QAFA team sets outbrief

The Air Education and Training Command Quality Air Force Assessment Team has scheduled its outbrief to the wing for 11:30 a.m., Sept. 22, in the Simler Theater.

The team, which arrived here Sunday, is nearly half-way through its 12-day assessment of how the wing performs its pilot training and support missions.

"We are off to a good start," said Colonel Randy Gelwix, 64th Flying Training Wing commander. "I believe the team has been impressed with the overall quality of our operations and I am looking forward to the outbrief."

The 70-plus member team is headed by Col. Kodak Horton, AETC chief of inspections.

AETC to begin mentoring initiative

RANDOLPH AIR FORCE BASE, Texas (AETCNS)—Supervisors in Air Education and Training Command can look forward to meeting a new challenge.

A mentoring initiative, conceptualized by Gen. Billy Boles, AETC commander, is scheduled to hit the command in the coming weeks.

"Our challenge is to effect a cultural change not to create another bureaucratic program with a long administrative tail," said Boles. In a nutshell, the primary goal is "helping our people."

Based on three principles, the program requires each supervisor to take an active role in the professional lives of the people they supervise.

The principles, according to Boles, are:

- Mentoring — helping subordinates reach their full potential — is an inherent responsibility of leadership.

- Supervisors should know their people and accept personal responsibility for them.

- Supervisors are responsible for their subordinates' development.

The immediate supervisor, who serves as the mentor, has four core responsibilities. "Accepting responsibility for their subordinates' development, evaluating their performance and potential, counseling and advising that individual on professional development, and being a positive role model are the mentor's core responsibilities," said John Mitzel, chief, AETC education and training branch for personnel.

"Each individual is just that, an individual," said Mitzel.

"Every person has a different potential level. An AETC mentor will identify top performers and what needs to be done to challenge them. He also needs to be able to identify lesser performers and what needs to be done to make them as good as the best," said Mitzel.

A member's professional development includes future assignments, promotions and advancements, academic education and personal issues.

A mentor is responsible for counseling and advising subordinates on the next best move to make in the advancement of his career.

"The mentor shouldn't push people for something they are not qualified for or ready to assume," added Mitzel.

The best way a mentor can fulfill his job is by being a positive role model, Mitzel advised.

"How can a supervisor tell his subordinate to continue his professional military education when he himself hasn't taken full advantage of PME opportunities? Mentors must practice what they preach."

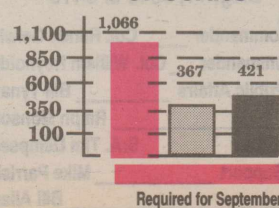

The program, which will be administered at the wing level, is basically a trickle down process, said Mitzel.

"Senior leaders will ask the wing commanders to evaluate their people. Wing commanders will then ask the same of their organization commanders, who will then ask the supervisors," said Mitzel.

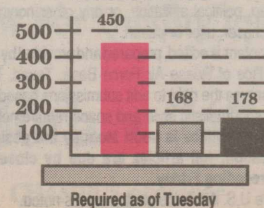

"Supervisors are the key to making this program work," he stressed.

Happy birthday Air Force

Secretary, Chief of Staff cite many accomplishments

by Sheila Widnall
Secretary of the Air Force and
Gen. Ronald Fogleman
Air Force Chief of Staff

As the world marks the 50th anniversary of the end of World War II, the Air Force celebrates its 48th year as a separate military service. The Air Force of today was forged in the fires of battle throughout the Mediterranean, Europe, China, Burma, India and the Pacific.

As the youngest branch of the U.S. armed forces, we have evolved into an organization capable of meeting the most formidable of challenges.

Although our structure is different and our uniform changed from our days as the Army Air Forces, we have built a rich tradition of dedication and accomplishment.

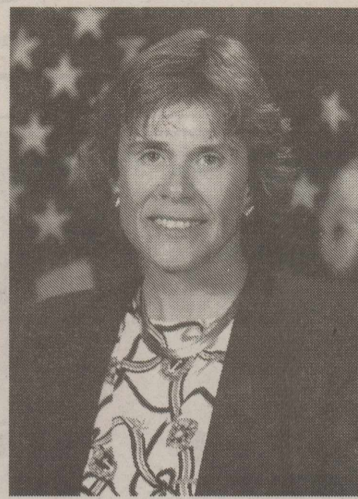

Today we are lean, flexible, focused and still committed to providing combat capability for the nation.

We continue to emphasize our core values — integrity, service before self, and our commitment to excellence — and the fact that the Air Force is not just a another job. It's a way of life; a 24-hour-a-day commitment to the service of this nation.

We have built a quality Air Force because we are blessed with the brightest and best educated men and women in uniform in our nation's history.

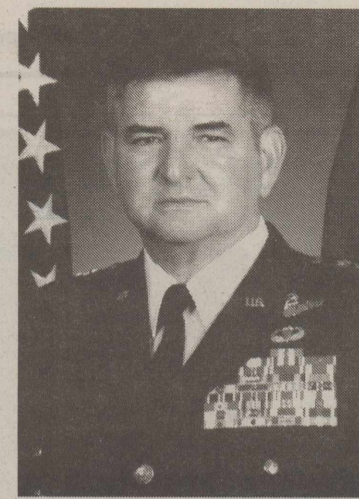

We are committed to taking care of them and their families. Not only does that include developing and fielding the finest equipment for their use, but improving education and training opportunities as well as continuously improving other important quality of life issues.

Monday, as we celebrate

General Fogleman

our 48 years, let us be proud of our past and confident of our future.

Social Actions is here to S.A.V.E. your organization

by Capt. Eric Bass
Chief, Social Actions

To make it simple, our office is not here to ruin careers and punish. In fact, we do not have the power to punish alleged offenders of sexual harassment and discrimination.

Punishment rests with unit commanders. We want to emphasize the functions of our office with the acronym S. A. V. E.

□ SERVE—To serve the base as a whole in the area of human relations.

In order to give commanders a candid view of how people feel and are being treated in their units, we assess the human relations climate.

□ ADVISE—To advise commanders and their people on how to handle sexual harassment, discrimination, and other human relations areas of concern.

Also, we advise commanders on punishment for confirmed offenders.

□ VALIDATE—To validate complaints by getting all the facts of the complainant(s) and alleged offender(s). Unit commanders do not take action until all information is found to be factual and valid.

Keep in mind that not all alleged offenders are found to be guilty. This is determined through the validation process.

□ EDUCATE—To educate the base population on sexual harassment and discrimination issues. Education keeps people informed, up-to-date, and out of trouble.

Putting these four words together and taking what they mean into account, it's clear that our organization is a helping agency.

The Reese Social Actions Office is here to "save" you and your organization.

Remember, a healthy human relations climate enhances readiness.

Buckner Children's Home seeks Reese volunteer tutors

by Capt. Eric Bass
Buckner Baptist
Tutoring program coordinator

It's that time of year again when all of the yellow buses are rolling and our young are piling into classrooms for another nine months of filling their brains.

It's up to us as responsible, sensitive, mature adults to provide any assistance we can to help our young succeed in school.

As we all know, school can be very stressful.

Performance in the classroom will mold a child for the rest of his/her life.

The Buckner Baptist Tutoring Program gives us an opportunity to lend our support to some children as they take on the challenges of school at the same time they are dealing with other life challenges.

The home has been caring for children and families in West Texas communities since 1957. It offers residential care to children who are experiencing a family crisis and need out-of-home placement.

The tutoring program is set up so that personnel from Reese can volunteer an hour or more per week, Monday through Thursday.

The tutoring sessions will be 4 to 5 p.m., or 4:30 to 5:30 p.m.

If you are interested in lending some of your time per week to tutor, please contact either George Ferguson or Cheryl Ortiz at the Family Support Center, 3305.

Call me with any other questions at 3901.

DOD prepares for possible federal shutdown

WASHINGTON (AFIS) -- If a budget dispute between Congress and the administration causes a government shutdown Oct. 1, military and DOD civilian employees will receive their September end-of-month checks on time, DOD Comptroller John J. Hamre said.

Thousands of DOD's 830,000-plus "nonessential" civilian employees will be furloughed if the so-called train wreck occurs, he said.

Pay for the "essential" civilian employees and 1.5 million active duty military personnel who must continue working will be delayed until a budget is signed, Hamre added.

"It all depends on when we get an appropriation from Congress that the president signs into law," he said. "Until we get an appropriation, we'll not be able to write checks. But people will be paid for their duty time—military and civilian. That's not in question."

If a budget isn't passed by Oct. 1, Congress could authorize a continuing resolution to keep the government operating.

"Uniformed service members are not governed by the same rules and regulations as civilians, so uniformed people will not be furloughed," Hamre said. "They'll be expected to show up at work. But in some cases, they may be doing different things. We may need military personnel to help us support some of the nonappropriated funds activities, such as the athletic facilities.

"If the government shuts down, there will be large numbers of civilians who must show up for work because they're required for our war-fighting mission," Hamre said. Other civilian employees exempted from furloughs include fire fighters, police, air traffic controllers and medical service personnel, he noted.

They'll be exempted "partly because what they do involves dollars that were appropriated in previous years and partly because they're responsible for the safety of lives and property," he said.

"We'll have to get permission after the fact to pay them, but there's no doubt in my mind that Congress will give us that authority."

Military and civilian retirees' checks are not affected by a shutdown, Hamre noted.

"Those checks are financed through a trust fund, and we'll have legal authority to continue to pay those checks," he added. "Social Security recipients and other retirees will be paid as usual."

The last government shutdown occurred in 1990 for three days, but only one was a work day—the other two were a weekend, Hamre noted.

"It was treated like a snow emergency in Washington, where we shut down," he said.

"After the fact, Congress gave us the authority to pay everyone, whether they came to work or not that day." Pay for civilians furloughed this time will be decided later.

In 1980, the Pentagon operated without money for 12 days.

Allotment payments are affected, Hamre warned. "We'll not be able to pay an allotment until we have an appropriation that allows us to pay the salary, period," he said.

"We can't make an allotment apart from the appropriation. So it's not possible for us to make a mortgage payment for someone with an allotment if we don't have the authority to make the payroll."

Hamre promised to do everything he can to help those with allotments. "I'll communicate with the banks and ask them to understand the circumstances we're in," he said. "We'll do everything in our power so people are not penalized if a disruption happens."

The Office of the Secretary of Defense, Joint Chiefs of Staff and the services are working on a plan that will identify essential and nonessential civilian employees.

"We won't know who all our nonessential civilians are until we see the details of the plan," Hamre said.

Hamre said he is concerned about the impact a shutdown will have on DOD civilian employees overseas, including school teachers. He emphasized they will be taken care of.

"Anything that involves the lives and safety of people living overseas will be kept open — commissaries, hospitals, exchanges," he said. "There will be no compromise in anything—in food, medical care, communications—for people overseas."

A shutdown is a serious possibility, Hamre cautioned, but people shouldn't overreact. "Everybody knows this would be an extreme situation," he said. "I don't think this will be a long-term condition because people will understand how serious and disruptive it is."

With U.S. Savings Bonds, the more you give, the more you receive.

Every day, we pass a little of ourselves on to the next generation. When it's best to go fishing, which bait to use, how to cast, what makes a keeper. The knowledge that we give stays with them forever. And we hope we've made their lives a little richer for the learning.

Giving U.S. Savings Bonds also passes an important lesson on to the future generation. Bonds can teach our children how to save, how interest grows and how a small investment can help make their dreams come true.

Buying U.S. Savings Bonds contributes to a solid and secure America for generations to come. What a great way for you to say, "I believe in your future!"

Bonds are as easy to buy as they are to give. Buy them at half their face value through your local bank. U.S. Savings Bonds are like friendships — the longer they're kept, the more they're worth.

So share the tradition of U.S. Savings Bonds. They're the gift that gives back more than you've given.

Hispanic Heritage Month observances begin Sunday

Staff Sgt. Linda Segundo
Hispanic Heritage Month Committee chairman

It's that time of year again -- no, not Christmas or spring cleaning but Hispanic Heritage month. Once a year for the period of Sept. 15 through Oct. 15, individuals come together in observance of Hispanic heritage.

The Hispanic Heritage Committee has put together a fun-filled month. It is not only a celebration, it's about doing things for the Hispanic heritage and for others that may need our help.

That is why it's important for everyone to know that we are having a clothing drive. The items that are collected will be distributed to the orphanages and needy locals surrounding Soto Cano Air Base, Honduras. We have a base there? Yes we do, and there are many Americans there with Joint Task Force-BRAVO.

The majority of the service members in Honduras do get involved in the never-ending charity work for the nationals and donate clothing to that area. We, as Americans, can do a small, but terribly needed deed by participating.

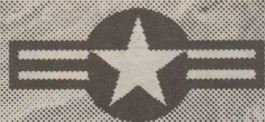

If you would like to donate clothes, the collection point is the base chapel and the Hispanic Heritage committee is the point of contact. Any committee member can give you useful information or contact me at 6629. All active committee members are committed to having a successful month, and the pride that is instilled in our work comes from knowing that Hispanics have come a long way.

Although the percentage of Hispanics in today's Air Force is relatively small, (approximately 4 percent and growing) our dedication to make a difference is unquestionable.

Numerous activities are planned throughout the month. For starters, we will kick-off the observance with a Mass scheduled for Sunday at 9:30 a.m. in the Reese Chapel. Bishop Placido Rodriguez will reside as the principle celebrant along with our pastor, Chaplain (Maj.) Thomas Diab. Following the Mass, there will a gathering for sweet bread and beverages.

Other activities include a food plate sale, Latin night at Ruby's, a golf tournament and a family afternoon at the park.

Our plan is to raise money to contribute to a scholarship for an underprivileged high school student. We hope that you will join us in this special celebration, beginning Sunday. Don't forget the clothing donation and keep an eye out in the base paper for updates on our agenda.

PEOPLE FIRST

Quality of life remains top priority

Air Force leadership has established corporate quality-of-life priorities which guide efforts to improve the quality of life for all Air Force members and their families.

The priorities are:

- Pursue fair and equitable compensation and benefits
- Provide access to safe, affordable housing
- Provide access to quality health care for members and their families
- Decrease family separation and hardships resulting from high personnel tempo
- Increase and enhance support to our community programs
- Preserve the retirement system and benefits
- Expand education tuition opportunities and access

These priorities have guided congressional testimony and budgeting efforts toward programs to help you.

A member of the 52nd Flying Training Squadron three-on-three basketball team goes for a shot against the 64th Security Police Squadron during last year's sports day competition. Basketball is one of five sports scheduled for this year's event.

Reese slates sports events

Reese Madness Sports Day is scheduled for Sept. 22.

Sporting activities will begin at 12:30 p.m. Awards will be presented to the top competing squadrons.

To register teams, call: basketball -- Senior Airman Tamika Canady, 3454; volleyball -- Jake Trevino, 3207; softball -- 1st Lt. Charles Strock, 6303, horseshoes -- Staff Sgt. L.D. Harper, 3040; and golf -- Senior Airman Kevin Johnson, 3468. Team entries must be made by Tuesday.

The sports competition will be followed by a wing picnic at Reese Park.

The picnic menu will include bratwurst, brotchen, potato salad, German beer and soda.

A German "Oom Pah" band will play during the picnic.

The picnic is open to the entire Reese community.

For additional information call Trevino at 3207.

Deliberate Force air strikes continue

by Capt. Lindsey Borg
*USAFE Command
Information Bureau*

AVIANO AIR BASE, Italy (AFNS) — NATO aircraft flying in support of Operation Deliberate Force continue to streak over the Adriatic Sea to deliver their weapons to Bosnian Serb military targets.

The multi-national force has combined to deliver more than 300 tons of ordnance during the operation's nearly 1,200 sorties. U.S. Air Force crews and aircraft account for about 800 of the sorties.

Col. Charles Wald, commander of the 31st Fighter Wing and the 7490th Provisional Wing here, said the NATO operation is the culmination of joint efforts that span the past two years.

"The planning for this operation wasn't conducted in a vacuum and neither is the execution. It's been a team effort across the board — between the U.S. services, between the NATO countries, and between the active-duty and Reserve and Guard forces. The cooperation is absolutely critical to the success of this operation," Wald said.

The coalition force began to form here nearly two years ago, under Operation Deny Flight, to enforce the no-fly zone over Bosnia-Herzegovina.

NATO and United Nations leaders shifted the mission to air attacks Aug. 30 when it became apparent the Serbs would not meet their demands to remove military threats from Sarajevo.

NATO Secretary General Willy Claes said the coalition has four main objectives, and they have remained unchanged.

They are to attain:

The compliance of the Bosnian Serbs to cease attacks on Sarajevo or other safe areas;

The withdrawal of Bosnian Serb heavy weapons from the total exclusion zone around Sarajevo;

Complete freedom of movement for U.N. forces and personnel and non-government officials;

And, unrestricted use of the Sarajevo airport.

Mike Solis, 64th LS, prepares for a return as teammate Rich Hamilton serves the ball. The 64th LS won the intramural racquetball championship for the second straight year Aug. 30.

64th LS repeats as champs

For the second straight year, the 64th Logistics Squadron found itself in the intramural racquetball title tilt against the 54th Flying Training Squadron.

Again the outcome was the same.

The 64th LS defeated the 54th FTS to reclaim the title for two consecutive years.

Mike Solis, Rich Hamilton and Dave Peterson destroyed the 64th LS's opposition during the regular season. They finished the regular season with 24 points. The 54th FTS finished with the second highest total, 17.

The defending champs began their repeat with a bye in the first round of the playoffs. In the second round the team toppled the 64th Medical Group Aug. 29.

For the 54th FTS, which finished the season atop the American League, the journey began with a forfeit victory from the 64th Security Police Squadron. The team then eliminated the 52nd FTS in the "battle of building of 105" Aug. 29.

In one other game, the 52nd FTS got a first round victory over the 35th FTS by forfeit.

Arts Alliance Creates Festival for Children

Lubbock's "youngest" event takes flight on Saturday, Sept. 30, as the Lubbock Arts Alliance, Inc. stages its first CHILDREN'S FEST O' FUN at Texas Tech's 19th Street & Indiana Avenue entrance from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m.

Basing plans for the Children's Fest o' Fun on the belief that the arts hold a unique promise for educating children as we stand at the threshold of the 21st century, the Arts Alliance has created the one-day event to complement its annual Lubbock Arts Festival, and to provide a joyful educational experience for children and their families.

As one of the programs of the Lubbock Arts Alliance, the Children's Fest o' Fun has as its mission the development of alliances that promote awareness of, appreciation for, and involvement in the arts; reinforcement of the arts as an essential element in life-long learning; and, enhancement of the quality of life for children and families throughout the South Plains / Eastern New Mexico region.

The event will be free to Lubbock residents and visitors.

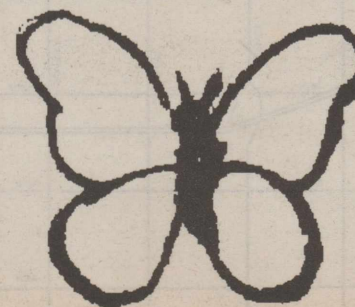

Children's Fest o' Fun Co-Chairmen Carol Jean Bartlett and LeRoy Montoya and a steering committee of community volunteers and educators have been working through the summer to finalize details for the celebration.

Early plans call for creative activities that center on a child's most important work - play.

Entertainment, food, games and experiences will additionally celebrate the imaginative abilities of children.

For more information, contact the Lubbock Arts Alliance at 744-ARTS.

The Lubbock Arts Alliance, Inc. is an independent corporation dedicated to sponsoring and funding arts and cultural activities for Lubbock and the South Plains region.
