And those opposing shall have written or printed on their Ballots the words: "Against the Issuance of Bonds and the Levying of a Tax in Payment Thereof." T. J. Reid has been appointed presiding officer for said Election, and he shall select two Judges and two Clerks to assist him in holding the same, and he shall within five days after said Election has been held make due return thereof to the Commissioners Court of this County as is required by law for holding a general Election. CHANGE POTENTIAL TO OBTAIN SIGNALS

Way in Which This May Be Done With Three-Electrode Vacuum Tube.

For every filament current there is a definite plate potential that will give the strongest signals. When using fairly hard tubes—high vacuum—bending out taps from the individual cells of the plate of "B" battery will give variations that are fine enough. For very soft, gaseous tubes, low vacuum, a finer regulation of "B" battery potential is required and is most easily obtained by means of an "A" battery potentiometer. Fig. 14 shows how an "A" battery potentiometer is connected in the circuit of a three-electrode vacuum tube to give fine variations in the plate circuit potential. The resistance of an "A" battery potentiometer should be between 200 and 500 ohms. By moving the slider on the "A" battery potentiometer a variation of plate voltage equal to the "A" battery, or about six volts, can be secured. If the tube contains gas, too high a plate voltage will cause the tube to "buck-over"—that is, the gas is ionized and becomes a conductor, alament leads in connecting a socket will be disastrous to the life of the filament. Note that the filament rheostat is set to place the maximum amount of resistance in series with the filament. After inserting the tube see that it is properly seated and that the four prongs protruding from the tube base make good contact with their respective contacts in the tube socket. If, after listening in with a vacuum tube used as a detector with a rated filament current and plate potential, no signals are heard, go over the circuit carefully and inspect all connections, contacts, polarity of both the "A" and "B" batteries, and take a look at the grid condenser and leak. A three-electrode vacuum tube can be substituted for the crystal as a detector in the simple radio receiving set described in this column a short time ago. Using a vacuum tube in place of a crystal detector will give a much louder signal, and a detector that when once adjusted will stay adjusted. The material which will be required to do this is as follows: One standard vacuum socket. One 6-10-ohm filament rheostat. One grid condenser and leak combined. Three binding posts. A source of filament current and a source of plate potential. Schematically the set is connected up as shown in Fig. 15 when used with a three-electrode tube as a detector. This set, too, can be very conveniently mounted on an 8 by 10-inch base, mounting the tube socket with the filament rheostat beside it. In a great many of the usual receiving circuits used the so-called deceiving an excessive current to flow to the plate circuit which will destroy the elements. If using a vacuum tube circuit for the first time, always check the circuit to see that "A" and "B" batteries are connected to their respective terminals on the socket. The markings on the socket are plain and cannot be mistaken. Interchanging the plate fil-detector tube functions not only as a detector, but as an amplifier and as an oscillator, as will be explained later. There will also be printed a table of symbols used in drawing diagrams and thus the different parts and materials used in these diagrams will be readily understood by those who are unfamiliar with these terms.

SUN DUST IS A "RADIO NET"

London Professor Evolves Novel Theory of the Atmospheric Envelope.

Electrified dust thrown off by the sun forms an atmospheric envelope about the earth about 100 miles which prevents wireless waves from escaping into infinite space, according to Prof. J. A. Fleming, University college, London, whose work in wireless is known all over the world. The screen made by the dust, he says, acts as a sort of wireless speaking tube and enables waves used for long-distance work—which are about ten miles in length—to travel 6,000 and 12,000 miles. If it were not for that screen, according to the professor's theory, the wireless energy thrown out by the big sending towers would not cling to the earth, but would pass away and be lost.

How Big is an Electron?

One very noteworthy experiment in measuring an electron was performed by an American, Professor Millikan of Chicago. He introduced a minute drop of oil of about 1-10,000th inch in diameter in a chamber between two plates whose electrical charge was subject to control. The drop of oil was strongly illuminated and was viewed with a telescope. By controlling the potentials of the plates the oil drop could be made to fall or rise at will. The drop continually picked up and lost electrons. As it picked up an electron it would move toward the positive plate. By carefully observing the action of the drop of oil, Millikan was able to determine very accurately the charge added to it by its picking up one electron.

TIPS FOR FANS

A meeting of representatives of stations within 300 meters of New York and New Jersey was called to prevent radio "jam" in the air. Some of the sweet things that come through must have gummed up the ether.

For use across the secondary of a tuner, such as the honey-comb coils, use a condenser of twenty-three plates or less. The less capacity used in the secondary circuit, the better will the set work.

If, after wiring up a set, you hear nothing but a steady hum in the receivers, you may be very sure that there is an open circuit somewhere. Trace out the wiring carefully and some little fault will present itself.

The so-called "spaghetti" tubing, if placed over bare wire used in wiring a set, will improve the appearance 100 per cent and reduce the danger of short circuits.

More and more are the radio fans turning to radio-frequency amplification instead of audio-frequency. The chief reason for this lies in the fact that in radio-frequency amplification the incoming signals are amplified before they reach the detector, where they are rectified, while in audio-frequency they are amplified after reaching the detector. In the first method signals that are very weak are brought in, whereas in the latter method they would probably not be heard.

The order provides that existing freight rates and charges, with certain exceptions, including charges for switching and other ancillary service and all other charges applicable to the transportation of freight between points in this State, shall be increased under the general rule effective August 2, 1920, or July 18, 1921, and are hereby reduced to the extent that they respectively include not more than a 5 per cent increase over the rates in effect immediately prior to August 2, 1920.

The reductions will not affect existing rates on grain, grain products, oil and hay, cotton seed, cotton seed meal and articles taking same, sugar, crude and fuel petroleum, sugar straight car-loads, unshelled peanuts, sand and gravel. Rates on these commodities have already been reduced by the commission.

It is also ordered by the commission that existing rates on certain agricultural products, carloads, which were made effective on January 1, 1922, through the application of the 10 per cent reduction then made, shall not be affected by the reduction, except at the expiration date of June 30, 1922, now carried in connection with "Pipe that dame?" whispered Larry the Blood to Skinner. "That kinda looks good to me fer Goldstein! Gee, it makes a feller's mouth water!"

Skinner, lurking with his friend in the purlieus of the Terminal, nodded. The girl, who had apparently just arrived by the late train was wearing a dress that must have cost a cool hundred on Fifth avenue. The little gold watch that was about her wrist would be good for fifty from Goldstein, the fence. As she passed them there was the flash of a great solitaire upon her finger. And she carried a bag.

"I betcha she's got a wad with her," said Larry the Blood. "I'll track her, Skinner, and you keep yer eyes peeled for the dicks."

A moment later their suspense yielded to pure joy. The girl had not taken a taxi, and she was proceeding on foot down a rather unsavory street, which offered innumerable opportunities to get-rich-quick artists in its dark recesses and doorways.

Larry the Blood had risen to the top of his profession by sheer merit. He could unhook a wrist watch as gently as a mother brushes away a fly from a sleeping child. He could slip off that solitaire as easily as one draws a hair out of milk.

Larry followed her. It was a busy thoroughfare, despite the late hour of the evening. He wanted to choose his time for the theft, and he had to think quickly. He was a speedy sprinter, and the hold-up would be only a matter of fifteen seconds.

She would scream, of course, and then he had to make his getaway. But this offered no insoluble difficulties to Larry. He knew every turning, every empty basement in his haunts. He knew where to dash through a hallway and scale a fence on the other side, emerging through another hallway into the next street.

Still, pedestrians were passing. He had to choose his time. Mentally he computed. The girl would be a hundred yards away from the nearest pedestrian when she passed Sheenigan's scatter. That was the place. He quickened his footsteps, keeping just far enough behind her not to alarm her.

Some distance behind him trailed his side-kick, Skinner, with his eyes peeled for the dicks.

Suddenly Larry swore. The unexpected had happened. Just as he was beginning to creep upon the girl, she had turned to cross the road.

Two cars were about to pass each other. Two taxis were likewise approaching from opposite directions. With country-bred stupidity, the girl plunged right for the heart of this tangle.

She darted in front of one of the cars without seeing the other, dashed back just in time, and stood mute and agast in the face of one of the oncoming taxis.

The driver was about a dozen feet in front of her. He tried to swerve. The girl jumped back, right in front of him.

"Now whatdya think of that!" muttered Larry the Blood.

And, all his street-sparrow instincts aroused, he darted across the road toward the girl.

There was just an instant to spare. Already the oncoming car was brushing the girl's shoulder, the motorman clanging his bell furiously and making desperate efforts to put on the brakes effectively.

Seizing the girl round the waist, Larry yanked her bodily out of the way of the car and the taxi. The car went on; so did the taxi, the driver shouting abuses as he went down the street.

White, terrified, and shaken, the girl lay for a moment in Larry's arms. Skinner, lurking in the distance, saw the little by-play and grinned. The little watch was against Larry's sleeve. He saw that it was good for a cool hundred at Goldstein's—not fifty.

The diamond solitaire touched his finger. It was a one-carat—a one! Luck was in for Larry, the Blood.

The girl opened her eyes and looked at him gratefully.

"Thank you so much," she said, opening her bag.

Larry, the Blood saw a roll as big as a German sausage.

Extracting a bill, the girl handed it to him, and, turning, made a sudden dash across the road and into a house. Skinner came by.

"Beat it, you mutt!" he hissed.

"Hey, come back, Skinner!" shouted Larry.

Skinner came back, doubt, anger in his eyes.

"What?" he cried. "You mean to tell me you didn't—?"

"Aw, say, Skinner, I'd jest pulled that dame out of the danger-zone. I—I guess she feazed me. I—"

"Whadya got in yer hand?" snarled Skinner.

Larry looked at it. "She give me a one-spot, Skinner!" he muttered dolefully.

Shy of Materials.

When Angeline Anglebeam returned home with her writing her mother asked her:

"What did the editor think of your verses?"

"I guess he thought they were all right."

"Did he accept any of them?"

"No; he said he couldn't print any of them just now because he was all out of poetry type."

BROUGHT FAME AND WEALTH.

Whitney's invention of the Cotton Gin Came About Under Somewhat Peculiar Circumstances.

In the fall of 1792, the year of his graduation from Yale college, Eli Whitney, inventor of the cotton gin, who was born in Westboro, Mass., in 1765, was engaged as a private tutor in a family in Georgia. On his way there he met Mrs. Greene, who was returning to Savannah from a visit North. On reaching Georgia he found that, despite his engagement, another tutor had been given his place, and he was stranded, practically penniless. Mrs. Greene invited the young man to her home until he could find something to do.

Shortly after Whitney's arrival a party of gentlemen from Augusta, in the upper country, who had been officers in the Revolution under General Greene, were visiting there. The conversation turned on the depressed state of agriculture in the South. Long-staple cotton had been introduced successfully in sea islands, but could not be grown inland. Short-staple cotton would grow inland, but was unprofitable, as there was no practical means of separating the cotton from the seed. The separation by hand of one pound of staple was a day's work for one woman.

During the conversation Mrs. Greene told the visitors that Mr. Whitney could invent their machine for them. This incident turned Whitney's attention to the subject. He went to Savannah, obtained a small parcel of raw cotton and set to work. With the resources the plantation afforded and such tools as he could contrive, within a few weeks he had developed the invention and produced his first model of the cotton gin.

You Never Can Tell.

A lady from a southern city, visiting New York, was asked by a friend if she would help her look after a party of children from the tenement districts she was taking on a day's outing, and agreed to do so.

The trip was to Bronx park and included the zoo. The day proved a wearisome one for the southern visitor, who was not young, and by the time they were all homeward bound on the subway train she was pretty well exhausted. But she felt compensated for her efforts when she reflected how she had been able to help give these poor shut-in children a glimpse of clear sky and green fields. With this agreeable thought she turned to a little girl sitting beside her and asked her if she had ever been to Bronx park before.

"Oh, yes!" the child answered. "I've been there lots of times. In an automobile. My brother's a chauffeur. And next Sunday I'm going to Coney Island."—Everybody's Magazine.

French Women as Judges.

Women as judges are undesirable, according to the Paris chamber of commerce, the Montreal Herald states. The experts of the chamber were asked to advise parliament regarding the proposal that women be declared eligible to all court positions now held by men, a bill to that effect in the chamber of deputies being intended as the first important wedge to electoral equality. To the great surprise of the deputies, many of whom are noted as suffragists, the chamber of commerce committee says that such quality is undesirable just now, as apart from the peculiarities of the feminine temperament, women seldom are endowed with broad enough knowledge of juridical affairs to warrant their dealing with delicate questions of absolute justice.

Illusion.

They were dining tete-a-tete in the new hotel's restaurant—he striving to keep alive conversation grown strangely one-sided; she answering at random monosyllabically, when courtesy compelled response.

"I do so like this room," she suddenly declared enthusiastically, aglow with heightened color. "It's ever so much nicer than the big dining room."

"It is bright and cozy," he gallantly agreed. "Everything's new and fresh. That's what you like about it?"

"Y-e-s," she hesitantly conceded, a flush flooding neck and throat. "But I like all those mirrors best. . . . You can flirt with such a lot of men in them and before they can really locate you, why—you're gone!"

An East end mother was dressing her little daughter Mary Frances for school. She had been to that wonderful place only a few times. As the mother hurried to and fro in order that she might be there on time, the little girl spoke up: "Mother, do you pay money to send me to school?" The mother, resitating, answered: "No, but we pay taxes." Her face showed signs of anger and with her head thrown back and signs of tears appearing, she said: "They never did come after me in a taxicab."—Indianapolis News.

Adding to Finland's Wealth.

The good results obtained in 1921 from flax cultivation have stimulated Finnish farmers to sow more seed this year. The only linen mill in Finland has constructed a flax dressing plant—near Tammerfors. Last year this linen factory bought from the farmers 1,875,000 kilos of air dried stalks, 60,000 kilos of soaked stalks and 100,000 kilos of swinged flax. This production represents the harvest of 2,400 hectares (one hectare equals 2.471 acres).

COMMISSIONER GIVES RULING ON PUBLIC WEIGHER LAW

The following ruling on the Public Weigher's Law has been given out by the Commissioner of Markets and Warehouses:

"The right of private contract is being used to the detriment of both the farmer and the local buyer, the producer of course pays for all such brokerages as a result of the system of 'price setting,' according to Chas. E. Baughman, Commissioner of Markets and Warehouses, in an interview given out last week.

"There is a custom among the shipper, buyer, or exporters, or you might say wholesalers of cotton, to have settlements based on compress weights, and in some instances this system has worked to the point where an actual dockage, or scaling, is agreed upon as between the local buyer-seller and the exporter before the purchase is consummated."

"Under the law, no person is permitted to weigh cotton or any commodity on which a weight certificate is issued, unless that person be a public weigher, subject of course to the right of private contract, and when any person other than the agent of either buyer or seller is the weigher of the commodity, and issues the receipt therefor, the transaction is in violation of the law, except he be a public weigher, or except that public warehousemen, who are bonded may issue a public warehouse receipt for cotton on date the storage charges therefor began or become operative."

In other words, where cotton has been sold by a local dealer and it is shipped for compression, the compress weigher, unless he be a public weigher, cannot under any condition issue any kind of a weight certificate on which any settlement of accounts is affected, and on the other hand, if the weigher be a public weigher, and he shall at the instance of the buyer and seller, or either of them, issue a weight certificate and state thereon other than the true weight of the cotton, he becomes liable to prosecution, and subject to removal from office. If any dockage, therefore, is made it must be made a matter of interest only to the buyer and seller and they would be prohibited from making any changes in the figures or items appearing upon the certificate."

"Even where there be a positive understanding between buyer and seller that there be a dockage, and when both may be present when cotton is weighed, the public weigher is forbidden to place any weight other than the full true weight on the certificate."

"This department," continued Mr. Baughman, "has received numerous complaints along this line, and we expect to use our powers to see that the Public Weigher laws be respected and obeyed, and where possible, and where we have a right by virtue of these laws, to put a stop to the promiscuous dockage of cotton, where it is done to the detriment of the farmer and local buyer."

"Persons in the employ of compresses, receiving a salary, who are not public weighers, and who actually weigh cotton and issue therefor a weight for ticket against cotton not tendered for warehousing, where said weight sheet is to serve as a basis of settlement for the value of price of the cotton, are warned to cease such weighing, except that they be public weighers."

"The mere fact that there is no direct charge made for weighing the cotton does not suffice because the weigher if not a duly elected or appointed and qualified public weigher, is making a charge for such weighing, and this charge is paid in the way of a daily, weekly, monthly or annual wage. And too, the mere fact that the exporter buyer of the cotton may own in person the compress, where the compress is operated as a compress, his agent, unless he be a public weigher, would have the right to weigh and charge for weighing where the owner was conducting a cotton buying business per-se."

No Worms in a Healthy Child

All children troubled with worms have an unhealthy color, which indicates poor blood, and as a rule, there is more or less stomach disturbance. GROVE'S TASTELESS CHILL TONIC given regularly for two or three weeks will enrich the blood, improve the digestion, and act as a General Strengthening Tonic to the whole system. Nature will then throw off or dissipate the worms, and the Child will be in perfect health. Pleasant to take. 5c per bottle.

PROVES IT BY GOING BROKE

That nobody really appreciates cut prices of printing has again been proven in Iowa, where a plant has been sold under the hammer and scattered, reducing plant values throughout the country.

The promoters spread the idea that the farmers themselves, the county officials, and the state generally were being soaked mercilessly for both printing and advertising; they proceeded to cut prices recklessly to show that the "patrons of the country are robbers."

FACT AND FICTION

One of the joys of going away for the summer in coming back for the winter.

We all like to be popular, but some of us despite the work of qualifying for the part.

When a man is hungry he grows; when a woman is hungry—she gets something to eat.

It takes a has-been a long time to find it out.

Whatever else you do with a worry, don't pass it on.

CAREFUL CROSSING CAMPAIGN NOW BEING WAGED

Under the auspices of the American Railway Association, there was inaugurated on June 1st, and to be continued until September 30th, 1922, a "Careful Crossing Campaign."

Such a campaign is necessary and timely, as shown by the following facts: In thirty years our country's population increased 67 per cent.

There are two ways to reduce or entirely stop such accidents. The first in the public mind is, elimination of the crossings. This is impossible.

Conservative estimates of the average cost of elimination fixed the figure at approximately $50,000 per crossing. This means $12,000,000,000.

It is evident the immediate question must be met by a method other than the elimination of the crossings, which latter work will undoubtedly proceed as circumstances permit.

Apparently the solution of the problem can be found in education. This education should be joint upon the part of the railroads and the public.

The railroads have learned the value of organized efforts for safety, through the reduction of deaths of employees on duty from 4,354 in 1907 to 2,578 in 1920.

As education in and discussion of safety matters are responsible for the gratifying results obtained in employe cases, it is logical to assume that education of the public to the exercise of a higher degree of care when approaching and passing over railroad crossings, will likewise have a good effect in reducing crossing accidents.

While it is true the railroads have a direct interest in checking these oft-times most distressing accidents, yet in the first and last analysis, it is the public itself which suffers the pain, the mutilation, and the passing of the Great Beyond, in addition to bearing the financial burden.

The railroads feel warranted in expecting that right thinking people throughout our land will lend their actual and moral support to this humane and laudable campaign.

RACES AT ABILENE

Abilene, Texas.—Automobile race day in Abilene, July 4th, promises to be a bigger affair this year than on last Independence Day when the biggest crowd ever gathered at the West Texas Fair Speedway witnessed a thrilling program of speed events.

Virtually all of the star drivers and fast cars entered last year are returning for this year's contest and in addition there are many dark horses entered with mounts whose speed and stamina yet remains to be proven.

The feature event this year will be a fifty mile grind on the five-eighths mile oval, with a total of $1,000 offered in cash prizes on this event. There are prizes for the leading cars at 10, 20, 30, and 40 miles, and finish prizes for the final winners, which will make it necessary for every driver to "give her the gun" at every stage of the race in order to come home with substantial winnings.

The program will start at 2 o'clock on the afternoon of July 4th and last throughout the afternoon.

STATE DEPARTMENT ISSUES FARM STATISTICAL BULLETIN

The Free Press this week received a copy of Farm Bulletin No. 70, from Commissioner of Agriculture Geo. B. Terrell. This is a statistical bulletin filled with interesting agricultural information concerning the various counties of the state.

It contains in brief space more important farm facts, relating to the principal crops, live stock, oil production, railroad mileage, farm owners and tenants, resident and non-resident land owners, and large holdings of land.

A copy of this bulletin will be sent free upon request from the Department of Agriculture, Austin, Texas.

PATTY

The charming name of Patty is not a diminutive of Patricia as is popularly supposed, but comes, curiously enough, from Martha.

Patty has a certain sacred significance since it is derived from the Martha who was one of the sisters of Bethany. It was she who is said to have destroyed by the sheer power of her faith a fire-breathing dragon which attacked her family while they were on a pilgrimage.

But however it may be, Martha was the forerunner of Patty and gives to the latter name, not only a religious flavor, but a good old-fashioned name, which has become almost synonymous with domesticity.

Ireland set the seal of approval upon Patty, preferring it to Martha, whose only survival is in "Mab," queen of the Fairies.

Patty's talismanic gem is coral. It will give her strength, wisdom, and bodily health, according to old superstition.

Tuesday is Patty's lucky day and 7 her lucky number.

KING OF FEATHERED TRIBE

The Eagle Has at All Times Been Recognized as the Undisputed Monarch of the Air.

Sometimes as you roam amidst the wild scenery of a mountain district your eye will catch sight of a tiny speck that floats high in the air above fell and crag.

You wonder for a moment what it can be, and then the thought comes to you that you are watching the strong upward flight of the nobles of all feathered creatures, the stately golden eagle.

Not many years ago eagles were quite common in all the hilly parts of England and Wales, but farmers, keepers, and collectors waged war upon them, and now they are rare.

Even these they were failing until quite recently to hold their own; but it is now found that they are increasing in numbers.

The golden eagle is entirely a bird of prey. Only royal fare will suffice for him. Hares and grouse are the chief items in his menu, but he loves young lambs, and sometimes he will take toll even of the fawns of the deer which share the wilds with him.

A Venus of the Stone Age. More prehistoric drawings of the Aurignacian period, 20,000 years ago, have been found in the caves of Colombe, on the Ah. They include what might be termed a picture of the Venus of the stone age.

This drawing, which is on a fragment of mammoth bone, has been described by Dr. Lucien Mayet at Lyons university. The professor says that the drawing is of two figures, a man and the headless torso of a woman.

The man is covered with hair and resembles the prehistoric man of our imagination, but the woman (contrary to H. G. Wells' conception) is of a remarkably high type of figure, and has a slender, graceful waistline, though the hips are somewhat prominent and the general aspect recalls forcibly the early manifestations of Greek art.

FIRST SPECIFIC EXCLUSION OF THE NEGRO FROM POLLS

The provision placed in the test for voters in the Democratic Primaries for next month, that only white voters shall participate, by the State Democratic Executive Committee at its meeting at Austin recently is the first time in the history of the committee voters shall take part in the primaries, according to Frank C. Davis of San Antonio, chairman of the committee. This provision has been placed in the test by the county executive committee but never before by the state committee, Mr. Davis believes.

He is not positive in his statement but has not heard of any other such test being passed by the state committee. He has been a member for several years.

In 1898 the state committee placed in the voters test that only Democrats should vote in the Democratic primaries, Mr. Davis said, referring to information he has. This provision would have excluded negro voters from the Democratic primaries, he pointed out, the assumption in the South being that negroes are republicans.

The provision that only white voters shall participate in the primaries next month is not mandatory to county committees but can be placed on the county tickets or left out entirely according to the county body's discretion. Travis county will have this provision in its test, the county committee ruled at a meeting following the state committee's meeting.

TEXAS CANDIDATES FILE REPORTS OF EXPENDITURES

Monday being the last day allowed by law for candidates for nomination in the democratic primaries, for filing statements of campaign expenses, lists of the various state candidates expenditures are available.

The candidates for United States Senator lead the list, their expenses totaling far above the others.

Of the senatorial candidates Cullen E. Thomas has spent the most, his statement showing $4,084. Earl B. Mayfield reported $4,371; Clarence Ousley, $4,069; Chas. A. Culbertson, $3,297; Robert L. Henry, $1,530; James E. Ferguson, $1,323. Candidates are allowed to spend $10,000 in their campaign, this amount to cover the first and second primaries, provided there is a second.

Mr. Ferguson and Mr. Ousley only reported contributions to their campaign funds. The former has received contributions amounting to $135, while Mr. Ousley's total $225, their statements show.

Governor Neff and F. S. Rodgers are the only gubernatorial candidates whose statements had been filed at noon today. Governor Neff's statement shows expenditures of $327, with no contributions. Mr. Rodgers reported $179 expended and receipts of $270.

LONG A FAMOUS ACTUARY

Many Miraculous Cures of His Attributed to the Old Shrine of Ste. Anne de Beaupre.

When the celebrated French Canadian church of Ste. Anne de Beaupre, near Quebec, was destroyed by fire a few weeks ago the famous statue of Ste. Anne, various relics of the shrine and the old chapel in which the statue was first kept were miraculously spared.

It is an old and faithfully adhered to legend of the parishioners of the church of Ste. Anne de Beaupre that a party of Breton sailors were overwhelmed by a terrible storm in the St. Lawrence river in the year 1635. When it seemed that nothing could save them they called upon Ste. Anne, the patroness of their own home province of Brittany in France, and all members of the crew joined in a solemn vow that they would erect a sanctuary on the shore to the memory of their saint if they were saved from shipwreck. Their vessel was tossed about all night, but early the next morning the storm died and they were landed safely. Believing faithfully that their prayers had been answered by Ste. Anne, they immediately set to work constructing a rude wooden chapel which was destined to become world famous through the successive churches that followed it.

In the erection of one of these churches that followed the original frame structure a parishioner accidentally discovered that the shrine had curative powers. Louis Guilmont was his name; he helped in the construction of the church to show his reverence for the patroness saint, although he could scarcely walk because of rheumatism, from which he had suffered since his youth. But he had no sooner placed one stone in the foundation than his rheumatism vanished.

Whether by the amazing faith of those who come to the shrine to be cured of divers afflictions or by some divine quality in the statue and the old chapel or by something that no man can understand, cannot be said, but it is indeed true that most miraculous cures are effected at the shrine of Ste. Anne de Beaupre.

FOOTBALL COACH ENCOURAGED OVER PROSPECTS FOR TEAM

A. L. Anthony, who replaces Y. P. Kuhn as football coach of the High School, expresses himself as well pleased with the outlook for a good football team in the High School this year in a letter to Hal McConnell, star half-back of the local team. He states that he is confident that the locals can develop a wonderful team this year, notwithstanding the fact that the High School loses five of her best players from last year's team this year. Kimbrough, Sikes, McCollum, Pace, and Richey. Coach Anthony believes that the new material coming in this year from the rural communities will easily replace these men with a little training, and expresses the hope that it will be possible to begin training early. Haskell has the reputation of having one of the fastest High School teams in the state, and they have been strong contenders for the championship for the past several years.

The regular five game schedule arranged several weeks ago at Abilene is given below, through courtesy of Coach Anthony:

NORTH TEXAS TO GET NEW FEDERAL JUDGE

According to an agreement reached between conferees of the house and senate at Washington Saturday on the new federal judgeship bill the measure will be reported favorably, thereby creating 25 new federal judges, including the one for North Texas. The agreement was reached by the conferees for each house accepting all the new judges called for under both the house and senate bills. The proposal was made by the senate conferees.

The hope is expressed that the bill can be passed before the recess adjournment of the house so that the new judges can be sworn in and the courts organized for the fall terms.

Low Ironized Yeast Fills Out Figure

And Puts New "Pep" and Energy in Thin, Nervous, Rundown Folks

Hundreds of thousands of people all over the country are now taking IRONIZED YEAST tablets for health with results which in many cases are actually astonishing. For thin folks to gain five pounds or more on the very first package is not unusual. Complexions blotched with pimples, etc., are very often entirely cleared up within 10 to 14 days. As for increasing "pep" and energy, apparent "miracles" are reported by folks who were formerly run-down, weak, and lacking in physical and mental vigor.

Here Is The Secret!

Nature intended that you should have a well developed figure, with the clear skin, sparkling eyes, strong nerves and rugged strength that goes with it. And if you are now thin and run-down it is because certain of Nature's laws have been disobeyed. Nature requires that we get a proper amount of vitamins and iron in our systems. But these two essential elements are lacking in the modern diet. That is why so many of us are thin and run-down.

Yeast Best When Ironized

The thing to do is to supply this lack by taking with each meal two tiny IRONIZED YEAST tablets which contain in highly concentrated form, a carefully cultured yeast grown under the strictest supervision for medicinal purposes—a yeast unequalled for its richness in the essential water soluble vitamins. In addition it contains the correct amount of the two other vitamins—Fat Soluble A and Water Soluble C—which are equally important to health. These three vitamins bring excellent results even if taken alone—but when taken with a proper amount of easily assimilated iron from our IRONIZED YEAST, these results are multiplied ten to twenty times!

Watch The Results!

Note how IRONIZED YEAST immediately increases your appetite—how it enables you to get real joy out of every morsel of food you eat. See how quickly it drives away pimples, blackheads, etc., and how you really acquire "pep" makes hard work or play etc. And how you really acquire "pep" makes hard work or play etc. And how you really acquire "pep" makes hard work or play etc. And how you really acquire "pep" makes hard work or play etc.

UNUSUAL ABUNDANCE OF BOLL-WEEVIL THIS SPRING WILL NECESSITATE SOME MODIFICATION IN METHODS OF POISONING.

(By B. R. Coad and G. A. Maloney.)
 For the past few weeks we have been accumulating records on the emergencies of the boll weevil from nearly all of the cotton states and are finding universally, as we forecasted some months ago, that the number of over-wintered weevils is far greater than usual; in fact, in many districts where accurate counts have been made it has been found that we have in the fields now as many weevils as are ordinarily present a month later when the first summer-bred brood has started to appear. With anything like normal conditions this is going to mean a tremendously rapid increase in the weevil damage, and this will have an important bearing on the program to be followed by those using calcium arsenate for the control of the weevil.

In the first place it should be remembered that we recommend starting poisoning when from ten to fifteen per cent of the cotton squares have been punctured by the weevil. As a general rule this condition does not arise until after the newly bred weevils have started to emerge from the squares. This year, however, we have found many fields where there are already sufficient weevils present to destroy practically all squares as fast as formed. In other words, such cotton will never start blooming unless the weevils are controlled, and from the very outset 50 per cent or more of the squares are punctured. Under such conditions it is undoubtedly going to be necessary to poison earlier than ever before. Of course, there is no advantage in poisoning the cotton before the squares form, as the weevils are continuing to emerge from hibernation during this period and furthermore they are doing the crop no harm. However, where such a heavy infestation occurs it will be advisable to make the first application just as soon as the cotton starts squaring freely, or about the time the plants average from 4 to 5 squares each. The regular poisoning schedule should be started at that time and continued along the lines of the usual recommendations for controlling this early infestation of weevils.

Another very important effect of this heavy infestation will be felt later in the season. When the weevils first emerge from hibernation and reach the cotton field they move around very little as long as they can find an ample supply of unpunctured squares for their use, but just as soon as the infestation becomes sufficiently heavy to puncture practically all squares these weevils start to move in search of fresh pastures. In an ordinary season this means that you usually have only the weevils bred in your own cotton to contend with until some time from the latter part of July to the last of August, depending on the locality. This year, however, this movement of migration of weevils necessary will be far more than compensated for by the fact that the weevil damage without poisoning will be far greater than normal, and thus the margin of profit on the operation is tremendously increased. In other words, a heavy weevil infestation such as we have this year means a greater actual net profit in dollars and cents per acre from the poisoning operations.

weevils will probably start several weeks earlier than usual. Consequently, it will not only be necessary for you to start poisoning earlier to control your own infestation, but you should also expect that, before you have had time to mature the fruit which your plants have set during this period of protection, you will begin to experience an immigration of weevils from unpunctured cotton. Of course, this condition would not arise if every one in a district was successfully poisoning his cotton; but this will not be the case this year, and just as soon as all squares in the unpunctured crops are punctured the migration to the unpunctured fields will commence. This means that every day a large crop of new weevils will move into these unpunctured fields, and it is going to take continuous, thorough poisoning to protect to maturity the crop which has been allowed to set by the earlier applications.

These two facts mean just this: Successful weevil control this year is going to require more effort and more poison per acre than has ever been the case in the past. On the other hand, whenever the land is sufficiently fertile to justify such an effort, there is much more assurance of profit from the operation than is usually the case. The increase in the cost per acre brought about by the increased number of ap-

CARDUI HELPED REGAIN STRENGTH

Alabama Lady Was Sick For Three Years, Suffering Pain, Nervous and Depressed—Read Her Own Story of Recovery.

Faint Rock, Ala.—Mrs. C. M. Stamba of near here, recently related the following interesting account of her recovery: "I was in a weakened condition. I was sick three years in bed suffering a great deal of pain, weak, nervous, depressed. I was so weak I couldn't walk across the floor; just had to lay and my little ones do the work. I was almost dead. I tried every thing I heard of, and a number of doctors. Still I didn't get any relief. I couldn't eat, and sleep poorly. I believe if I hadn't heard of and taken Cardui I would have died. I bought six bottles, after a neighbor told me what it did for her.

"I began to eat and sleep, began to gain my strength and am now well and strong. I haven't had any trouble since... I sure can testify to the good that Cardui did me. I don't think there is a better tonic made and I believe it saved my life."

"For over 40 years, thousands of women have used Cardui successfully, in the treatment of many women's ailments."

If you suffer on these women list, take Cardui. It may help you, too. Ask all druggists.

COTTON ACREAGE OF STATE INCREASES 12 PER CENT

The following crop report was compiled by R. E. Yantis, statistician of the Department of Agriculture, and was given out by the commissioner last week.

This report is compiled from reports received from officers of county institutes, farm demonstration agents, county judges, bankers, merchants, editors of county newspapers, farm labor unions and many individual farmers representing about 200 counties with from two to eighteen reports from each county.

For convenience the counties are grouped into five divisions, representing different sections of the State as follows:

Northeastern group, 20 counties; southeastern group, 22 counties; central group, 27 counties; southwestern group, 37 counties; northwestern group, 77 counties.

These groups with their percentages are not given out at this time for lack of space, but are filed with the complete report. The general averages for the state are as follows:

Cotton, acreage	112	70
Corn, acreage	98	78
Wheat, acreage	75	64
Oats, acreage	86	80
Peas, acreage	102	81
Sweet Potatoes, acreage	118	95
Kaffir, acreage	97	89
Maize, acreage	97	88
Peanut, acreage	118	79
Sorghum, acreage	107	81
Syrup Sorghum, acreage	93	82
Ribbon Cane, acreage	78	82

Cotton, Sweet Potatoes and peas show the largest increase in acreage.

The cotton acreage shows a slight increase in the southwestern group of counties, and a very large increase in the northwestern group, and this accounts for the total increase of 12 per cent in the state, which seems a little too high.

The black land belt, where most of the cotton is grown, and East Texas show a decrease in cotton acreage.

Corn acreage and the condition of the crop is below normal. The wheat acreage and condition as reported are too high, as the crop is very short, probably less than half of a normal yield.

Sweet potatoes, peas, peanuts, sorghum, ribbon cane and other food and feed crops are increased, or represent a normal acreage, which indicates a healthy condition.

All crops have improved during the past two weeks, but are at least two weeks late.

The government estimate of cotton acreage in Texas, last season was 8,803,000 acres. The final report was 10,745,000 acres.

This final report is too high, Mr. Yantis says, and should be about 9,500,000 acres. The present indicated increase of 12 per cent this season would give Texas 10,640,000 acres this year, and at the rate of one-fourth of a bale per acre would give a yield of 2,660,000 bales. Last year's yield was one-fifth of a bale an acre, or 2,200,000 bales, and one-fourth of a bale this year is a fair estimate, as it is impossible to make a normal yield of one-third of a bale an acre.

The facts indicate, according to Mr. Yantis, that "it is not possible to make a big cotton crop, corn crop or wheat crop. But a good yield of other food and feed crops may be made, and the people will not starve and yet may become fairly prosperous."

"The surplus of cotton is rapidly being used up and will soon be exhausted, and every bale produced this season should bring above 20c per pound if properly and intelligently marketed," in the opinion of Mr. Yantis.

CAPTAIN S. BURK BURNET DIED TUESDAY MORNING

Daily papers Wednesday carried accounts of the death of Captain S. Burk Burnett, noted pioneer cowboy and capitalist which occurred at his home in Fort Worth Tuesday morning at 1:50 after an illness following a stroke of apoplexy. Funeral services were held in Fort Worth Wednesday.

Captain Burk Burnett was well known all over Texas and had several intimate friends in this city. The immediate survivors of the deceased are one son, Tom Burnett of Wichita Falls; a granddaughter, Miss Anne Burnett of Fort Worth; his sisters Mrs. J. M. Berkley and Mrs. John Roberts of Wichita Falls; his brother, T. H. Burnett of Bertram. In addition he has a number of nieces and nephews in various sections of the state. Several of the immediate relatives were with him at the time of his death.

The oil town of Burk Burnett was named after the cottonman-capitalist. When the name was bestowed upon the site it was nothing more than a small camp but with the discovery of oil it swelled into a prosperous community and retained the name of the founder. While the cattle and land holdings of Captain Burnett are extensive, so are his oil interests. His land was among the first to reveal the presence of oil and with the development of this industry in Texas, Captain Burnett's wealth increased. The deceased was one of the founders of the Cattle Raisers Association of Texas and for years was treasurer of that organization. Likewise he was dominant in the industrial development of the southwest. He held stock in several banks and other important industrial and commercial concerns.
