Mrs. J. U. Fields Showered With Honors at Henrietta, Texas.

Mrs. J. U. Fields and Dr. Georgia M. Moore have returned from Henrietta where they were guests in the home of Dr. Moore's sister, Mrs. F. O. Moore, over last week end and where three special courtesies were tendered Mrs. J. U. Fields, beginning at one o'clock Saturday when the Delphian Club gave a five course luncheon in the home of Mrs. J. M. Douthitt. Other special guests present were: State Chairman of Club Houses, Mrs. P. P. Langford; Chairman of Junior Clubs, Mrs. Paul Donald, Bowie; District Chairman of Drama, Mrs. Ben O'Neal, Wichita Falls; Chairman of Conventions and Civics, Mrs. Frank Holliday, Henrietta. Toasts, Talks, vocal and instrumental music continued throughout the luncheon and the Delphian Club presented Mrs. Fields with a magnificent corsage. Mrs. Edwards was toastmistress and her daughter, Miss Virginia Edwards, presented Mrs. Fields with an original painted picture. The local P. T. A. and the Music Club gave the honoree lovely cut flowers. The reception suite of the Douthitt home was made lovely with baskets and bowls of pink carnations and the table appointments for this elaborate luncheon were in black and gold as was also the menu. In the evening at the First Christian Church, The Unity Club, of which Mrs. F. O. Moore is the president, entertained Mrs. Fields and Dr. Moore with a reception and seventeen clubs of Clay county were represented. Mrs. Fields on invitation gave her address, "The Spirit of Beauty," and at the close was presented with a bouquet of marshmallows. The orchestra from the Methodist Church furnished music through the entire evening and a buffet supper was served the guests. Before leaving Henrietta on Sunday morning, Mrs. J. U. Fields and Mrs. Paul Donald of Bowie were tendered a lovely breakfast by Mrs. Edwards in her home.

South Ward P. T. A. To Sponsor Play.

The South Ward Parent-Teachers Association will sponsor the popular play, Mr. and Mrs. Polly Tick at the High School Auditorium on Thursday evening March 24th, at 8 o'clock. The same company who sent the young lady to Haskell to put on The Flapper Grandmother, will send a representative to direct Mr. and Mrs. Polly Tick. Now Mrs. Polly Tick has been selected and she is one of the most popular and talented society girls in Haskell and will clearly bring out the screamingly funny situations of the modern woman leaving her husband and children to go to her club and talk politics and do general "uplift" work for her community, the home and state. Mr. Polly Tick, also is a general stage favorite in Haskell, and these two leading characters will be supported by a strong cast of some forty five or fifty characters. There will be special song and dance skits and altogether it will be one of the best stage plays ever brought to Haskell, ohuck to the brim with fun and modern situations in the American Home. This play was put on in Stamford some months ago by the same company and the advance agent who was in Haskell last week declared that they had never had such a rousing response and thanks for sponsoring a play as they received from Stamford for putting on Mr. and Mrs. Polly Tick. Keep an open date on the evening of March 24th and laugh with the crowd at the Haskell High School Auditorium, when the South Ward P. T. A. puts on Mr. and Mrs. Polly Tick.

George H. Morrison Presents Pupils in Recital

George H. Morrison presented winners, her intermediate and her advanced pupils in piano assisted by Miss Clarine Branolinist and Miss Katherine Rike, at the Magazine Club rooms Friday evening at 7:30 o'clock. Morrison has established herself as a teacher who not only can prepare pupils to give the best in the world but to give it in such a way as to be highly pleasing and varied. The piano numbers were headed by a delightful reading, "Afraid, Cook," by Katherine and violin number, The Herd Dream, Lobitzky, Miss Clarence; the ever popular Rhythm was opened the program followed by Spring by Daisey Belle Pier-

The County Federation of Women's Clubs Met last Tuesday Afternoon.

At the appointed hour, 2:30, the president of the County Federation of Women's Clubs, Mrs. H. M. Smith opened the meeting by asking that all sing, America the Beautiful, and after a prayer, Mrs. Smith made a few introductory remarks and presented Mr. B. M. Whiteker, Exhibit Manager of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce who discussed minutely, bringing out clearly the facts in the case to prove the greatest needs of Haskell County, good roads was the first outstanding need as seen by Mr. Whiteker and every one present heartily agreed with him and Mr. Whiteker's only solution was the agitation of good roads until the people of Haskell County noticed that good roads were needed and determined to have them. Next, a County Demonstrator was stressed and the inestimable economic good that she would be to Haskell County. Mr. Whiteker also pointed out that the lack of knowledge of the ordinary farmer to cull his poultry, keep good dairy stock, select good planting seed and the selling of the raw materials for far less than he can buy the needed necessities, which are the finished products, are some of the present causes of things as they are. The third need as seen by Mr. Whiteker for Haskell County or any other county are builders, men with visions, who sensing or seeing a need, put their shoulders to the wheel to meet that need.

While Mr. Whiteker was the principal speaker, there were several others who brought some splendid and practical thoughts to bear on a cleanup campaign all over the county, the planting of tree, the conservation of our native mesquite trees and many other good things for our homes and county. These were discussed by Mr. Carlton Couch, Mrs. C. O. Davis of Rule and Mr. W. B. Gregory of Weinert. The next meeting of the Federation will be Tuesday the 26th of April when there will be an election of officers.

Harmony Club.

The Harmony Club enjoyed a very fine musical program by club members at their last meeting, last Wednesday afternoon. The director, Mrs. M. L. Baker, opened the program by a chorus by the entire membership, "Texas, My Texas," by Marsh; this was Texas Composers Day in the local club and Texas Composers were interpreted by a number of piano selections including compositions by two of Haskell's most talented musicians, Mrs. O. E. Patterson and Mrs. H. D. Neff. Miss Perry Lee Smith sang a Texas song, by a Texas composer, "A Bluebonnet Song" by Margaret Scott Penn; a brief survey of Texas Composers was given by the director, Mrs. M. L. Baker; next Miss Marjorie Rogers did credit to the art of music, to herself and to the composer, by rendering, "Sheep and Goat," by Guion; the next number was 1st, "En Bercant," by Versel, and 2nd, "A Waltz," an original composition by Mrs. O. E. Patterson; both of Mrs. H. D. Neff's (a) and (b) numbers were original compositions, 1st, "Valse," and 2nd, "Fleeting Dreams." The personnel of the Harmony Club embraces the musical talent, both instrumental and vocal of Haskell.

Council Meeting of Methodist Officers and Teachers of the Sunday School.

The monthly meeting of the Council of the officers and teachers of the Sunday School of the Methodist Church met last Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock in the Beginner's Department. There were twenty-one present and a very fine meeting was enjoyed. The pastor, Rev. W. B. Vaughn, read the ten points of efficiency required in a 100 per cent school. An open discussion of the value of adhering to the plan was indulged in freely and a vote taken to carry out the program of the church. Also an affirmative decision was taken to carefully grade all pupils, place them where they belong and allow no changing from class to class by individual pupils, without a promotion card from the teacher. Mrs. Guy Mays was appointed chairman, with power to select her committee, to prepare the program for next Missionary Day, which is the fourth Sunday in March. On Easter morning at the 11 o'clock hour there will be an appropriate program for Children's Day, the director to be appointed later. Progress was seen from the last meeting, in that all material changes and improvements recommended at that time have been accomplished.

Mrs. Sam A. Roberts Club Hostess.

Last Tuesday afternoon was one of the brightest and clearest of a week or more of inclement weather and the members of the Golf Widows Club enjoyed several hours of "42" in the home of Mrs. Sam A. Roberts. Potted plants in full bloom were the decorations, and the tally cards, plate favors and menu, of a delicious salad course, were emblems of St. Patrick's Day. Special guests were Mesdames W. J. Williams, Paul Kuenstler, John Ellis, Jim Gilstrap, Vaughn Bailey, W. A. Duncan; club members, the president, Mrs. Hardy Grissom, Mrs. A. C. Pierson, Mrs. Leo Southern, Mrs. Bruce Bryant, Mrs. R. C. Couch, Mrs. R. C. Montgomery, Mrs. O. E. Patterson, Mrs. J. G. Foster, Mrs. W. H. Murchison, Mrs. A. H. Wair and the hostess, Mrs. Sam A. Roberts.

slowly and planted his hob-nailed boots squarely before him. His legs were short, his arms long, and he would have disputed build with a gorilla and strength with a grizzly. This was Abe Cole, the Sleepy Cat blacksmith. Other blacksmiths there were in Sleepy Cat; but Cole was known as and designated as the Sleepy Cat blacksmith.

Fortunately he was as peaceable as powerful when not aroused, but his disposition was naturally positive, and he was known as a fighter.

Abe shouldered himself through the crowd without hesitation or difficulty—whenever his shoulders encountered an obstacle, the obstacle gave way. He walked straight to Fyler, holding out a handful of soggy scraps of black felt. A bedraggled husband hung from his waist. "Look here, Haynes!" he thundered. The auction stopped. "Here's the hat you sold me yesterday!" Cole added, in no uncertain tones. Haynes gave him prompt attention. "That's what the rain did to it!" bellowed Abe.

Haynes, leaning down, picked up the shoddy wreck, the hatband fast and very carefully, for fear it should fall to pieces, and examined the remains with solicitude.

Abe Cole started in again to say a hard thing, but Haynes put up his hand as a doctor might in the presence of approaching death demand restraint from a very angry man.

"Gentlemen," he said, speaking as a troubled man might speak on a painful occasion, "you can see here, all of you, what difficulty an honest purveyor of merchandise has in selecting his goods for a new country. This hat, gentlemen—hold on, Abe!" he interjected in stentorian tones, for Cole's safety-valve of anger gave strong indications of popping, "hold on till you hear me; I sold you this hat, didn't I? I did! Very well. I want to say to you, gentlemen, one and all, that when a mistake like this happens, we make it good! This hat," he exclaimed, holding the offender out for personal reproof, "never should have been sold in the mountains; it's a desert hat, made light and porous for a dry country. The Indians along the famous Spanish sinks buy these hats freely for their squaws; they're porous, gentlemen—but they won't stand rain."

"Porous monkey!" stuttered Cole. "They're rotten."

Haynes courteously protested. "I wouldn't had it happen, Abe, for one hundred dollars, I replace it cheerfully. Mr. Fyler," he shouted, pointing a commanding finger, "be kind enough to hand me that box of hats." From the box passed up Haynes, carefully picking over several hats, selected a brown one—never for a moment losing the thread of his easy and plausible flow of words. Abe Cole continued to growl, but he was in effect silenced, and stood under his new hat, a sturdy onlooker, while Big

Haynes pulled out his watch. "Gentlemen," he exclaimed, as solemnly as if about to lead in prayer, "it is twelve o'clock—time to eat. My heart is weak and I eat three times a day. I never keep men beyond their dinner hour, anyway—their wives pick on me, and a hungry man ain't a good customer. And if you think I've got an easy job here, try it, some of you! Next sale at two o'clock sharp, and the biggest bargains ever offered in Sleepy Cat—don't miss it!"

The crowd began to file out. Big Haynes climbed down. "What kind of a hat did you give him?" whispered Fyler.

"Same kind I give him yesterday," growled Haynes. "Doc Carpy come in here a while ago with his overcoat—wanted to cut me up for bear bait. I hope to God I get out of this town before it rains again."

The auctioneer followed the crowd as they straggled out. At the door a young girl waited. She had a lunch basket in her hand. When the store was emptied, she walked up the two steps and in. Selwood stood near Fyler, and he watched the newcomer with an unrestrained interest until her eyes fell on his, as she came up. Selwood looked then at Fyler. Christie—and Selwood recognized her as the girl in the wagon at Crawling Stone wash—set down her basket on the dry-goods box in front of Fyler. "Here's your dinner, father," she said. "Eat it now while it's hot."

Selwood tried to think of something to say, but could not. And though he felt he was an interloper, he could not get started to go. Christie, her back to him, talked and laughed with her father. Her voice was completely new music to Selwood's ears; it trans fixed him. But the moment could not last. She turned partly and looked at Selwood. Whatever she may have had in her mind, he could think of but one thing, for her glance seemed to him to say: What are you doing here? And Selwood, barely returning her look, just caught sight of her eyes, pulled himself together, and walked out of the store.

CHAPTER V

Pardaloe Investigates

Selwood found it possible to happen in occasionally at Fyler's, and although it meant getting up a little earlier, about at the time Fyler's dinner was due.

But he could never get a chance to speak to Christie, who rarely tolerated. She was accustomed to wait in just at the close of the auction, and Selwood who usually took his place close to Fyler's dry-goods box, made into a sort of a desk, was forced to content himself with hearing a few words, or a little laugh, as she spoke to her father and walked out again.

But such a moment Selwood thought worth waiting for. He looked forward to that moment. At night, under the glare of hot lamps that cost a fortune in coal-oil brought two thousand miles to burn; in an air reeking with the fumes of tobacco smoke and breaking at times into boisterous ribaldry, Selwood seemed yet sometimes to hear, between the monotonous dicking of chips, the calls of the dealers, and whirl of roulette wheels, the cadence of a girl's voice—a

WHY? YES WHY?
Recently a carload of eggs was shipped from Vincennes, Indiana to a dealer in Texas. This is a fact not a speck of fiction. The Texas dealer, being the leading agricultural state in the Union, Why a carload of eggs should be shipped from Indiana to any point in Texas is certainly an interesting question. The hue and cry has recently gone up about the price of cotton and rumors have come out about the financial ruin that is staring our farmers in the face, yet it is a proved fact that from 200 to 500 pure bred chickens properly handled should be producing a living for the average Texas family. Texas has the climate, the soil, and marketing facilities, when properly handled, for economical egg production second to none.

CREAM IS MUCH EASIER FOR THE CUSTOMER TO HANDLE THAN BUTTER
We are getting overloaded on butter, so will be compelled to reduce the price on same. We maintain a good cream station in the back end of our store, so bring your cream and see if it isn't better than bringing butter. Look through my prices before buying your bill.

The Improved Ford Makes 43.6-10 on One Gallon of Gasoline

America's most practical, most economical automobile, with the improved Hot Plate Vaporizer, pulls sensational contest settling once and for all the question, How Far Will a Ford Car run on a single gallon of gas.

This mileage Contest was held under the auspices of Authorized Ford Dealers. Eliminations were held by 10 dealers and the winners met in finals at Stamford, Texas, March 4th. Each of the 22 competing cars was a regular stock model, driven by an individual driver or drivers standard in every respect.

Carburators were drained, tanks and hoods sealed, a single gallon of gas placed in each car, and every car was followed by a car containing judges and observers.

The winner, M. B. Watson obtained 43.6 miles and the runner up, driving a ford coupe obtained 37.4 miles.

Ford prices are today lowest in history. Ford performance and quality HIGHEST.

The new ford vaporizer will fit on any ford model, and they retail for $9.00. We invite you to call us for demonstration.
