine? The rest of the things must be coming later."

Mr. Jenkins looked about on his new neighbors, a broad smile on his face that won their hearts. He seemed a jolly sort of man, good-natured.

"Any of you got a horse I can borrow?" he asked. "My wife here ain't able to walk. My buggy came, but I need a horse."

"You're welcome to take one o' ours," quickly responded Mrs. Choomb.

Mrs. Choomb soon returned. Mr. Jenkins, with thanks, harnessed the horse to his buggy, piled his family in and drove off.

Mrs. Bates, who lived nearest to the Coney farm, was preparing her supper when there came a knock at the door. There stood one of the Jenkins children.

"Dad says, 'could you lend him a bit of wood?' she asked, 'an' 'an. she wants a saucepan and a little flour."

"To be sure, dear!" responded Mrs. Bates.

In the morning another child came with the request: "Could you lend me a loaf of bread and a few potatoes, and Dad, he wants a shovel."

After a few days the neighbors began to talk among themselves.

"It's about time them things of theirs came, I say," observed Mrs. Jones. "The things they've borrowed o' me and hadn't never returned, I couldn't tell you."

"Why, I thought I was the only one who lent 'em things!" cried Mrs. Brown.

"The only one? Not much!" cried several voices. "I'm lendin' 'em things every day."

"Me, too," echoed Mrs. Gibbs. "They have borrowed my washboard and soap, baking tins, plates, even, and they never return a thing 'till I go after it. Not always then, especially if it's something to eat. I'm 'bout tired of it."

"He's borrowed my husband's shovel, his oxen and plough. Dan said he really couldn't refuse a newcomer, but he needed them himself," said another.

"It's too exasperating, but what can we do?" asked Mrs. Brown.

They talked the matter over for days. At last they decided on a plan they thought must be effectual to work a cure in the new family. Mrs. Jones was the first one to put it into effect.

Mary Jenkins came over, as usual and asked: "Can you lend Ma six eggs and a cup of sugar and a little butter? She's making a cake."

"Certainly," beamed Mrs. Jones, bringing the desired articles.

In half an hour the child came back. "These eggs are all rotten; Ma can't use 'em," she complained, "and the sugar's got sand in it, and the butter don't taste good."

"Sorry!" exclaimed Mrs. Jones. "Those eggs were all I had. I remember, the sugar got spilled an' the boys scraped it up. Spos' they scooped up a bit o' sand with it. Can't be helped now. Ask your ma to please excuse it this time."

The scheme was working well with Mrs. Jenkins, but how were the men to manage Mr. Jenkins? That was a more difficult matter and far more serious.

"Good morning, Neighbor Jones," Mr. Jenkins accosted with his usual smile. "Just lend me your harrow, I've gotter go over my land."

It hurt Mr. Jones to take the screws from his new harrow, for he knew it would fall to pieces, and it would take a good day to repair it, but for the sake of the cause he did it.

In short measure Mr. Jenkins came back, not smiling this time.

"What's the matter with the old thing?" he blurted.

"Why—why—it's broken!" cried Mr. Jones. "An' 'twas a new one, too. Maybe I can fix it, but 'twill take a lot o' time."

It was the same with everything Jenkins tried to do. Everything he borrowed fell to pieces.

It went on for a few days. Nothing that the Jenkins family tried to borrow was in working order. At last they began to understand.

"Mebby we'd better go an' buy a few things for ourselves," said Mr. Jenkins to his wife. "Folks seem to be tired o' lendin'."

"Ain't that what I told you?" rejoined his wife. "You just go to town an' buy in a stock o' things, an' we'll give 'em back everything they've ever lent us. Now go!"

"Guess we've cured 'em of the borrowin' habit, all right!" chuckled Mrs. Jones, and the rest laughed.

Magazine Club Notes

An excellent program on Community Clubs, was given the members of the Magazine Club on Friday afternoon, March 31st, with Prof. C. C. Minitra as director. In beginning, Mr. Minitra scanned hurriedly the numerous subdivisions under this very important topic, saying that for the length of time given, we would only stress the most important points.

Mrs. J. U. Fields, State Chairman on Citizenship, discussed in a most interesting way, "Training for Citizenship," outlining her program for the year's work.

Miss Minnie Ellis had "Education" using as a basis for her talk "Our Home Schools, their conditions, pupils and teachers," closing with the admonition "Know Your Schools."

Then followed a short quiz on city government, in which Mr. Minitra, and others, brought out some very helpful facts.

Everyone seemed of the opinion that this was one of the very best programs we have had during the Club Year, and a rising vote of thanks was given the director for his assistance.

TELLS OF VISIT TO ZUNI INDIAN SHALAKO FESTIVAL

The Zuni Indians live in the northern part of Apache County, Arizona, and McKinley County, New Mexico. They are rather stout in stature but of pleasing conformation. Occasionally one meets a large, handsome Zuni, as handsome goes among the Indians.

The acting priest is simply clad, wearing a shirt or waist of velvet, fringed with the right shoulder, closely fitting white buckskin cap, very short trousers, new brown moccasins ornamented with silver, and strings of small bells about the legs just below the knees and at the ankles.

We have been blamed for trains being late, poor attendance at church, rotten telephone service, stopped sewers, heavenly showers, and the low price of cotton.

We have been cursed by the citizens because their street was improved, and cursed by others because it wasn't.

We have been blacklisted because we would not let a street carnival come to town and condemned by others because they thought we would.

We have been called a liar until we almost believe it.

We have been widely known as a grand rascal, a scheming peonut politician, a "policy player", a "turncoat", and a stubborn fool who does not know the meaning of the word "diplomacy."

We have been accused of attempting to give the Baptist church a warranted deed to the city's entire assets.

FACT AND FICTION

If a woman's face is a poem it must be a lineless one.

With some men the home-coming kiss is merely a peace-at-any-price offering.

The first sign of a man's acquiring wisdom is his own admission that he is a chump.

Sometimes it only takes a bolt here and there to make a woman's theory a useful invention.

Now that the husband's season is nearly here, the fact is, forget that Congress is in session.

A woman may be pensive when you're courtin' her, but after marriage she soon becomes expansive.

The Bible tells us to love our enemies, but that doesn't mean that you should go back on your friends.

They say that the early bird gets the worm, but we've always wondered why the worm didn't get out so early.

A woman never knows how her husband looks with a three days growth of beard until after she's married to him.

The only revealing feature about the chronic borrower is that he never strikes a man when he's down.

Things have become so dull for Mr. Lloyd George that there is talk of his starting a new party to warm things up.

There is something wrong in the home where parents have trouble in keeping the children at home except at meal time.

If a woman's face is a poem it must be a lineless one.

With some men the home-coming kiss is merely a peace-at-any-price offering.

The first sign of a man's acquiring wisdom is his own admission that he is a chump.

Sometimes it only takes a bolt here and there to make a woman's theory a useful invention.

Now that the husband's season is nearly here, the fact is, forget that Congress is in session.

A woman may be pensive when you're courtin' her, but after marriage she soon becomes expansive.

The Bible tells us to love our enemies, but that doesn't mean that you should go back on your friends.

They say that the early bird gets the worm, but we've always wondered why the worm didn't get out so early.

A woman never knows how her husband looks with a three days growth of beard until after she's married to him.

The only revealing feature about the chronic borrower is that he never strikes a man when he's down.

Things have become so dull for Mr. Lloyd George that there is talk of his starting a new party to warm things up.

There is something wrong in the home where parents have trouble in keeping the children at home except at meal time.

The ceremony commences with the opening of the Shalakos about sundown. They enter town with a prayer and are then assigned to the various Shalakos houses, usually two in each, though often only one. The houses must be new. Certain families early in the season are designated by the priest to build Shalakos houses. This duty is considered a great honor.

The Shalakos enter their respective rooms with prayer, and at the doors are sprinkled with sacred white corn meal. They march to the head of the room on a line of sacred corn meal with short cross lines at intervals of about three feet.

When all who desired had entered the room, the great prayer commenced. This is a Thanksgiving prayer for past favors and an invocation to the Great Spirit for the continuation of seed time and harvest and every favor the Indian needs.

Following the prayer, all are invited to freely partake of the bountiful supper which is spread on the floor of an adjoining room. Large supply dishes holding quantities of mutton stew, baked squash, corn bread, wheat bread, baked Indian fashion, and an abundance of coffee served with sugar are freely offered.

At about eleven o'clock the Shalakos were brought forth with ceremony and assembled near the river where the feathers that had been carried all night by the dancers were buried with ceremony. The Shalakos then ran races, following which, under guard of the priests, they went into the mountains south of the village, supposedly never to return.

Only a few white people were in attendance, but there were large crowds of Indians of many tribes from far and near. It is a wonderful sight to see hundreds of Indians, each wrapped in gay colored novelty designed blankets, intently watching the Shalakos perform all night long.

Ten clowns danced in the clown's house. These men are also called mud heads because they wore mask heads supposedly made of clay with deformed faces. Each was naked save for moccasins, a loin cloth and a sash consisting of an entire deer or coyote skin fastened over the left shoulder by the legs of the skin.

All the dancing was performed to drum and gourd music. The drum was a large earthen jar over the mouth of which was stretched a dry skin. It was beaten in rapid succession, once to each foot motion, with the loop of a green twig or strong wire, while the

Tired
"I was weak and run-down," relates Mrs. Eula Burnett, of Dalton, Ga. "I was thin and just felt tired, all the time. I didn't rest well. I wasn't ever hungry. I knew, by this, I needed a tonic, and as there is none better than—
CARDUI
The Woman's Tonic
... I began using Cardui," continues Mrs. Burnett. "After my first bottle, I slept better and ate better. I took four bottles. Now I'm well, feel just fine, eat and sleep, my skin is clear and I have gained and sure feel that Cardui is the best tonic ever made."
Thousands of other women have found Cardui just as Mrs. Burnett did. It should help you.

PARRISH CHAIRMAN EXPRESSES APPRECIATION
 W. D. Smith, State Chairman of the "Parrish for United States Senate Campaign," in an interview with the press Tuesday, expressed appreciation and gave praise to the press of the state and loyal friends and workers.
 "I am sure all Texas shares in the profound grief and regret that is felt by the loyal friends who inaugurated
 the campaign of Congressman Lucian W. Parrish for the United States Senate in Fort Worth recently, by reason of his untimely death.
 "The fullest appreciation is due his many political followers and loyal friends all over the state who recognized his ability and splendid qualifications to fill the high office to which he aspired. They remained loyal and held the line of his political fences to the very last hour of his life.—hoping against all odds that with his wonderful constitution and heroic courage he would win in the great battle for the life that had been so full of accomplishment for good and promised so much for the future. It is to them that I would express not only my personal appreciation for the assistance they have rendered, but the sincere thanks and gratitude felt by members of Mr.
 Parrish's family as well. He had so many friends, and admirers in Texas whose names and addresses we do not have at headquarters, that it will be impossible to write each one personally, therefore I take this method of reaching them.
 "I can but feebly express our grate-tude to the press of the state which has so generously and unselfishly supported Mr. Parrish and the issues upon which he based his candidacy; also for the beautiful tributes and messages of sympathy that have conveyed to the people of Texas through their generous columns.
 "I have never witnessed the crystallizing of sentiment in favor of any candidate so rapidly as has been the case
 during the past two weeks toward Mr.
 Parrish's candidacy. He exemplified in his candidacy those high ideals of government, political freedom and integrity for which our forefathers laid down their lives. Possessed of a matchless physique, a big brain, broad vision, wholehearted in his devotion to God and the public weal,—a native Texan of whom our great State could justly be proud, he would have made an ideal United States Senator, and had he lived, undoubtedly would have been elected by an overwhelming majority.
 "Very few men accomplish in a lifetime the success and recognition that Lucian W. Parrish had attained at the age of forty-four. He had built up an adequate life-competency for himself and family, and, with signal ability and grim determination, born of true patriotic zeal and a fervent desire to serve the people of his native state in the field where he felt he could be most useful, Mr. Parrish was preparing to devote the remainder of his life, his splendid talents and untiring energy to that end."

WILL CONDUCT BIG EGG LAYING CONTEST
 Plans have been perfected jointly by the Rotan Chamber of Commerce and the Rotan Poultry Breeders Association by which an egg laying contest is to be put on covering all of West Texas.
 A delegation representing the two Rotan organizations went to Stamford and made arrangements to have the West Texas Chamber of Commerce a joint participant in the plans and that organization will lend its whole support to the movement.
 The movement will be open to all persons in West Texas, and persons who live in other states than Texas who desire to participate in the contest may also do so. Already there has been purchase and now enroute to Rotan 10,200 Candee Incubator. Arrangements have been made with the city government of Rotan by which there has been turned over to the promoters of this contest the entire City Hall of Rotan. This City Hall will be used entirely for this egg contest. Immediately adjoining the City Hall arrangements have been perfected by which has been leased to the Rotan Poultry Breeders Association and the other participants a large block of land. On this property there will be erected a modern poultry farm, buildings to be made of concrete. It is likely that interest will be so great in the unique plan of the Rotan people that additional property will have to be acquired.
 B. W. Eaton, former County Democratic Agent for Fisher County, has severed his connection with the Agricultural Experiment work in Texas and has been engaged by the Rotan Poultry Breeders Association to have entire charge of this poultry work.
 At the Fourth Annual Convention of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce to be held at Plainview, May 22nd and 23rd, representatives of the egg laying contest will present their plans in detail to the Convention and will at that time receive applications for entrance in the contest. J. D. Corlin will talk on this plan at the Convention.
 While all of the details connected with the plan have not been shaped up, the plans to date propose that each applicant may enter as many pens as he desires but will have to pay the entrance fee for each pen. A careful record will be kept of each pen and at the close of the contest prizes will be awarded to those who make the best records. The entrance fee will cover the entire cost of feeding and maintaining each pen. The contest will start according to present plans on October 1st, and continue for one year.
 This announcement coming from Rotan at this time is of special significance to West Texas because there has never been a time when there was more general interest in poultry in West Texas than at this time. It is known that several large poultry dressing plants are proposing to erect plants in West Texas and a large plant has recently gone in at Fort Worth. Poultry raising is rapidly coming to the front as the foremost industry in West Texas, and it today rivals the cattle industry in total annual sales. In fact there are many towns in West Texas whose annual poultry turn-over greatly exceeds the sale of live stock.

In Memory
 Early on the morning of September 4, 1920, the spirit of Mrs. Mattie Waggoner, nee Cearley, bade farewell to this earthly habitation and with majestic silence winged its way homeward to the house in mortal, the house not made with hands.
 Her beautiful life was short, too short, indeed, for one so useful, for one so devoted. Only a few months over thirty years had her many friends and loved ones the sweet association of her sunny soul. However, the loss is not a complete one, for, in which ever way one may turn a retrospective gaze, there can be seen numerous rainbow hues sparkling, and dancing along the trails behind, which were associated in any way with her life.
 To sing was one of Mattie's greatest delights. Often as I sit musing over our past association together, the soul stirring melody of "We shall see the King Some Day," comes echoing from the isles of remembrance; for it was she who brought to my notice the significant words, the melodious harmony. To night, in fancy, I hear a refrain coming from the great band of singers, the band of singers that have triumphantly risen with robes of pure white, made white through the great atone-ment. And amid this great jubilee of wonderful choruses, I seem to hear the clear distinct voice of one singer, the voice of our sweet singer who always found pleasure in singing while here.
 To her loved ones, why grieve? Mattie has not died. She has only departed to a more soul satisfying realm. The realm which we, too, hope to attain, and when we shall go, she will be there; there at the golden gate with smiles of gladness and outstretched hands of welcome.

As Host and Hostess
 Courtesy is the universal language that has never been revised. The Arab host in the desert speaks it as readily as the prince in the palace. It is the open mind and the broad vision. It is the sunshine that melts the snows of reserve.
 To our coming guests, the women of the First District of Feccrated Clubs, let us speak this universal language. We often hear it said that it is the little things that count and it is so true. If each of us, in our homes, on the streets, or wherever we come in contact with our guest, remember just to be courteous, polite, kindly, we will indeed prove ourselves to be worthy hosts and hostesses.

 Editor E. B. Harris of the Rule Review was transacting business in the city Tuesday.

HINT TO "SUCCESS SEEKERS"

"Cultivate the Thrifty. You May Need Their Savings," is Advice Given by Humorist.

Honesty and industry are requisite of success in business. The young man who is determined to become very wealthy must therefore cultivate persons who are honest and industrious, writes Don Marquis in the New York Sun. Honest and industrious persons are very apt to believe in the integrity of others, and this makes it far easier for an enterprising young man to do business with them advantageously than if they were self-seeking and suspicious. Profits are always to be derived from honesty and industry, if the thing is managed cleverly.

Thrift cannot be too highly commended. Teach all those with whom you come in contact to be saving. You never know when you may need their savings to finance one of your ventures. Analyze any great fortune and you will find that it is built of small savings.

Sobriety cannot be too highly praised. The staid and sober person is dependable. You can count on him receiving a certain calculable income year in and year out; and if you have enough persons of this sort on your list you are building on a solid foundation; there need be nothing haphazard about your methods.

Steadily, so many hours a day, a reliable, specified number of sober methodical persons are piling up for you each his modest proportion of increment, and at stated seasons it becomes yours, just as the apiary gathers a proportion of the honey from the hives. The wastrel may have money at times, and it is usually easy to get it away from him when he has it; but he is not dependable; there will always be occasions when others will get to him first.

Build your own list, and make your relations with the persons on it permanent. It is better in any event never to associate with wastrels. They are not moral persons, and you must become known as a man with moral associations. This is a great help in business.

Diamond Cut Diamond.

William J. Burns, seated at his desk in his Washington office, said during an interview:

"Sometimes, again, we oppose guile with guile. We out-Herod Herod. For example:

"A doctor was visited by a man and a boy. The man said:

"Doctor, this here's my son. His school teacher gave him a whack on the ear yesterday what ruined his hearing. Just write me out a paper, will you, so as I can claim damages?"

"The doctor saw at a glance that he had a case of fraud before him. He tried all kinds of noises on the boy, but nothing would make the well-coached youngster hear him. So finally he looked into the injured ear with a little mirror, saying at the same time in a whisper to his assistant:

"Dear me, it's as I thought. The whole organ seems to be destroyed. I can't see very well inside though. Hand me that large knife, please, so that I can cut the outer ear off."

"With a yell like a Comanche Indian the boy dashed out of the room, and that was the end of the case against the school teacher."

Cow Moose Skifful Boxer.

In the northern and western forest regions of Canada the snow piles deep throughout the winter. In these forests roams the king of the deer family, the moose. To combat the high-piling drifts, the animals gather in little bands of from three to a dozen head and trample down the snow over certain limited areas. Thus, when the snow lies all around them, from three to eight feet deep, the moose have a small stretch of country packed hard, so they can get around easily to browse off the surrounding trees.

From these "yards," as they are called, the moose are at times driven by wolves or by dogs and men. The animal flounders through the deep snow till it is exhausted, and then proves an easy prey to its pursuers. Though she has no horns, the cow moose possesses dangerous weapons in her two forefeet, which can strike forward with the skill of a boxer and deliver most telling blows.

Stops Planes Cotton Waste.

Cotton waste, which has long been used in cleaning all kinds of machinery, has been banned in the workshops of the Canadian air service. When airplane engines are overhauled and waste is used, the engines have often stopped when they were afterward placed in service.

"These cases have appeared to be due not to waste being accidentally left in the engine parts, but to an accumulation of small pieces of cotton thread that had been left on engine parts after cleaning with waste," says Lieut. Col. E. W. Stedman, director, technical section, Air Board. He urges that commercial companies also prohibit such use of waste.—By Science Service.

London's Literary Nights.

Literary evening institutes have been established by the London county council for persons older than eighteen years of age. These institutes do not undertake any vocational training, but give courses in such subjects as music, including country dances and folk songs; astronomy, biology, horticulture, history, languages, art and modern English literature. The schools are conducted on the co-operative plan, and they carry out the ideas and suggestions of students. Educational visits to places of interest are on the program.

AS THE MODE DICTATES

Scattered among many new acquaintances in spring suits we meet with pleasure some tried, old friends. In suits of navy polart twill, trimmed with braid and buttons. Here is one of them, living up to the dictates of the mode as to silhouette, length of coat and skirt and gaining new interest by virtue of a novel trimming of loose straps made of the material. Bands of silk braid about the waist, pass under these straps and six ball buttons serve to fasten and adorn the coat.

WHAT SHE FOUND

By NETTIE S. FANNING

Two days before the midwinter banquet of the Greenville Literary society, Mrs. Fleming was finishing the delicate gown which she had planned to wear on that occasion. It was before the time of backless bodices and she was afraid she had been almost too daring in planning that kind of a gown when most of the ladies would wear a "V" neck, and their long-sleeved "buntings" would probably show through their chiffon or crepe de chine sleeves.

Although not fashionable as to clothes, the club was very exclusive, and so old that its charter members had grown white-haired or bald-headed, according to their respective sex. It was composed of doctors, lawyers, ministers and their wives, school-teachers of varying ages and a few others. Mrs. Fleming was one of the others. There were two bachelors, Mr. Black and Mr. Tilden, the always immaculate principal of the grammar school, thirty-five, pink-cheeked and six feet two.

Young Mrs. Fleming sighed as she sewed. She wished she could do something to wake up the club. They were too snug and complacent. They had had the same president for 15 years.

A telephone call interrupted Mrs. Fleming's musings. It was the chairman of the banquet committee, who said that Mrs. Worden would be unable to be at the banquet and would Mrs. Fleming please fill in her place on the program.

Mrs. Fleming promised to see what she could do, put on her things and started for the library. On her way she met Miss Davids, a club member, and stopped to chat with her. As they parted a few torn scraps of paper slipped unnoticed from Miss Davids' notebook and fell at Mrs. Fleming's feet. She looked down at them, then picked them up, tucked them into her purse and hastily turned toward home, where she spent some time in neatly patching the pieces together, picture puzzle fashion.

Two nights later the banquet progressed from fruit cocktails to demitasse. Then the tables were cleared and speeches were in order.

When Mrs. Fleming was called on she arose, looked steadily at Mr. Tilden until he blushed, then unfolded a disreputable looking paper, laid it on the table face down and began gravely:

"Two days ago I started for the library to search for something to read tonight, little thinking that I would soon be unravelling a baffling mystery concerning three of our prominent club members. To say that I have been alternately interested, curious, astonished and shocked at what I have learned, faintly expressed my emotions. Before reaching the library I stopped to chat a moment with Miss Davids. After we parted I noticed some bits of paper on the walk. They must have fallen from her notebook as we were talking. On one of the pieces I saw the words, 'exceedingly shocking.'"

Miss Davids' face showed blank amazement.

Mrs. Fleming continued: "Now, anything shocking is apt to be interesting, particularly if it concerns those with whom one is well acquainted."

Several people stirred uneasily in their seats.

"It chanced that other bits of paper had fallen, with the writing up. After a hasty glance I simply had to know what it all meant, and gathered up the papers. You will begin to understand why I did this when I repeat to you the words I saw in the order in which I first saw them on the ground. 'EXCEEDINGLY SHOCKING—TILDEN—ROCKING—MISS PENNY—OPENWORKED STOCKING—MISS ROSS—SAD.'"

Her audience was now listening breathlessly, and consternation showed in the faces of the two middle-aged school-teachers mentioned. Mrs. Fleming went on:

"There were other scraps with words on them. After gathering them up I at once returned home and spent the afternoon in piecing them together."

She looked soberly at the paper on the table and all eyes followed her gaze.

"I thought at first I would say nothing about it; but as the matter so intimately concerns us all, I felt that you, too, should be told." Every eye was fixed upon her as she took the paper from the table.

"Listen," she said. "Could anything be more dreadful than this?"

"Said Miss Ross to Miss Penny, while rocking, 'I'm sure it's exceedingly shocking—indeed, it is sad. But Tilden, poor lad, is wearing an openworked stocking.'"

"Pretty clever," murmured the judge in Mrs. Fleming ear, as she sat down. "You certainly had our undivided attention all right."

"Someone else must have dropped those papers. I never wrote that," said Miss Davids, a bit snappishly.

"Isn't that your writing?" Mrs. Fleming smiled innocently and handed the paper to her. Though elaborately pieced together, it was blank on both sides.

Retirement.

"Do you not sometimes dream," said the sympathetic friend, "of dismissing all official cares and leading your life your own way?"

"That isn't a dream," said Senator Sorghum, a little irascibly. "That's a nightmare."
