ROUNDUP

"Air Force people building the world's most respected air and space force...global power and reach for America."

Volume 44, Number 13

April 3, 1992

AFAF drive nets 147 percent of goal

The 1992 Reese Air Force Assistance Fund drive ended Saturday. Reese collected $21,579, over 147 percent of the $14,670 goal.

"I would like to thank all of the keys workers, contributors and commanders for their support," said Capt. Albert Whitley, Reese's AFAF project officer. "Without the total support of everyone, this would not have been possible."

The annual campaign raises money for four charitable organizations benefiting active-duty, Air Force Reserve, Air National Guard and retired Air Force members and their families, including surviving spouses and their families.

In 1991, about $19 million went to 30,000

Air Force people in interest-free loans or grants from the Air Force Aid Society, one of the drive's beneficiaries. Locally, $49,052 helped 75 people in the Reese community last year, according to the captain.

Other organizations benefiting from the drive are the Air Force Enlisted Men's Widows and Dependents Home Foundations Inc., the Air Force Village Indigent Widows' Fund and the Gen. and Mrs. Curtis E. LeMay Foundation.

"The different agencies that AFAF supports do an enormous amount of good work for Air Force people," said 1st Lt. Eva-Maria Rosado, assistant base project officer. "When we help them, we're helping ourselves."

15 to pin on wings

Fifteen of the Air Force's newest pilots will get their wings when Reese UPT Class 92-07 graduates during a ceremony at 10 a.m. today in the Simler Theater.

The ceremony will be followed by several events in the Reese Officers' Open Mess. They include a buffet from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m., a parents' social at 6:15 p.m. and a dinner-dance at 7 p.m.

The guest speaker at the graduation will be retired Col. Robert Reed.

Prior to his retirement, Colonel Reed was commander of the 554th Operations Support Wing, Nellis AFB, Nev.

During the ceremony and dinner-dance, awards will be presented to students and permanent party members.

They will include the commander's trophy (top graduate), "top stick" (best in flying training), academics, distinguished graduate, leadership and outstanding second lieutenant.

Permanent party awards will go to the outstanding academic and flightline instructor pilots, maintainers and mission makers.

For more on the graduates, see Page 8.

From my perspective

by Maj. Don Hall
64th FTW executive officer

Faith. The commandant stopped beside the severely wounded Marine. The injured man was a living testament to the Beirut bombing horror. With great effort the soldier scrawled out the words "Semper Fi" on a piece of paper: "Always Faithful."

It was a truly inspirational display of patriotism in the face of great pain and adversity. Deeply moved, the commandant removed the stars from his uniform and gave them to the Marine.

Another noble soldier, General of the Army Douglas MacArthur, spoke of patriotism in terms of duty, honor and country. He based his principles on a steadfast faith in the "traditions of liberty and freedom, of right and justice."

Faith.

On Nov. 11, 1921, the Unknown Soldier was placed in the tomb at Arlington National Cemetery. No one knew who he was, from what background he came, where he lived or who mourned his passing. Yet he embodied the American ideal of the dignity of the individual.

Acting for the American people, the President of the United States conferred the nation's highest decoration, the Medal of Honor, on the Unknown Soldier. The citation read in part that the Unknown Soldier typified the gallantry of our beloved heroes.

They died in order that others may live. The apostle Paul spoke for all our fallen comrades when he said, "I fought the good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith."

Patriotism is keeping the faith with the brave Americans who have gone before us. Their sacrifices shall not have been in vain and freedom shall not perish from the earth.

From YOUR perspective

As wing commander, I need to hear things "from YOUR perspective." Your inputs and suggestions can help Reese remain the pacesetter in the command. If you see something good, call me. If you have a problem that you feel needs my attention, call me. First, however, consider using your chain of command.

You may remain anonymous if you wish, but those who leave their name and number can get a direct response to their call. Calls can be made to the Careline 24 hours a day at 3273.

Yard inspections in housing

I'm upset at the housing office. They've started doing yard inspections without notice, and they have written up tickets.

You're right — we could have handled the inspection better than we did. Having not done one in a while, it would have been nice to give advance warning.

However, even though formal inspections are only done in the summer, housing residents are expected to take care of their yards year-round. The condition of some houses made the need for an inspection apparent, and the inspection also gave us a chance to let residents know they need to work their areas before the regular inspections start.

We're working to keep Reese Village a source of pride and a pleasant place to live. Please help us by doing your part.

Playgrounds in housing

My children have been hurt twice on the playground equipment in the housing area, and I've heard other mothers complain about the playground condition. Something should be done before a child is seriously injured.

Playground equipment is somewhat dangerous when it's in good repair, but it's obviously more dangerous when broken. Because of your call, we're starting monthly rather than annual checks of the equipment.

As you've probably noticed recently, we've put sand around all the equipment and additional work is planned. You can further help us by reporting damaged equipment to housing maintenance at 3047.

Housing efforts reflect QI ideal

The emphasis in past months has been on quality improvement, and the Reese Housing Management Office is one area where the customer service ideas embodied in QI have been at the forefront.

Mitzie Million, housing management assistant, said, "A program that is becoming more and more common is the relocation program, which promises to ease the hardship of permanent changes of station in the future."

A project that is scheduled to get under way in July is phase three of the housing renovations. "We are in the last stage of this project," Mrs.

Million said. "And we hope to get funding in fiscal year 1993 to start reroofing all base houses."

Mrs. Million said her office uses the Village Crier, a newsletter done by the housing office, to keep the occupants up-to-date on upcoming projects, events and helpful hints.

The office has four sections: housing management, housing assistance (which provides housing information on Reese Village), housing referral (which provides information on off-base housing) and housing maintenance.

For information concerning the housing management office, contact Mrs. Million at 3913.

Energy officer goes for top award

Lieutenant Hendricks checks a drafting plan.

(Sgt. Greg Spraggins)

An electrical engineer assigned to the 64th Civil Engineering Squadron was recently selected to represent ATC in the competition for the 1991 Air Force Rawlings Award, which signifies the energy conservation manager of the year.

Since taking over as Reese's energy conservation manager in September 1990, 1st Lt. Paul Hendricks has managed and expanded an energy conservation program that saved $78,000 last year alone.

"Lieutenant Hendricks has managed to create a successful and highly visible program that has the entire base aware and involved in the need for and methods of energy conservations," said Joe Hassell, chief of technical design. "His outstanding leadership and enthusiasm have provided an excellent model for all base personnel in our efforts to conserve valuable energy resources."

Lieutenant Hendricks has developed a "Building Manager's Energy Conservation Handbook" which outlines extensive energy saving steps that can be taken at the building manager's level; developed and implemented energy awareness month promotions; and developed an energy consumption study for the entire base to identify most intensive energy users.

"The biggest thing is to get people involved at the grass-roots level," said Lieutenant Hendricks. "They are actually the ones who are saving energy. My job is to educate them."

"Lieutenant Hendricks' program is very innovative," said Mr. Hassell. "Several of the implementations he's made are the most unique in the command. His efforts to make the program work have earned him the right to compete for the award."

One on one

CMSgt. David Ptomey

64th FTW
Senior enlisted advisor

Editor's Note: This week's One-on-one features CMSgt. David Ptomey, 64th FTW senior enlisted advisor. (Interview by A1C Jose Alejandro)

What are your duties as the wing's senior enlisted advisor?

I'm here as the liaison between enlisted members and the wing commander. I assist him with enlisted personnel matters. Actually I'm here to assist him in all areas, but particularly in the area of enlisted members.

With the Air Force downsizing, how will the enlisted force be affected?

It'll be affected drastically because it will decrease in size. That's going to affect many areas, especially each individual duty section because there will be fewer people to go around. The workload isn't going to decrease, but we're going to have fewer people to get the job done.

The quality of people will continue to improve since the Air Force and the other services will be able to enjoy a better selection in the recruiting process. The selection right now is a recruiter's dream.

The quality force issue will be looked at more closely. We will see many changes in the enlisted force and the officer corps as well. Anytime you take a force from 600,000 to 300,000, the effects are going to be felt by the entire Air Force around the world.

With a smaller force, how will promotions be affected?

Promotion decreases are already being felt — only 6.16 percent of the eligibles were selected for senior master sergeant Air Force wide. Promotions have always been competitive in the past, but with the smaller force it will be harder than ever.

Enlisted members must have their act together and not wait until the last minute to study. Many of the deciding factors in promotion will now come from the actual testing. People will have to put a forth an effort because it will no longer work to think "It's my turn to be promoted."

If you don't study and test well, you won't get promoted. People will be studying and hitting the books harder because there will no longer be automatic promotions.

What are some of the biggest changes you have seen since you first joined the Air Force?

One of the biggest I've seen in my 24-year career is the quality of the people involved in today's Air Force. I came into the service during the Vietnam era; at that time we were accessing about 80,000 people a year. Recruiters were having to beat the bushes to get people in the service.

The quality of the people at that time was not bad, but it isn't near what it is today. Practically all young folks in the Air Force today have a high school education and a large number of those have bachelor's degrees. There is also an increase in the number of enlisted members with master's degrees. The education level of the enlisted force has improved tremendously.

The overall biggest change has been the quality of people that are in today's force. I see nothing but good things.

Today, it's basically up to the Air Force whether you stay in the service. A person that wants to stay in the Air Force must put the effort in all areas and be willing to improve.

What advice would you give to a young enlisted troop who wanted to make the Air Force a career?

Don't take it for granted. If a troop wants to make the Air Force a career then he or she will have to be professional. Those that aren't will not make it with the quality force issues and so forth. People will have to treat the Air Force like a profession, so don't take anything for granted.

What challenges do you see ahead for the wing?

I see a tremendous challenge in the area of mission accomplishment and personnel issues. I believe this wing is one of the best in the Air Force, and I'm not saying that because I'm stationed here. I see Reese as a leader — otherwise, it wouldn't have been a test base for the reorganization or T-1A Jayhawk implementation.

The challenges for this wing will be never-ending. There's not a challenge that members of this wing can't handle. Reese has nothing but true professionals.

Do you have anything to add?

I just want to say I enjoy being here. This is my first outfit as a senior enlisted advisor. I will be out and around visiting our troops. I am here to help Reese and I intend to do that.

S	M	T	W	T	F	S
			1 Child Abuse Prevention Month begins. Try to say "I love you" to your child(ren) every day.	2 Begin a pattern of behavior. Take 10 seconds before dealing with your child when you are angry.	3 Take a walk with your child(ren).	4 Look for a rainbow with April showers.
5 Daylight Savings begins: "Spring ahead, fall back."	6 Work a puzzle with your children.	7 Listen to your children's laughter. (Bet you feel a smile coming on!)	8 Visit the library with your children. Pick out some books to read together.	9 Look for signs of spring.	10 Make cookies with your child and eat them together.	11 Ask your children to draw a picture that expresses "love in the family."
12 Palm Sunday.* Read the comic section of your Sunday paper together.	13 Be sure to pay attention when your children talk to you.	14 Make a list of words that help kids. Refer to it often.	15 Have your child(ren) tell you a story.	16 Plan a trip to the zoo. Find pictures of zoo animals and talk about them with your kids.	17 Good Friday.* Learn a new song with your child(ren).	18 First Day of Passover. Involve your child(ren) in preparing a special meal.*
19 Easter Sunday.* Do something special together as a family.	20 Set a good example for your children by never using words that hurt.	21 Talk to your children about what to do in an emergency.	22 Declare today "hug day."	23 Go outdoors and play catch with your child(ren).	24 Help your child help you keep your home clean. Start with easy chores that your child(ren) can do.	25 Watch a television program with your child(ren). Pick one that is age appropriate and talk about it afterward.
26 Go to a park. Everyone play.	27 Praise your child for something he or she did today, like sharing.	28 If you have not done so already, teach your child not to use hitting to solve problems. Also, you need to set the example.	29 Get together with parents of children your child(ren)'s age; share experiences.	30 Do something nice for yourself. Have a trusted friend watch your children.

Month of the Military Child

Child abuse prevention a key issue in annual observance

Child abuse prevention comes to the forefront in April as part of a national campaign, according to officials in Department of Defense Office of Family Policy, Support and Services.

Two themes, "Partners in Prevention" and "Winning Ways for Military Families," stress the importance of child abuse prevention, especially in military families, said Gail McGinn. She is the DOD office's director.

"The combination of prevention month and Month of the Military Child gives us a unique opportunity to highlight prevention activities as we celebrate our families and children," Ms. McGinn said. She believes knowledge of prevention measures over the next few years is necessary as "we make our way through this critical period of downsizing and transition."

More than 1.5 million dependent children help make up the DOD family, said JanaLee Sponberg, an analyst for the family policy, support and services office. The latest figures indicate almost half of the 20,000 reported child abuse cases in the military are substantiated.

"The numbers indicate that child abuse and neglect among the military may be a reflection of the national population, where the substantiated rate of abuse runs about 50 percent. But one proven case is one too many," said Ms. Sponberg. More than 2.5 million cases of abuse and neglect were reported last year nationally.

Prevention is the first opportunity to solve the problem of child abuse, officials said. Suggestions for prevention included knowing the signs and symptoms of child abuse, knowing the procedures for reporting suspected abuse at installation level and being an advocate for children. The main thing is to get involved.

DOD has a child abuse and safety violation hotline for child development and youth programs. The toll-free, worldwide telephone hotline is for persons to report suspected child abuse and safety violations in these programs. The hotline is operational in eight foreign countries, as well as Guam, Puerto Rico and the United States. It is not meant to replace local installation reporting procedures. Also, the hotline is not for reporting child abuse within the child's family.

DOD officials stress that in an emergency situation or if the child's life is in danger, call the local authorities immediately.

Information required for a hotline call includes the name of the victim and alleged offender, the installation and the suspected offenses. The caller can remain anonymous.

Once the case is reported, DOD passes it to the service involved for the investigation. Usually, the service is given 90 days to check into the case's validity and report the findings.

The toll-free telephone number for the hotline is: 1-800-336-4592 (American Forces Information Service).

Area maintenance units on base

Civil engineering reorganizes, aims to increase efficiency

by David McCafferty
deputy base civil engineer

The 64th Civil Engineering Squadron is currently reorganizing under a new management concept that will allow it to do its job with greater efficiency.

In order to retain the same level of service to customers with fewer personnel, base and shop personnel have been divided and placed into zones or area maintenance units, or AMUs.

Centralized shop personnel who were skilled in one specialty are becoming multicrafted to provide a production-oriented team. Each AMU has the manpower, equipment and supplies to accomplish most minor maintenance and repairs along with a customer service area and supervisor to schedule work.

This concept will shorten response time to customer needs.

The customer service area for AMU 1 and 2 are currently located in Bldg. 555; AMU 3 is in Bldg. 6100.

The point of contact at each AMU is the supervisor. Jim Bertrand at 3579 is the supervisor of AMU 1; MSgt. Norman King at 6622 is the contact at AMU 2; and Joe Hensley at 3047 is the AMU 3 point of contact.

If requests require more extensive work, the supervisor of the AMU will process the work through other civil engineering operation organizations or the engineering construction section.

Civil engineering officials reminded people that CES is here to serve, and they ask wing members to help by spreading the word and knowing which AMU to call for facility needs.

Preparedness pays premium

Reese scouts' display captures mayor's award

Reese Boy Scout Troop 548 knows about "being prepared" — they proved it Saturday.

One of the older troops in the region, the Reese scouts' display on emergency preparedness shined during the South Plains Boy Scout Council Scout Show at the South Plains Fairgrounds. The troop captured the mayor's award.

"The scouts had a meeting and came up with the idea," said MSgt. Mateo Alvarez, troopmaster. "They did all the work."

Troops from throughout the region set up displays on topics ranging from tourism to health to space travel and Indian culture.

Another prize at the show, the Reese commander's award, went to Boy Scout Troop 157 sponsored by the Lubbock Lions Club for their display on handicapped awareness. The award was presented by Col. Bill Henny, wing commander, who participated in the show along with other wing members and units.

"We're really proud to be a part of the show," said the colonel, a former Eagle Scout himself. "It brings back many fond memories for me personally."

Leaders and members of the Reese troop said that similar memories are in store for people who experience scouting. Sergeant Alvarez and Sgt. Mike Sistek, troop committee chairman, said troop activities include monthly camping trips, summer camp, skiing, fishing, rappelling and more. The activities are only part of what a youth can get out of scouting.

"They learn self-reliance by depending on themselves to get the job done," said Sergeant Sistek, who has been involved with scouting for 21 years.

Sergeant Alvarez pointed to leadership skills and self-discipline as other benefits of scouting.

Current members of the base troop had varied explanations for what made them join and what they enjoyed most about scouting.

"My parents were in it. I figured if it was good for them, it would be good for me," said five-year scout Roger McDermett, 16.

"The camping is the most fun," said Cody Robbins, 15, senior patrol leader for the troop. "In scouting there's a lot to learn. The things I've learned have been fellowship, friendship and how to be a better man."

Sergeant Alvarez said that requirements for membership include being between 11 and 18 and having completed fifth grade. For details, call Sergeant Alvarez at 3889.

Cadets get glider training

(Sgt. Greg Spragging)

"5,000 feet. Clear skies. No power."

This may seem like a problem, but for 20 Air Force Academy cadets, "it's great." The cadets finished two weeks of flying gliders Wednesday at Littlefield Municipal Airport, located about 30 miles west of Reese.

The cadets - all juniors and seniors - have been getting certified as instructors for aerobatics or cross-country flying. The cadets will then train Academy sophomores interested in flying the gliders. The cadets are getting the advanced training from 10 staff members of the 94th Flying Training Squadron and selected senior cadets from the academy.

"Littlefield is a great location to get the training done," said Capt. Dave Myher, an academy aerobatics instructor. "It's quiet here and we have all the resources and room we need to get the job done."

According to 1st Lt. Eric

Meyn, a 52nd FTS check pilot and project officer for the visit, flying gliders at the academy is used to get students involved with flying and allows them to hone their flying skills.

"The program here is more of an advanced enrichment program for the cadets," said the lieutenant, who was a glider instructor while attending the academy. "It's an outstanding program that has an incredible record for preparing students to fly in the Air Force."

Wing ding' rescheduled

The "wing ding" that was set for Friday at the base picnic grounds has been reset to April 10. The event will be open to base.

'Spring ahead...'

Daylight-saving time will begin at 2 a.m. Sunday. Clocks should be set one hour ahead at that time.

VSI-SSB update given

More than 20,000 people have applied for either the voluntary separation incentive or the special separation benefit as of March 26, Reese CBPO officials said.

More than 18,000 enlistees had applied for the offer, with 16,301 people applying for SSB and 1,852 choosing annual VSI payments.

Officers taking the incentive programs totaled 2,278 with 1,067 applying for SSB and 1,211 opting for VSI.

At Reese, CBPO officials said one enlisted member and two officers have applied for VSI, while 29 enlistees and no officers have opted for SSB. Of those, one officer and 25 enlisted have been approved.

The Air Force approved a total of 17,542 applications, CBPO officials said. Application deadline is April 15. For more on the programs, call SSgts. Kerry Eason or Jim Leonard at 3420.

Special Olympics set

Volunteers for the April 4 Special Olympics at Coronado High School should report to the Reese booth, which will be set up in the field events area.

Also, all wing members are welcome at the event, which gets under way at 9 a.m.

For details, call MSgt. Joe Slack at 3281 or retired CMSgt. Lenny Minzer at 3633.

Border agent test given

Testing for border patrol agents will be given at 8 a.m. and again at 1 p.m. (if the first test is full) in the Reese Enlisted Open Mess.

Testing will be on a first-come, first-served basis. The maximum age is 37, except for people who have held a federal civilian law enforcement position before. For details, call SSgt. Phillip Duffy at 6142.

Finance class offered

A free basic personal financial management and investment class will be offered by South Plains College from 4:30 to 6:30 p.m. Mondays and Wednesdays. At press time, the class was scheduled to start Monday.

People scheduled to retire or separate within six months will have enrollment priority. For details or to enroll call Lynn Dodds at 3634.

Advisory council meets

The Reese Base Exchange/Commissary Advisory Council will meet at 2 p.m. Tuesday in Reese. Anyone who wants an item discussed at the meeting should contact their unit representative.

Personality class offered

A beginners class on understanding your personality will be offered at 7 p.m. Wednesday in the Reese Chapel. Chapel officials said the class is not an in-depth study of psychoanalysis, but rather is meant to give people a basic understanding of their personality and those of their families.

To sign up, call Chaplain (Maj.) Millard Timmons at 3237.

Family center sets courses

Free job search and civilian career options workshops will be offered Thursday and April 16, and April 21-23, respectively, by the Reese Family Support Center.

The job search workshop will be from 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. each day and cover aspects of finding employment. R.S.V.P. is due Tuesday; call 6494 or 3305.

The career options workshop will run from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. on its scheduled days. It is open to members within 180 days of retirement or separation or who have retired or separated since Oct. 1, 1990. People with approved separation dates under the voluntary separation programs currently going on may attend also.

Resumés, veteran benefits and more will be covered. Reservations are due to Mario Manfre at 3305 by April 16.

Course scheduled

The Air Force Supervisors Course, designed to teach first-level civilian supervisors leadership and management skills, will be offered April 27 and 28 by the civilian automated training office.

To reserve a slot, call 3803.

Care provider slots open

The Reese Child Development Center will have two openings for family day care home providers in the near future. These providers work in their home and set their own hours and fees. For details, call Gloria Goff at 3541.

Six Flags tickets available

"Early bird" tickets for Six Flags are available for $16 at the Reese Information, Ticket and Tour Office. Six Flags is open weekends through April, and the tickets are valid through April 1992.

For details, call 3787.

Card affects travel pay

Government travelers who have Diners Club cards for use on their TDY trips can no longer get travel pay advances. Those without it will receive limited advances, according to accounting officials.

People who go TDY two or more times per year can get the card if they are a master sergeant or above, a general schedule-9 employee or above, or a nonappropriated funds employee of equivalent grade.

For details on the card or getting a personal identification number people should contact their unit project officer.

Brian Gorenc, 11, poses with his invention.

Wing youth 'be-trays' idea

Idea holds market potential

Fads and gadgets may come and go, but 11-year-old Brian Gorenc has come up with something that could stick around — literally.

Brian's invention — the "Magna Tray" — took third place at the Frenship Independent School District Invention Convention at Casey Elementary School March 12-13. The magnetized food tray was in competition with about 60 other ideas.

"I used to go around the house sometimes with a regular food tray," said the fifth-grade student, whose father is 54th Flying Training Squadron Commander Lt. Col. Stan Gorenc. "I would spill my drink or make a mess with the food, so I put magnets on the dishes and metal on the tray."

Brian's invention could have impact far outside his home. Several judges at the invention convention praised the potential of the Magna Tray, saying it "would be perfect for travelling" and "I bet you could market this with an airline."

That's exactly what Brian plans to do. Not only is there potential for preventing high-altitude spills, but the Gorenc family is also looking at the possibilities for helping the handicapped.

"Brian would like to market the tray right now," said Karen Gorenc, Brian's mother. Marketability was one of the criteria of the invention convention. Aside from the airlines and the handicapped, Brian's entry form also pointed out the tray's potential to help waiters and waitresses.

Brian got a $50 savings bond for his third-place finish, a school yearbook and prizes from local merchants. He did not know how he was going to get the tray into the public eye, but indicated that his parents plan to help him.

This is the first time Brian has invented anything. He doesn't have any future projects on tap, but he didn't rule out the possibility Sergeant Brown coordinates a maintenance schedule.

(Sgt. Greg Spragglins)

Quality performer

Some people sit around and gather dust. Some people set out to make a difference. MSgt. Walt Brown, NCO in charge of the 64th Logistics Squadron Mission Support Unit, is not collecting dust.

Sergeant Brown, a native of Lawrence, Kan., has been at Reese seven years.

"I think Reese is a good base to be at if you like change," said Sergeant Brown. "Being at a test base for some things is definitely different. You get to see many of the upcoming changes in the way we do business first hand."

The 37-year-old has also been stationed at Carswell AFB, Texas, and Kadena AB, Japan. In his spare time, he enjoys racquetball and getting involved in community activities.

"I think Lubbock is a great place to raise a family," he said, pointing out the base's relationship with the local community.

Sergeant Brown said his goal is to make chief master sergeant and work to make a difference in the Air Force.

He earned a bachelor of arts degree in business from the University of Maryland in 1984.

Sergeant Brown and his wife, Jacque, have two children; Jeannette, 19, and Buddy, 13.

Commissary expands hours for disabled customers

Reese Commissary patrons who are confined to wheelchairs, blind and needing assistance, and others who might need assistance when shopping will be allowed to enter the commissary one-half hour early beginning Tuesday.

Although there may be restocking going on and the registers will not open any sooner, these patrons will be afforded this time to shop before the commissary becomes crowded, according to Lila Andermatt, commissary officer.

"This is just another way for the commissary to say, 'We're here to serve you,'" she said.

In other commissary news, shoppers are being encouraged to bring their own grocery bags by a new policy approved by the Defense Commissary Agency at Fort Lee, Va.

Shoppers may bring paper, plastic or cloth bags to help carry home their groceries and give them to the bagger when they get to the register.

"We know that many customers prefer to use their own bags, and this reuse policy will help tremendously in reducing the number of bags required in the core," said Lt. Col. James Howell, chief of DECA's food safety and quality assurance office. "Many of our stores have had a similar policy on the reuse of bags. They've had considerable success and now we're implementing the practice throughout the agency," Colonel Howell continued.

"Bags must be clean and strong enough to hold the products. If bags are soiled or torn, for example, they can't be used and will be returned to the customer," the colonel said.

Customers are also encouraged to deposit any unwanted grocery bags at community paper or plastic collection points. Although commissaries will not accept used bags for disposal, commissary officers will assist patrons in locating recycling points in the community.
