The 101 critical days of summer and high risk activities

by Col. Roger Brady
64th FTW commander

Well, it's been a rather long winter, but summer is now finally upon us. Along with the nicer weather comes the opportunity to enjoy those long awaited outdoor activities.

These summertime activities typically result in several mishaps for the Air Force as well as a few for the Reese family. While I'm all for our people enjoying themselves as a reward for all their hard work, we need to approach travel plans and recreational activities sensibly.

The Air Force labels the period between Memorial Day weekend and Labor Day weekend as the 101 Critical Days of Summer. Historically, it's during this time the Air Force loses the major portion of its people killed in any year. Most of these fatalities could easily have been avoided had the people involved taken a few moments to think about what they were doing or done a little better planning.

Colonel Brady

Take some time to plan out your summer leave. If you're driving long distances, don't push it on any single day. Commanders and supervisors need to review leave plans, ensure they are sensible, and allow extra time for an individual to return to the local area should the plan get changed due to unforeseen circumstances. Also, make sure your vehicle is in good shape before staring out cross country.

Here are some pointers on "high risk" activities and our responsibilities as individuals and commanders.

First of all, high risk activities can include just about anything depending on your experience, equipment, or approach to the activity (See AFI 91-201 and the AETC supplement). Some examples of high risk activities are flying civilian aircraft, racing motorcycles or automobiles, bungee jumping, rock climbing, skydiving, white water rafting, etc. These are neither prohibitive nor all inclusive (though some could fit comfortably into the "dumb" category).

Activities which fit the criteria "maybe I could hurt myself, I'm doing this activity for the first time or this requires extra safety equipment (helmet, padding, etc.)," may make them high risk.

This doesn't mean you can't do it, but you are required to discuss with and obtain the approval of your commander. If your game plan is sound, he or she will probably go along with it.

There is a catch, though! If you choose to not discuss a potential high risk activity with your commander and you get injured, there will more than likely be a line of duty determination. If you are found negligent, you could be subject to disciplinary action and you may find yourself paying your own medical bills.

It's better to take a little time and discuss your plans with your commander than to get caught at a questionable activity.

With a hard year behind us and the QAFAs just around the corner, we need to take a little time to enjoy ourselves. I just want to ensure that we exercise the same good judgement we use in our regular duties. We need everyone in place and at 100 percent in September, so enjoy the summer and take a common sense approach to all your summer activities.

Be sure camping equipment is as ready to go as you are

Michael Guzman
Fire inspector

The summer months are often filled with camping trips and outdoor cooking.

No matter what the summer activity, the first concern should be the suitability of the equipment being used. All equipment should provide the maximum amount of affordable safety. For example, tents should be fire resistive.

If fuel is needed for any powered equipment, it should be transported in a UL or FM approved containers and placed in the trunk of the vehicle to protect it from any outside ignition sources. Remove it from your car as soon as possible. If traveling a long distance, frequently ventilate the trunk of the vehicle to let out unwanted vapors.

Searching for the right location to set up a campsite is just as important. Avoid dry areas for camping or barbecuing. The dried vegetation can easily be ignited by embers from the barbecue or even a discarded cigarette.

Campfires have become a tradition during outings, and they pose one of the greatest threats to nature.

Ensure campfires are at least fifteen feet away from any tent or combustible material.

Most importantly, ensure the fire is out before leaving. Do this by drenching the fire with water and then covering it with sand and dirt. The same practice applies to the charcoal used for barbecues.

It's also a good idea to take a portable fire extinguisher along on camping trips.

Having and knowing how to use a portable fire extinguisher can prevent a fire related accident from becoming a total disaster.

The fire extinguisher training is available by calling the fire department at 6339/3686.

Cindy Gies, 64th Services Squadron recreation specialist, checks a lantern at equipment rental before issuing it to a weekend camper. Equipmental rental has a variety of approved camping gear. Hours of operation are 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Tuesday through Friday and 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturday.

Chaplain Peine retires

Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Leslie Peine, 64th Flying Training Wing senior chaplain, retired Wednesday. The chaplain entered the service in 1968 with a commission through Officer Training School. He graduated Methodist Theological School in 1975. During his career he has served as a communications officer, Protestant chaplain and senior chaplain. He has been at Reese since August 1993.

First AF navigators complete Navy training

NAS PENSACOLA, Fla. (NAVY NEWS) — For the first time, Air Force personnel have graduated as navigators from Navy Training Squadron Eighty-six. The graduation ceremony, was held May 26 at the National Museum of Naval Aviation. The newly winged Air Force navigators — 1st Lts. Dave Allen, Chris Anthony, Mike Quintini and Jeff Klein — began their training onboard NASP last October. Guest of honor was Air Force Maj. Gen. Nicholas B. Kehoe, commander, 19th Air Force. Starting Oct. 1 all Air Force and Navy navigator training will be conducted at Pensacola. By fiscal year 1996 it is expected that more than 300 Air Force personnel will receive joint navigator training at Pensacola.

Top Flight '95

Arrival competition, banquet to be held at Laughlin Thursday

Air Education and Training Command's annual Top Flight competition wraps up Thursday at Laughlin AFB, Texas. Reese's T-37, T-38 and T-1A teams will all compete in the Top Flight arrival competition. The overall results of the entire competition will be announced at an awards banquet Thursday evening.

During the final phase of the competition, each participating flight team will be assigned a specific arrival time at Laughlin with each flight being videotaped over the arrival point against the "official" clock. The competition is designed to test the ability of aircrews to develop and precisely execute flight plans.

The first phase of Top Flight was held at various sites throughout the command. The T-38 teams competed at Reese April 26; the T-37 teams competed at Sheppard AFB, Texas, May 3; and the T-1A teams competed at Vance AFB, Okla.,

May 17. Members of Reese's flight teams are: T-38 — Capt. Lloyd Hubbard, 54th Flying Training Squadron D-Flight commander, and Capt. Brian O'Rear, D-Flight instructor pilot; T-37 — Capt. Scott Cason, USMC, 35th FTS B-Flight commander, and Capt. Jeffrey Jenssen, B-Flight instructor pilot; and T-1A — Capt. Mark Randolph, 52nd FTS C-Flight commander, and Capt. Douglas Sevier, C-Flight instructor pilot.

Members of Reese's maintenance teams are: T-38 — James Lee, Gerald Thorpe and Tim Martinets; T-37 — Andrew Currie, Donald Stoutenburg and Lori Oliver; and T-1A — Michael Gaines and Rick Burton, all with Lockheed.

The annual Top Flight competition tests the leadership skills of AETC flight commanders and maintenance team leaders.

Post Dock

As key members of "Team Reese," these maintainers ensure that Reese's training fleet remains airworthy.

by SrA. Tim Dempsey
Staff writer

The team members who make up the Lockheed-Martin Post Dock have many roles that people outside the flying community of the Air Force may not know.

These team members prepare aircraft for functional check flights after the jet has completed major maintenance, quickly fix any minor problems with them, fly across the country to repair any aircraft which has experienced problems while in flight and maintain the storage aircraft.

Once a complete overhaul of a jet engine has been performed and it is installed on the aircraft, the post dock section checks for any problems before the aircraft is released to the wing. The post dock technicians handle situations ranging from simple flightline repairs to high-tech engine testing in the "hush" house. If a problem is found, they fix it or return it to the engine shop.

Their careful maintenance has led to the post dock having a superior functional check flight release rate of 92.3 percent for the first quarter and 84.6 percent for the second quarter this year for the T-38, according to Melvin Robertson, Quality Assurance Evaluators Superintendent. This exceeds Air Education and Training Command's goal of 80 percent. The release rate board, located in building 570, is immediately updated after a check flight by an instructor pilot. The FCF release rate for the T-37 is also above AETC's goal of 80 percent.

The Post Dock also handles problems experienced with aircraft while flying cross-country exercises. If a problem occurs, team members travel to the aircraft to fix it. Within a day or two, they return to Reese to continue their normal duties. Because of their technical experience with the T-1A, they are called on by other AETC wings to help with T-1A maintenance.

To handle all of the responsibilities that come with working at post dock, these people rely on communication and teamwork. They have an effective communication process that allows information to flow smoothly. They listen to one another and the respect for each individual's skill and competence is obvious.

Functional check pilots fly with full confidence and security knowing the team at post dock have prepared the aircraft for check flight. (Story information provided by Capt. Michael Martel, 54th Flying Training Squadron.)

Post Dock technicians check a T-38 engine in the "hush" house. Below, Zoltan Kocis preps a T-1A check flight.

Robert Minty installs a T-38 engine gear box panel while Tom Cook assists.

News notes

Quality of Life surveys in RANDOLPH AFB, Texas (AFNS) — Survey results are in, numbers are being crunched, analysis of results is ongoing and soon, Secretary of the Air Force Sheila E. Widnall and Air Force Chief of Staff Gen. Ronald R. Fogleman will receive the findings of the Quality of Life Survey.

In February, Secretary Widnall and General Fogleman sent a Quality of Life survey to all Air Force members. Nearly 360,000 Air Force blue suiters and civilian members completed and returned the survey, according to Charlie Hamilton, chief of the surveys branch at the Air Force Military Personnel Center here.

"We had a phenomenal return rate of 66 percent," Hamilton said. "That's unheard of in the civilian sector." The chief and secretary asked for input to quality of life indicators such as operations tempo, recognition, promotion and evaluation systems, assignments, housing and base-level services, according to Hamilton.

Analysis of the results should be complete and forwarded to Secretary Widnall and General Fogleman by the end of May, added Hamilton. Air Force members can expect to see the results released by the end of summer.

T-38 crashes into apartment

SHEPPARD AFB, Texas (AFNS) — Two people were killed and 20 injured when an Air Force T-38 crashed May 31 at the Amberfalls apartment complex southwest of the base here.

The aircraft, assigned to Sheppard's 80th Flying Training Wing, was on a training mission.

The two pilots ejected from the aircraft, were recovered, treated at Sheppard hospital for minor injuries and released. Both pilots are part of the Euro-NATO Joint Jet Pilot Training program. The instructor pilot, Capt. Marc Vantsant, is a member of the Royal Netherlands Air Force. The student pilot, 2nd Lt. James Varden, is from Oxnard, Calif.

"The members of Air Education and Training Command extend our sincere sympathy to families and friends of those killed or injured in Wednesday's tragic crash," said Gen. Henry Vicellio Jr., Air Education and Training Command commander, in a statement released June 1. "We share in your grief, and stand ready to offer any support possible."

Air Force officials said the T-38 has one of the lowest mishap rates, with 1.60 class A mishaps reported per 100,000 flying hours.

A board of officers will investigate the accident.

MSgt. Joseph Garcia, left, and Patty Raybine work on the landscaping around their respective Reese Village quarters. The two residences were recently selected as yards of the month. The housing office is urging all Reese residents to keep lawns and landscaping up to standards.

Weekly yard inspections begin

Weekly yard inspections are now being conducted each Tuesday in Reese Village, according to Reese Housing Office officials.

The only exception to the Tuesday inspections would be because of rainy or inclement weather. In these cases, if there is a two-day rain prior to the inspection day (for example Saturday and Sunday), the inspection will be conducted Wednesday. If there is inclement weather for three consecutive days, the inspection will be canceled for the week.

Officials advise that citations will be given to those who have not followed minimum guidelines set forth in the Housing Handbook. A copy of the first citation is kept on file in the housing office. The second citation warrants a letter to the appropriate squadron commander or first sergeant. On the third citation the occupant and his or her commander will have to appear before the 64th Support Group commander. Revocation of base housing privileges is a distinct possibility.

Housing inspectors will have a squadron commander or first sergeant assist in doing the weekly yard inspections. The commanders and first sergeants will also be involved in the selection of yard of the month. This will take place on the last Tuesday of each month through September.

In addition, it is required that all yard sales must be approved in advance by the housing office. Request forms are available at the housing office and two metal signs will be issued to help advertise the sale. One sign is for the main entrance to housing and the other for the front lawn. No other signs will be allowed to advertise yard sales. Yard sales should only be conducted on Fridays, Saturdays or Sundays.

For more information call the housing office at 3601/3602/3913.

AFMPC details impact of promotion recommendations

Randolph AFB, Texas (AFNS) — Do I need a "definitely promote" recommendation to be selected for promotion in-the-primary zone?

If I receive a "promote" recommendation, what are my chances for selection?

These two questions are frequently asked when promotion boards approach, according to Air Force Military Personnel Center officials.

Although a "definitely promote" sends a strong message to a selection board, a "promote" recommendation can also send a significant signal to board members. In-the-promotion zone selection rates for "promote" recommendations during the 1994 board cycle were: major — 40.6 percent; lieutenant colonel — 39.6 percent; colonel — 25.7 percent.

For officers who had a "promote" recommendation on those boards, the Air Force advertised that the selection rate would be 40 percent for major, 35 percent to lieutenant colonel, and 25 percent to colonel.

Officials note that a significant number of selects had "promote" recommendations.

What distinguishes these records from the others with a "promote?" Performance and evaluation reports speak volumes about job responsibility, job performance, mission impact, and promotion potential. Officers rely on rating officials to convey that impact to the selection board.

However, when records are roughly equivalent, people need to ensure they have done all they can to demonstrate promotion potential to a selection board. Completion of an advanced academic degree and professional military education may be important factors to complete the picture of promotion potential. Both can be tiebreakers for records meeting the board.

Career progression and mobility are also important factors. Bigger and better jobs with different organizations, levels, and span of responsibility can send a strong signal to board members. Even having different supervisors shows how well you adapt to different situations. Remember, board members score the record based on their view of the potential to serve in the next higher grade.

The key to a strong "promote" is how well the entire record conveys the impact of major accomplishments and whether the entire record clearly reflects that potential. Board members say they place the greatest weight on job performance as documented in performance reports throughout the career and as documented on the Promotion Recommendation Form.

For more information on the officer promotion process, contact the Reese Military Personnel Flight at 3339.

Band Together and Buy Bonds!

America, like a good marching band, needs the cooperation of all members to move forward efficiently. Purchasing U.S. Savings Bonds is one way to help the national economy and, at the same time help yourself.

For the individual, Bonds pay competitive interest rates, are guaranteed by the U.S. Government, and have certain tax advantages. For the nation, Bonds are a cost-effective way to finance the national debt.

Let's band together
— Buy Bonds!

With U.S. Savings Bonds, the more you give, the more you receive.

Every day, we pass a little of ourselves on to the next generation. When it's best to go fishing, which bait to use, how to cast, what makes a keeper. The knowledge that we give stays with them forever. And we hope we've made their lives a little richer for the learning.

Giving U.S. Savings Bonds also passes an important lesson on to the future generation. Bonds can teach our children how to save, how interest grows and how a small investment can help make their dreams come true.

Buying U.S. Savings Bonds contributes to a solid and secure America for generations to come. What a great way for you to say, "I believe in your future!"

Bonds are as easy to buy as they are to give. Buy them at half their face value through your local bank. U.S. Savings Bonds are like friendships — the longer they're kept, the more they're worth.

So share the tradition of U.S. Savings Bonds. They're the gift that gives back more than you've given.
