Graveside Rites For Monta Boyd

On January 1, 2022, Monta Faye Watts Boyd left the pain of this life behind and walked into the arms of Jesus. HE “Whispered Welcome Home good and faithful Servant”, and, we’re sure that Monta’s two sons, Russell and William, were waiting for their turn saying “Mama! We’ve waited so long to see you! MAMA”—A word Monta Faye had truly craved to hear for over 60 years.

She was born on April 12, 1937, to Richard Albert and Annie Mae Hart Watts while the family was living on the Davis Ranch East of Wheeler, Tx. Monta was the youngest but equally intelligent and very creative—having a brilliant mechanical mind and ALWAYS sharing her God given talents and gifts with others. Many verses in Proverbs 31 is speaking of Monta Faye.

Monta Boyd

While still in High School, Monta sewed a skirt and blouse for her oldest niece in order to receive a good grade in Home Economics Class. She graduated from Kelton High School, got married, and displayed her strong work ethic on the farm she and her husband, Hershell, owned. Later one niece remembers watching Monta Faye measure a neighbor

It is hard to cut through the noise in the world, in the society, in our daily lives. I'm not talking exclusively about sounds, although that is a large and obvious component of this concept of noise, but I would also extend it to things that can infiltrate and occupy the mind even in a silent way. News reports (many of which are coordinated propagations of fiction), weather reports, the majority of things found on the Internet, and almost anything to be found on Facebook, the most harmful technological creation since the advent of the television. Regardless of the source, all of it tends to have the effect of disrupting a person from what they were doing, or what they intended to do, or what they know they should do, or who they are trying to become.

Most of this is by design and for the purpose of marketing, and for separating us from our attention and from our dollars. And that is one of the more benign effects of this noise. Money can be earned again. But when these distractions, these interferences, separate us from those in our lives, from what we are or what we know we should be striving toward, or from our true selves, the noise is much more damaging.

When these more detrimental effects are realized, it is all the more critical that the noise be reduced, even silenced. And yet when this need is the greatest, often it appears the noise is at its most deafening, and turning down the volume appears most impractical, and uncomfortable. Discomfort is almost certain to be experienced by the individual who is trying to tune out this noise. It is part of the withdrawal process, I suppose. But I would suggest trying to sit with this discomfort and experience it, and trying to determine what message it is attempting to convey; what lesson it is hoping to teach. There must be a space for this message to be communicated, and the attempt to create that space, or to preserve it once created, will be attacked by the forces which conspire against your living a true, full, authentic life. Some might call this collusion which works against the good of the individual a cabal, others might call it spiritual warfare; some might call it a conspiracy theory. But if you think it does not exist, I would suggest turning down the noise I am speaking of and seeing what percolates to the surface.

I am out of words and left with the dissatisfying feeling of having contributed to the clutter, though I will blame that on the dullening effect of the accumulation of the day's noise up to the time when this piece was written. Enough. Volume 0.

I wish it would decide to be cold or warm; either way we need some of the moisture going to waste in other parts of the country.

Certainly nice to have the show barn for the stock show. These young'uns don't know how it used to be. I remember the cold and sand storms behind the city office.

Thanks, Tera Finsterwald. The stockshow pictures were fantastic.

We did get in a game of cards with Leroy and Rhonda Saturday night.

church in Hinton. I am very proud of Addy and Clark for helping with the church service. Addy sings on the Worship Team with Allison, her mother, and Clark is an acolyte.

We went to Mark and Carol's for dinner. Then we gave the little ones their Christmas gifts. I love to spend time with family. Addy, Clark and Daxton are so precious. Daxton cried when I left him. That broke my heart.

School is going great. Congratulations to David and Nicholas for All State Band! That's it!
