Vet Direct Loan Information Given

We have had numerous people inquiring in to my office as to why we had to notify Lubbock to ask for application forms for a direct loan from the Federal Government. Well, here is the official word from all Regional VA Offices to all interested persons.

For information of all interested persons, Service Officers are unable to obtain supplies of the VA Form 26-9621, Application for Direct Loan, as these forms are not for general distribution.

In order to obtain a direct loan, an eligible person must write to the Veterans Administration Regional Office serving his home address, and request that his name be placed on the waiting list. At the time that a veteran's name reaches the top of the direct loan waiting list, an application form, along with all other necessary papers and complete instructions, will be mailed directly to the veteran. These completed forms must generally be returned within thirty days.

CHANGES IN CLASS Q ALLOTMENTS

This law just pertains to persons whose husbands or ex-husbands are still in service of which there are several in our County.

Effective January 1, 1963, the class Q allotments to persons on active duty in the Armed Forces were terminated for men in grades E-5 through E-9 and for those in E-4 with four years or more of active duty.

From date on or from January 1, 1963 on, the government allowance to servicemen for quarters and family allowance will be paid directly, rather than going to the families as a Class Q allotment. It will then be up to these persons to arrange for their families support, which they may then up to these persons to arrange for their families support, which they may do by taking out a Class E allotment, by sending the money home monthly by money order or other means, or through other arrangements of their own choosing.

The Class Q allotment will remain in effect for those in grades E-1, E-2, and E-3, and those in grade E-4 with less than four years active duty.

MEDICARE IDENTIFICATION CARDS

Certain relatives of servicemen are automatically entitled to get the identification cards showing their eligibility for Medicare, according to a new Army Reg. A serviceman's wife (widow) and unmarried children under age twenty-one years are eligible, regardless of whether they are or have been dependent upon the military member's support. This is set out for the first time in a recent revision of Army Regulation 606-5 governing the issue of medicare identification cards, although these same provisions have long been in the medical regulations, Ar 40-121. The old regulation said that dependents had to receive more than 50 per cent of their support from the servicemen in order to qualify for Medicare. In order for those dependents other than wives, widows, and young children to be eligible for Medicare, they must still show that more than fifty per cent of their support comes from the servicemen.

If you have any problems, come in and let's talk.

Your County Service Officer Steve Kelley

Some Changes In Cotton Regulations

The following information by State-Wide Cotton Committee is released by Rotan Cotton Oil Mill: "Cotton and Cattle are the chief sources of income on Texas farms. Cotton is an allotment crop and is grown under strict Government planting regulations. But, recently a law was passed that enables an orderly change in farming systems through release and reapportionment of acreage. Farmers should take advantage of this opportunity and make changes that will aid them financially.

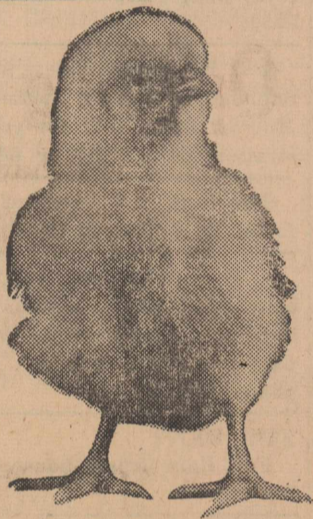

Due to limited acreage and a variety of other good reasons, about 25% of the State's farmers, with allotted acres, are dropping out of cotton production. When these allotment holders are sure their cotton allotment is of no further value to them, they should be released, permanently, to their County ASC Committee. If they intend to drop out for a year or two, they should release their allotment each year for use by other growers in their county, section or zone. If they do, they retain the allotment history on their farms. Allotment acreage in the Soil Bank or Great Plains Program is protected under present laws. It cannot be used or reapportioned.

Farmers who do not plant or release have their allotment cut in half the following year, after 3 years they lose half their allotment cut in half the following year. Then, after 3 years they lose their entire allotment and are considered non-growers. Therefore, all growers with cotton allotment acres should either plant or release their acreage.

All Texas loses in cotton income and all Texas cotton farmers get cut more when acreage is not released or planted. Failure to plant allotted acres causes the State to lose a part of their share of the national allotment. A State's share is based on its 5 year planting history. Notices are being sent out by County ASCS Offices to cotton farmers in Zone 2, the northern part of the State. A typical example, "All cotton producers who are not going to plant all or part of their cotton allotment are urged to release it before March 4, 1963. Those who would like more cotton are urged to make their request for acreage by February 22, 1963 even though the final date is March 4, 1963."

Reapportioned acres should greatly benefit growers. Many growers are in need of additional acres in order to use their land, labor and equipment more profitably. The new wealth created by the release or unwanted acres and their gainful use by progressive cotton growers, is doing much to benefit the economy of the State. The livestock industry, also, benefits because more cottonseed products are available for livestock."

1963 Screwworm Eradication Program

has reached deep in Texas, may prove a definite advantage to screwworm eradication in the Southwest, the U. S. Department of Agriculture said today.

Fewer infestations of this livestock pest are being reported in the area affected by cold, indicating a decreased screwworm population that can be more easily dealt a death blow. As screwworm cases decline, it becomes more and more all suspected infestations, collect all suspected infestations, collect samples of larvae and eggs, and treat animals.

The campaign against this livestock pest is supported by USDA's Agricultural Research Service, the States of Texas, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Arkansas, and Louisiana, and the Southwest Animal Health Research Foundation.

Release of hundreds of millions of sexually sterile screwworm flies during the past 10 months has retarded development of screwworms, confined infestations mainly to the 5-State eradication area and Arizona, and resulted in the lowest number of screwworm east of the Mississippi River in 30 years.

Female screwworm flies deposit eggs in scratches, cuts, and other wounds on livestock, and the developing maggots feed on the animal's flesh. Saturating the screwworm population with sexually sterile male flies, which mate with the native females, results in eggs that do not hatch. Repeated release of sterile flies combined with other proved measures, eventually leads to eradication of the screwworm.

Successful operations during 1962 depend on (1) taking full advantage of the retarding effects of cold weather on screwworm increase and spread; (2) preventing entry of screwworm-infested animals into areas freed of the pest; (3) widespread use by producers of screwworm preventive measures and pesticide treatments; (4) quick discovery and reporting of all suspected screwworm cases by producers; and (5) effectiveness of an artificial barrier now being formed along the southern and western borders of the eradication area to prevent screwworm invasions.

Recent cold weather has lessened the number of infestations reported in the eradication area. Officials point out, however, that mild weather during the remainder of the winter could permit survival of scattered infestations of the pest over a relatively wide area, which could retard early eradication. Every effort is being made to free the overwintering area of screwworms this winter.

Federal livestock inspection stations are being established along the western border of New Mexico to prevent entry of screwworm-infested livestock into the eradication area. The stations will begin operation before the return of warm weather, and all eastbound animals will be inspected and treated for screwworms.

State and Federal officials urge that producers locate and report as quickly as possible all screwworm infestations that occur in the 5-state eradication area. Outbreaks during early spring and summer north of the area where screwworms usually survive the winter can constitute a hazard to successful eradication. The principal factor that will determine whether sterile screwworm flies will be released to eliminate these outbreaks will be the degree of threat posed to areas freed of screwworms.

Eradication of overwintering screwworms is required before the maximum number of sterile flies can be available for release in the barrier zone. This barrier zone will be formed over a 100,000-square-mile area by continuous along the Arizona-New Mexico border during parts of the year. Effectiveness of the artificial barrier will be determined as screwworms spread from the south when warmer weather returns. Initially, the width of the barrier will be about 100 miles. Officials expect, however, that adjustments in barrier size will be necessary to achieve maximum effectiveness and economy.

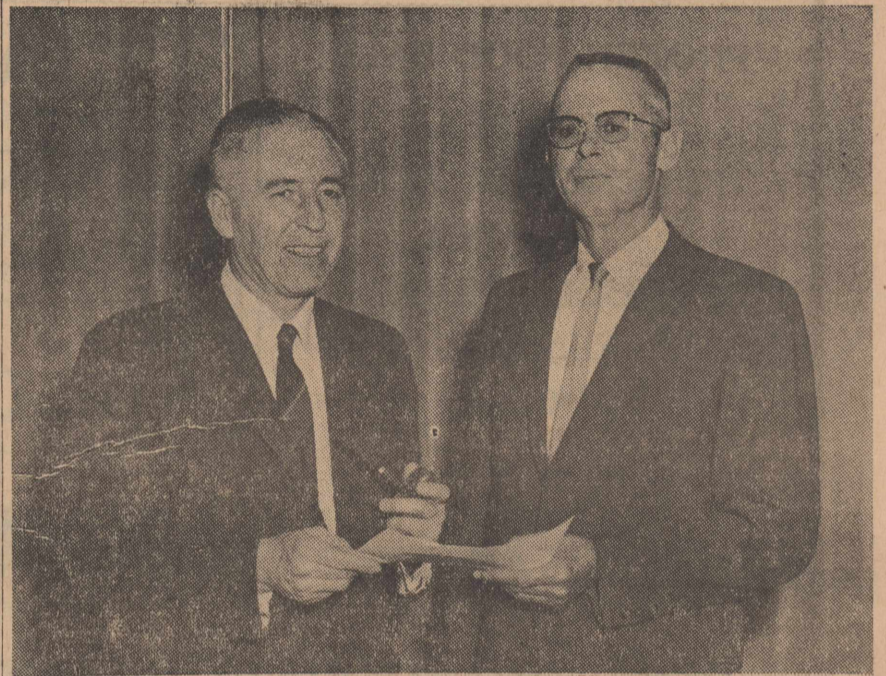

Because practically all reported 1962 screwworm cases occurred in Texas, Oklahoma, and New Mexico in the eradication area, and in Arizona, livestock producers in many States in and near the eradication area, experienced considerable relief from pest. Only 4 counties in States outside the eradication area and Arizona reported infestations. In 1961, screwworms were reported in 17 States.

were positively identified as screwworms from larvae and egg samples forwarded by producers.

The USDA-State-livestock producer effort to eradicate screwworms in the Southwest helped confine most 1962 infestations of this livestock pest to a 6-area west of the Mississippi River. In contrast, 17 States reported screwworms in 1961, including 80 counties in 9 States east of the Mississippi River.

Letter To Editor

Dear Editor and Fisher Countian:
I notice in the papers there is a patition in the cooking to raise taxes again. Now for me, I am opposed to it for a good reason. Why? You as tax payers of rural areas of Fisher County, how many times at home and on the streets have you heard of mistakes that some business deal of some kind of another that should have never been pulled as far as taxpayers are concerned because there was some loopholes to the deal. Now just wait a minute. The present Fire Departments in either Rotan or Roby be guilty of an unfair deal or be dishonest in any way, but people die sometimes. Now say a dishonest guy takes over when the present administration passes on, what are you going to say when the second bunch places all the expenses on the rural truck, now that is a loophole and you better keep City business city business and Rural business rural business.

That is not only a loophole, it is a booby trap. This County has some good scars on its back that was put there just because of loopholes. Now one other good reason for my opposition is simple. If you are expecting to benefit from just such plans, get in your car and drive a reasonable speed from your place to the Fire Station. Check your watch for time and see how much house you have left. I just have to rely on my insurance for a replacement myself, and I just live 5 1-2 miles from Roby—that is too far. Now you think about the 75% of the Rural area—how far that group lives from the fire station. Check your mileage — do your own thinking, but please vote when it comes time as it will effect you and your children, whether you are for or against. Just remember water just don't run up hill. Please go vote.

OUR SON

THE CHURCH FOR ALL...
ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Robert Edward, Junior — that's his name. But soon it will be Bobby. And after a while he and I will probably be known as Big Bob and Little Bob.

Funny how you start looking ahead. When I came out of the shop today I happened to notice our sign — the big one with my name on it that hangs over the door. And I thought to myself, maybe someday we'll add: & SON...

But Marge and I know better than that! You can't plan your son's life for him. He's got to make his own decisions, choose his own road.

One thing we have decided for him, though. That he's going to have all the moral and spiritual training a man needs to make right decisions and follow a straight road.

This God expects of us — of all parents. And our church is ready to do its vital part.

"God Speaks Through His Ministers"

Paige Patterson
Pastor, Sardis Baptist Church

It is not an uncommon event for a judge to pass judgment and issue orders to punish a guilty defendant, but something unique has transpired when a judge simultaneously passes judgment and condemns himself. I read of such a judge the other day. He asked the defendant a very important question: "What is Truth?" But he did not wait to hear the answer. He rushed out of the court room. In so doing he judged himself hopelessly guilty and condemned himself to death. What a foolish judge! If he had tarried and listened to the defendant's answer, he would have had life. This judge's name was Pilate, and the defendant was Jesus. However, Pilate's physical life was not at stake. His eternal soul was hanging in the balance. The story of this is fascinating but pathetic trial is recorded in the gospel of John, chapter 18.

If Pilate had waited for an answer, what would Jesus have told him? I think He would have told him the same thing that He told the disciples earlier. John records it in John 14:6. Jesus said: "I am the Truth." Yes, Jesus went even further: "I am the Way, the Truth, and the Life." Oh, glorious truth as revealed to us from the way to salvation, to God, to heaven. Jesus is the truth because only in Jesus can true salvation be found. Jesus is the life because the man who accepts Jesus as Savior eats of the bread of life that satisfies his throbbing heart's hunger throughout all eternity. "That's the thrilling answer that Pilate missed. Actually the judge was on trial rather than the defendant.

You are on trial also. Don't make the miserable blunder which Pilate made. If you are searching for the truth, let Jesus breathe the answer into your heart from the Bible. Jesus is the truth. Anything less than Jesus culminates in tragedy and unhappiness. Anything more than Jesus is unnecessary and deceitful, depriving Jesus of His marvelous grace which lifts a man from the sin-blackened pit of hell and established him eternally on a pedestal of heaven. Jesus is the truth. Oh, that Jesus could live in your heart as He does in mine. He can, if you will open your heart's door and let the Savior in.

Christian Science Service Sunday

The divine source of man's intelligence will be the subject of the Lesson-Sermon entitled "Mind" to be heard at Christian Science church services this Sunday.

From the Bible this passage will read (James 1:5): "If any of you lack wisdom, let him ask of God, that giveth to all men liberally, and upbraideth not; and it shall be given him."

Correlative readings from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy; will include tis sentence (p. 506): "Spirit, God, gathers unformed thoughts into their proper channels, and unfolds these thoughts, even as He opens the petals of a holy purpose in order that the purpose may appear."

The Golden Text is from Proverbs (3): "Trust in the Lord with all thine heart; and lean unto thine own understanding."

C. J. Grayson, plantation owner, banker, ginmer, and cattleman, in Fort Necessity, Louisiana, is president of the Northeast Louisiana Power Cooperative at Winnsboro.

Mrs. Robert Rengel, farmer's wife and mother of three, has been a director of Corn Belt Electric Cooperative, Inc., Bloomington, Illinois, for the past six years.

Dr. B. W. Gibbs, a dentist in Star City, Arkansas, finds time to be a member of the board of locally owned C & L Rural Electric Cooperative Corporation at Star City.

operate their own rural electric systems

Fred Schones operates his own barber shop in Selfridge, North Dakota. He also serves on the board of Mor-Gran-Sou Electric Cooperative, Inc., with headquarters at Flasher.

Milton B. Scott, partner in a general store in Pinetops, North Carolina, is also president of the board of Edgecombe-Martin County Electric Membership Corporation at Tarboro.

Jack Zavadii, editor of the weekly newspaper at Humphrey, Nebraska, is a member of the board and treasurer of the Cornhusker Public Power District at Columbus.

These six consumers are the kind of people who own and operate America's Rural Electric Systems. They are typical of the rural people who found it necessary to join with their neighbors, borrow money from the Rural Electrification Administration, and build their own electric power systems to get electricity.

The REA doesn't own or operate a mile of line. It acts only as a banker whose job it is to make and collect loans and interest. Ownership of America's 1,000 rural electric systems rests solidly with the five million families—the 20 million people they serve. They're as local as your newspaper and as private as your signature.
