STORM REPORT

As Reported by . . .
Stormie Meriwether,
Ninth Grade Student

Dear Friends, Our band went to a clinic in Panhandle. It was fun and work. We changed the way to get to our spots. We did a great job, but the trumpets need to play softer and the woodwinds need to be louder. We just need to keep on working to be the best. Our contests start soon! GO BAND!!!

Building A Better, Cleaner Future

By Jacob Maxwell

Have you ever heard of hydroponics? If you haven't, or just need a refresher, it's farming without soil. In long, hydroponics is more than likely the future of agriculture. It uses a system of pipes to cover just a couple to hundreds or thousands of plants. With minerals mixed in the water that are vital to the growth of the plant, this system could, and more than likely will, end up with a higher yield than most farms can produce. With this system, it is unlikely that the essential vitamins and minerals won't be eroded away in a rainstorm, unlike soil. This can reduce the occurrence of man-made mudslides and algae blooms.

I am going to take this process a step further, and make it a bit more automatic. My Teacher, Mr. Herndon, has already purchased the frame and lights. If I added the water tank and the pump, I could stop there. Instead of stopping, however, I want to push it further. I want to make this farm to be able to read out the PH of the water, the temperature, and other elements that might hinder the progression of the plant that would be otherwise hard to pinpoint, and subsequently fix. So, I'm going to use an Intel Galileo Gen 2, a board that can be used to program something like robots. It runs Arduino, an online com-

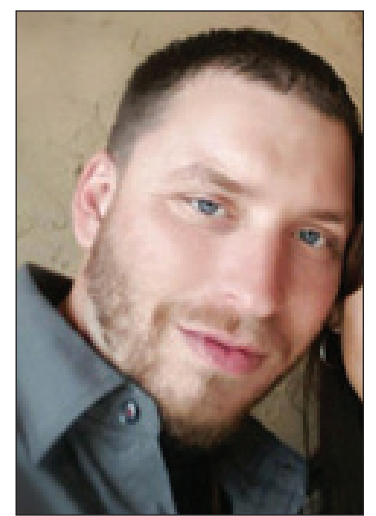

RECEPTION: Dr. Galutia was the honoree at a reception hosted by Parkview Hospital on Thursday morning, October 4. He is retiring after 40 years serving Wheeler. A large crowd of his patients and friends were present to wish him and his wife Glenda “Bon Voyage” as they move to Oklahoma City.

puter programming editor that can make robots, drones, and of course, my hydroponic farm. It can run audio files, video files, and can be used for a robot to “see”. It's an amazing program, and it comes with a free membership and free classes, so I can learn how to properly use it. I'm hoping that I can run light cycles, detect the PH of the water, and automatically “feed” the minerals and vitamins to the water, all without pressing a button. Automatic farms like this could even harvest, package, and deliver all vegetables or fruits made in the hydroponic system. These farms could take up the sky instead of the ground, so forests can be grown again to increase oxygen levels compared to carbon dioxide, and possibly revert the changes of global warming. In the end, not only is Hydroponics the possible future for agriculture, but the greenest possible outcome we can make for farming.
