Thunderbirds to return for open house

They're back!

The U.S. Air Force Thunderbirds will return to West Texas next month as the centerpiece of Reese's open house salute to the South Plains.

Reese will host its annual open house March 25. It marks the first performance by the U.S. Air Force's aerial demonstration team here since March, 1987. The U.S. Navy's Blue Angels performed at last year's open house.

"We're anticipating another great turnout," said Maj. Mike Truax, open house project officer. "The Thunderbirds always put on a super show."

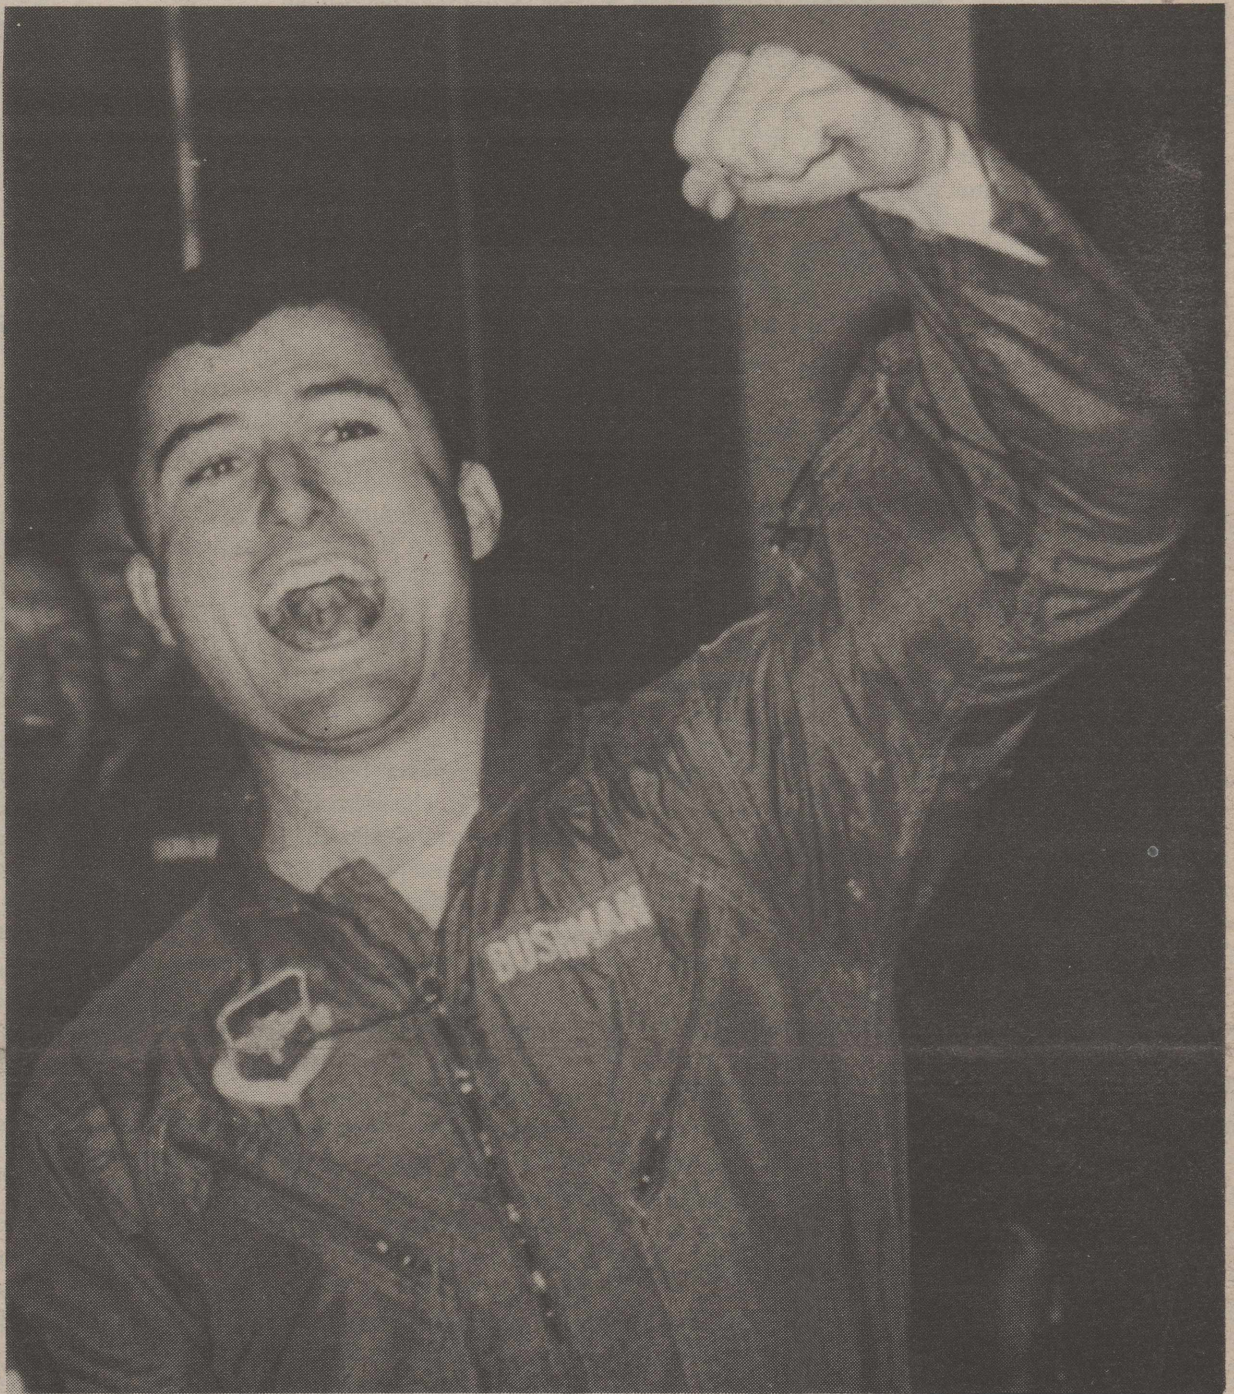

Major Truax said Reese is still putting together the official schedule for the open house, but he anticipates the base opening to the public at about 10 a.m. with the Thunderbirds performing at about 2 p.m.

"We are hoping to get a variety of aircraft from our sister commands and services," he said. "We will also have several base displays and other special activities."

Major Truax stressed the importance of planning to arrive early for this year's open house. "Parking and seating are limited," he said. "People should plan on being on base by noon."

As in past years, the open house will include a wide range of concessions. A concessionaire will provide booths, food, equipment, set up, tear down and liability insurance. Reese will provide the manpower for each booth and will receive 35 percent of gross sales. Five percent will go to the general Morale, Welfare and Recreation fund and the remaining 30 percent will be divided equally among the 26 base organizations staffing the booths. Last year, that came to about $750 per organization.

A complete list of Reese organizations and points of contact for unit volunteers will be published in the Roundup when available.

Conservation nets $50,000 energy award

Reese was awarded $50,000 for placing first in the small unit category in the Air Training Command Energy Management Incentive Award Program for fiscal year 1988.

Keesler Technical Training Center, Keesler AFB, Miss., is the large unit category winner.

Lt. Gen. Robert C. Oaks, ATC commander, announced the award winners at the ATC Commander's Conference Jan. 24-26. The program is designed to stimulate energy awareness and promote involvement in energy management efforts. The award money is to be used for people programs or energy projects.

Award points are given in such categories as energy management, efficiency planning, goal attainment, suggestions and publicity programs.

"We will canvas the base for ideas and recommendations regarding people programs," said Col. William C. Henny, commander, 64th Air Base Group.

"We want to be sure to give the money back to the people of Reese, whose dedication to the energy program contributed to the award. They earned the money by supporting the wing's energy conservation programs," he added.

Both installations can say, literally, "saving energy pays."

Commander's Perspective

By Col. Monroe S. Sams Jr.
Wing Commander
64th Flying Training Wing

90 day count-down begins

We are now within 90 days of the Unit Effectiveness Inspection and Mission Capabilities Inspection to be conducted by the Air Training Command Inspector General, May 7-19. Although preparing for a major inspection is never easy, here are some positive things that should motivate us as we get ready.

Col. Monroe S. Sams Jr.

First of all, a combined inspection is good for the wing. No longer do we have to prepare for two major IG visits in every 18-month period. In one two-week period, the IG team can inspect every aspect of our pilot training mission and determine our readiness posture as well. This allows us to take a more balanced approach to the visit rather than concentrating on management effectiveness first and then turning around to work on readiness.

Secondly, we know we can do well on this inspection because we do our day-to-day mission so well. The key here is teamwork. Approaching a big task like preparing for the IG is much easier if we all work together. This is not the time for functional "one-upmanship." Let's prepare for the UEI/MCI the same way we prepare for our regular activities — with a spirit of cooperation.

Finally, if we remember that we are not just preparing for an inspection, but are in the process of enhancing our ability to perform our primary mission and respond to any wartime contingency, the whole thing will make sense to our people. Believe it or not, we can actually have fun getting ready for the IG — and improve our mission capability to boot — if the Reese community understands the process and works together.

Some can't come in from the cold

For the last week or so we've been launching our jets from some awfully cold conditions out there on the flightline. After a positively balmy January, we had to readjust quickly to real winter weather with wind chill factors of true arctic proportions. My hat's off to all of you who work on the ramp for producing sorties in such bitter weather. You are true professionals who prove your mettle every day out there on the flightline — whatever the conditions.

Those of us who fly the planes find the cold a nuisance to be endured until we can start the engines and close the canopy. For those who work the flightline, however, the cold is a constant companion. I marvel as I watch the crew chiefs and fuels people routinely service the jets as I hurry back to the warmth of the "chute shop" after I fly. I know the specialists trying to turn a wrench or fix a faulty part in the wind on the unprotected ramp must feel numb from the cold. Yet, because of you, we can keep right on producing those needed training sorties.

This week, then, the kudos belong to all those dedicated folks from Organizational Maintenance Squadron, Field Maintenance Squadron, Supply and other units who work on the Reese flightline. Thanks!

Advances in dentistry promote oral health

Forty years of progress in dentistry has resulted in dramatic improvements in the oral health of Americans and enormous savings on dental health care costs, according to Capt. (Dr.) Michael Najera, Reese Dental Clinic.

Scientific breakthroughs, improved dental equipment and techniques, and increased consumer information efforts are responsible for these benefits. The following are among the major innovations which have marked the past four decades and some directions for the future.

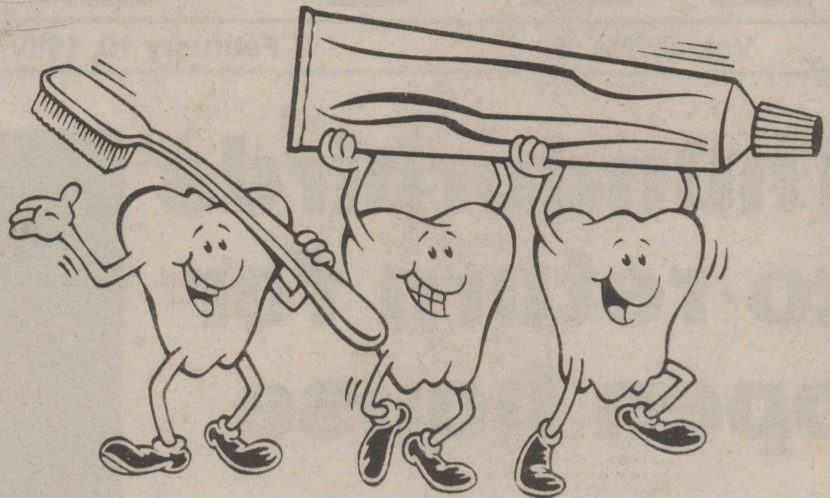

Fluoride is considered to be the single most effective weapon against tooth decay. In 1948, the mineral was proved to prevent cavities by strengthening tooth enamel. Now it is available in toothpastes, mouth rinses, tablets, topical applications and fluoridated water supplies. Today, about 60 percent of Americans drink fluoridated water and half of school age children have never had a cavity. Currently, scientists are researching a time-release fluoride pellet which would bond to a tooth and allow continuous absorption of fluoride over six months.

Plaque removal became paramount in the 1960s, when researchers isolated the bacteria in plaque as the cause of tooth decay and periodontal (gum) diseases. Preventive techniques include physical removal of plaque by brushing and flossing and use of chemical anti-plaque toothpastes and mouth rinses to control infections. Today dentists are also using antibiotics to treat some forms of periodontal disease and dental scientists are seeking a vaccine to prevent tooth decay — similar to vaccines against measles, mumps and polio.

Sealants are additional preventive measures that were created in the early 1970s and are strongly recommended by the American Dental Association. Sealants are plastic coatings applied to the tooth's chewing surfaces to fill microscopic pits and fissures in children's developing permanent molars. Recently, sealants have been combined with time-release fluoride to strengthen tooth enamel and remineralize areas which show early signs of decay.

High speed drills have been important innovations in dentistry, and when coupled with fast-acting anesthetics, have removed the pain, and accompanying fear, of a trip to the dentist. In 1950, ball-bearing handpieces reached speeds up to 50,000 rpms. Then air-driven turbine handpieces introduced in 1957 reached 300,000 rpms. Today's drills make quick work of decay, reaching speeds of 800,000 rpms. There are also chemical compounds now in use in a few dental offices which can dissolve small areas of decay. Lasers may replace drills in the future. Experimentally, concentrated laser beams are being used to eradicate decay, smooth pits and fissures, and clean root canals.

Patient information and education have made important contributions to the decrease in tooth decay and are now being employed to fight gum diseases.

Some tips for continued dental health care are:

- Parents should take children to a dentist by the age of 12 months. This allows the dentist to detect potential problems when they can more easily be corrected and helps the child develop a positive attitude toward dental care.

- Parents need to help children brush their teeth until they're about 5 years old.

- Avoid "baby-bottle tooth-decay syndrome." Putting a baby to bed with a bottle of milk or juice may result in rampant decay and early loss of baby teeth. This can lead to toothaches and infection and even cause problems in eating and talking. There may be problems when the permanent teeth come in with no baby teeth to guide them, which means expensive orthodontic treatment to correct the resulting mis-aligned teeth.

- Discourage your children from eating too many sugary snacks.

- If a pregnant woman takes the antibiotic tetracycline, her baby's teeth may come in stained. Therefore, if you think you may be pregnant, tell your doctor. Tetracycline may still be the drug of choice, but let your doctor make a fully informed prescription.

Teeth cleaning and maintenance for family members is available during the sponsor's birth month. For more information, call 3321.

February brings challenges, opportunities

By CMSgt. Coy Martin
Senior Enlisted Advisor

We sure do have a lot of things happening in the next few months. We have the: Sweetheart Ball, NCO Leadership School graduation, Black History activities, National Prayer Breakfast, several Undergraduate Pilot Training graduations, Presidents' Days, 1958th Communications Squadron Dining Out, the Reese Open House, Easter, senior master sergeant promotion release, combined Unit Effectiveness Inspection/Mission Capabilities Inspection — the list goes on and on.

We can handle them. All of us are accustomed to the numerous and varied activities associated with being assigned to a flying training wing. Let's focus our attention on two of these upcoming events, or shall we say — opportunities.

Our open house March 25 gives us the opportunity to show our super friends on the South Plains what we do at Reese and how well we do it.

This year we are indeed fortunate to have the ambassadors of the Air Force, the "Thunderbirds," stop by and spend a couple of days with us. They will help us salute everyone living on the South Plains. The open house will also afford base units and affiliate organizations the opportunity to raise money to support their year-long programs.

The second event, the combined UEI/MCI provides us an opportunity to show our headquarters, the Air Force and the American taxpayer that we are worth every dime they invest in us. An opportunity to again demonstrate that the Reese reputation for excellence is indeed true and that "Reese Spirit" is alive and well.

Both of these events are extremely important to Reese, Air Training Command and the Air Force. To be successful we must prepare for both of them. Getting ready will require a lot of hard work by every one of us.

The enlisted men and women in the wing will be called upon to do a large portion of this work. Be positive, we have to get ready anyway, so why not step off smartly and have some fun while we do it.

Take a look at your workplace and if something needs fixed, fix it and move on to the next challenge. Before long, everything will have been accomplished and we are ready!

ATC initiates review of training programs

Cold Work

AIC Derek Helton, 64th Organizational Maintenance Squadron, refuels a T-37 in the "arctic" cold experienced here Friday. The 64th FTW commander cites those who braved the cold on page 2. (U.S. Air Force photo by 2nd Lt. Nikki Ladoulis)

Air Training Command has initiated a broad area review of undergraduate and graduate flying training programs and identified more than 30 actions to be evaluated.

ATC Commander Lt. Gen. Robert C. Oaks initiated the review so the command could take a hard, critical look at its flying training programs with the objective of improving the quality of flying training through the next decade, according to ATC officials.

The review has a special emphasis on those facets of training required to support Specialized Undergraduate Pilot Training, a dual-track program scheduled to begin replacing the current single track method at Reese and other bases in 1992.

"I want us to make sure that 10 years from now, we're where we ought to be in the flying training business," General Oaks said at the recent ATC Commander's Conference at Randolph AFB, Texas.

The review officially opened with a board area review conference at Randolph in mid-January. Conference attendees included members of the ATC headquarters staff, wing commanders and project officers from the nine ATC flying organizations, representatives from the accession sources and training experts from Military Airlift Command, Strategic Air Command, Tactical Air Command, Air Force Reserve, Headquarters Air Force and the U.S. Navy. Maj. Gen. Robert S. Delligatti, ATC vice commander, chaired the conference.

Examples of issues being evaluated by members of the review include:

* The primary aircraft training system — the eventual replacement aircraft for the T-37 "Tweet" used to train pilot candidates during their primary phase of training. Issue: hardware configuration requirements of the system — side-by-side vs. tandem seats, jet vs. propeller engine, one vs. two engines.

* Flight Screening Program — a program designed to identify trainees with the potential to complete UPT. Issues: FSP relationship to SUPT and the pilot selection and classification system. FSP and trainees with private pilot licenses and how flight screening should be performed in the future.

* Wing deputy commander for operations structure — current structure at UPT bases is a three squadron concept. The 82nd Flying Training Wing at Williams AFB, Ariz., is testing a four-squadron concept. Issue: The fundamental UPT operations organizational structure required to best support SUPT — number and types of squadrons.

The review members will evaluate these and other issues and report their findings and recommendations at the next major review conference, scheduled for April. This process will continue until all issues are identified and resolved and proposals are approved by the ATC commander for programming and implementation, said ATC officials.

"General Oaks charged us to take a hard, critical look at the flying training process with the foresight required to determine what we can do to improve the training process and that's what we're doing," said General Delligatti.

Overseas selection dates set

Selections of overseas assignments for Reese maintenance personnel will be made by Air Force Manpower and Personnel Center officials this month and again in April.

According to 1st Lt. Barbara Mahan, chief of personnel utilization here, these selections will be for overseas reporting during November and December of this year and January of 1990.

Lieutenant Mahan said all maintenance personnel should ensure that they have current overseas preference lists on file. She also said those interested in special duty assignments should apply now.

Reese maintenance personnel who are not selected for overseas assignments will be assisted in the selections of stateside assignments by a special joint Air Training Command/AFMPC team here in May.

SPs face 'real' enemy

By Sgt. Kevin Dye

One hundred meters ahead you spot the enemy attempting to probe your defensive positions with night observation devices.

You notify the command element of the enemy contact, who in turn notifies other security forces on the distributed area defense.

As you take aim with your M-16, the enemy trips one of many trip flares in the area, then the darkness becomes a combination of light and sound as the defenders fire into the night and ground burst simulators rock the ground beneath you.

This scene is similar to many others that the Reese defenders must face on their way to receiving a coveted graduation certificate from the Military Airlift Command Combat Training and Evaluation Center at Little Rock AFB, Ark., better known as Volant Scorpion.

Two Reese squads of infantry trained combat security police recently participated in the two-week exercise designed to evaluate the training necessary to protect Air Force bases into the next century.

Today, every Reese defender must complete infantry training taught by the U.S. Army. Volant Scorpion is an evaluation center designed to test that training in a realistic environment with "real" enemy forces. The course tests physical ability, combat readiness and other areas associated with the soldier in the field.

The last test of the course is the final field training exercise, which lasts six "grueling" days and places U.S. Air Force security police forces against U.S. Army forces in a combat scenario.

Fatalities are monitored by utilizing the multiple integrated laser exercise system worn by each soldier. The system detects the probable path of a real bullet and identifies a "hit" with a loud ringing noise.

The realistic training provided in Volant Scorpion makes all participants winners.

Health program aids several base families

The nutrition classes and nutritious food offered by the Women, Infants and Children Program are helping many Reese members, according to Capt. Debra Fields, program coordinator for Reese. "It is a good health program that teaches about good nutrition, and provides nutritious foods to supplement a diet," she said.

Approximately 100 Reese members have signed up for the program since November. An average of $40 per person in food vouchers are given out each month, which can be redeemed for food items that are rich in vitamins A and C, calcium, protein and iron. This comes to around $48,000 in annual distribution.

The program gives foods such as milk, eggs, cheese, juice, cereal and beans to women and children. For babies, it gives infant cereal, juice and formula with iron. It also provides basic health care and tips on how to eat well for better health, stretching food dollars, feeding infants and children and better health care during child-bearing years.

"To qualify for the program, you must be either a pregnant or breastfeeding woman, a new mother or a child under age five," said Captain Fields. "Individuals must need the program foods to be healthy, and must meet the rules for how much money a family can make. Income guidelines are very generous." For example, a family of four can make $21,550 a year and still get program services.

Program representatives from the Lubbock Children's Health Clinic will be available on the first and second Monday of every month in the pediatric clinic of the base hospital from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Leave and earnings statements are required to figure income.

For more information, call Capt. Fields, 3139.

Deterrence - DoD looks into the 1990s

By TSgt. Mark Walsh
AFNS Pentagon Correspondent

Despite improved relations between the United States and the Soviet Union, former Secretary of Defense Frank Carlucci warns the West not to become complacent.

In the Department of Defense's annual report to Congress for fiscal year 1990, Mr. Carlucci said, "We should applaud and encourage Kremlin changes that are consistent with our interests, but we must be guided by realism, not wishful thinking."

Released Jan. 18, the annual report provides a blueprint "to protect America in the coming decade."

The report proposes building on Western security, basing itself not on the Kremlin's gestures of good will, but on actual Soviet military capabilities.

The Air Force's share of the proposed $305 billion military budget totals $100.8 billion. The Air Force budget includes further development and deployment of new aircraft and weapons as well as modernization of existing systems.

According to Dan McIntyre, wing comptroller, the estimated FY-90 budget for Reese is approximately 36 million.

But lying at the core of the best crafted defense strategy is the "quality and commitment of the people assigned to its execution," Mr. Carlucci said.

For this reason, he said the total force must be built in such a way to respond effectively to a variety of contingencies, including peacetime operations, low-intensity and large-scale conflicts.

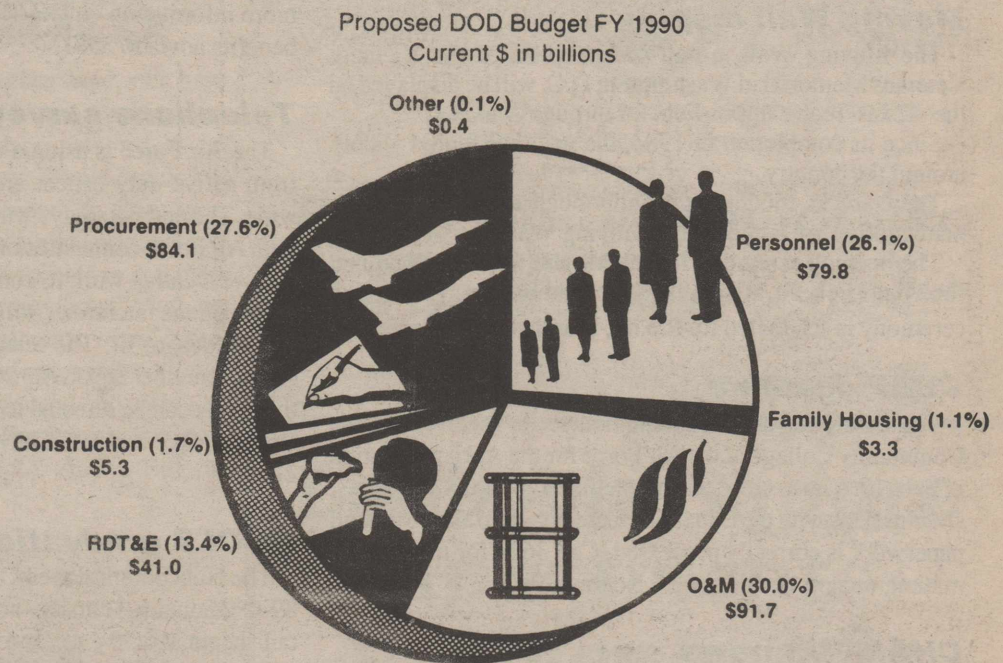

Mr. Carlucci said programs such as retention of quality people, pay matters, health care and a variety of other quality of life concerns must remain at the top of the manpower issues.

Plans to further develop and deploy the B-2 bomber, as well as the advanced tactical fighter, remain vital to national security, he said.

Introduction of the B-1B bomber in 1985 has significantly improved U.S. ability to penetrate heavily defended enemy areas. However, developing the B-2 will provide another crucial link in strategic modernization, Mr. Carlucci said.

He said the military must procure modern equipment to offset deep cuts in spending.

Air Force now has 37 tactical fighter wings. That number will drop to 35 by fiscal year 1990. By upgrading tactical aircraft already in service or replacing aging aircraft with state of the art systems, the Air Force hopes to gain tactical air superiority.

"Within a fiscally constrained environment, we believe that a smaller, more robust, and fully trained force is preferable to a larger, less sustainable one," Mr. Carlucci said.

The report outlines important defense decisions for the new administration and Congress. Although the global picture looks brighter, Mr. Carlucci said continued vigilance and financial investment will be required for the security of America and its allies.

"This report outlines a sound, affordable program to maintain adequate U.S. military strength as we continue to work toward the safer world we hope to see," he said.

Larry Zellers, a former prisoner of war from the "Forgotten War" and retired Air Force chaplain, will be the guest speaker at Reese's observance of the National Prayer Breakfast, Thursday.

The observance will be held at 7 a.m. in the Officers' Open Mess.

Mr. Zellers is a native Texan. He was born in Weatherford on November 30, 1922. He received his bachelor's degree from North Texas State and the Master of Divinity degree from Drew University, Madison, New Jersey.

He served in the U.S. Army Air Corps in World War II and received the Air Medal.

As a missionary to Korea, he was captured and held prisoner for three years with military and civilian prisoners.

Only 25 percent of his fellow prisoners survived.

On a recent trip to Korea, he was able to help authorities locate some of the missing casualties from some of the death marches with which he was involved.

In addition, he participated with Vice Adm. Charles A. Lockwood in formulating the U.S. Military Code of Conduct. Larry Zellers' forced expertise, due to his POW status, was used at the U.S. Air Force Survival School in Nevada.

All Reese personnel and families are invited to attend the breakfast. The cost will be $3.75 per person. Tickets are available through unit orderly rooms and can be purchased by cash or be charged to club cards. Reservations are required and should be made by Tuesday.

Call the chapel at 3237 for more information.

News Briefs

Moving Wall display

The Moving Wall, a half-scale replica of the Vietnam Veterans Memorial in Washington, D.C. will be displayed on the Texas Tech campus Feb. 26 through March 4.

Since its completion in 1984, the wall has toured widely around the country.

There are 58,156 names of individuals killed in the Vietnam conflict are listed on the Moving Wall.

The opening ceremony for the Moving Wall is scheduled for 2 p.m., Feb. 26, at the 19th Street and Boston. The closing ceremony is scheduled for 2 p.m., March 4, at the same site.

CCAF deadline

The cutoff for all documentation to be received by the Community College of the Air Force for the April graduation is Feb. 17. Those close to completing individual programs, should check with the Education Center staff to assure that all paperwork is correctly processed. Call 3634 for more information, or stop by Bldg. 920, Room 139.

CHAMPUS news

Not long ago, an advertisement appeared in the magazine supplement of a military-oriented newspaper. The ad offered professional treatment for child and adult bedwetting problems, and indicated that the advertiser was an "Approved CHAMPUS Provider," implying to readers that the bedwetting treatments would be covered by CHAMPUS.

The fact is that the Department of Defense regulation which governs CHAMPUS does not allow the program to cover treatments for bedwetting problems; nor can CHAMPUS share the cost of any services or supplies related to treatments for bedwetting (or for any other condition or treatment that isn't covered by CHAMPUS).

Any claims for bedwetting treatments that might have erroneously been paid by a CHAMPUS claims processor will be subject to collection for the amounts paid in error. For more information on CHAMPUS, contact the Reese health benefits advisor, 3581.

Telephone survey

The Air Force is using a telephone survey to collect data from active duty officer and enlisted personnel Air Force wide. The current study, which began earlier this year, deals with Air Force compensation issues. Air Force members will receive a call at work to complete a 10-minute survey.

Telephone interviews will be conducted by Markey Facts, Inc., Chicago, Ill. The telephone survey has an Air Force control number of USAF SCN 89-03. Questions regarding this study can be directed to the Air Force Personnel Survey Branch, HQ AFMPC/DPMYOS, AUTOVON 487-5680/2265.

NCOLS graduation

The Noncommissioned Officers Leadership School Class 89-C graduates Thursday at the Enlisted Open Mess. Cocktails begin at 6:30 p.m., and dinner begins at 7 p.m. The cost of the meal is $8.50. Please make reservations to SSgt. Paula Jenkins at 3147/3635 today. The guest speaker for the event is Col. Monroe S. Sams Jr., commander, 64th Flying Training Wing.

Radio operators

Reese amateur radio operators ("Hams") who are members of the U.S. Air Force Military Affiliate Radio System are being sought. If you are a member, or would like to become one, call TSgt. James Parsons, Reese MARS director.

IMA benefits

The individual mobilization augmentee is an integral part of the active duty forces. IMAs are assigned/attached to various bases throughout the United States. They prepare for their war time mission by performing active duty jobs during the year. There are numerous opportunities in the IMA program, such as earning points toward retirement as well as maintaining many military benefits. If separating from active duty and interested in remaining associated with the service as a reservist, contact 1st Lt. Jeff Moore at 3744, or SSgt. Donna Page at 3082.

Dental assistant training

The Dental Clinic is offering a dental assistant training program for Red Cross volunteers beginning Thursday. The training program is a one-year course. After successful completion of the course, certificates will be presented from the Dental Clinic. Volunteers can expect to work an average of 25 hours per week. If needed, free child care will be provided. Those interested, contact TSgt. John Fleming, NCOIC, Dental Clinic, 3321, or Capt. Debra Fields, Hospital Red Cross coordinator, 3139.

"Stay-in School" program

The Lubbock Independent School District is looking for a few "good troops," or at least for someone with initiative, interested in developing a "Stay-in-School" sponsorship program for 130 students at Evans Junior High School. These students need academic help as well as encouragement to finish school. Interested individuals or groups, please contact Tom Brown, Coordinator, LISD Dropout Resource/Research Center, 766-1117.

PME openings

Applications are being accepted for the commandant position (master sergeant or senior master sergeant) at the Reese Professional Military Education Center. If interested, contact the Consolidated Base Personnel Office Customer Service Unit, 3276, or SMSgt. J.T. Washington, 3635.

Concerned couples plan 'Empty Arms' seminars

Statistically, 15 to 20 percent of all pregnancies will result in "empty arms" due to a loss of the child.

Since the military has a high population in the child bearing age group, the potential for this tragedy to happen is great. The Reese chaplains are aware of at least four couples in the Reese community with "empty arms."

Wilford Hall USAF Medical Center has recognized the significance of this calamity. In 1988, their grief counselors responded to 100 cases.

Locally conducted share groups are attended by those unfamiliar with the military environment and by those who have established friends and family members in the area. Military families are frequently distanced by many miles from their family. We at Reese have interested couples who would like to begin their own share group. If you have experienced "empty arms" and would like to share with people who understand, our base chapel has a new program for you.

Concerned couples met at the base chapel Jan. 19 and decided to meet once a month to share their loss and to encourage one another. Those present decided to call their group the "Empty Arms." The next meeting is Thursday, 7 p.m. at the chapel. They encourage anyone who has experienced "empty arms" to join them. For information, call Chaplain (Maj.) Aaron Ray at 3237.

Black Americans continue proud military heritage

From the American Revolution to the Vietnam War, blacks have fought proudly.

Even before the Revolution, blacks were involved in the fight for freedom. One of the first men to give his life for American independence was Crispus Attucks, a runaway slave.

He was killed when British soldiers fired on a crowd in Boston, March 5, 1770.

One thousand black enlisted troops fought for their new nation during the Revolutionary War.

Blacks served in integrated army and navy units during the early years of the republic.

But from the Civil War to the start of the Korean Conflict, they fought under a separate but equal policy.

After 1865

Turning to the west after the Civil War, they fought Apaches and Sioux, defeating Chief Victorio and capturing Geronimo.

Blacks fought with Teddy

Roosevelt's Rough Riders on San Juan Hill. More than two million blacks registered for the draft in World War I, many seeing action with the 92nd and 93rd Divisions. After the Armistice, the black units were deactivated. Only a handful of senior black officers remained in uniform.

One was Lt. Col. Benjamin O. Davis Sr. who became the first black Army general. His son, Benjamin O. Davis Jr., was only the second black to be graduated from West Point.

In 1941 Captain Davis broke the Army Air Corps color barrier, becoming one of the first blacks to take advanced flying training. He went on to command the 93rd Pursuit Squadron, the first black air unit.

The National Security Act of 1947 established the Air Force. One of the men who transferred to the new air arm was then-Colonel Davis.

A year later, President Harry S.

Truman established the Fahy Committee to examine existing regulations regarding military personnel.

He wanted to establish equality of treatment and opportunity for all, and the committee proved it could be done.

Colonel Davis sat on the board to examine records of blacks for reassignment to previously all-white units.

A wing commander in the Korean War, Colonel Davis rose to become Lieutenant General Davis, chief of staff of the United Nations Command in Korea and later deputy commander of the U.S. Strike Command, MacDill AFB, Fla.

Blacks were among the first on the scene in Vietnam, as members of advisory teams in the early 1960s.

Today thousands of black officers and enlisted people serve in the Air Force, working in every specialty. They are a proud role model for all of America's youth.

Black history activities set

Reese's Black History Committee and other base agencies have planned an array of activities to stimulate interest, increase knowledge and awareness of the contributions of black Americans to American history.

The schedule of activities includes:

* Feb. 11, at the Reese Physical Fitness Center, a basketball competition will be held, beginning at noon.

* A luncheon will be held at the Reese Child Care Center Feb. 14, time to be announced.

* Feb. 15, Soul Food will be served on the menu at the Caprock Cafe, beginning at 11 a.m.

* Feb. 17, a Soul Food tasting will be held at the Mathis Recreation Center, beginning at 11 a.m.

* A fashion show will be held Feb. 18 at the Enlisted Open Mess, 7:30 p.m.

* A Gospel Jubilee is scheduled for Feb. 19 at the Base Theater, time to be announced.

* The Black History Banquet is scheduled for later this month.

"Our goal for this black history observance is to foster teamwork and understanding among the personnel of Reese," said Capt. Gregory Cummings, co-project officer.

"Teamwork is a key ingredient to our readiness."

The theme for this year's observance is "The role of Afro-American Churches in Economic, Political and Social Development at Home and Abroad."

Also, PBS — Channel 5, will present a number of documentaries, presentations and movies during February. Check your local listings for times.

Bring tapes and bowl to favorite tunes. There will be prizes, food, music and fun for everyone.

Customer service training

Customer service has become the buzz-word of the eighties, but Reese is doing more than talking about it. Each of the 190 Morale, Welfare and Recreation employees is scheduled to participate in the worldwide, Air Force MWR initiative to improve customer service by MWR employees.

The initiative features a 10-part video training series that emphasizes each MWR employees role in "Doing Good Things For People."

Bouquets and corsages

The Arts and Crafts Center is now taking orders for silk flower bouquets and corsages for Valentine's Day. To order a corsage or bouquet, stop by the Arts and Crafts Center, Bldg. 340, or call 3241 for more information.

Commissary sale

The Reese Commissary is hosting a "Doing Good Things For People" sale Monday through Feb. 28. During the sale period, the Morale, Welfare and Recreation division will present a slide presentation of MWR activities.

Handouts telling about MWR activities at Reese will be available for pick up at the Commissary entrance. For more information, contact Becky Pillifant at 6269.

Merit badge books

The Base Library has just received a complete set of Boy Scout merit badge books. These books are available for check out from the library.

Heir force

A new member to the Reese family, Jennifer Lee Alexander, was born to Debbie and SSgt. Jimmy Alexander Feb. 1 at St. Mary's Hospital. She weighed six pounds, 10 ounces. Sergeant Alexander is assigned to the 64th Field Maintenance Squadron.

Editor's note: The Roundup is interested in printing names of new Reese family members. Send names and information to Public Affairs, Stop 9.

Girl Scout books

A set of Girl Scout books has been added to the base library, courtesy of a former Reese Girl Scout.

Marie Winslow, who qualified for a Girl Scout campership here last year through cookie sales, asked that campership funds be used to purchase Girl Scout handbooks for Reese.

According to Lynn Sanspree, Girl Scout service unit chairperson here, Miss Winslow was unable to take advantage of the campership because of her families reassignment to Italy.

The new handbooks include History of Scouting, various handbooks, badgebooks, song and game books.

Reese roll off set

Reese bowlers interested in trying out for the base team must qualify through the base roll off, Feb. 18-19 and 25-26.

In order to qualify, men must have established a 160 or better average at the Windmill Lanes prior to the roll off. Women are exempt. All bowlers must be eligible to participate in the Air Training Command championships in April.

For additional details, contact the bowling center staff at 3116.

Volleyball coaches

A volleyball coaches meeting will be held at the base library conference room Feb. 17, 10 a.m. All coaches are requested to attend. Volleyball season begins in March.
