Bacterial blight occurs throughout the world wherever cotton is grown. It is one of the most damaging plant diseases in Texas, and during recent years had caused an estimated $37 million yearly loss to Texas growers.

Several races and varieties of this pathogen are known, but only two are widely distributed. The organism enters the plant through open stamata and wounds in the leaves, bolls and stems. The bacteria break down the cell wall of the spongy tissues, releasing cellular juices.

Infected leaves soon turn yellow and are shed, and excessive leaf shedding reduces the yielding ability of the plant. Boll lesions provide ports of entry for boll-rotting fungi, thus bacterial blight is one of the principal causes of boll rots.

The blight organism may overwinter in the soil on undercomposed plant debris, but more commonly is carried from season to season within and on planting seed. Once in a field the disease is spread from plant to plant and from old to new tissues by wind-driven, splashing rains. The disease may also be disseminated from field to field by whirlwinds, running water, equipment and gin trash.

Bacterial blight can be controlled by a combination of four practices: rotating cotton with other crops, planting disease-free seed, growing resistant varieties and fertilizing with nitrogen.

No chemical control for bacterial blight is now known, so cultural practices are very important to the grower. For more information on this disease and on preventive cultural practices, stop by and ask for a copy of MP-534, "Bacterial Blight of Cotton."

Mr. and Mrs. Claude Cook of Lubbock visited her cousin, Mrs. C. E. Whitfield Sunday afternoon as they were returning home from a vacation trip to Corpus Christ, San Antonio and various other places in Texas.

Christian Science Offers New Radio Series

A new radio series designed to highlight the essential vitality of Bible teachings was announced today by the Christian Science church.

Starting April 8 more than 700 stations will broadcast the weekly 15-minute series called "The Bible Speaks to You." The programs describe how prayer can meet familiar problems confronting in all walks of life. They feature well-loved selection from the Bible, read against a background of organ music. Informal discussion brings out the practical application of these teachings.

"The Bible Speaks to You" replaces the series "How Christian Science Heals" which has been on the air every since September 18, 1953. It is produced by the Mother Church, the First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts. Will B. Davis, Manager of Committees on Publication, is in charge of the project.

In announcing the release of the new programs, Mr. Davis said: "Mankind needs as never before the healing and comforting message of the Bible. Our programs will show how practical and vigorous the Bible teachings can be in meeting today's problems."

People of many faiths in Africa, Australia, Europe, Great Britain, New Zealand, and South America, as well as in all parts of the United States and Canada, are expected to hear the programs.

Opening the series this week-end is an introductory program on the subject "Why Read the Bible?". The commentator will be Ralph E. Wagers, a Christian Science teacher, practitioner, and editor. The host will be Harry Bacon Clark, who for many years was a CBS newscaster.

Other program topics will include: "Bless them that curse you" Easter and the Bomb Overcoming Anxiety

About Your HEALTH

A weekly public service feature from the Texas State Department of Health. HENRY A. HOLLE, M. D., Commissioner of Health.

Dysentery, while not a major killer among Texans, still claims many lives each year. Sadly most deaths occur among infants under one year of age.

Last year there was a 10 percent increase of shigellosis - - the technical name for bacillary dysentery - - according to the Texas Morbidity published each week by the Communicable Disease Division of the Texas State Department of Health.

At the end of the year, the 1961 total stood at 3,915 cases compared to 3,420 cases at the end of 1960.

The total deaths from dysentery have not been compiled for 1961; however, in 1960 there were 79 deaths from the disease with 53 percent among infants.

Dysentery is transmitted "by eating contaminated foods, or drinking contaminated water or milk, and by hand-to-mouth transfer of contaminated material; by flies; by objects soiled with feces of a patient or carrier."

This is one of the reasons food-handlers should wash their hands thoroughly before any food preparation - - and especially after visiting the bathroom.

Also foods which are moist or eaten raw require special attention in washing and preparation.

Fly control and control of fly p. m., also KRLD, Dallas, Sundays 8:45 a. m. breeding are important steps in fighting this disease. Control of existing flies can be done by screening, fly traps and by contact poisons and space sprays.

Fly breeding can be controlled with adequate garbage collection and disposal, elimination of garbage dumps and substitutions of landfill operations, and provisions for proper sewage disposal.

Infant mortality from shigellosis can be curtailed with adherence to good hygiene principles, scrupulous cleanliness in preparation, handling and refrigeration of food, safe milk and water for infant feeding, and continuous supervision of their diet.

It is generally acknowledged that many cases of unreported diarrhea probably result from shigellosis. Suspect victims should seek the aid of their physician.

Mr. and Mrs. Bright Newhouse of Roby and son Don, a senior at ACC, Abilene visited in the Cleo Noles home Sunday to see the children of their son and brother, respectively, the three children of Mr. and Mrs. Bright Newhouse Jr., who were staying here with their grandparents while their parents were moving from Miami to Clarendon. Mr. and Mrs. Newhouse and Don took them to their new home Wednesday.

Christian Science Service Sunday

The power of spiritual thoughts to dispel apathy and idleness will be brought out in Christian Science church services Sunday.

Bible readings in the Lesson-Sermon entitled "Ureality" will include these verses from Proverbs (6): "How long wilt thou sleep, O sluggard? when wilt thou arise out of thy sleep? Yet a little sleep, a little slumber, a little folding of the hands to sleep: So shall thy poverty come as one that traveleth, and thy want as an armed man."

A correlative passage to be read from "Science and Health with Key

The Rotan Advance

Thursday, April 5, 1962 No. 8

to the Scriptures' by Mary Baker Eddy states (p. 240): "If mortals are not progressive, past failures will be repeated until all wrong work is affected or rectified. If at present satisfied with wrong-doing, we must learn to loathe it. If at present content with idleness, we must become dissatisfied with it."

My two opponents for the State Senate are promising that they will correct the inequities in the Sales Tax and the Insurance Rating System if they get back to Austin. They've been there for twenty years between them. And they have been passing inequitable laws ever since they've been there.

I guess they have to pass these things so they will have something to promise when they are trying to get reelected. They promise to undo what they did if you will send them back.

Cotton Assumes A Soft Look

In cotton, fashion has taken on a soft look this season.

American designers have rounded and gentled the silhouette for dresses, suits and coats of cotton.

Skillfully used are ruffles, pleats, capelets and paneled skirts for a purely feminine fashion mood.

The new suit designs in cotton matelesse, and floral brocade, as well as cotton tweed and novelty weaves, have effortless little jackets which take many forms. One of the most important is the cropped, above-the-hipline shape tailored with a graceful curved front and eased at the back for a look of gentle shapening all around.

Narrow, set-in sleeves and small, notched collars which stand away from the neck are other important styling details.

The cape shape also contributes to the spring suit story. Capelets, fly-away backs and capelet sleeves which flutter gracefully will be seen often. These, along with newly softened skirt lines, contribute an important note to the growing trend toward softness and femininity in American fashion.

New ensembles and costumes are freshly fashioned to please the traveler. Trim, Chanel-inspired jackets or fluid, street-length coats covering each sheaths make for versatile day-into-evening fashions. Designed in soft, pliable cotton fabrics, such as hopsacking, knit, poplin and pique, these outfits are seen in a delicate range of pastels and white, neutral beiges and gray, as well as sophisticated black.

The coat story also is an exciting one, with all-weather designs holding the spotlight for versatility and variety of silhouette. Roomy cape shapes and tapered or barrel versions which gently adhere to the body in front make news for the coming season and echo the theme of soft tailoring for 1962. Designers execute these cover-ups in lightweight, textured cottons, in practical poplin and in spongy corduroys.

Lieut. Col. John C. Simmons of Dover, Delaware came to Abilene Thursday night by plane on official business. He came on to Rotan and visited Mr. and Mrs. P. R. War Fought With Oil

There is a new element in the cold war - "a war fought without rules or quarter on a global scale, a war fought with oil." Thus reports Petroleum Today.

In a word, Russia is flooding the free world with its surplus oil - undermining the economies of free world nations and threatening the defensive security of the Western Alliance. It's an ironical fact that within the NATO alliance itself, member nations today rely on Russia, the possible aggressor, for a substantial portion of the petroleum so essential to modern military operations.

In outline, the story is this. From 1950 to 1960, Soviet oil production increased more than three times, and much greater production is anticipated. Russia - with few automobiles and coal its major heating fuel - has little need for this oil. So, she can use her vast surplus as an economic and political weapon. She sells abroad - especially to the new and developing nations - at deliberately slashed prices. She will barter, accepting goods instead of cash. She asks West Germany only half the price for oil that she asks her satellite East Germany. She offers such aids as the building of refineries to process her crude.

Once a nation has placed its reliance on Soviet oil imports, prices are apt to be hiked abruptly and arbitrarily - even when they are being reduced to lure orders from other nations not yet within her oil orbit. The pressures on oil-hungry nations are heavy, and the Soviet oil threat is one of the gravest cold war developments.

Luckily, the threat seems to be recognized by this country and other Western powers. Steps are being planned to meet it. It is a complex problem, presenting a grim array of difficulties. But it is a problem that must be solved if the Western alliance is to survive, and the Soviet global offensive slowed.

Clark's Handling New Pesticides

Rats, mice, cut worms, grasshoppers and other insects have plagued mankind, especially farmers, ranchers and housewives, since the beginning of time.

During each generation, hundreds of devices have been invented and tried - but failed. In our generation, astute chemists have entered the fray, with poisonous receipts and concoction of all types - most of which were of the anti-coagulant type. But, lo and behold, current history reveals that rats and other vermin eventually "thrive" on the stuff, by auto-immunization.

But, very recently, a new development has been perfected - one which the dirty vermin can't "learn to love" - an entirely new concept for the mass assassination of pests of all types. And, it will be especially annoying and lethal - to rats, because they can't BELCH.

Seriously, according to O. R. Clark, his firm has just been selected as the exclusive dealer for this area, for this unusual line of pesticides, produced by J&J Chemical Company, of Houston.

This new rodent bait is unique for the following reasons: (1) It's a quick killer - overnight; (2) It's "safe" for humans and pets; (3) gives no "secondary" poisoning to animals who might eat a dead rodent; (4) cost of using it is approx 80 percent lower than any other pesticide.

The new multi-purpose insect bait shares the same advantages: Quick
