TIME AND CO-OPERATION WILL WIN FOR HASKELL

Haskell County took eighth place at the Texas State Fair in competition with 45 other counties from various portions of the State, of this she should be justly proud for the competition was the keenest in the history of the Fair, and according to the judges is the best fair of the kind in the world. Haskell county took first place on County Exhibit at the West Texas Fair, Abilene, where there were ten countles competing. This same exbibit was improved over 20 per cent for the State Fair and would have easily won first money two years ago, but did not this year due to the fact that the counties that won took exactly one year's time to prepare their expibits. Time, assistance and co-operation won first place for Hale county. so the same things for the coming year will make Haskell County bard

Thanks are due to all who assisted in any way, and especially those who furnished farm and garden products, n making the Haskell County Exhibit a success at the West Texas Fair and at the State Fair.

New Type of Car Stirs Automobile World

It is an open car one moment and 30 seconds later same car is entirely enclosed. Studebaker Duplex ends need of hunting for side curtains in the dark and storm

A new type of car has stirred the automobile world as has nothing since the abandonment of the "buggy" style of body building.

It is the Studebaker Duplex, so called to indicate that it is an open car one moment, and 30 seconds later it is an enclosed car.

Like all great advances in the industrial arts, it is "so simple in operation, it is a wonder it wasn't thought of before" ---

Particularly since its need has been growing, year by year, ever since automobiles were made.

Many people all of the time, and most people part of the time, want an open car-to bring to their riding the fresh crispness of the country air, and a free and untrammeled association with the great outdoors.

Yet for these same people, the snug comfort of the closed car, shutting out the storm and the wind and the cold, has been at times a necessity.

Two cars in one

The Studebaker Duplex is both cars in one. Just pull down the roller enclosures concealed in the roof of the car. In 30 seconds the open car has been made an enclosed car.

No hurried efforts to put up curtains; no hunting for the right one while the storm beats in; no mixing them up in the dark; no exposure through holes torn in them while trying to obtain, for the emergency, the protection given by a closed car - - -

Just pull down the roller enclosures giving instant enclosed car effect.

The body is built substantially - sides, corners and roof frame are of steel. The roof has curved steel sides and back; hardwood front. Steel, U-shaped cross beams, six of them, support the waterproofed, duplex fabric top and its linings. Here is permanent beauty, no sagging tops.

But Studebaker, on which the whole vehicle-using world has come to depend for reliability, would not rest on only one real contribution to the value given

It must give all that engineering ability could devise.

Striking new features

So there are offered three distinct models of cars, to meet each of the three fields of demand—the Standard Six, with 113-inch wheelbase and 50 horsepower motor; the Special Six, with 120-inch wheelbase and 65 horsepower motor; the Big Six, most magnificent and luxurious of its products, with 127-inch wheelbase and 75 horsepower motor.

Duplex bodies are available on each line. In addition, closed models have workmanship and materials and beauty of line so far above the price class of the car, they must be seen to be ap

Of scarcely less importance than the Duplex feature are other improvements such as, automatic ignition system, lighting control on the steering wheel, new location of emergency brake, improved one-piece windshield and many others.

The body lines, steering mechanism, and even the fenders of the new Studebaker were designed especially for genuine balloon tires. Thus the body lines harmonize with grace and beauty hitherto unattained, even by Studebaker.

New York Had Public Baths Back in 1824

In the New York city directory of 1824 there was a page advertisement of the "Washington Bath, 583 Pearl street, near Broadway," and it was headed by a picture of a portable tub large enough in which an adult person could completely immerse, and above this cut was "Marble and Tin," which would seem to indicate that already there were styles in tubs, and they were both stationary and portable.

The advertisement continued as follows: "Has been newly painted. cleansed and much improved; marble tubs and new pipes introduced and baths of any temperature furnished at the shortest notice, from sunrise until 10 o'clock p. m., throughout the year. Warm rooms during the winter. Buthing tubs to let for the convenience of those who cannot visit the bath.

"For the accommodation of those afflicted with eruptions of the skin and chronic complaints a fumigating apparatus has been erected."

Last of Great Rulers

The title of great mogul was given the chiefs of the Mogul empire, founded in Bindustan in 1525, A. D., by Baber, a descendant of Tameriane, the famous Mongol conquerer.

For more than two centuries the Mongol emperors ruled India and lived in great magnificence at Delhi, which continued to be their capital until the reign of Akbar (1555-1605); when it gomery.

was transferred to Agra, says the Detrolt News. They were finally conquered by the English and in 1804, Shah Allum, the last person to whom the title of "great mogul" rightly belonged, having died, the Mogul empire ceased to exist.

The religion of the Mogol's was Mohammedan, but, sithough introduced by them into India, it was never accepted by the native Hindus.

Bad Case

A Handu father received the following letter: "Dear Sir: For some remote time to past a secret passion has firing my bosom internally with loving for your daughter. I have navigated every channel in the magnitude of my extensive juvisdiction to cruelly smother the growing love-knot that is being constructed in my within side, but the humld lamp of affection trimmed by Cupid's productive hand still nourishes my love-sickened heart. My educafional expabilities have abandoned me and here I now cling to those levely long tresses of your much-coveted daughter like a marine ship wrecked on the rock of love."-Boston Transcript.

Crusoe's Island

Prolonged steamship trips are more popular than ever and not a few are announcing tours which include a visit to San Fernandez island, the traditional scene of Defoe's "Robinson Crusoe." Alexander Selkirk, it will be remembered, was marooned on this island for four years, and his experiences very probably suggested "Crusoe" to Defoe, but the author really put his hero ashore on an island near the mouth of the "great river Orinookoo," which is separated by 10,000 miles of sea water from San Juan Fernandez.

First English Bible

The first complete version of the English Bible was that of Myles Coverdale. It appeared in 1535 and was based on the Swiss-German version published at Zurich in 1524-29; In 1382 there had appeared a version attributed to Wycliffe, but the gospels alone can be identified as the work of Wycliffe himself. The translation of the Old Testament and the Apocrypha is the work of Nicholas de Hereford. The translation of the New Testament, by William Tyndale, appeared at Worms in 1525, later editions in 1534-35.-Exchange.

French Mother's Wise Admonition and Advice

Work, be strong, have pride, be independent. Ignore the trivialties which go with thy youth. Conserve thy strength of character for actions which are worthy of the effort. A time will come when I will not be here, then think of me, who have suffered and worked cheerfully. We resemble each other in spirit and in appearance. I know from the present what thy intellectual life will be. I fear for thee many deep sorrows, I hope for thee many pure Joys. Keep within thee the treasure of kindness. Know how to give freely, to lose without regret, and to acquire honestly. Know how to cherish in thy heart the happiness of those whom thou loveth even if thy love is not returned. Artificial Aids to Sight Long in Use

The single glass or reading glass was in common see long before spectacies were known.

In the Fourteenth century spec tacles, though fairly common, were articles of some cost, and frequently formed the subject of bequests in wills. They were manufactured large ly in Italy, Holland and Bavaria and from the beryl sometimes used in place of glass the Germans derived their "brille."

A Polish novelist, Sienkiewicz, gives it on authority that the Emperor Nero and in the film, "Quo Vadis." Nero is seen using his glass as a lorgnette.

There seems no definitely established fact to prove whether this glass was a monocle or a double glass mounted on a long decorative handle.

To Get Rid of Anta

Dusting liberal amounts of fresh pyrethrum powder each day where auts are traveling will prove helpful in ridding the house of them in case the nest cannot be found. Dusting of blowing sodium fluorid about where ants are found has proved satisfactory. This powder will be effective for several days, but care should be exercised in its use, as it sometimes irritates the skin and the membranes of the nose. It should be placed beyond the reach of children. This powder is an effective remedy for cockroaches. Small sponges dipped in sweetened water will attract large numbers of ants, after which they may be killed by dipping the sponges in boiling water. The process should be often as necessary.

Patent Leather

Patent leather, also known as japanned and enameled leather, was made in America as early as 1818 by Seth Boyden of Newark. However, It has only been in late years that the American product has reached the excellence of that made in France and Germany. Patent leather in this country is made from chrome-tanned skins. Several varnish coats of a mixture of lampblack and linseed oil are applied to the grain side of the leather. The first coats are dried and rubbed down so as to work the liquid well into the leather, while the last coat is applied with a brush, then baked at a temperature of from 120 to 140 degrees Fahrenhelt for 36 hours and dried in sunlight for from six to ten hours.

Annual Rainfall

A vivid picture of the amount of rain that falls upon the United States is given by a Washington scientist. It is equivalent, he says, to ten Mississippi rivers flowing constantly. Otherwise measured, it equals 30 inches of water for the entire area, making a total volume of 152,000,000,000,000 cubic feet. But this is only half the amount that would be necessary to maintain the full productivity of the soil of the whole country. One-third of this amount runs down to the sea and rivers. The problem for engineers to solve is the utilization to the utmost of the supply that nature furnishes.

Whale's Small Throat

The blue whale, the largest animal alive today, reaching a length in excess of 80 feet, with a mouth so large than ten to twelve men could stand therein, has a throat but about eight inches in diameter. This is one of the whalebone whales, all of which feed apon minute crustaceans, especially the little red shrimp which is about three-fourths of an inch long. As much as four barrels of this shrimp have been found in the stomach of a bine whale, which even then was not full.

Do You Know How to Vote—Lots of People Don't A Primer Lesson in Casting Your Ballot

The complications of the Texas election laws are such, and they are so numerous, that many people are confused when they come to cast their ballot in voting for the candidate for whom they actually desire to vote. The result is that frequency their vote is counted AGAINST the candidate for whom they intend to vote and FOR the candidate whom they oppose. A little study of the diagrams given below may give some assistance to those who do not understand the way to vote.

Figure 1 shows the ballot as it will; be handed to the voter, with the Republican Ticket and the Democratic Ticket lined up side by side and before it is marked in any way by the voter.

Figure 2 indicates the operation necessary to vote a straight Republican Ticket. To do this all that is necessary is to draw lines through the other ticket as shown in Figure 2. One vote will then be counted for each of the Republican nominees for the various offices.

Figure 3 shows how to vote a SPLIT Ticket, that is how to vote for some candidates on the Republican Ticket and some candidates on the Democratic Ticket. The election laws make it absolutely legal to vote a Split Ticket and you are within your rights to vote for a nominee for governor on one ticket and a nominee for lieutenant-governor or any other office or offices on the other ticket.

Remember that SCRATCHING a name votes AGAINST that nominee. Because of a long-time practice of checking on a list of articles those things that you desire, some people have the idea that they should check the names of the candidates for whom they desire to vote. This, however, is wrong and will result in your vote being cast for the candidate you do not want elected. SCRATCH THE NAME OF THE CANDIDATE YOU WANT TO VOTE AGAINST that candidate as it appears on the ballot. In other words, drawpencil marks through the name—scratch it out. LEAVE THE NAME OF (NOTE: White lines indicates a scratch on this ticket.) Political advertising paid for by Butte friends. The way to vote against a candidate is to run your pencil through the name of THE CANDIDATE YOU WANT TO VOTE FOR UNTOUGHED.

"I cannot do that, madam," replied Daniels, "for I have not qualified for it. I fear I shall have to give up that ambition. Again, most of Mr. Rhodes' business was from ellents who were his close friends and which I could scarcely hope to secure."

"Then-" "I shall seek work in the town, and if you will give me a room at the house here it will infimimize my own personal expenses, and I can help in the work necessary about the place."

It did not take Rolfe long to discern that the mother and her daughters were poor samples of womanhood. They were rather distant with Rolfe, but they could not help but realize his devotion and self-sacrifice. Every Saturday night be handed over to Mrs. Rhodes the money to pay the household expenses.

Within a month the family had accepted these unusual services from a comparative stranger, as though he were a son or brother.

Then the cousin, Miss Honor Bright, came. The first moment he set eyes on her, Rolfe Daniels fell in love with her. To all of them, however, the visltor was apparently cold and out of place. She did not tell them, but her heart had been chilled over a wretch who broke their engagement and married another.

Her distant manner stilled the budding lover in her silent admirer. Night after night, however, in a little memorandum book Rolfe wrote down his inner thoughts. They expressed the tender adoration of a true man who was glad that he had known a perfect

One day at the factory an emery wheel exploded and some of the fragments went into Rolfe's eyes. His sight was not gone, but the surgeon told Rolfe he must do no clerical work for at least a year.

Rolfe sought a position as manager of a store where his strength and not keen eyesight was the essential. At the end of a month his arm was broken in the fall of a tier of heavy boxes. It seemed as if the last sacrifice he could make was reached when he was obliged to work as a night watchman, and the family thanklessly took the last cent he earned.

Then came great news. The uncle had died suddenly without a will. The estate went to Mrs. Rhodes and Honor, equally, as the nearest heirs. The family were at once in great fettle. They prepared to leave the old home with extravagant ideas of their grand future.

"You have been very helpful to us," said Mrs. Rhodes to Rolfe, "and we will allow you to occupy the old house here free of charge until the estate is

It was Honor that Roife would miss. Humbly he accepted the fate awarded him. The morning of the day when the departure was due found him seated in the garden he had so carefully tended. His head was bewed, not dejectedly, but in sober thought of the sacrifices of ambitiou, night, limb, love—and all this thank-heasity.

He looked up as Houor approached him. Her breath came quick. Her face bere a strange, new expression. "Is this yours?" she asked, extending a little memorandum book, and Rolfe blushed as he recognised it as his secret diary which he had lost a wask newylets.

"I have read it," said Honor, frankly. "If what you wrote is true," she said. "I shall not go away from here.
