

Small Town Joys There are times I need reminding what a wonderful joy it is to live and work in small towns. And, about the time l need that reminder, it seems one comes along.

Last week I forgot to put in a story about Detroit's homecoming. It was one of those series of errors that I hate the most. We had run the homecoming story several times, and were supposed to get a full schedule of events to publish. Somewhere along the line the story failed to make it in, and I failed to remember to call someone about it.

I went to cover the Detroit July 4th Parade Saturday morning with trepidation. I worried that people would be mad at me about leaving out the story.

I had already called and apologized to an organizer, who had kindly assured me it wasn't a real problem.

As I stood with some of the parade officials, I once more expressed my apologies that I had left out something so important.

Did they gripe? Did they glare? Did they tell me I was an

Instead, one woman said "hey, don't worry about it. Ya'll have a BIG job". A little later, someone else told me "Hey, I don't know how you guys keep up with everything in five newspapers to begin

These people will never know how much those kind words meant to me.

I have a list, and on it I put all upcoming events. Then I try to make sure they get in every week until such time as the event is over. But, sometimes, when things need to go in this paper, but not in the other, or simply through the shuffle, I slip up and fail in my job.

This upsets me with myself, and I know it probably upsets our readers. I have, occasionally, been accused of deliberately leaving something out. This never, ever, is the case.

It IS, sometimes, a very big job. It is not a high paying job. In fact, sometimes we think of ourselves as having been foolish not to have joined the journalistic world of big-city newspapers. But it is a job we love and honestly try to do out best

So, it means more than people know when someone who could have reacted with anger instead reacts with kindness.

The understanding, the lack of animosity is special. And, for me, makes life in small town newspapering the joy that it is.

There really are some things more important than money. The understanding and support of the people in "our" five towns is absolutely priceless.

Thank you. Thank you for the joy of walking down the street taking photos of a fourth of July parade. For the pleasure of hearing someone say "loved your column this week".

Thanks, even for the sorrow that occurs because I know the person whose obituary we are running, because it means that I know so many wonderful people...that I belong in these communities. Some things really are beyond price. Living here is one of them.

Editor's Quotes

There were ten lepers healed, and only one turned back to give thanks, but it is to be noticed that our Lord did not recall His gift from the other nine because of their lack of gratitude. When we begin to lessen our acts of kindness and helpfulness because we think those who receive do not properly appreciate what is done for them, it is time to question our own motives.

The Red River County Genealogical Society is asking anyone who may have any old Bogata, Rosalie, Detroit or Bagwell newspapers to contact the society.

Many times such papers can be found in old trunks or packed away and forgotten in unused drawers. The society has had a number of old newspapers microfilmed in the past several months and expects to continue this project as funds become available. The originals will be returned to their owners when the filming is completed.

While one paper, or even one article from one of these old newspapers may seem insignificant, having it preserved on a reel of microfilm with other such papers is important not only for local historians, but for those who travel to the county to do historical and genealogical research.
