General Boles cites Independence Day, reshaping of American military forces

by Gen. Billy J. Boles AETC Commander

RANDOLPH AFB, Texas (AETCNS) — Tuesday marks the 219th birthday of our nation — a nation many times greater than our forefathers could have ever dreamed when they signed the Declaration of Independence.

The decision to fight for liberty has not come without a price. We've paid that price in the wars and conflicts that have followed.

But we don't face the same enemy we did nearly 220 years ago or even five years ago.

The Air Force is reshaping to meet ever-changing demands of the new world and the new strategic threat. To do this we must keep our people trained and ready, and our equipment modern and in prime condition. Readiness is not an option, it is a necessity. Today's military forces are more mobile, more lethal and more omnipresent than ever before. The men and women of Air Education and Training Command are playing a vital role in that effort.

As we look back to the signing of the Declaration of Independence, the birth certificate of American democracy, we'll participate in parades, enjoy barbecues and watch fireworks. I urge each of you to enjoy the holiday, and enjoy it safely.

General Boles

The 'best' wing in the AF still has work to do

by Col. Roger Brady 64th FTW Commander

For the past 52 years, my predecessors and I have recognized the special realtionship between this base and the surrounding communities. The spirit of partnership of "Team Reese" and the people of the South Plains remains the envy of people throughout the Air Force.

The BRAC vote to close Reese was not a reflection on the quality of Reese people or the South Plains community, but on the realities of the post-Cold War world and on some geographic realities—high pressure altitude and persistent crosswinds—that are beyond anyone's control. While the process will continue through the President to the Congress before the decision becomes final, the history of these proceedings would suggest we need to get on with the activities associated with closure.

Nevertheless, it is vitally important that we keep everything in perspective. A natural reaction would be to say, "It's over, let's start thinking about the next move, the next job, etc." I understand that many individuals, and our civilian workforce in particular, will have important personal decisions to make over the next year or so. However, I want to assure you that there will be a tremendous amount of support and advice available to you in making those decisions. In the interim, all of us have a job to do today that is extremely important. We're all vital members of a team that still has two or three hundred students to train before closure happens. Those students are as important as any we ever trained here, and I ask your support in continuing to focus on that priority.

That's asking a lot. I know that. But we're all professionals, the best in the command, and the best is what we've come to expect of ourselves. To make that task easier, we have a tremendous team of professionals working the issues that many of you will inevitably be concerned about. Our Closure and Reuse Execution Office, which has been working behind the scenes since March 1, is well ahead of the game. The Military Personnel Flight, Family Support Center, Civilian Personnel and a host of outside agencies are teaming to work the personnel and job issues for you. We will keep you informed of every opportunity along the way. Nothing in the closure process will receive higher priority than taking care of the people in this wing. That includes, military, civilian and contractors. That is my highest priority and you will find that Colonel Gelwix, my successor, will make it his highest closure priority as well.

Closure is approaching reality, but we still have some important milestones ahead. One is the QAFA in September. This will undoubtedly be the last QAFA for the 64th FTW. We owe it to ourselves to make it the best ever. Let's remember that we have a commitment to some young student pilots to give them quality training, and the whole community that supports that effort needs to be taken care of as well. I am 100 percent certain that the leadership of this wing will do everything in their power to do the mission better than ever, and work your next assignment in the fairest way possible. Wise leaders have always known that if you take care of the people, the people will take care of the mission. You're going to continue to see that happen at Reese

Have a safe, enjoyable 4th of July, and come back to work to put the finishing touches on the best wing in the Air Force!

Fire safety vital during July 4th celebrations

Fireworks become a serious fire hazard when used carelessly.

Fireworks are not toys and should be used only by individuals qualified and experienced in handling them.

Even sparklers are dangerous. They burn with such extreme heat that they can burn anything that comes in direct contact with them. Parents need to be ever mindful of this danger as sparklers are often mistakenly believed to be a "harmless" form of fireworks.

If you're planning a barbecue, keep in mind the placement of your grill. Grills should be kept clear from buildings and away from combustible materials which may be ignited by flying embers. Remember, charcoal lighter fluid is a flammable liquid should be used carefully.

Never add charcoal lighter fluid to a burning fire. Before leaving the barbecue, soak the hot charcoal with water to ensure the burning is extinguished.

If your using a propane gas grill, ensure you read and follow the manufacturers' operating instructions. If the grill requires manual lighting, have the lighter in position before turning on the gas. A malfunctioning propane grill should be repaired by a professional before use. (Courtesy 64th FTW Safety)

64th LS receives first wing excellence in quality award

by SrA. Tim Dempsey Staff writer

The 64th Logistics Squadron's Material Storage and Distribution Flight/Natural Working Group was presented the first Commander's Unit Excellence in Quality Award.

The award is presented quarterly to the unit best demonstrating its performance, achievements and improvements in customer satisfaction, quality and productivity.

The flight has undergone vast improvements in these areas under the leadership of 1st. Lt. Brian Nola. The lieutenant was appointed as flight commander to oversee quality

By empowering element leaders and key workers, the flight eliminated safety deficiencies and revamped the entire flight. Sub-teams were developed to tackle improvements in the flight. One sub-team freed up needed storage space by eliminating excess stock and designing a "state-of-the-art" space saver configuration for storing stock. For hazardous materials, a second sub-team saved the base money by building their own spill kits for containing an accidental spill.

Another sub-team, focused on improving direct support to customers. It worked with a local aircraft oxygen supplier to increase cylinder pressure

> This improved base delivery for all priority customers to approximately 15 minutes.

> Because of these improvements, the team was runnerup as Air Education and Training Command's Outstanding MS&D Flight of the Year Award for 1994.

> > The flight's success is due to the following members: Lieutenant Nola, MSgt. Gary Carlton, Larry Sheppers, SSgt. Ed Allen, SSgt. Paul Chaplar, SSgt. Robert Cook, SSgt. Larry Steubing, SSgt. Stephanie Dumas, Sgt. Anthony Francis, Frank Tibbetts, SrA. Alan Moss, SrA. John Fox, A1C Chelsea Timmons, A1C Mike Garduno, Latrice Paxton, James Rouse, Ernest Lee, E. Rodriguez, Edward Garcia and Billy Menefee.

Two other units have also been recognized and will be presented the award later.

BRAC votes to close Reese, San Antonio ALC

WASHINGTON (AFNS) -The Defense Base Closure and Realignment Commission voted June 22 to close Reese, Mc-Clellan AFB, Calif., and the San Antonio Air Logistics Center

McClellan is the home of the Sacramento ALC.

Four other Air Force installations are recommended for closure and five others for realignment.

The commission also voted to keep six installations open that the Department of Defense had recommended be closed or realigned

The commission's decision to close the two ALCs was taken against Air Force and Department of Defense recommendations.

Overall, the commission recommended closing 20 Department of Defense military bases and realigning six. Now the recommendations must be accepted or rejected in full by the president and Congress.

A realignment is eliminating or reducing part of a base's population or mission but not closing the installation.

Commission voting on Air Force installations was completed June 22.

The other Air Force BRAC actions, in the order they were taken, were:

Rome Laboratory, New York: The DOD recommendation was to close it, but the commission voted to keep it open.

Kirtland AFB, N.M.: DOD recommended realignment, but later withdrew that recommendation and the commission agreed.

Brooks AFB, Texas: DOD recommended closure, but the commission voted to keep it open.

□ Eglin AFB, Fla.: The commission accepted the DOD proposal to realign the base.

Real-Time Digitally Controlled Analyzer Processor Activity, Buffalo, N.Y.: DOD recommended "disestablishing" the activity, and the commission agreed.

□ Air Force Electronic Warfare Evaluation Simulator Activity, Fort Worth, Texas: DOD recommended "disestablishing" the activity, but the commission rejected the DOD proposal and voted to keep it open.

□ Hill AFB, Utah: The commission accepted the DOD proposal to realign the base.

Williams AFB, Ariz.: DOD recommended changing the 1991 BRAC vote to move the base's Armstrong Laboratory Aircrew Training Research Facility to Orlando, Fla. The commission agreed, and the lab will remain at Williams

Grand Forks AFB, N.D.: The commission accepted the DOD proposal to realign the base.

□ MacDillAFB, Fla.: DOD recommended changing the 1991 BRAC vote to close and transfer the base's airfield to the Department of Commerce, and the commission agreed.

The airfield will remain open as part of the base.

Onizuka AS, Calif.: The commission accepted the DOD proposal to realign the base. Lowry AFB, Colo.: DOD recommended changing the 1991 BRAC vote to canton a base unit, and the commission agreed.

□ Carswell ARS, Texas: The commission, which had added the base to the list of those in consideration for closure, voted to keep it open.

□ Homestead AFB, Fla.: DOD recommended changing the 1993 BRAC vote to move a unit from the base and relocate another base unit from the recommended base to another location and the commission agreed.

Greater Pittsburgh IAP ARS, Pa.: The commission reversed the DOD proposal to close the base; it will remain open.

Chicago O'Hare IAP ARS, Ill.: In a modification of the 1993 BRAC recommendation, the commission voted to inactivate the Air Force Reserve C-130 unit, and will relocate the ANG unit there to Scott AFB, Ill., at the city of Chicago's expense.

North Highlands AGS, Calif .: The commission rejected the DOD proposal to close the station; it will remain open.

Ontario IAP AGS, Calif.: The commission accepted the DOD proposal to close the station.

Roslyn AGB, N.Y.: The commission approved the DOD proposal to close the station, conditional on land-sale revenue.

Springfield-Beckley Municipal Airport AGS, Ohio: The commission rejected the DOD proposal to close the station; it will remain open.

Griffiss AFB, N.Y.: The commission accepted the DOD proposal to close the airfield, and also approved alternative locations for a departing unit; both are changes to the 1993 BRAC recommendation.

With U.S. Savings Bonds, the more you give, the more you receive.

Every day, we pass a little of ourselves on to the next generation. When it's best to go fishing, which bait to use, how to cast, what makes a keeper. The knowledge that we give stays with them forever. And we hope we've made their lives a little richer for the learning. 15

Giving U.S. Savings Bonds also passes an important lesson on to the future generation. Bonds can teach our children how to save, how interest grows and how a small investment can help make their dreams come true.

Buying U.S. Savings Bonds contributes to a solid and secure America for generations to come. What a great way for you to say, "I believe in your future!"

Bonds are as easy to buy as they are to give. Buy them at half their face value through your local bank. U.S. Savings Bonds are like friendships the longer they're kept, the more they're worth.

So share the tradition of U.S. Savings Bonds. They're the gift that gives back more than you've given.

Elouise Newton pins the third star on her husband Lt. Gen. Lloyd "Fig" Newton. The general is now the Air Force assistant vice chief of staff.

General Newton joins Air Staff

BOLLING AFB, D.C. (AFNS) - Lt. Gen. Lloyd W. Newton has assumed the position of Air Force assistant vice chief of staff in a ceremony June 16 here. Air Force Chief of Staff Gen. Ronald R. Fogleman hosted the ceremony and acted as the presiding officer.

In his remarks before the pinning General Newton's third star, General Fogleman attributed General Newton's success to three elements:

"The first is his family who gave him a firm foundation and allowed him to spread his wings. The second is his willingness to explore unknown things which brought many people in the Air Force to ask for Fig Newton by name. Finally, he is tremendously talented and hardworking."

As the new assistant vice chief of staff, General Newton will assist the chief of staff and vice chief of staff in the overall direction of the Air Force. He also will supervise the organization and administration of the headquarters staff and act as vice chairman of the Air Force Council, the senior corporate-level decision-making body of the Air Force.

"Twenty-nine years ago, it was my dream to serve my country," said General Newton. "I found a broader, extended family. To all those who have contributed to my success, I say thank you from the depth of my heart for the moments shared and the things you taught me. I'm proud to join a dynamic team and ready to go work."

PCS peak season

From now through September military and civilian moves increase. If you are have a change in duy station this summer, allow a two- or three- day period to avoid unforeseen problems such as carrier shortages.

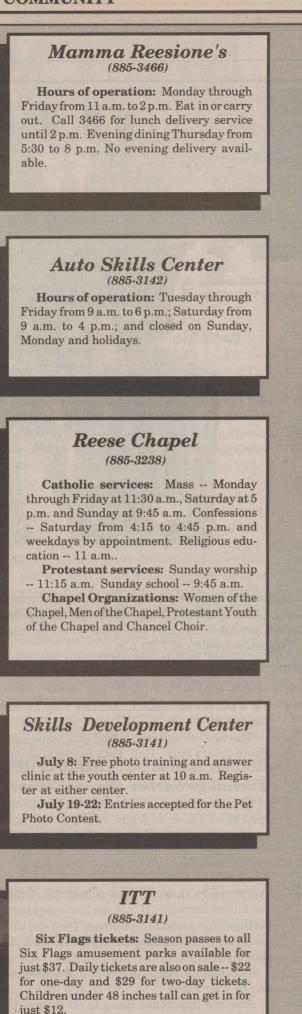

This means scheduling your pickup before the last day of your lease.

Another important thing to do is have the name and telephone number of a point of contact at your new duty station. This can save a lot of hassle at your destination.

With the increased work load, it takes a few more days to schedule deliveries out of temporary storage. For more information call the traffic management office at 3944.
