Base announces civilian nominees

The 1989 Civilian Employee of the Year awards luncheon is March 30, 11:30 a.m. at the Officers' Open Mess.

The civilian employee of the year awards program was established in 1984 to recognize the contributions that civilians make to the mission of the wing.

The awards program is divided into nine categories for which employees will compete:

Category one, GS-4 and below—Carolyn S. Johnson, a medical clerk, Billye C. Jones, Supply Clerk and Jeanette Zeromski, a clerk typist;

Category two, GS-5 to GS-8—Sandra J. Briseno, management assistant, Janet L. Duke, bowling facility manager, Charles C. Fallin, supply clerk, Jerry J. Fisher, traffic management specialist, Carlos Jordan, audio-visual contract monitor and Pansy S. Pennington, communications contract monitor;

Category three, GS-9 and above—Mary-Ann E. Lacy, position classification specialist, Holly C. Novak, budget analyst and Pat J. Sanderson, supervisory budget analyst; Category four, WG/WL-8 and below—David L. Lightner, powered support equipment repairer and Rocky B. Shaw, motor vehicle operator.

Category five, WG/WL-9 and above—Walter F. Brumit, aircraft mechanic leader and John R. Sanchez, automotive mechanic foreman;

Category six, WS-9 and below—Joe D. Hensley, maintenance mechanic foreman, James E. Truelock, storage and distribution gen. foreman and Arnold D. Wuthrich, aircraft engine repairer foreman;

Category seven, WS-10 and above—Melvin R. Robertson, electronics mechanic foreman and Floyd M. Taylor, aircraft electrical systems mechanic foreman;

Category eight, NAF-4 and below—Robin L. Briggs, operations clerk and Sharon M. Hedum, child care center clerk;

Category nine, NAF-5 and above—Ezekiel Laney, maintenance mechanic and Ruby J. Thomas, recreation assistant.

Reese hospital resumes 24-hour emergency care

The USAF Hospital-Reese resumed 24 hour emergency room service March 9 with continuous in-house physician coverage.

Through a recent agreement with Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center, resident physicians perform in-house duties at Reese Hospital on nights and weekends, explained Maj. Ronald Evans, hospital administrator. "Having a physician in-house around the clock will provide a vital service to all Reese people," he said.

This service was established to provide continuous access to medical care.

Major Evans cautioned potential users of the emergency room not to be under false expectation of having a major trauma center here.

"It is certainly not prudent to drive past any of the four major hospitals in Lubbock to seek care at Reese for an emergency condition," he said.

Because of other limitations in terms of support personnel and equipment, life threatening emergencies will continue to be transported to one of the downtown hospitals.

"If it is an emergency, get to the nearest hospital immediately," said Major

The Texas Tech physicians will be working at Reese from 9 p.m. to 7 a.m. on week nights, and around the clock on weekends.

"All of these physicians have impeccable credentials," said Major Evans. "They have completed their basic medical degrees and are now pursuing advanced specialty degrees from Texas Tech. So, while you may not be seeing a 'blue suiter,' if you need emergency services after hours, be assured you will be receiving first rate medical care from concerned, trained professionals."

Commander's Perspective

Reese on display

I have spoken many times of the special relationship that exists between Reese AFB and our surrounding communities. The people of Lubbock and the South Plains have been friendly and helpful hosts to our base for more than five decades. They actively support our mission — training the world's best military pilots — in both word and deed. We're fortunate to be able to live and work in such a supportive environment.

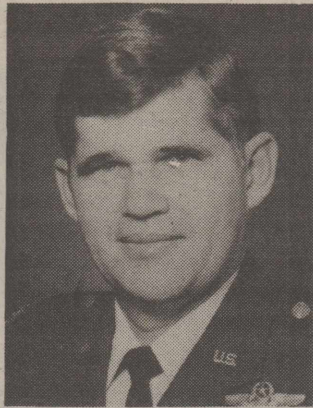

Last week, we at Reese had the opportunity to show that the spirit is mutual by opening a first-class exhibit at the Science Spectrum, a community project brought into being by some energetic and farsighted community leaders. Next week, we get another chance as we open our base to thousands of citizens as Reese salutes the people of the South Plains.

The Reese exhibit at the Science Spectrum is the result of nine months of extensive work by volunteers from various base organizations. Lt. Col. Bob Crawford was the project officer and he and his helpers from ops, maintenance and the hospital did an outstanding job. They spent hundreds of hours on weekends, holidays and late nights to make it happen. You can see their names on a plaque at the exhibit, which I strongly urge you to visit, if you haven't already. Called the "Hall of Flight," it's the first and only "hands on" museum sponsored by the Air Force. It's a class act, with permanent displays borrowed from the National Air and Space Museum, the Air Force Museum and Reese itself. We can be proud of our contribution to this community effort.

Next Saturday, March 25, the whole base will be on exhibit for the general public as we hold our annual Open House. The highlight will be an air show by the Air Force Thunderbirds, who will perform at two in the afternoon. We expect up to 100,000 people to accept our invitation to visit Reese and see their Air Force in action, so be prepared for the traffic and come early! Come in the morning to see the many static display aircraft — both military and civilian — and enjoy flyovers and other activities before the big show. That way you won't be watching the show while stuck in a jam-up on 19th or 4th Streets.

I know that many of you will be working in concessions, on details controlling crowds, and a thousand other duties next Saturday. Let me say in advance that I appreciate your efforts to help the wing and say a proper hello to the citizens of the South Plains.

We feel that we are good stewards of the taxpayers' money here at Reese, and we're anxious to show our friends from Lubbock and the surrounding communities how well we — and the Air Force — do our mission!

Do's and don'ts during contractor interviews

By Capt. Mark Gerrard
Base Legal Office

With Maintenance conversion just over the horizon, a growing number of Reese personnel have reported contact, or interest in establishing contact, with potential contractors. The important question in such circumstances is what can an active duty member legally do and what conduct must be avoided? Answers to the most frequently asked questions follow:

Q: Can maintenance personnel reply to recruitment solicitations (i.e., letters, newspaper ads, etc.) from potential contractors?

A: Yes. Active duty and civilian personnel may submit resumes and may interview with contractors.

Q: Who may interview?

A: Those members who have firmly indicated their intent to retire or separate (if eligible) may entertain inquiries from contractors. Further, they must inform their supervisor and commander of their intent to interview with a contractor to put them on notice of the potential for a conflict of interest.

Q: Can a member receive payment for an interview?

A: Yes, under some circumstances. As a practical matter, most contractors will be interviewing in the local area rather than flying personnel out of town to interview.

However, should that occur, AFR 30-30 prohibits a member from accepting any gratuity from a DoD contractor or those contractors desiring to do business with the Air Force. In this regard, if a contractor flies a member out of town for an interview, it is not considered a gratuity (1) to the extent that it is an actual reimbursement for travel costs, or (2) if the amount paid to the member does not exceed a reasonable per diem.

Q: What information may a member disclose to contractors?

A: By far this is the area with the most landmines to avoid. The easy answer is that no "inside information" may be disclosed.

Members may not discuss the maintenance operation, but should instead focus employment discussions on their individual qualifications and experience they have, and how they can contribute to the contractor's operations. They are free to use their experience to sell themselves and that experience is not "inside information." Typically, inside information refers to information contained in the solicitation or the

Q: Some contractors are telling our people that in order to bid on the contract, they must provide specific names of persons they will be hiring.

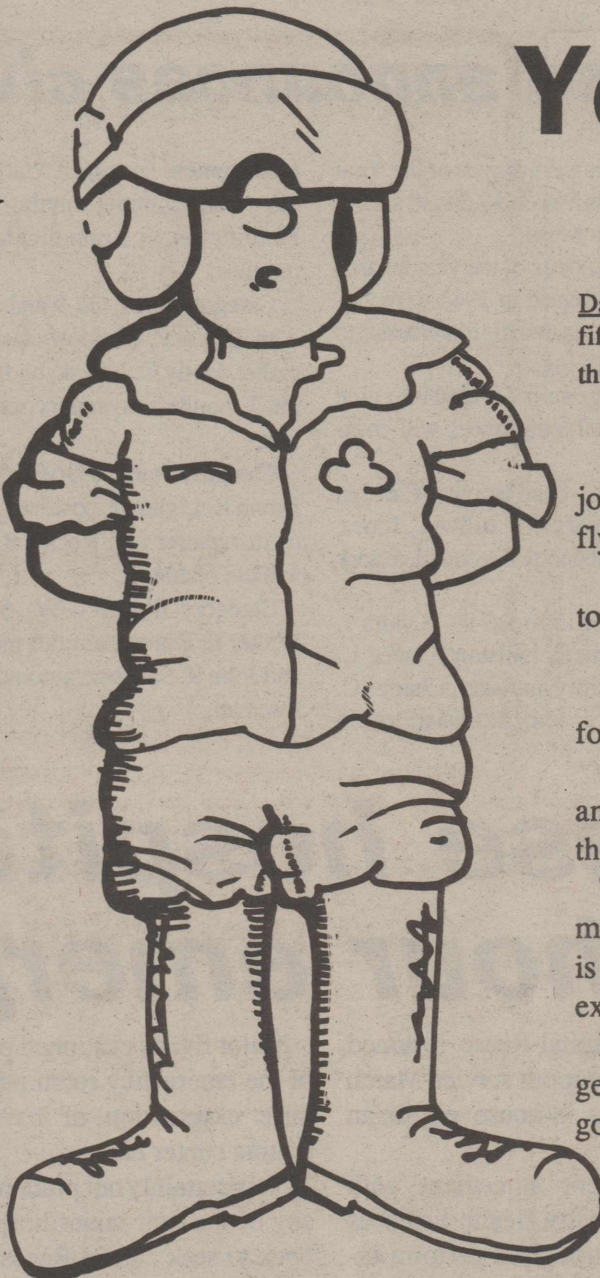

A: This is not true. Furthermore, members should ensure that the contractors use their names truthfully. For example, members should not permit contractors to state they have hired a member when they have only discussed the possibility of employment.

Q: If a contractor negotiates with a member, what information should the member reveal about others?

A: Contractors have been asking our people for names of other members who might want to leave the Air Force and work for them. They also want to know how to contact these members. Air Force personnel should not provide names of other job candidates.

If asked, they should offer to have their friends contact the contractor.

If a supervisor learns that a member has been disclosing the intentions of others to a contractor, that member should be counselled to stop immediately. Not only may it be a breach of common sense and ethics, but, depending upon the information released, it may be a breach of the Privacy Act as well.

Youth says — 'I want to be a pilot'

(Editor's note: Art Linkletter authored a book entitled Kids Say the Darndest Things. This South Carolina youngster's submission for a fifth grade writing assignment shows that kids "write" the darndest things too. It originally appeared in the South Carolina Aviation News.

When I grow up I want to be a pilot because it's a fun job and easy to do. That's why there are so many pilots flying around these days.

Pilots don't need much school. They just have to learn to read numbers so they can read their instruments.

I guess they should be able to read a road map too.

Pilots should be brave so they won't get scared if it's foggy and they can't see, or if a wing or motor falls off.

Pilots have to have good eyes to see through the clouds, and they can't be afraid of thunder or lightning because they are much closer to them than we are.

The salary pilots make is another thing I like. They make more money than they know what to do with. This is because people think that flying a plane is dangerous, except pilots don't because they know how easy it is.

I hope I don't get air sick because I get car sick and if I get air sick I couldn't be a pilot and then I would have to go to work.

T-38 pilot garners 'Well Done' award

First Lt. Ted M. Davis has earned the Air Training Command Well Done Award in recognition of his outstanding airmanship and judgment while flying a recent T-38 training sortie.

During a no-flap touch and go-landing, both main tires disintegrated and debris was ingested by the right engine. Still on the runway, Lieutenant Davis allowed the aircraft to accelerate to takeoff speed using maximum power. Once safely airborne, a chase ship was used to assist in determining the extent of the damage and controllability. Lieutenant Davis and his student completed all checklist items and flew a flawless single engine approach and landing, thus saving a valuable crew and aircraft.

"The timely actions of Lieutenant Davis reflect the true professionalism for which this award is reserved," said Lt. Gen. Robert Oaks, commander, Air Training Command.

"His performance is yet another example of the superb instructor pilots working at Reese. His performance was indeed 'Well Done,'" said General Oaks.

AF modifies bonus list

As of March 1, bonuses paid to those who re-enlist in critical career fields changed.

On that date, Air Force added seven Air Force Specialty Codes to the bonus list and posted increases to several others, according to SSgt. Donna Butzer, base career counselor

On April 1, several specialties will be dropped from the list and the bonus multiple for three others will be reduced. Selective re-enlistment bonuses are calculated by multiplying one month's base pay by the designated multiple for the respective zone, such as those listed below. That amount is then multiplied by the years and months of additional obligated service.

March selective re-enlistment bonus changes are:

Keeping 'em flying

Hotel flight has its name on almost every monthly and annual award available for flightline personnel.

The flight was selected for Flight of the Month in August, October, December and February – four of the last seven months.

The flight was also selected as the Flight of the Year for 1988, T-38 branch.

Additionally, they were selected as 64th Organizational Maintenance Squadron Safety Flight of the Year for 1988.

Since December 1987, the flight has been selected six times as Check Flight Release Rate winner. That means they had the best record for first time releases of a repaired jet after maintenance.

"Teamwork and dedication of the flight have made it all happen," said MSgt. John Verburgt, flight chief, Hotel Flight. "It's this kind of 110 percent attitude and effort that gets our pilots trained."

In addition, instead of choosing a single crew chief for 'crew chief of the month,' the 54th FTS decided the entire day shift deserved the award for the month of February.

Eligible pilots sign for bonus

Air Force and Reese officials are optimistic about the pilot bonus program.

Seven weeks after it was put into effect, more than 60 percent of the January-March 1989 eligible pilots Air Force-wide have signed. Here at Reese 18 of 37 eligible pilots (48 percent) have accepted the bonus.

According to SSgt Michael J. Gaydos, Reese quality force branch, the Aviator Continuation Pay Program, more commonly referred to as the pilot bonus, went into effect Jan. 1, 1989.

Under provisions of the 1989 Defense Authorization Act, Congress authorized the Air Force to pay up to $12,000 per year to eligible Air Force pilots who agree to remain on active duty through their 14th year of active commissioned service.

Because of the relatively short implementation lead time following Congressional approval, the January-March 1989 eligible pilots have a grace period through March 31, 1989, to decide if they want to participate in the program with no payment penalty.

However, delaying a decision beyond March 31 will result in a reduced payment. For example, for every month of delay, it could cost an individual about $1,000 a month off the final payment.

In addition, delaying a decision could cause a pilot to enter a lower payment schedule based on years of service, said Sergeant Gaydos.

Pilots who elect to accept this bonus will continue to receive future payments even if Congress doesn't fund future bonuses.

"The Air Force views the contract as an equal agreement between the Air Force and the member. The Air Force is obligated to make payments regardless of future Congressional bonus decisions," a spokesman for the Air Force Military Personnel Center said.

Congress will decide whether or not there will be a continuation of the bonus for new eligibles beyond Fiscal Year 1989.

The current aviator continuation pay legislation only pertains to those pilots eligible between Jan. 1, 1989, and Sept. 30, 1989.

"While there is not yet a final approved package for Fiscal Year 1990, we have no plans to change bonus payment amount or payment schedules," the official added.

"Although the pilot bonus is needed and desired by the Air Force for use in the short-term, we are also looking to provide a more permanent, long-term solution to the pilot retention issue.

"An important ingredient in any long-term plan would be to restore the incentive value of aviation career incentive pay or flight pay. Air Force is working hard to restore that incentive value of aviation career incentive pay," said the official.

In discussing monitoring actions at the Air Force Military Personnel Center, the official emphasized that "It's business as usual."

Whether or not a pilot participates in the pilot bonus program will in no way affect any other entitlements, promotion or the assignment process.

The center's commander has personally instructed every assignments officer as to the intent of this program.

Promotion recommendations will continue to be based on an individual's potential to serve in the next higher grade — as evidenced by performance in the current grade.

Continuing emphasis is placed on ensuring commanders and supervisors understand and follow Air Force policy in this regard.

This program is a voluntary program and a pilot retention initiative.

"Using it for any other purpose, across the board, would be totally unacceptable and counterproductive to the original intent," said the official.

Eligible pilots are reminded that because of Fiscal Year Congressional funding, the Fiscal Year 1989 ACP payment will cover only nine months or three-fourths of the year.

The second payment will be made nine months after the first and will establish the date for subsequent full annual payments.

For additional information on the pilot bonus, interested persons should contact Sergeant Gaydos at 3823 or their respective squadron commanders.

TAC Day previews open house

Reese personnel will get a preview of some of military aircraft which will be on static display at this year's open house during Tactical Air Command Day activities here March 24.

TAC Day is held annually to familiarize the Reese community, especially students and instructor pilots, with the aircraft and mission of TAC.

TAC aircraft and crew will arrive at Reese from 8 a.m. through noon.

The TAC pilots will brief Reese Undergraduate Pilot Training students and their spouses in the base theater at 2 p.m. Instructors interested in TAC assignments may also attend.

Following the briefing, various TAC aircraft will be on static display from 3 to 5 p.m.

All Reese personnel are invited to visit the static displays

The aircraft will also be on static display at the March 25 open house. The open house, which will feature a performance by the Thunderbirds, is being held as an "Air Force Salute to the South Plains.

There will be a base reception for the Thunderbirds at the Reese Officers' Open Mess at 5 p.m., March 24. The reception is open to all base personnel.

Reese opens to the public at 10 a.m. March 25. A full schedule of activities have been planned including demonstrations by a B-52 Stratofortress, Harrier and F-15 Eagle. The Thunderbird show is slated for 2 p.m. There will also be a formation flyover by Reese aircraft and a crash and rescue demonstration by the base fire department.

A number of exhibits have been scheduled and open house officials anticipate having more than 30 military and civilian aircraft on static display.

Open house officials urge all planning on attending the open house to arrive early

Class 89-06 grads garner awards

Members of Undergraduate Pilot Training Class 89-06 graduated March 10. In addition to receiving their wings, five members of the class received awards for performance in various areas.

Second Lt. Robert W. Hehemann was awarded the Commander's Trophy, which signifies the class' top overall graduate. He also received the Flying Training Award, the Academic Training Award and was noted as a Distinguished Graduate.

Second Lt. Robert J. Wetzel was also selected as a Distinguished Graduate.

Capt. Stephen E. Thompson was awarded the Leadership Award.

Second Lt. Troy D. Hewgley was awarded the Citizenship Award

Second Lt. Ronald K. Sadler was selected as the Outstanding Second Lieutenant.

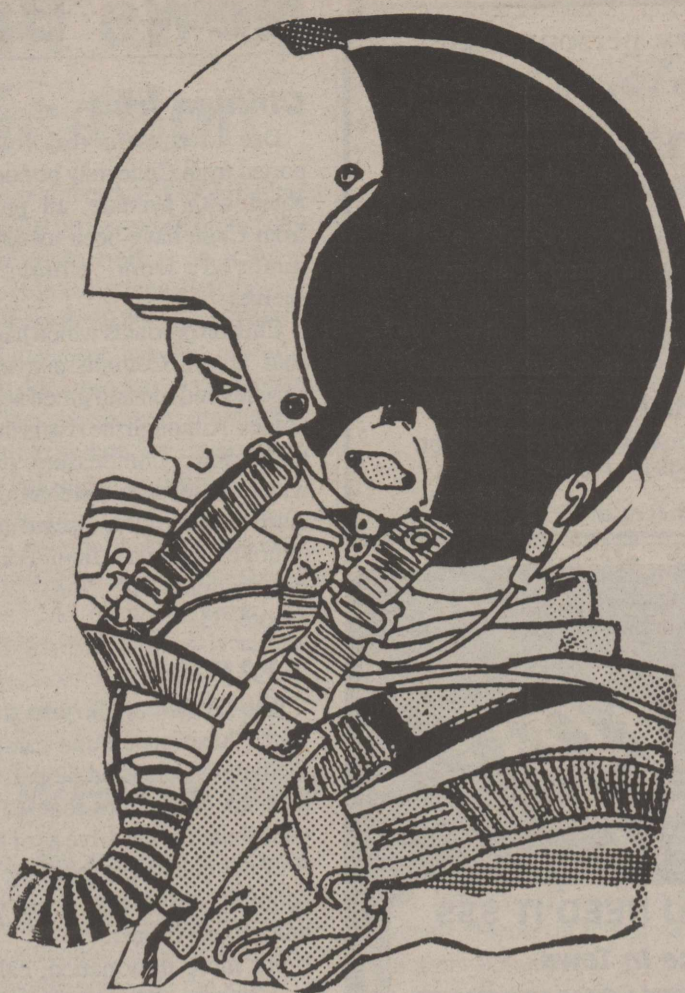

Five members of the class will return to Reese as instructor pilots. They are: 2nd Lts. Calvin M. Balsam, Douglas D. Decker, Todd J. McCubbin, Michael J. Russel, and Robert J. Wetzel.

In addition to the class members' awards, four instructor pilots were awarded.

Capt. Greg Pampush, 35th Flying Training Squadron, and Capt. Eddie Norris, 54th Flying Training Squadron, were selected as the T-37 and T-38 academic instructor pilots.

First Lts. Darin Middleton, 35th FTS, and Darrell Strandberg, 54th FTS, were selected as the T-37 and T-38 flightline instructor pilots.

Outstanding crew chiefs selected by the class are A1C Richard Angell, T-37s, and SSGT. Edward Marko Jr., T-38s, both assigned to the 64th Organizational Maintenance Squadron.

35 Reese lieutenants earn tracks

Air Force picked 3,933 first lieutenants for promotion to captain.

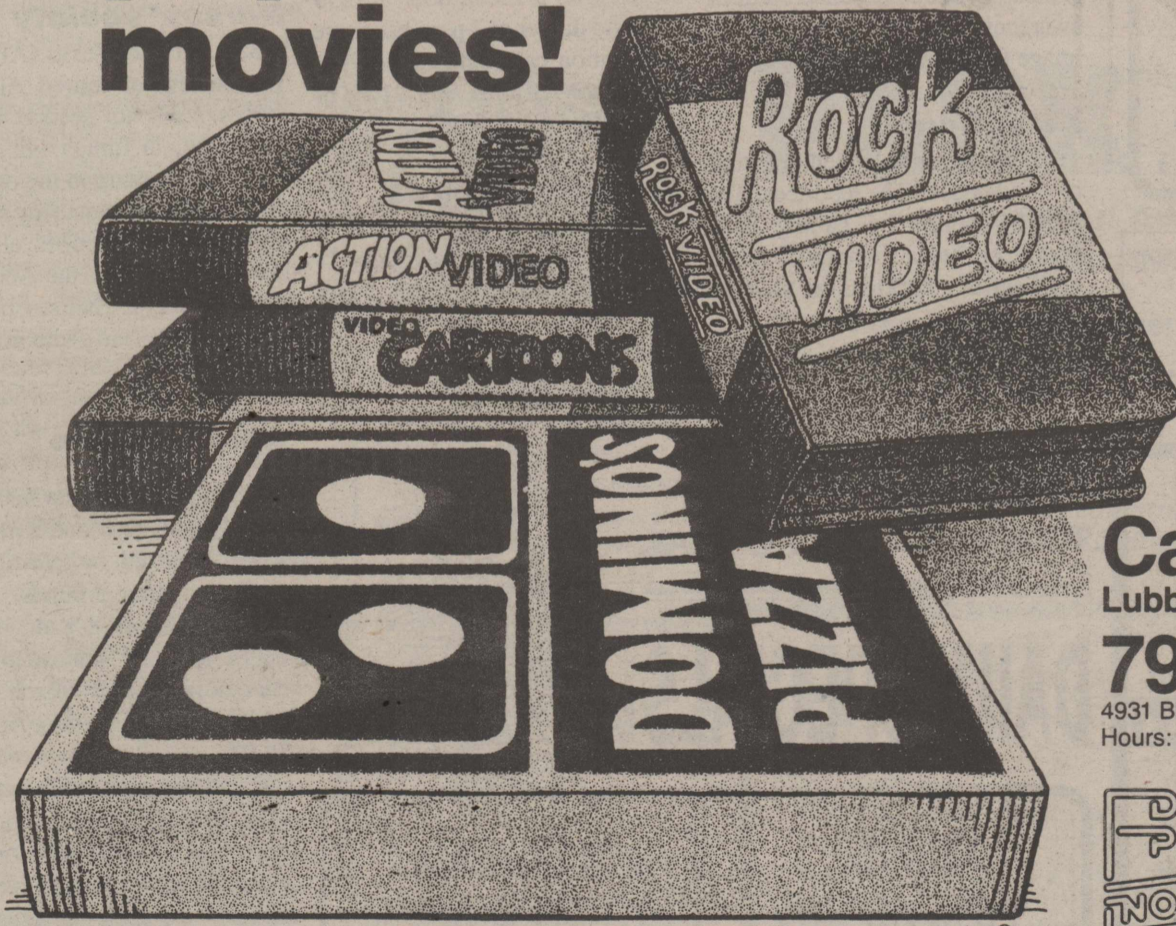

At Reese, 35 first lieutenants were picked for promotion. They are: Keith A. Acree, Geoffrey B. Biedermann, William J. Buckholtz, Robert K. Burger, Raymond E. Crownhart, Jeffrey D. Deem, Paul S. Felton, Kurt L. Gallegos, Christopher L. Parker, Thomas O. Ruggiero, Donald T. Saunders, Joseph T. Smith and Robert J. Wittmann assigned to the 35th Flying Training Squadron; Christopher J. Anderson, Richard A. Barker, Bradley E. Buck, William T. Chaulk, Ted M. Davis, James L. Gregory II, John L. Hampton, Scott Heckenberger, Gary A. Mausolf and Randy J. Psyk assigned to the 54th Flying Training Squadron; Charles D. Black, Richard I. Hermansen, Steven L. Johnson, Jimmy Lau, Christopher C. Norris, David N. Payne, Andrew H. Pears, Michael D. Shirley and John R. Swanson assigned to the 64th Student Squadron; Cindy L. Lemay and Stanley D. Pelfery assigned to USAF Hospital-Reese; and Douglas D. White assigned to the 64th Organizational Maintenance Squadron.

The 1989 Central Captain Board that met at Air Force Military Personnel Center at Randolph AFB, Texas Jan. 9 and considered 4,164 officers for a selection rate of 94.5 percent. Among line officers, 3,488 were selected out of 3,701 eligibles for a selection rate of 94.2 percent.

In-the-zone selection rates for pilots was 99.5 percent; navigators, 98.8 percent; non-rated operations officers, 95.7 percent; and mission support officers, 94.4 percent. News Briefs

Chilean fruit

Due to concern that fruit imported from Chile may be contaminated with cyanide, all products from Chile have been temporarily removed from Commissary shelves.

Chilean products which had been sold at the Commissary include peaches and red and green seedless grapes. Although the risk is thought to be low, Commissary patrons who have recently purchased these items are advised to discard them or return them for a refund. For more information, call Maj. William Moore, 3534.

AFAF drive

The second week into the Air Force Assistance Fund campaign, the base has reached 62 percent of its goal, with more than $12,000 contributed to the drive as of March 9. If not contacted about the campaign by next week, contact your unit project officer.

For more information, call 2nd Lt. Dwayne Wilhite, installation project officer, 3341.

Phone books

The new Feist Area Wide Directories have arrived. They can be picked up at the 1958th Communications Squadron, Bldg. 20, Monday - Friday, 8 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Membership meeting

Minorities in Action sponsors an open invitation for membership at Reese Manor Sunday, 4 p.m. Minorities in Action is a non-profit organization that helps build cultural awareness and promotes a positive image for welfare and morale.

Attention

All emergencies, whether actual or simulated, will be reported to the security police by calling 911. Please update all emergency and notification checklists to indicate this number.

For more information, call SSgt. Gordon Couffer, 3946.

Appliance recall

Toastmaster has issued a voluntary recall of their Model 5200 Toaster Oven with EK244, ED245 date codes, because of abnormally high glass breakage.

The date code is impressed on the back of the unit and on the outside of the carton.

Customers who purchased a Toastmaster 5200 Oven Broiler with ED244 or EK245 date codes, should return the unit to any Army and Air Force Exchange Customer Service desk for a replacement unit or a full refund.

TROA members

The Greater Lubbock chapter of The Retired Officers Association (TROA) holds a new membership drive April 1 in the north entrance of the Base Exchange Mall. Information and applications will be made available by members of the local chapter.

Membership is TROA is open to all men and women who are or have been commissioned or warrant officers in one of the seven uniformed services (Army, Air Force, Navy, Marine Corps, Coast Guard, National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration or Public Health Service) or the reserve, active duty or other component of those services. Also eligible are widows and widowers of any deceased individuals who would, if living, be eligible for membership. The local chapter meets each first Tuesday of the month at the Reese AFB Officers' Open Mess. The meeting begins with a social hour at 6:30 p.m. and dinner at 7 p.m. For more information, call Anna Vague, 795-7934; Jerry Grimes, 799-2106; or Evelyn Gaffga, 793-2614.

Air Force Chief of Staff urges commander communication

Communicating clearly with aircrews is a leadership issue the Air Force chief of staff wants all commanders to emphasize.

"I have become increasingly aware of the difficulty in providing the straight word to aircrews about decisions and policies that impact aircrews and the missions the aircrews perform," Gen. Larry Welch told commanders in the first of a series of commander's awareness program bulletins.

Citing a recent meeting with former squadron commanders, General Welch said some of them "were not aware of some important initiatives undertaken to help them retain our quality officers and aviators."

He continued, "This past year, we've sent lots of signals to our officers emphasizing the importance we attach to their daily jobs and our dedication to helping prepare them for future responsibilities.

"But we need to do more to communicate more clearly, and that's where you play a vital role that is unique to your job as squadron commander," General Welch said.

The general emphasized his belief that the squadron commander is a pivotal factor in providing guidance for officer professional development, as well as an influential leader in the retention effort.

General Welch told flying unit commanders that this newly created AIG message was his avenue to "get the straight, uninterpreted word to you on key issues impacting you and your people."

The first commander's awareness bulletin discusses the rationale behind aviator continuation pay. "A decision made after months of intense consideration by the senior leaders of the Air Force," General Welch said. (AFNS)

Incidents of theft drop here

Community awareness is credited with dramatic drops in incidents of theft and vandalism here, according to Sgt. Kevein Dye, Reese crime prevention manager.

"Public support in identifying potential crime areas was a major factor in reducing the incidents of theft and vandalism last month," said Sergeant Dye.

The February statistics showed nearly a 30 percent drop in thefts from January and more than 50 percent reduction in acts of vandalism from January.

One area where the base did have an increase was failure to control pets. There were four such incidents here in February.

"People need to understand that if they feed or shelter an animal they have assumed responsibility for it, even if they don't consider it a family pet," explained Sergeant Dye.

All incidents of failure to control pets were in Reese Village.

There were three incidents of buildings left insecure. These included Bldgs. 75, 450 and 250. There was also one incident of narcotics possession. Other blotter items in February included two incidents of damage to personal property (Bldgs. 320 and 315) and one incident of damage to a government vehicle (Bldg 123).

Sergeant Dye asks all members of the Reese community to contact the security police at 3400 any time they witness a crime or see suspicious activity. Anyone with specific knowledge of the incidents noted above should call 3999.

Air Force to get better weapons

Reese graduates being assigned to Air Force tactical combat units this year will benefit from several new armament products.

Tactical air forces will get weapons that are guided with more precision, can be launched from longer standoff distances, have greater ability to hit targets, and are easier to load on aircraft.

An important milestone was reached in October when the first production advanced medium-range air-to-air missile was delivered to the Air Force. AMRAAM is the division's top weapon program.

Pilots can launch an AMRAAM and maneuver because of the weapon's self-contained state-of-the-art radar. It provides the capability for multiple kills per engagement.

The AMRAAM was successful in 13 of 20 flight tests last year. Many of the tests, conducted by the 3246th Test Wing and the Air Force Test and Evaluation Center detachment at Eglin AFB, Fla., included electronic countermeasure threats which attempted to foil AMRAAM's on-board radar. The evaluation center created test situations that tactical air forces can expect when using AMRAAM in actual combat.

Focusing on effectiveness, the armaments division modified two other weapon systems - the GBU-15 and AGM-130.

After a GBU-15 or AGM-130 is dropped from an aircraft, a new data link, like its predecessor, allows the weapon systems officer in the aircraft to guide the weapon to the target. The data link passes video information from the weapon to the aircraft and steering commands from the aircraft to the weapon. The original video and command data links were vulnerable to electronic countermeasures; however, the improved data link works despite electronic jamming.

The GBU-15 and AGM-130 air-to-ground weapons allow aircrews to hit targets with 2,000-pound warheads while keeping the aircraft at distances beyond the reach of opposing air defenses. The GBU-15 is already deployed for operational use and will be modified to incorporate the improved data link.

In November 1988, the rocket-powered, longer-range AGM-130 completed development, test, and evaluation phases, and will enter initial operational test and evaluation early this year.

Another of the armaments division's products in development recently passed 600 hours of qualification and reliability tests without a failure. It's a computer that's designed to integrate the high-speed anti-radiation missile on the F-16 fighter.

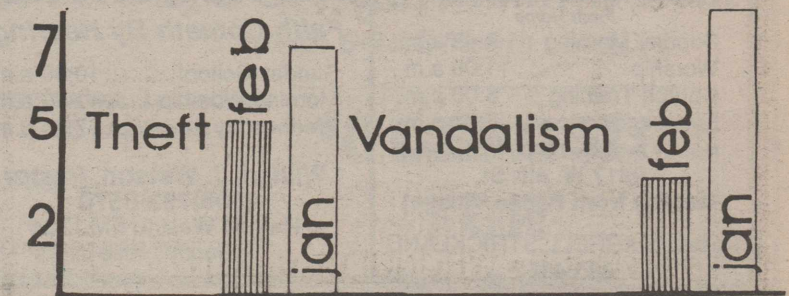

HARMS are used to knock out radars that support enemy surface-to-air missiles and anti-aircraft artillery units. HARMS lock onto signals emitted from enemy radars. However, the F-16 was not designed to fire the missile.

The armaments division is overcoming this by designing a computer that mounts onto existing launchers and provides the necessary interface with the F-16. This cost-effective approach requires no modifications to the aircraft or the missiles.

The first HARM was successfully fired from an F-16 in September at Edwards AFB, Calif. When deliveries of the modified launchers begin in July, tactical air forces will have an increased defense suppression capability.

Beginning in January, tactical air forces will get a new weapon-loading adapter to better handle munitions. More than 1,000 new one-step loading adapters will be delivered worldwide for ground crews.

Any woman of any age can develop breast cancer. Like most diseases, early detection of breast cancer can eliminate or control the problem. Women need to make regular breast examinations part of their ongoing personal health program.

Dimensions is a special center that offers a comprehensive array of services for women including MAMMOGRAPHY SCREENING and BREAST SELF-EXAM EDUCATION. Every year, breast cancer strikes one in eleven women. A mammography screening and the breast self-examination are helpful in the early detection of breast cancer.

If you or someone you love is a woman and over 35, call Dimensions at 743-HERS to schedule your mammogram today. Both the mammogram and breast self-exam education are provided for an affordable $50.

Meal cards end April 3

April 3, meal cards will become obsolete.

Personnel authorized to subsist at government expense (Subsistence In Kind—SIK) will show their ID cards instead of meal cards to the cashier at the Caprock Cafe. The persons social security number will be used in place of the meal card number.

The food service branch and the Caprock Cafe will be implementing this portion of the Service Information Management System between Sunday and April 5, with the on-line operations taking effect the morning of April 3.

All meal cards must be turned in to organizational orderly rooms for proper disposition when the new system takes effect.

With the changeover of the new system, patrons of the Caprock Cafe may incur some possible delays at the cashier stand. The food service branch and the Caprock Cafe request that patrons be patient with cashiers during this change-over.

For more information, call MSgt. Robert Anderson or TSgt. Stacey Gardner, 3495/3800.

Retiree's daughter captures Miss Teen Lubbock crown

Miss Tracy Ford, age 17, daughter of MSgt. (retired) Craig and Jeanne Ford, was recently crowned the 1989 Lubbock Miss T.E.E.N. at the Lubbock Civic Center.

Young ladies competing in the Lubbock Miss T.E.E.N. Pageant were between the ages of 13 and 18 years old. Each contestant had to have obtained at least 12 hours of volunteer service for a non-profit organization to qualify for the pageant.

Miss T.E.E.N. is not a beauty pageant and does not have a swim suit competition. The young ladies are judged in five categories which include: scholastic achievement, volunteer service, interviews, formal presentation and either talent or speech.

Lubbock Miss T.E.E.N. will receive a $500 cash scholarship among other prizes and will travel to Dallas for the Texas state pageant. Winners of each of the state pageants will go on to compete in the National Pageant to be held in Kansas City, Missouri, where prizes and awards will amount to more than $300,000.

Tracy is a senior at Frenship High School. Her hobbies include cheer-leading, water skiing, country and western dancing, and modeling.

Science Spectrum support special community project

The "Hall of Flight," a base-community exhibit featuring various hands-on aerospace displays, was recently unveiled at Lubbock's Science Spectrum.

The "Hall of Flight" is the result of hundreds of hours of effort by volunteers from the Reese and Lubbock communities, said Col. Monroe S. Sams Jr., wing commander.

The Science Spectrum already provides an opportunity for adults and children to experience a variety of scientific principles firsthand. The exhibit on flight exemplifies the idea of learning about science, but having fun doing so.

The Reese effort, which began in June 1988, consists of both historical and hands-on displays such as: panels illustrating the milestones of flight; wind tunnel demonstrators; ejection seats; T-37 Cockpit Familiarization Trainer and much more.

Lubbock and the base have enjoyed a solid partnership for nearly five decades. Not only does aeronautics play a significant role in the scientific arena...military aviation has had a significant impact upon Texas' South Plains. The "Hall of Flight" is Reese's commitment to sustaining airpower's heritage in this region of the nation.

35th FTS-A keeps winning

The 35th Flying Training Squadron -A intramural volleyball team picked up where it left off last week, downing flightline rival 54th Flying Training Squadron-A.

The 35th captured the preseason tournament by besting 54th FTS-A twice and was then paired against the tourney runner-up in the regular season opener for both teams.

Living up to its preseason favorite status, the 35th swept the 54th, 15-10 and 14-12.

In other action March 8, the 1958th Communications Squadron beat the 64th Student Squadron, 15-8 and 15-5; 35th FTS-B stoped the 64th Security Police Squadron, 15-7 and 14-2; and the 64th Organizational Maintenance Squadron lost to the 3500th Mission Support Squadron, 13-11 and 15-11.

In games March 9, the 64th Field Maintenance Squadron beat Communications, 15-11, 9-12 and 14-8; the SPs downed OMS, 4-15, 15-8 and 15-13; 54th FTS-B rallied past the 64th Civil Engineering Squadron, 9-15, 15-4 and 15-2; and Reese Hospital-B fell to 54th FTS-A, 15-4 and 14-2.

Tuesday night, Services Squadron lost to FMS, 15-8 and 15-3; Hospital-A beat Communications, 13-11 and 15-4; The SPs held off CE, 15-7, 9-15 and 15-13; and the 35th FTS-A remained unbeaten by sweeping Hospital-B, 15-13 and 15-9.

Next week's games are:

Tuesday
