Raid Nazi Naval Base To Celebrate Breaking Of German Air Supremacy

LONDON (AP)—The RAF hurled a strong force of bombers Monday night against Wilhelmshaven, chief German naval station on the North Sea, and kindled fires which participating pilots said were left spreading "right bang in the middle of the docks."

From this assault by perhaps hundreds of bombers—only two raiders were lost, the Air Ministry said. The Wilhelmshaven attack was the second by the RAF in as many nights and the ninth this month upon Germany.

Wilhelmshaven is 50 miles air-line northwest of Bremen, the main target the night before.

Marks Allied Supremacy

The constant pounding of Germany marked a full swing of the pendulum from two years ago when it was Britain which underwent successive smashing attacks.

By Jack Bell
WASHINGTON. (AP) — A record shattering revenue bill dipping directly into the pockets of more than a third of the nation's citizens for money to help fight the war went to the technical draftsmen Tuesday with mixed approval and criticism from members of the Senate Finance Committee.

About 23,000,000 persons who previously had paid no federal income taxes would join 20,000,000 old taxpayers and the corporations to provide treasury collections estimated unofficially at more than $25,500,000,000 annually under terms of the measure as it was approved by the committee Monday night.

Sales Tax Effort Fails

The new "Victory" tax, superimposed on the regular income tax, would collect 5 per cent of earnings above $624 a year, the assessment being taken out of the pay checks of wage earners.

At the end of the year, credits of 25 per cent of the tax would be available for single persons and 40 per cent, plus 2 per cent for dependent, to married persons. These could be taken up in debt and insurance deductions or made in the form of post war rebates by the Treasury.

This levy stayed in the bill despite a last-minute effort by Senator Byrd (D-Va) to force across a sales tax, linked with increases in income rates and lowering of exemptions.

Short of Taxes Needed

The committee then proceeded to lower to 40 per cent the House-approved rate of 45 per cent on non-rate (Continued on page two)

Double Trouble

U. S. Gaining Striking Edge In Far Pacific

By The Associated Press
The United States has gained the balance of military and naval striking power over Japan in the Far Pacific, Rear Admiral W. H. Blandy declared in Washington Tuesday, while other reports said American forces were nearing the halfway mark in their fight to destroy Japan's aircraft carrier strength.

Admiral Blandy, returning from a 26,000 mile inspection trip, said that "for the time being, most certainly," the United States had gained the advantage over Japan.

Dispatches from Clark Lee, Associated Press correspondent in the Pacific, told of the probable sinking of a 7,500-ton Japanese carrier in a battle off the Solomon Islands on Aug. 24—the sixth enemy carrier reported sent to the bottom since Pearl Harbor. Previously, the Navy said a Japanese carrier of the type described by Lee had been severely damaged.

Four Hits On Carrier

Lee said American fliers registered four bomb hits and a torpedo hit on the ship and "our pilots think there is every reason to believe it went down."

If so, that leaves the enemy only eight known carriers still afloat to carry on the all important air-sea struggle, Lee said.

In the New Guinea battle theater, General Douglas MacArthur's Headquarters reported that the Japanese drive across the Owen Stanley mountains toward Port Moresby remained stalled for the fifth day amid signs that the enemy was preparing for a new attack.

Use Pattern Bombing In Heavy Effort To Dislodge Red Troops

By Henry C. Cassidy
MOSCOW. (AP)—Backs to the Volga, defenders of Stalingrad stood to their guns Tuesday under the heaviest of pattern bombing and still held hills looking down upon the heart of the city against the redoubtable assaults of Nazi troops and tanks.

"It is impossible to retreat any farther," a Russian correspondent reported from the war's bloodiest battlefield. But even while the bomb-splattered city fought for its life, the Red Army kept up its own dogged punching at the German defensive lines on the Moscow front to the north, and reported the annihilation of about 4,000 Germans and the capture of a fortified town in a three-day fight.

Russian planes and Russian tanks still played their part in the fight to save Stalingrad—badly outnumbered though they were. And the Russians reported that although their lines sagged again and again under terrific onslaught, the German gains now were being held to a costly 300 to 400 yards for a whole day's fighting.

The mid-day communique told of the repulse of attacks both west and southwest of the industrial center and the details of scattered engagements indicated more than 2,000 Germans were slain in that critical area Monday.

Red Army men fighting west of Stalingrad slew 700 Germans in a series of defensive engagements and destroyed two tanks while Soviet artillery "dispersed enemy infantry concentrations and blew up six ammunition trucks," the communique said.

But Tuesday she sent "Salvo" to the new San Angelo Army Flying School, and the boys left in Midland are wondering if that is not going a little too far... they are a bit upset.

Three-Way Jap War Threat Hangs Over Siberia

By sea, by land and by air, Japan threatens a stab-in-the-back attack on war-beset Russia's far eastern provinces. A network of railroads in Manchukuo provides fast communication to the potential fighting front, and superior Jap naval and air forces might overwhelm Soviet soldiers in Siberia. Allied bombers at Vladivostok would have only 500 miles to fly to raid Japan. For 10 years prior to Pearl Harbor, Japan and Russia clashed often on the Manchukuo-Siberia border, but both sides avoided actual warfare. In past months the coming of conflict to this front has seemed unavoidable because Japan—like Germany in 1941—could never enjoy security in her conquests with the Soviet a constant threat at her rear.

Bombardier From MAFS Staff Drops Bombs in Big Raid

Going under enemy fire did not alter the aim of Lieutenant W. C. Lewis who for five weeks last Spring served as a bombardier instructor at Midland Army Flying School.

He participated in the recent raid on Rouen, Occupied France, according to word received by his mother, Mrs. Nora Screven Lewis in Birmingham, Ala.

Telling of the bombing on his return from the eventful mission he declared: "I think our bombs were in dead center. It was a beautiful set-up." His plane went on to its target despite enemy opposition and laid its eggs squarely on the target.

On the return trip he not only witnessed the shooting down of a Nazi plane by the gunner on his ship, but he also saw two British Spitfires close in on a Nazi fighter plane and send it down.

Lieutenant Lewis came to Midland Army Flying School after receiving his training at Barksdale Field.

Cap Lyman Calls Rally Ex-Service Men All Branches

All ex-service men, Army, Marines and Navy veterans, foreign or home service, have been called to rally Tuesday night in the district courtroom of the courthouse to "start some things." The rally is called by C. J. (Cap) Lyman, who has just been installed as commander of the Midland American Legion Post. The rally is for all veterans, whether or not they are members of any veteran post.

"There are some very important things to be presented to all men who have seen service in any branch," said Lyman, "things that every one of them will be glad to hear, if we are to throw our full weight into getting the most done about winning this war."

"There is a place for everyone of us in active work, and it is time to stop talking about what may not be done here or there about the country when there is much to be done right here, and when we are here to do it. We are going to do our full part here, and start now," said Lyman.

With more than 150 ex-service men in the city, representing all branches of the service, Lyman feels that all of these who are ablebodied will want to assist in the new plans, and joins with all other officers of the post in urging a full attendance Tuesday night. The meeting will start sharply at 8 o'clock.

Jap Plane Believed Launched From Sub Is Said To Have Started Oregon Forest Fire

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—A foot-deep crater, apparently caused by an incendiary bomb, gave evidence Tuesday of what may have been the first aerial assault upon United States home soil, an apparent attempt to set fire to an isolated forest on the Southern Oregon coast.

The Army's western defense command, in a carefully-worded communique, disclosed that an unidentified, small seaplane of a type that might have been carried on a submarine was seen coming inland just before dawn, Sept. 9, and was heard roaring out to sea about half an hour later.

Fire Follows Plane

Some time after the plane was seen circling the Mount Emily area nine miles northeast of Brookings, Ore., a fire was observed, and forestry patrols who extinguished the blaze found a crater and metal fragments which the Army said bore "markings of Japanese ideographs which may have been part of a code indicating the arsenal where the bomb was manufactured."

Several hours after the appearance of the plane, the communique said (Continued on page two)

Nazi North Africa Bases Are Raided By British Forces

LONDON. (AP)—A sea-borne British Army detachment, supported by light naval units and heavy RAF squadrons, was reported by the admiralty Tuesday to have struck a damaging blow Sunday night at Tobruk, Field Marshal Rommel's key supply base.

While this raid was executed against the rubble-littered Libyan port, Italian communique claiming that another light Naval Force "successfully bombed enemy lines of communication in the El Daba area" about 20 miles behind the Axis front across the Egyptian desert, the Admiralty said.

British Concede Losses

British losses were conceded in the withdrawal from Tobruk, but the action against El Daba was declared to have been concluded without damage or casualties.

The admiralty made no comment upon Italian communique claiming that three British destroyers, a cruiser and several patrol boats were sunk during and after the operation and four other ships damaged.

A Cairo communique, however, intentionally discounted Tuesday's Italian communique claiming that, in pursuing the expedition, sank the cruiser and damaged the four ships. The Cairo announcement said long-range British fighters forced these large formations of enemy bombers to return to their bases.

The Italians said that 876 British prisoners were taken, including 34 officers and that a large amount of British equipment was captured. British sources declined to comment on Italian reports that parachutists were used by the British in the raid.

THE WAR TODAY

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

The startling decree issued by the Laval government in Vichy, establishing forced labor on French men and women, is held by Free French sources in London to reflect Hitler's determination to add more slave labor to the millions over whom he already is master.

However, without ascribing ulterior motives to the decree in advance of proof, we still can say with definite knowledge that the Nazi conqueror has been doing his utmost to swell the ranks of his unwilling chattels with more Frenchmen. The scheme whereby Laval was to provide Germany with 350,000 voluntary workers has failed miserably because, forsooth, the liberty-loving Frenchmen would not sell their birthrights.

I am employing that shocking word "slave" deliberately as representing the exact position created by the Nazi Pariah who is trying to build his pyramid of conquests by use of the lash. He already has impressed millions of unhappy peoples of the subjugated countries to serve the Reich, and he has taken more from his allies—even from the once proud Mussolini, who long since has ceased to exercise a free will.

Under Severe Discipline

Countless thousands of these unfortunates have actually been collected within the borders of Germany to toil for Hitlerism. But that isn't the half. Workers in the subjugated countries have been placed under the most severe Nazi military discipline, in order that the last ounce of strength may be squeezed from their undernourished bodies.

Up-to-the-minute figures aren't available, but six months ago the (Continued on Page 2)

Victory Tax

As a makeshift—which is all that can be expected from Congress at this late date—there is much to commend in the Victory Tax proposed by Senator George and approved by the Senate Finance Committee.

It is relatively simple. It taps the income of all but the lowest paid; this has the double merit of making everybody tax conscious and of helping to drain a dangerous pool of potential inflationary new war income.

It encourages the payment of debts, the purchase of insurance and the buying of war bonds, by allowing credits for such payments.

It recognizes the need which will exist, after the war, for replacement of now unprocurable heavy household goods—refrigerators, automobiles, heating plants, stoves, etc.—and the fact that unless money is available at that time, the heavy industries will not have paying customers to finance reconversion to peacetime production.

To these extents the Victory Tax is an improvement over the alternatives which had been under consideration. The public should recognize, however, that the Victory Tax is not a scientific substitute for the unscientific tax structure which has grown up.

It does not replace the income tax. It has nothing to do with the desirability of the Ruml withholding tax plan, which is being kicked about notwithstanding public approval.

The need for heavy new taxes has been a matter of public knowledge for many months. President Roosevelt made it Point Number One in his seven point anti-inflation program recommended to Congress last April.

The people, who ordinarily hate taxes, have made it abundantly clear that for war purposes there is no ceiling upon their willingness to pay, and pay, and pay. Yet at the last moment, it was necessary to produce a makeshift.

At this late date, the income tax structure has not been revised. It must be overhauled in a great rush to fit it into a brandnew supplementary tax scheme so that the poorer payers will not be ruined.

We shall emerge, probably after election, with a hodge-podge tax system which will produce money for Uncle Sam, will take money from the people, but will leave us even further from any scientific approach to taxation than we were last April.

In everything except the separation of the public from its money, we are making high speed backward in connection with taxation.

To Reclassify-

lumber in this state, General Page said: Pursuant to a directive received from National Selective Service headquarters, in support of this objective, Texas local boards have been instructed to reclassify out of Class 1-A or Class 1-B into a class immediately for service, or out of Class 1-B into class 1-A, subject to the usual rights of appeal, any registrant who leaves a production or maintenance occupation in any of these activities without presenting satisfactory evidence to his local board that his separation did not adversely affect the war effort.

This order, General Page pointed out, permits a worker to change jobs so long as that change, in the opinion of the registrant's local board, does not adversely affect the war effort and that by changing he can increase production.

General Page emphasized that no classification is permanent and that the Selective Service regulations make it mandatory that each classified registrant report to his local board in writing, within 10 days, any change in his occupational status.

tion, raking them with machine-gun fire and bombs. Japanese Move Mountain Guns

Gen. Sir Thomas Blamey, Commander of Allied land forces in the Southwest Pacific, declared on his return from the New Guinea front that Japanese gains in the Owen Stanley range were due to Allied difficulties in moving sufficient strength to forward positions.

"It is unlikely that we will again have to meet the Japanese under such disadvantageous conditions," he said.

But he admitted the Japanese had moved mountain guns to their positions 40 miles above Port Moresby.

Earlier, Pacific fleet headquarters in Pearl Harbor announced that 450 Japanese had been taken prisoner by U. S. Marines in the Solomon Islands, and added:

"The outstanding feature in the capture of these prisoners is that each one expected to be killed. Humane treatment, including the furnishing of medical attention and clothing, was so surprising to the captives that many expressed a desire never to return to Japan."

On the Madagascar front, dispatches to Vichy said the situation was one of "extreme gravity" as British columns drove closer to Tananarive, capital of the 1,000-mile-long island off the coast of Southeast Africa.

On the China front, Chinese headquarters reported that Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's armies had recaptured the town of Wuji, 20 miles southeast of Kihwa in Chekiang Province. At Lanchi, 35 miles northwest of Wuji, big fires were reported raging and a Chinese military spokesman said it was unlikely that the Japanese garrison of 4,000 troops could hold out much longer.

Jap Plane-

ance and disappearance of the plane was reported, an Army patrol plane sighted and bombed a submarine 30 miles off the Oregon coast with "unobserved results."

Japanese submarines shelled an oil well area in Southern California February 23, causing slight damage, and a beach near Seaside, Ore. June 22, but it was the first evidence of an actual air bombing of the Continental United States.

Is Isolated Country So isolated is the spot that Ed Marshall, federal forester, was sure that the Japanese had chosen it for the assault. The countryside is heavily timbered, mountainous, sparsely settled, with few trails and no highways into the interior.

Before the war Japanese worked extensively through the Chetco River country, buying logs and rafting them downriver.

The Japanese, the plane and the fire became linked together shortly after Howard Gardner, forest service lookout, had controlled the flames.

Find Bomb Fragments He found bomb fragments and a "sizable crater." The bombs sheared a six-inch tree and set fire to a stump, he reported to H. R. Dewart, Curry County air raid chairman.

Marshall dug out of the crater what he said was the nose of an incendiary bomb. Attached was a steel shank bearing Japanese characters.

Then the Army began investigating. Tuesday it announced the results of its inquiry which it indicated still was progressing and for the first time allowed the story to be published.

ed in its ferocity, two Axis infantry companies were wiped out by mortar fire and eight tanks of a Nazi column stalled by anti-tank barricades were destroyed or disabled, the Russians said.

Nazis Use More Planes A German tank formation broke into another Russian town in the battle of the Central Caucasus, but is under the fire of an elite Soviet detachment which is seeking to annihilate it, the communique reported.

The scene of the Red Army men's reported triumph on the central front was not announced, but presumably the attack was made in the Rzhev-Vyazma salient west of Moscow.

In three days of fighting they wiped out about 4,000 Germans, disabled or set fire to several dozen tanks and destroyed 11 guns and six mortar batteries," it was declared. "We captured 15 guns, one tank, 19 machineguns and other war material."

A dispatch to the Army newspaper Red Star said the Axis now was using, twice as many troops and tanks against Stalingrad as in earlier assaults and had increased the number of planes in the action.

Nevertheless, the defenders were said to be passing at times to counterattacks.

sary of the battle of Britain's climax and Allied air chiefs commemorated the event with the promise that their air armadas would help destroy and defeat the Axis enemies.

Monday night's raid followed by 24 hours a double blow by the RAF and the Russian Air Force at Germany and her Axis partners, Rumania and Bulgaria.

Premise Increase Raids It came after Air Chief Marshal Sir Charles Portal, commander in chief of the RAF, promised that British, Russian and American air armadas would "overwhelm our enemies and bring about their final destruction."

He made his prediction in a message commemorating Sept. 15, 1940, when the RAF and anti-aircraft gunners shot 185 German planes out of the sky over Britain and the English Channel. The message answered a tribute to the RAF by Lieut. Gen. H. H. Arnold, commander in chief of the U. S. Army Air Force.

General Arnold said the deeds of the RAF two years ago "turned the tide of war, ending forever the Nazi hope of world conquest, and made possible the final United Nations victory that is to come."

foreign workers actually within the borders of Germany were close to 3,000,000, apart from about 1,500,000 prisoners of war who were working there, and other hundreds of thousands of Russians reported captured. At that time the Nazis were bragging that they were going to increase these figures greatly and undoubtedly this has been done. Field Marshal Goering, Hitler's crown prince, also announced that prisoners of war would be used, which wasn't surprising in view of the fact that they already were at work.

The largest groups of foreigners were Poles and Italians, of whom there were more than a million each. Then there were 140,000 Czechs, 250,000 Belgians, 109,000 Yugoslavs, 200,000 Dutch; 80,000 Slovaks and 269,000 others of various nationalities. Among these workers were great numbers of women including 250,000 Polish and many Italians.

Despite this imported help, and the millions of workers slaving for Hitler in the subjugated countries, the labor shortage in the Reich has been increasingly acute during the past year, for the supply of German workers was exhausted long ago.

The Nazi over-lord has been unable to man his factories and farms adequately.

While Hitler tries to solve this dirty problem, it's reported that he is moving Russian peasants by the thousands to Germany in boxcars. They, of course, will be slaves in exactly the same sense as the men who were chained to the oars of the Roman galleys.

"That's the sort of enemy we are out to beat. Seems as though we have plenty to impel us to work like the devil to save us from working for the devil if we lost the war."

Perfume Is Plentiful As Domestic Houses And French Makers Offer Prized Lines

Perfume on your skin instead of on your clothes... this is the fashionable as well as economical way to use the traditional feminine charm aid.

By Alicia Hart
NEA Service Staff Writer
Perfume is still plentiful... still careful as the moods and temperaments of woman. The few that used to be blended and bottled in France are getting scarcer. But many of the famed French essences were put together and packaged in America for years before the war, and these houses still offer all their prized fragrances.

American manufacturers, too, are making their stand-bys and, once in a while, a new odor. Now, with great fanfare, comes a new blended-and-bottled-in-America perfume from one of those French makers based here. It comes out in twenty-seven different new beauty aids all introduced at once, instead of in the house's customary way of first presenting the perfume and afterward the make-up with the same scent.

The matching-scented make-up includes a judiciously streamlined range of colors.

Know Your Perfumes
Selecting a perfume is, of course, just about the most personal of all choosing for the sake of your charm. Do it knowingly. Remember this: perfume can be used as a magnifying mirror of your alertness to the mode of the moment; or it can be chosen to underline the mood of your romantic moments; or it can be chosen as your own one-fragrance for every occasion when you wear perfume.

You're a one-fragrance woman? Then, be sure that one is yours. Before renewing your supply this fall, you might check by sniffing a great many, both new ones and stand-bys.

For instance, those whose French-originated maker's name is an American household word. In their exquisite leather-cased Lalique bottles, these perfumes are new colors or items. And the same perfumes are available in less expensive, new beautiful, ingenious containers... for instance, in metal perfume-vinagrette with locked top, for your purse.

Perfumes Featured
The American house which has made people spice-conscious in recent years is emphasizing, this fall, its early American spice-fragrance, its old-fashioned garden distilla-

REDDY KILOWATT'S Wartime Lighting Lesson No. 1:

Clean Fixtures Give MORE LIGHT!
SOAP + WATER + = BETTER LIGHT

WARTIME economy demands that we make the best use of what we have. GOOD LIGHT, so essential to good work, can be BETTER light, just by keeping light bulbs and glass diffusing bowls clean. There's no rationing on soap and water, so improve your lighting in a few minutes this easy way. Disconnect your lamp and unscrew the bulb and wipe it with a damp cloth. Remove the glass diffusing bowl and give it a good bath in soap and water. Be sure the bulb and bowl are dry before putting them back in the lamp. You'll be agreeably surprised how much more light you get.

White Shade Linings give more light. You can "roll your own" by marking the shade outline on good white paper. Trim to fit inside of the shade and fasten with Scotch tape.
Keep Spare Fuses on hand to save you time and trouble if a fuse blows. First, disconnect any lamps or appliances that may have caused the fuse to burn out, and then replace the blown fuse.

McKENNEY ON BRIDGE

America's Card Authority
Introducing Sam Stayman, a member of the world championship Masters team-of-four winners. He was also a member of the same New York Bridge Whist Club team when they won the national championship last April.

Stayman likes to try out tricky bids. Bidding a short major suit is one of his favorites. Today's hand is an example of his style. His opening spade bid in such a situation is a barricade maneuver. In case the opponents have eight spades, a division of their honor cards plus the adverse bid may prevent them from finding their real suit. If they get into hearts, the North hand is well fixed for defense, and if the game is in no trump, Saim said, "I can't do anything about it." The diamond suit provides an out if the spade bid is doubled.

Here Stayman stole for three diamonds a hand on which most East-West pairs bid and made four spades. He was down only two tricks, undoubled.

"DOUGHNUT DUNKING" IS JUST A MEMORY NOW IN ENGLAND
NEW YORK. (AP)—"Doughnut dunking" is just a memory to many American soldiers abroad.

Albert V. J. Dodd, managing director of the British Doughnut Company, Ltd., said on arrival from London Monday that British ministry of food restrictions on the use of dried milk and fats made the baking of large quantities of doughnuts impossible.

"The American boys are clamoring for doughnuts," he said.

Glass for bottle-making is composed chiefly of silica, soda and lime.

Expediters Real Breakers Of War Work Bottlenecks

By Tom Wolfe NEA Service Staff Correspondent NEW YORK—The real bottleneck-breakers for America's war production are a little-publicized handful of men-in-industry known as "expediters"—the lads who ferret out and obtain materials and parts for whose lack production is stymied.

Expediter Must Be Versatile An expediter is a guy who needs the persuasive powers of Portia, the engineering ingenuity of Goethals and the super-salesmanship of Diamond Jim Brady. His headquarters is his hat; his territory, the nation. Almost every war plant employs at least one of these production magicians, and the bigger factories use scores of them.

Take the problem of an expediter for a Cleveland company which was preparing to make sub-assemblies for guns. Each gun part required two brass washers costing about ten cents each. The brass company reported that nothing could be done for a month and a half.

That's when the expediter started working. First he had to convince the washer manufacturer that the dime parts were as important to the war effort as were some of the $100 items he was making. Then he had to unsnarl priorities to get the necessary brass. But the sub-contractor still could not get washer machines for a month.

So the expediter found another company that could do the job temporarily if the specifications were slightly different. He went to the Army and sold them on the changed specifications. And before he was through, he had to find a third company which could make machines for making washers in a hurry.

All in all, it took him two weeks. As a result of his labors finished guns were coming off the assembly line a month sooner than they otherwise could have.

One of these trouble shooters employed by the Pullman-Standard Car Manufacturing Co. got snowed in on his way to a factory near Pittsburgh on the trail of a much-needed metal-working lathe. He left the snowbound train, hired a horse and sled, drove 20 miles to the factory. The factory couldn't let him have the lathe quickly enough, and he finally tracked one down in the cellar of a wealthy banker who was using it for his hobbies.

One ingenious expediter was sleuthing for a boring mill. His search led him to the New York waterfront, where he found just what he wanted—crated and ready to sail for a neutral foreign country.

Junk Shops Yield Machines He dropped enough nickles into a pay phone to get through to the then-existent O. P. M. in Washington, persuaded it to release the mill to him, paid $35,000 cash for it on the spot, and shipped it that afternoon to his plant.

The expediter's treasure hunt may lead him anywhere. One industrial Sherlock, sleuthing for metal planers that would take eight months to manufacture, found two of them so completely buried in a second-hand shop that it took two days to dig them out from under other machines, parts and equipment.

Another man, working for the same company, located a comparator, used for grinding threads, in a Chicago museum, and got it back in operation.

The expediter's job is a constant race against time.

SERIAL STORY

OF BRIGHTNESS GONE

BY HOLLY WATTERSON

COPYRIGHT, 1942, NEA SERVICE, INC.

THE STORY: At a commencement dance 18-year-old Candace took falls for love while Martin Gooby, a medical-school friend of her cousin, Peter Fezzler. The three go to the Frazier home where Candace, an orphan, has been reared by Peter's father, Bruce, and Candace's Aunt Belle. Bruce's second wife, Peter suddenly discovers that he loves Candace and is jealous of his friend. He trumps up an excuse to take Martin and himself away the next morning. Candace is furious until a letter comes from Martin a few days, asking if he may call.

CANDACE PROPOSES

CHAPTER V

MARTIN'S letter was perfect. Candace decided. She rushed home and locked herself in her room, there to read and reread its contents through the long afternoon. She left it only once, to go down to the kitchen for a talk with Mrs. Hobbs; and after a conference during which she felt it necessary to explain shyly not once but several times that the expected guest was Peter's friend, she felt sure of a dinner fit for Martin.

She had now only to invite him. That would be the natural thing to do, invite him for dinner, since in that country there were few places for public dining. But she must make the reason clear, in a nice way of course; she must not let him think her too eager. In her relief she was now swinging the other way and was wishing she might punish him a little for those days he had made her wait.

She told herself she would have liked to wait a day or so before answering his letter, but decided against that as being discourteous; she refused to acknowledge a feat that if she did he might get it too late and might not then be able to come on Sunday after all.

She spent the evening composing a note that in primness and formality equaled his own. When it was finally sealed and ready she thought she was being very severe when instead of dashing out immediately she decided to wait until morning to post it.

They met primly, too, Martin trying to live out his fiction that he had just "happened" to be in the neighborhood—even though the train on which he arrived was virtually an express out of New York—and Candace hers, that it was as Peter's friend that she was extending to him the hospitality of Tuckaways. And there was little in the atmosphere that would help to break them down into a more normal attitude.

The big dining room, intended for large groups, seemed empty with only two people in it; and Mrs. Hobbs, the importance of the occasion having been impressed on her, had placed them at either end of the long table so that each was as though marooned on a tiny island of propriety, conversing forlornly across a frozen sea of white.

In daydreaming forward to this occasion she had imagined herself and Martin exchanging light banter, herself a fascinating hostess and Martin an impossible blend of suavity and boyish charm; the reality was bitterly disappointing. She felt very young and gauche, and Martin was an embarrassed youth who ate absent-mindedly in silence, or who frowned and cleared his throat as though about to say something portentous and then ended up as likely as not with an inane remark on the weather. She was relieved when the meal was over and they could leave the table.

BUT the whole afternoon stretched ahead, a yawning gap that had to be filled. It was so hot a day that the cool north terrace beckoned invitingly, but that would mean trying to make conversation and the thought of that in her tongue-tied state was appalling. Golf was out of the question since that meant green fees and she didn't want Martin to have to spend the money; but tennis?

They had their own courts, and there was sure to be an extra racket of Peter's somewhere about and a pair of his shorts or slacks. The alacrity with which Martin accepted left her feeling unhappy that he too had been dreading their afternoon alone together; the occasion was scarcely living up to her romantic dream of it.

Out on the courts, away from the anxious solicitude of Mrs. Hobbs and the empty oppressiveness of the house, things were better. They grew hot and their clothes clung damply to their sweating skins, but their frozen self-consciousness too had melted. One ball that had been knocked over the wire netting into the woods eluded capture. "It has to be just about here," Candace insisted, "I lined it up with the maple tree and that old stump."

Having retrieved the others, Martin had come over to help find this one. The ground where they stood was covered with a creeper and they were swishing the vines gently back and forth with the heads of their rackets. They both saw the ball, they both stooped at once; their heads met violently, and their heads pulled immediately apart in natural reaction their hands clung. Martin's other arm went about her shoulders and he bent his head, half laughing, to kiss her forehead where he had bumped it. It was his mouth, however, that his lips somehow met. He strained her to him abruptly and she clung. Her arms crept about his neck.

THEY sat at the foot of the maple, Martin still holding her firmly, possessively, she with her head resting on his shoulder. She asked happily, "Martin? You didn't really just 'happen' to be in the neighborhood, did you?"

Martin laughed. "Not much," he admitted. "I had to practically sandbag a few people to get the day off to get out here."

She sighed. "If you felt that way, why did you make me wait so long for a letter?"

"So long!" he repeated, amazed. "Why, I wrote so soon it was hardly decent."

"Oh, Martin, decent, after the way I hinted to you! I won't even budge from this place!" I said. "What was that but a hint I'd be waiting for a letter?"

Martin drew her closer, he buried his face in her hair. "Sweet," he said softly, "my sweet."

Abruptly his mood changed; he grew bitter. "I have a hell of a nerve," he said, "coming here, behaving like this! You ought to tell me to get out of here, you ought to send me packing!"

Candace asked fearfully, "Why? Why, Martin?" as though half expecting him to admit a wife and several children hidden somewhere; and when he said savagely, "Why? A guy like me, with not a penny to his name, daring to be in love with a girl like you!" She sighed with relief.

"Martin, as if anything like that could matter!" She looked thoughtful. "I've been thinking, Martin. I'll go into training, I'll get to be a nurse, maybe I can even manage to get into the same hospital where you'll be interning. And then afterward, after we're married, I can be your office nurse. I can be of some help to you, I can share your interests—"

Martin said grandly, "That won't be necessary. I'm going to be a fashionable physician and make a mint of money. I'll have squads of office nurses, and you'll have maids by the dozen—"

But though he spoke lightly he was inexpressibly touched and stirred. Brought up in a hard school that had taught him wariness of people and their motives, the manner in which Candace had shown her utter trust in him, disdaining coquetry, he found deeply moving. He drew her fiercely close and kissed her. He had not believed he would ever feel so deeply about anything.

Beaumont Takes Series, To Meet Sports Or Cats

By The Associated Press
The Beaumont Exporters won the right to participate in the final Texas League playoff round by defeating San Antonio 3-2 Monday, and the Shreveport Sports took a 3-2 edge in their series with Fort Worth by scratching out a 4-3 victory over the Cats in an epic 19-inning battle.

The Shippers' triumph gave them four games to the Padres' two. With the score tied 2 and 2, Clarence Gann, Beaumont hurler, singled in the tenth and went to second on Henrys' sacrifice. Metro, sent in to run for Gann, failed to advance when Wood ground out to third. Moore bounced one to Hausman, who juggled the ball, getting off a delayed throw to first. Metro rounded third and didn't stop until he was safe at home for the winning tally.

The Shreveport at Fort Worth contest was tied in the eighth and stayed that way until the nineteenth frame, when the Sport at-bat started with Sonny Sommer's scratch hit to Merv Connors at third. He was bunted to second by Joe Vitter. Zeke Trent flied out, but Joe Cavener singled to right and Sommer slid home.

Tuesday's game at Fort Worth will decide which team takes Beaumont in the final round.

A little thing like an approaching tackler doesn't stop Steve Filipowicz of Fordham from flipping.

Armstrong Victory Protested By Rodak

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Henry Armstrong, onetime holder all at once of the featherweight, lightweight and welterweight boxing championships, defeated Leo Rodak of Chicago here Monday night, but the latter's manager promptly protested.

The ten-round match was stopped at the end of the eighth round on orders of the state athletic commission's doctor because of a severe cut over Rodak's left eye.

Nate Lewis, the boxer's manager, protested to the commission that Armstrong caused the decisive injury and also a cut on top of Rodak's head by butting. He claimed the bout should have been called a draw.

Award Honorary Membership To Jaycee Graduates

Members of the Midland Junior Chamber of Commerce when reaching its age limit of 35-years will be granted honorary memberships in the Midland Chamber of Commerce for a year, its directors decided at their regular meeting Monday night in Hotel Scharbauer.

President Ralph Barron announced that Fire Prevention Week will be observed in Midland October 4-10 and appointed a committee, headed by Clint Myrick to make arrangements. Members of the fire prevention committee are Frank Prothro, Luther Tidwell, Claude O. Crane, Vesta Deaton, Laura Jesse, George Heath and the Rev. Hubert Hopper.

Possibilities for a quiet but systematic membership campaign were outlined.

Praise Western Program
The directors gave a vote of thanks to the rodeo committee of Midland Fair Incorporated for the world's championship calf roping program staged Sunday before a record crowd. Leonard Proctor, chairman of the rodeo committee, thanked the chamber of commerce for its work to make the event a success.

Plans for hauling cotton to gins were discussed and arrangements made for a meeting of gin operators to ask their cooperation in the program of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce to aid in obtaining necessary transportation for all cotton. J. C. Miles reported that to date sufficient cotton pickers had been obtained for the Midland County crop.

The directors also voted to send letters of congratulation to all officers at Midland Army Flying School when they are promoted.

Other civic projects and proposals were discussed by the directors who always are anxious to bring all possible advantages to Midland.

College Football In Full Swing, As Season Has Gradually Grown Longer

NEW YORK (AP)—The calendar won't prove it and the baseball fans at St. Louis, Brooklyn and other points won't believe it, but college football makes a hesitant debut this weekend.

It wasn't so long ago that football was strictly a fall sport but all-star games in Mid-August and bowl struggles of various calibres in January have stretched the seasons to six months.

Actually, the collegiate season opened last Saturday when Catawba College unveiled its Dwight Folshouser before a Roanoke, Va., throng against the North Carolina Naval Reserve Cadets of Lieut. Commander James Crowley, once of Fordham. The Cadets won, 13 to 2.

Big Tilt Scheduled
This week, however, such name schools as Wisconsin and Iowa of the Big Ten, Florida, Auburn, Clemson, Georgia and Kentucky of the South; Missouri and Kansas of the Big Six; Texas of the Southwest; Denver of the Rocky Mountains and coach Amos Alonzo Stagg's College of the Pacific in the Far West start playing for keeps.

Indicative of the times, many of the contests are with service teams. College of the Pacific collides with the California Air Cadets under Sam Barry, who tutored the Trojans of Southern California a year ago; Missouri makes its first start since the Sugar Bowl against the Fort Riley Eleven at St. Joseph, Mo.; Camp Grant, Ill., invades Wisconsin; Texas unfurls its Southwest Conference hopes against the Cor-

Bulldogs Hold First Night Session Under Lackey Field Lights

Just to get the "feel" of the lights, Coach Gene McCollum issued the call for the first night session of practice at Lackey Field Monday for his Midland Bulldog charges.

The Bulldogs tangled in their first game of the 1942 season Friday night at Brownfield.

"About the only thing we know of Brownfield," Coach McCollum said, "is that it has a big and experienced squad of boys playing football there."

Brownfield was quite strong in Class A football in the Texas Panhandle last year and is reported to have many veterans back in its 1942 lineup. Both Coach Bost of Brownfield and Coach McCollum of Midland are in their first year of coaching at their schools.

Not taking any chances, Coach McCollum and Assistant Coach G. B. Rush will be concentrating on a strong defense in practice sessions this week. During the first two weeks of practice, offensive plays were stressed.

Monday night's sessions were devoted to plays run according to the type of defense the opposing team might be using and additional emphasis on blocking.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.
Wide Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—Brooklyn fans may wind up without even "wait till next year" to console them if you can believe all the hints about Brock's lights turning red on sports. Brooklynite Mac McGraw reports that his radio is a Dodger fan, too. After five years of perfect service it quit cold in the eighth inning Saturday.

Negative Note
Red Burman, who is working in a Baltimore shiyard, stopped the other day to help a blind man across the street. "Feeling Red's bulging muscles, the man remarked: 'Boy, you could beat Joe Louis with arms like that'." "Nope," Red replied seriously, "I tried it."

Shorts and Shells
Col. Isaac Hedges, St. Louis business man, is conducting a one-man campaign for Branch Ricketts for Senator by buttonholing Missouri Republican officials. "If they'd give Branch a free hand with trades, the Senate probably wouldn't have to worry about tax bills." Wilbur Bentley of the El Paso Times forwards a song for Leo Durocher—"I've got nerves that ring like jangle jangle." "Are the Yanks weakening, too?" "Took them ten days longer than last year to clinch the pennant."

Today's Guest Star
Don J. Evans, Lawrence (Kas.) Journal-World: "See where the Oklahoma Sooners have a fine passing combination, Hamm to Lamb. With all the beef in the Sooner line there will be three kinds of meat served up on one gridiron. If the opposition can't stop 'em, maybe the rationing board can."

Pilot Officer Harold Byrd, RCAF, former U. S. grappler, sends word home that he'll be back in the air as soon as he gets his nose remodeled. He recently was shot down in a scrap over England.

Ingenuity
When the athletic transportation restrictions tied up the usual means of transportation for the Fairview (W. Va.) high school grid squad, the boys found a simple way of cutting the knot. They merely commandeered the town's volunteer fire department auxiliary and packed in 25 persons, including the coach and student managers, for a 150-mile trip to Moundsville for the season's opener.

One of the earliest botanic gardens was at Karnak, Egypt, in 1500 B.C.

College Coaches Can Complain That War And Production Work Is Using College Boys

By The Associated Press
Southwest conference football coaches aren't merely being coy this year when they profess inability to say whether their teams will finish the season looking like champions or a group of pigeon-toed waterboys—they really don't know.

Continual rumblings out of Washington about the possibility of drafting college students, the chance that a football player will decide he'd rather smack Japs and Nazis than the line, and the heavy emoluments offered by defense jobs all conspire to make coaches a little distrustful when asked about the prospects of their teams.

Some indication of the trend could be observed Monday at College Station, where four members of the Texas A. and M. squad disclosed their withdrawal from grid practice. Jim Wilson, a sophomore tackle, is going to join the Marines; arduous class room schedules caused John Stout and Dan Levy, squadmen ends, to turn in their suits, and Bill Thomas, a sophomore blocking back, found that he had to choose between the gridiron and his job—and he decided in favor of the latter. Thomas hopes, however, that he'll find another job when school opens Sept. 26 that will enable him to rejoin the squad.

Longhorn Prevue Saturday.
A prevue of the Texas Longhorns, rumored to have about as good a team as last year's powerful eleven, will be unveiled when they open the season at Austin next Saturday against the Corpus Christi Naval Air Station.

Coach Dana X. Bible indicated that Jackie Field probably will start for Texas at left halfback, with Roy McKay the only other certain backfield starter. Max Minor of Tahoka and Ken Matthews of Corpus Christi are battling it out for the wingback spot, and Joe Magliolo of Galveston and Don Fambrough of Longview, cohomors, are seeking the starting blocking back role.

Southern Methodist, this year's dark-horse candidate, spent Monday polishing defensive play.

Jess Neely Mourns.
Clarence McMinn, letter man back, injured his ankle in scrimmage last Saturday, but will be back in play before the end of the week.

At Houston Coach Jess Neely made deprecatory noises about the showing of his Rice Owls in their first real scrimmage Monday. Saying "none of the boys exactly covered themselves with glory. We need lots of hard work."

Texas Christian under the eye of Coach Dutch Meyer, has been working on a passing attack, as well as punting under pressure. Meyer didn't appear too depressed over the showing of the varsity against the freshmen Monday.
