State officials: women's health program is ready

Dr. Kyle Janek, chief of the state Health and Human Services agency, and Gov. Rick Perry on Oct. 31 announced a new state-funded Texas Women's Health Program is ready to step in and deliver services to low-income women "if Washington cuts off funding to the Medicaid program."

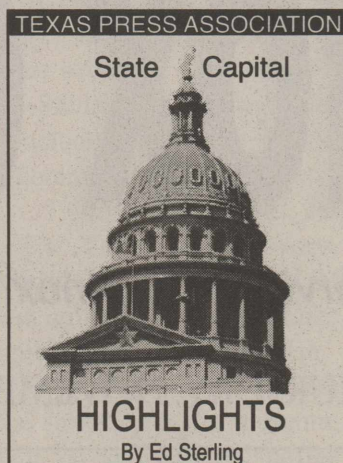

"We've got the state program ready to stand up at any time, and that transition would be seamless for patients and their doctors," Janek said.

Since 2007, the program has been funded primarily with federal Medicaid dollars. The state plans to reject billions in Medicaid dollars in order to cut off funding to organizations affiliated with abortion providers in accordance with a state law passed in 2011.

Perry said that any lawsuit filed to challenge the state's version of the women's health program would "kill the program, and would be responsible for denying these important health services to the low-income women of Texas."

Meanwhile, a temporary injunction put in effect by an Austin state district court on Oct. 26 prevents the state from following through on its "affiliate ban rule" until Nov. 8, when oral arguments in a case brought by Planned Parenthood will be heard.

Planned Parenthood called the injunction "a small victory for the approximately 50,000 Texas women who rely on Planned Parenthood for care through the Women's Health Program, which includes lifesaving breast and cervical cancer screenings, birth control, and testing for sexually transmitted infections."

State Capital

("TWIA"), the Texas Public Finance Authority, the Texas Department of Insurance and the State Auditor's Office. A few of many topics addressed were TWIA's reserve fund, high administration costs, bookkeeping issues, the danger storms pose to coastal counties, slowness and other problems with recovery efforts, and how some coastal property owners struggle to pay high premiums. TWIA was established by legislative mandate to provide wind and hail insurance for Texas Gulf Coast property owners in the event of catastrophic loss. "We provide 'basic' coverage unavailable in traditional markets for consumers who might otherwise be left uninsured," TWIA's literature states.

Drought edict continues

Gov. Perry on Nov. 2 renewed his July 5, 2011, proclamation certifying that exceptional drought conditions pose a threat of imminent disaster in specified counties in Texas.

The renewed proclamation, good for 30 days, applies to 121 of the state's 254 counties.

Disaster relief to counties with population under 200,000 and cities under 50,000 that have suffered from severe drought and wildfire may come in the form of federal aid through the Community Development Block Grant Program.

For example, on Oct. 31, Texas Agriculture Commissioner Todd Staples announced the award of $1.4 million in federal disaster relief grants to governmental bodies that applied and met the criteria: Bastrop County and the cities of Florence, Llano and Seymour.

Windstorm concerns aired

Hurricane Sandy's recent ravage of the eastern seaboard reminds Texans of Hurricanes Rita, Katrina, Dolly, Ike, Alicia and others. Before and after mayhem hits, questions over who pays and who is responsible for what inevitably arise.

On Nov. 1, the Joint Committee on Oversight Board of Windstorm Insurance met at the Capitol, hearing testimony from the Texas Windstorm Insurance Association

Manufacturing panel forms

House Speaker Joe Straus on Oct. 22 created the Interim Committee on Manufacturing, a panel of 15 state House members tasked with recommending ways the Legislature can strengthen the manufacturing sector in Texas.

Straus said manufacturing is a $192 billion industry in Texas, accounting for 15 percent of the gross state product, adding that more than 800,000 Texans work in manufacturing.

Straus appointed Rep. Jim Murphy, R-Houston, as chair of the committee and Rep. Eddie Rodriguez, D-Austin, as vice chair.

TEA calls for applicants

Texas Education Agency last week posted notice that it is seeking qualified attorneys to act as independent hearing examiners in local school district employment hearings.

Examiners preside over hearings involving nonrenewal or termination of educator employment contracts and issue recommendations for a school district's board of trustees to consider. Deadline for filing application is 5 p.m. Dec. 3.

Perry welcomes F1 racing

On Nov. 1, the governor participated in a public relations event to promote Formula 1 Grand Prix automobile racing at the Circuit of the Americas track near Austin, where racing events will take place Nov. 16-18.

"The U.S. Grand Prix will bring 1.2 million visitors to Central Texas," Perry said, "and is an opportunity to demonstrate to people from around the world everything we have to offer in the Lone Star State as a tourism destination, and as a place to live and work."

"Late Halloween night, Officer Prado and I spent several hours finishing up reports and required paperwork to obtain warrants for Plume and Baker. We were able to get the warrants and locate Plume and Baker just shortly before midnight," said KC Police Chief Caleb Hodges.

The two men were taken to Knox County Jail in Benjamin where they were held until they posted bond. The cases will now be turned over to the district attorney's office for review and any prosecution.

Knox City Police are still looking for the individual(s) responsible for the burglary at Bud's Café.

Any information may be helpful in locating these individuals. Please contact the police department at (940) 658-3414.

God's Promise

By Gary Schnable, Pastor of the Foursquare Church

Chick n Egg

"And we boast in the hope of the glory of God. 3 Not only so, but we also glory in our sufferings, because we know that suffering produces perseverance; 4 perseverance, character; and character, hope. 5 And hope does not put us to shame, because God's love has been poured out into our hearts through the Holy Spirit, who has been given to us"

Romans 5:2b-5 NIV

When we walk in peace with the Lord, we will still face adversity! Really? Jesus said that in this world we would face tribulation or trials of all kinds (John 16:33), but take heart because He overcame all of these same trials.

Many Christians believe that once we accept Christ's invitation into a relationship with Him all our troubles will be gone. Like some folks marrying for money, for social status, etc. expecting that this will dispel all life's pain (All fantasy). They soon find out that their perfect fantasy was a mirage!

Listen, living with Jesus Christ means we never walk alone (Unless we choose to). Yes, there will be the struggles, pain & even the trials of life to all who walk this life out. Many will blame it on the devil or other people without seeing our own choices, actions or words may have led us into these uncomfortable places we may find ourselves in.

There was a farmer who shared a spiritual truth about life's challenges with his son about an egg and the unborn chick inside. He told about how a baby chick begins the process of life by pecking and pecking away at its shell. The boy thought, hmmm it took so much energy for this fragile little bird to work so hard. It seems like it would get tired pecking and pecking away. So the little boy told his son he could not do that!

"But why?" asked the son. His father explained that the chick would die. He said "Son, all the pecking the baby chick uses is strengthening his muscles to prepare him to live in this world. He must do it on his own or he will not be strong enough to do the things it must do in order to survive!

None of us likes the trials or tribulations of life, we love the fun and easy times. However, for children they need to work through all kinds of things growing up, especially adversities or when they grow up they will be crushed by the struggles of life. That's why there is so much young adult and teenage suicide today or a lack of will to push through the downturns of life. Too often we make it too easy for our kids and young adults that they don't know how to overcome life's adversities.

For all Believers, God as a loving Father allows some adversity to prepare us to fight through to success, defeat the devil, and live life to it's fullest even while facing life's toughest issues. You see God knows the challenges that lie in wait for us and out of His great love for us He is preparing us for future victory.

Abraham Lincoln, (Our greatest President) was unsuccessful at business, politics and even lost his beloved son. Even his wife Mary Todd Lincoln suffered mentally from their adversities of life. But all the painful challenges he faced prepared him for the greatest challenge God had birthed him for. All these painful setbacks "produced perseverance; 4 perseverance, character; and character, hope." Lincoln had great hope for a nation he loved and he died saving the Union!

What trial, trouble or suffering are you facing today? Whatever it is, when you are in relationship with Jesus Christ, you never walk alone! When you are His, He loves you enough to cause you to persevere for tomorrows successes. While He's doing that He is building men, women and children of great character that brings great hope for us and all those who walk with us! We His children are the Hope of the world!

This Thanksgiving season remember to thank the Lord for always preparing us for our future success by the challenges He helps us persevere through today!

Sports

Believe you can do the impossible

The Crowell game didn't turn out the way we had all hoped. However, you guys gave them a fight. You showed them you weren't going to roll over and quit. Instead of me writing about that game, there is a much more Important Message that I want to give to you. A message that I hope each and everyone reads. That message is this:

There will be those that believe, and there will be those that will doubt. There will be those that will build you up, and those that will try to tear you down. No matter the challenge. No matter the impossibility of what seems impossible, there is no such thing as "impossible." No matter if its difficult or how unstopable the team in front of you has been. No matter if that team's history, or what they have done in the past, it is possible. They can be beat.

In any sport, the challenge at hand isn't always easy. That's what makes it a challenge. The very same thing can be said about six-man football. Any and all teams are beatable. Regardless of a team's history/past.

The challenge you face on the Nov. 9 is going to be a very hard challenge to overcome. It is, however, overcomeable. It doesn't matter what "they" did last year.

It doesn't matter what "they" have done this year. When your on that practice field getting ready for war, or when you're on that field don't think unnecessary thoughts! In that moment when you look "them" eye-to-eye, nose-to-nose and face-to-face whatever "they" have done is irrelevant. What its relevant is that you can outplay, outwit, outlast, outthink and outrun "them".

No matter what others say, all things are possible to those that will not be denied, to those that refuse to die, to those that believes, and to those that fears no obstacle in front of them.

Keep on fighting ... fighting ... fighting ... fighting ... fighting ... fighting ... fighting ... fighting ... fighting. To those that live for Christ, Our Lord Jesus, the unbeatable can be beat, the unstoppable can be stopped.

Never fail. Never fail. Knox City Greyhounds All The Way YEAHHHHHHH-HHHHH!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!

Just Jeff

By Jeff Stanfield

Well, if you want to keep a secret don't tell a 60-year-old. This past week, I had the pleasure of reading to the kindergarten class the great Halloween classic "The Great Pumpkin." My wife is a sucker for Charlie Brown and feels like they all are orphans since no parents are ever in a Charlie Brown story. Personally, I think Michelle has way too much time on her hands to worry about the Peanuts gang.

The kids all showed up at our house looking forward to cookies and looking at all the Halloween decorations. I was in the back of the house and I could hear that noise all the young kid's hate. "Hey, hey get over here right now. Don't touch anything or I will snatch your hand offs. Ok ... maybe Mo Magana didn't really say that but she keeps those little bread snatchers in line.

The class gathered around and knocks out 20 gallons of punch and 10 dozen cookies like they hadn't eaten in a month. You people need to feed them kids! They left this fat boy only crumbs and two splashes of punch.

Well, back to the story. As I finished the story of the "Great Pumpkin" and the orphans it becomes, "Ask Jeff Question Time." My question is this, what person in their right mind lets six-year-old kids ask me questions?

"Where is the witch's broom, Jeff?" My answer, "Shea flew off on it yesterday."

This is where the 6-year-olds fixed me. The next night at the O'Brien football game, Shea comes up to talk to Michelle and gives me the typical, "I hope you get hit by a car tomorrow" look. (We have the same kind of relationship that Wheezer and Drum did in Steel Magnolia's.) It's a love/hate relationship. She hates me and I love digging at her...

As she is talking these 3 little girls start chanting, "

Shea, ride your broom ... Shea, ride your broom."

She smiled and laughed ... then asked Michelle what the heck they were talking about?

Michelle is like, "I guess they are wanting you to ride a broom."

I am thinking that is her normal mode of transportation, so why the confusion?

Well one of the other moms comes up laughing and says you know what they are talking about, don't you?

"No," I replied/ "but it is funny."

She told us I had told them yesterday about her flying around on the witch's broom. We all burst out laughing.

Shea did not laugh as much as we did.

Oh, I told them a lot of temporary ask Kelly and Wayne Hutchinson. Their son (Hagan), all-state quarterback, almost had to live with us the week after Halloween when he was eight. Something about "5th Street Frank" spooked him.

If you want to keep a secret watch what you say or do in front of your kids. These same kids do a field trip to city hall and we went over everyone's job description. The kids came in my office and I told them about being mayor and judge. I was asked what do you have to do to see the judge?

Well, I explained. I do everything from traffic stops to theft and drinking.

That is when it starts with, "my dad drinks every night and my mom gets mad at him", or "my grandma says my dad drinks too much and my mom should have married her other boyfriend," or "my dad speeds all the time and only puts on a seatbelt when he sees a cop."

I learned all that in like 5 minutes ... so I came to the conclusion that a 6-year-old will tell it all.

No house has a secret. Jeff "The teachers know all the secrets" Stanfield

VETERANS

School students, under the direction of Nancy McGreger, will lead the Pledge of Allegiance.

The main speakers will be the winners of the essay and poster contest. Fifth- or sixth-grade students from Benjamin, Knox City and Munday have been asked to participate. Each year, Homer Lowrance of Munday speaks with administrators and teachers at the three schools to encourage students to participate. Students can write about a veteran from any time period. Some choose to interview a relative or a neighbor. Along with writing a paper, each entrant will make a poster about the veteran. The first three winners from each school receive ribbons and will have their poster displayed in the Museum's Veterans Day Exhibit.

The Gold Star Family of Private First Class Sam Ed Carpenter of Knox City, killed on Iwo Jima on March 15, 1945, will place the memorial wreath under the archway. The band will play taps, while Private Carpenter's cousins, Earl and Bobby Jo Favor Baldon, Henry J. Jones and friend, John Velez, stand under the archway of engraved names, honoring Knox County Veterans killed in action. Joe Nelson of Knox City will sing the National Anthem to conclude the program.

The Veterans history display will be in the Wichita Brazos Museum from 9 to 11 a.m. and noon to 2 p.m. Military uniforms, medals, and other patriotic exhibits will honor veterans there. The Veterans albums will be displayed, allowing attendees to look at the information about our Knox County Veterans.

A hamburger meal with beans and homemade cobblers served at the Benjamin Ex-Students Building will conclude the tribute to our veterans.

The beautiful quilt, Jacob's Fans and Flowers, pieced by Mary Cartwright and quilted by Marjorie Lake will be given away at 1 p.m. Front Porch Quilts, across the street from the museum, will be serving free coffee and donuts on "The Porch," on Saturday morning in honor of our Veterans.

For more information, contact the KCHC office at the museum at (940) 459-2229 or by e-mail at kchc@srcaccess.net.
