Enlisted assignment availability set for 1997

by Tech. Sgt. David Brown
NCOIC, Public Affairs

Headquarters Air Education and Training Command Personnel and Assignments has updated all enlisted personnel assignment availability codes on Reese to April 1997.

According to base personnel officials, this means the majority of enlisted people will depart for new assignments after April 1997, although there will be some exceptions that apply.

Staff Sgt. Judy Siano, AETC Assignments, said everyone who volunteers will compete for two oversea EQUAL cycles. The first cycle will be in September and the second will be in December of this year.

Those selected in the September cycle will have a reporting date of May and June 1997. Those selected in December will report to their new duty station during the months of July, August or September of 1997.

Anyone not selected during these cycles will receive a stateside assignment from the HQ AETC Assignments team during its visit in February 1997.

Siano indicated that anyone not able to depart overseas

President signs DOD Authorization Bill March 1 pay to include full raise, back pay

WASHINGTON—Military members will receive the full 2.4 percent pay raise and a 5.2 percent increase in housing allowance in March 1 paychecks now that the president has signed the defense bill.

President Bill Clinton signed the fiscal year 1996 National Defense Authorization Act Feb. 10, according to White House officials. The bill also contains a 2.4 percent increase in basic subsistence allowance. The increases are retroactive to Jan. 1.

Servicemembers were already getting a 2 percent increase in pay and allowances — the most the president can approve by law — as a result of a Dec. 28 executive order. Now, they will get the additional .4 percent increase.

Clinton vetoed the first defense bill, saying he objected to three provisions pertaining to national security. Congress deleted those requirements in the second bill, said a Feb. 10 White House press release.

In addition to the above increases, the new defense bill includes:

Rate protection for the variable housing allowance. The provision prevents a servicemember's VHA rate from dropping during a tour as long as the person "retains uninterrupted eligibility" and the person's certified housing costs don't decrease.

A provision to automatically enroll new military members in the Servicemen's Group Life Insurance at the maximum rate of $200,000, beginning April 1. Servicemembers can get reduced coverage if desired. Currently, servicemembers are automatically enrolled at the $100,000 rate but can request increases, in $10,000 increments, up to the $200,000 maximum.

A provision to allow all servicemembers to receive a dislocation allowance if moving off base because of base closure or realignment action. The allowance offsets miscellaneous costs of relocating a

Integrity

My word is my bond!

by Chaplain (Maj.) Charles W. Lewis
4409th Operations Group

While serving as chaplain and attached faculty at Squadron Officer School, I attended a Christmas skit which ended with Santa Claus and several elves running down the aisle. The elves were attractive young ladies, and during the dialog Santa referred to one of them as his "TDY elf."

The audience laughed, but the message stuck with me. Do our values, judgment, and integrity change when we are deployed TDY? When we are out of sight of loved ones, do we casually discard our Air Force core values?

Without a doubt, many of the most challenging and painful counseling cases I conduct deal with infidelity. Infidelity carries a number of meanings including cheating, disloyalty, irreligion, treachery, and unfaithfulness. As I conduct weddings it seems impossible that any of the couples standing before me could possibly dishonor the promises being exchanged.

Unfortunately, there seems to be an epidemic willingness to pursue immediate personal pleasure rather than striving to be people of integrity. The results are tragic and the cost to society is enormous.

Watch any evening news and it will become intuitively obvious to the most casual observer that our American family system is in serious trouble.

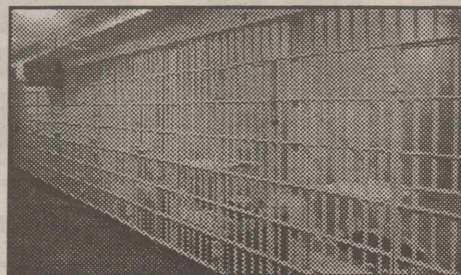

Someone reading this article will inevitably say, "What I do on my own time is no one's business."

That is not quite true. The Uniform Code of Military Justice has several items concerning one's sexual conduct.

In addition, your private life often directly affects your military contribution. During an Air Command and Staff College lecture, a lieutenant general expressed it this way: "If you cannot be trusted to honor the marriage vows you've made to your best friend, how can I trust you to do your job when people's lives are on the line?"

The general's analysis of faithfulness provides one of the best analogies I've ever heard. Our peers in the workplace inevitably know what is going on in our private life. How can you expect them to trust you when they know you are breaking trust with your best friend? You'll have to admit it doesn't make sense.

The Air Force needs people of integrity — people whose word is their bond. Your loved ones deserve a relationship firmly grounded in trust — not only in word, but in deed. And so does the Air Force.

Two places you can land by drinking and driving
Don't drink and drive!

Why wear bicycle helmets?

The USAF Traffic Safety Program requires all personnel (including family members, contractors, and retirees) that ride a bicycle on base to wear an approved bicycle helmet.

Now comes the question, do the on-base requirements apply to off base? The answer is no. However, cyclist should remember that Reese Village is on base.

So, even if you live off base, here is something to consider before you ride your bicycle without a helmet.

One third of Americans own bicycles, but fewer than 20 percent wear a bicycle helmet. Experienced riders know that it's just a question of time when you will be involved in a bicycling mishap. This alone establishes the "need" for a helmet because 80 percent of cycling deaths result from head injury.

Fortunately, most bicycle crashes involve only "road rashes" and perhaps broken bones, which normally heal up in time. A damaged brain may not heal. The brain can be bruised, bleed, or hemorrhage, creating pressure in your skull.

When you crash, an unprotected head undergoes two collisions: one when the skull slams into the pavement. The second, milliseconds later, when the brain hits the inside of your skull. Research shows that wearing a bicycle helmet can prevent 88 percent of brain injuries.

If your family members are bareheaded bikers, you may want to rethink your stand on wearing a bicycle helmet. Surely, preventing deaths and permanent brain damage is worth the price of a helmet. (Courtesy of Reese Safety and the Bicycle Safety Institute)

Quality Award open to all wing teams

by Maj. Dave Specht
Reese Quality Officer

Did you know you were eligible to receive the Wing Commander's Unit excellence in Quality Award?

According to Reese Instruction 90-501, the quarterly award goes to any unit demonstrating performance, achievement, and improvement in:

- Customer Satisfaction
- Quality
- Productivity Levels

Competition is done at the group level, and group winners are forwarded to the Wing Quality Council. If you feel your team, flight, or squadron has made an improvement this quarter through the use of QAF principles, simply submit a brief description of your accomplishment to your group commander by the 15th calendar day following the respective quarter.

Nominations are simple! You can include:

- Results of your team or unit efforts

- Metrics showing improvement
- Training efforts
- Number of suggestions submitted and adopted
- Self Assessment efforts made this quarter
- Or any improvements you feel are significant in mission, or process improvement

Improvement is happening at Reese; here's a chance to get recognized for your efforts. For more information, call the Wing Quality Office at 6592.

DOD bill includes changes to retiree COLA dates household.

□ A $100 per month increase in recruiters' pay — up from $275 per month.

□ A provision not to pay prisoners. People sentenced to death, punitive discharge, or confinement for more than six months will automatically forfeit pay and allowances.

□ A provision allowing single people in grades E-6 and above to refuse "inadequate quarters" without sacrificing BAQ.

□ A requirement that the secretary of Defense study and report to Congress on methods to improve working conditions for servicemembers in the grades of E-5 and E-6. The requirement says the report should also address extending privileges afforded senior NCOs, such as the opportunity to mess separately and receive BAS, to E-5s and E-6s.

□ A provision to allow survivors of a deceased servicemember to be paid for all leave the person accrued without regard to the 60-day career limit.

□ Authorization for enlisted air weapons controllers on airborne warning and control aircraft to receive hazardous duty incentive pay on the same basis as AWC officers.

□ Provisions for retired military cost-of-living adjustments. Retired COLA for fiscal year '96 becomes effective March 1, and for fiscal year '97, on Dec. 1, 1996. COLA for fiscal year '98 is scheduled for Sept. 1, 1998, or the same date prescribed for federal civilian retirees.

□ Authorization for a dependent youth to return from an overseas location when he or she loses eligibility because of age. The dependent can return to the continental United States at government expense before the servicemember gets permanent change-of-station orders.

□ Restrictions on Community College of the Air Force degrees. CCAF degrees no longer can be awarded military members in other branches of the service, beginning with enrollments after March 31.

Though he signed the fiscal year '96 defense bill, Clinton said he still "strongly" opposes the provision requiring the discharge of people with the Human Immunodeficiency Virus.

Clinton said he supports current efforts in Congress to repeal the provision before "a single servicemember is discharged from the armed forces."

"Further, to mitigate any unfair burden that this legislation could place on these servicemembers and their families pending any repeal or judicial invalidation, I have directed the secretaries of Defense, Veterans Affairs, and Transportation, in carrying out the provisions of this Act, to take all steps necessary to ensure that these servicemembers receive the full benefits to which they are entitled — including, among other things, disability retirement pay, health care coverage for their families and transition benefits such as vocational education."

Enlisted assignments set for 1997

or CONUS before July 1997 (such as those assigned to critical positions needed through closure) will be extended accordingly. Individual squadron commanders will determine release dates.

People no longer required at Reese with the inactivation of the flying mission will be given assignments during July and August 1996. An example might be an administrative craftsman in one of the flying squadrons that will be inactivated. These people will be identified by their respective commanders, said Reese officials.

All those who receive state-side assignments will be given the same report not later than date with early reporting authorized. People will depart as the mission downsizes. Squadron commanders are the focal points for determining individual departure dates from Reese.

"These dates are not locked in stone," said Staff Sgt. Donald

Porter, NCOIC, Outbound Assignments. "Some dates could change as we move forward with the base closure plan."

Join-spouse couples should make sure their Air Force Form 1048, Join Spouse Intent, and AF FM 392, Assignment Preference Statement, are accurate and up-to-date as assignments will be matched based on this information.

Reese personnel officials stressed that individual commanders remain the key to releasability.

Moisturization Where It Counts

(NAPS)—Does your skin beg for moisturizer during the harsh and dry winter months?

Many people who find themselves using moisturizer in the winter don't realize they are applying it to the top, dead layer of skin, so it is not reaching the layer of skin that needs it most.

However, the introduction of shower gels and their washing implements may have made this dilemma a thing of the past.

"Most shower gels moisturize the skin while you bathe, and their washing tools, like the pouf, gently exfoliate the skin," says Paul Sharko, technology manager for Lever Brothers Company, maker of Dove® Moisturizing Body Wash and Lever 2000® Body Wash.

And, by removing the top, dead layer of skin, the moisturizer in a shower gel reaches the new skin and helps keep it soft and smooth for up to eight hours.

Lieutenants Black, Dickinson earn top grad awards

Lt. j.g. Michael Black and 2nd Lt. Jason Dickinson received top honors in their respective pilot training tracks during graduation ceremonies for Joint Specialized Undergraduate Pilot Training Class 96-03 here Feb. 16.

The two graduates received the Air Education and Training Command Commander's Trophy as the top overall graduate in each track.

In capturing the Commander's Trophy, Black became the first Naval aviator to garner the top graduate award at Reese.

Appropriately, the trophies were presented to Black and Dickinson by the graduation guest speaker, Rear Admiral William Hayden, Chief of Naval Air Training, NAS Corpus Christi.

Black also received the tanker-airlift track Flying Training Award and the Distinguished Graduate Award.

Dickinson received the bomber-fighter track's Aca-

American Express, Air Force crack down on card abuse

WASHINGTON — The Air Force has stepped up its attack on people who don't pay their American Express accounts on time or abuse card privileges.

Though Air Force has an aggressive education and training program on card use, about 10 percent of its card holders are still delinquent on payments, said Michael Weber, Air Force's American Express program manager.

To curb late payments and prevent wrongdoing, Air Force joined the other services Dec. 15 to reduce the limit on the amount its more than 383,000 card holders can withdraw from automatic teller machines each month, Weber said. The ATM cash withdrawal limit for airmen is now $500 a week, or $1,000 a month — compared to a total monthly limit of $600 for soldiers and sailors.

Forty percent of the charges made by Air Force card holders — who make up one-half of the Department of Defense total — are from ATM cash withdrawals, Weber said. Though the figure is down from a high of 51 percent, it's still "extremely high" and costly to the Air Force, he said.

"That's where we have the biggest abuse — some people are using ATMs to pull out money when they're not going (on a temporary duty assignment) — or just taking out more cash than they will really need," Weber said.

But the delinquency rate is the bigger problem.

The fiscal 1995 average through November was 25 percent — about $15 million per month. The delinquent balance dropped in December to $12.9 million.

"That's just too high. We want that delinquency rate to drop to below 12 percent," Weber said.

American Express said Feb. 12 it would start taking "immediate legal action to garnish the wages" of Air Force people delinquent on their account.

The Air Force is also doing its part to cut delinquencies. Last summer, the publication of a punitive Air Force instruction on the charge card gave commanders the teeth they needed to take action against abusers. This resulted in an increase in Article 15 and court-martial actions.

The revamped rules also give commanders more leeway in monitoring delinquent card holders. American Express provides monthly reports that show commanders how much people are spending and how delinquent they are on payments.

Air Force begins third phase of drawdown

Approximately 800 more officers given opportunity to retire early

WASHINGTON (AFNS) — In the third and final phase of the fiscal year 1996 personnel drawdown, Air Force will extend the latest retirement date under the early retirement program, allowing additional officers to retire.

The latest retirement date under the Temporary Early Retirement Authority, or TERA, moves from July 1 to Sept. 1, giving about 800 more officers the 15 years of service needed to qualify for early retirement, said Air Force personnel officials here. This also allows about 50 once-deferred officers to apply for the program. Although Congress has authorized TERA through fiscal year 1999, money for the program may be very limited after this year.

"That's why we want to ensure every deferred officer who is eligible to apply for the program this fiscal year gets a chance," explained a personnel spokesman. Once-deferred officers meeting promotion boards through June and those who become twice-deferred because of those boards will be given priority consideration if they apply for early retirement and have between 15 and 18 years of service by Aug. 31.

Requests for early retirement from other eligible officers will be processed on a first-come, first-served basis until the program is closed, the official said. People with an established retirement date or who request a date at least 90 days after their promotion board meets will be allowed to withdraw or cancel their retirement if selected for promotion or continuation in the service.

During this final phase of the fiscal year '96 drawdown program, Air Force will continue to allow lieutenant colonels and below with at least 15 years of total active federal military service by Aug. 31 to apply for a retirement date through Sept. 1 unless previously excluded from participating in the program under phase I or II. Requests to extend early retirement dates established under phase I or II of the fiscal 1996 program normally will not be approved.

Because officers applying for early retirement have, on average, been more junior than originally estimated, Air Force can allow additional retirements without exceeding funding, officials said. Since opening phase II of the officer program in October, Air Force is still about 300 short of its revised goal of 1,200 losses.

Those interested should contact their Reese Military Personnel Flight at 3420 for specific details on eligibility and application procedures.

Keeping lines of communication open

The mission of the 64th Communications Squadron is to provide airfield, voice, data and visual communications to enable the wing to produce professional pilots.

The mission is accomplished through four sections: command section, systems flight, support flight, and planning and implementation flight.

The command section is comprised of the commander, secretary, orderly room and additional duty first sergeant.

The systems flight is comprised of military personnel working in the combined ground radio and meteorological-navigational aids element. Personnel also man the maintenance support element, which includes the communications focal point, quality control, commercial communications and land mobile radio functions.

The support flight is comprised of the base visual information services center, which includes the photo lab, graphic arts, production presentations and the learning center for student and instructor pilots. Data Monitor Systems (DMS), Inc., is a contract function also part of the flight. It is responsible for the base communications center, base network control center, telephone switchboard and command, control, communications, computer (C4) security.

DMS is also responsible for C4 security programs such as computer security (COMPUSEC), the Wing COMSEC account and security awareness training and education (SATE).

The plans and implementation flight is responsible for all squadron financial matters, C4 project management, architecture and integration, and the Wing equipment control officer. The Wing equipment control officer manages the base's computer inventory valued at more than $7 million.

Bill Barr, support flight, shows Rhonda Brown and Ron Randall new anti-virus software.

Airman 1st Class Joseph Dungo performs routine maintenance on the far field monitor south of the runways.

Barclays to manage stock investment

The Federal Retirement Thrift Investment Board recently selected Wells Fargo Institutional Trust Company to manage the Common Stock Index Investment for C and F Funds. As of Dec. 31, 1995, Barclays PLC acquired Wells Fargo Institutional Trust Company.

As a result of the acquisition, the new name of the C and F Funds asset manager is BZW Barclays Global Investors. The C and F Funds will be invested in the Barclays Equity Index Fund and the Barclays U.S. Debt Index Fund. The name change will not affect the way in which the C and F Funds are invested. The C Fund will continue to track the Standard and Poor's 500 stock index and the F Fund will continue to track the Lehman Brothers Aggregate bond index.

For more information call 3803.

Taking Charge of Change class offered

People can learn that a better life is available when they take charge of change.

Taking Charge of Change classes introduce a step-by-step system for dealing with life altering change. Using this systematic process and using it as a blueprint for adjusting to life's ordeals, will help a person:

1. grow mentally stronger and physically more capable of resisting the damage of stress;
2. increase their sense of self-control and confidence, even when dealing with events that they cannot control; and
3. discover the reservoirs deep within them that will ensure they stay on top, even when their world has turned upside down.

The class will be offered March 14 from 8 a.m. to 12 p.m. in the family support center classroom. For more information call 3305.

ROCC hosts series of workshops

64th CES-A, 64th CES-B start volleyball season

The intramural volleyball season got under way Tuesday with 64th Civil Engineer Squadron-B intersquadron rival 64th CES A.

Four teams competed in the opening night of the eight week season.

The 64th CES-B took the first game, 15-4, but lost a close second game, 12-14. The 64th CES-B captured the victory with an impressive 15-2 victory in the last game.

In the second game of the night, the 35th Flying Training Squadron dropped its first game against the 64th Medical Group, 8-15. It rallied to take the last two games, 15-3, 14-7.

In other matches, the 64th Security Police Squadron wasted no time in defeating the 64th Logistics Squadron-B in two games, 15-5, 15-6. Also, the 64th Mission Support Squadron opened its season on a high note by defeating the 64th LS-A, 15-11, 4-15, 15-11.

Rifle team members try out for Olympics

SAN ANTONIO — Seven members of the U.S. Air Force International Rifle Team have been invited to try out for the 1996 U.S. Olympic Rifle Team. Attendance at the Olympic try-outs is limited to the top 54 competitors in the country, based on scores fired in competitions during the past two years.

There are three men's and two women's rifle shooting events in the Olympics.

Airman 1st Class Deena Wigger will try out for both women's events. The first is the air rifle event, in which competitors fire 40 shots from a standing position at a target 10 meters away. The entire target is about one inch in diameter, while the 10-ring is a dot one-half of one millimeter in diameter — the size of the period at the end of this sentence.

In a recent competition, Wigger fired a 398, hitting the tiny dot 38 times and missing it by only millimeters the other two. The other Olympic event she is trying out for is the three position, in which shooters fire 20 shots each from the prone, standing, and kneeling positions at a target 50 meters away using a .22 caliber rifle. At this distance, the target is only four inches in diameter, and the 10-ring is smaller than a dime. Wigger has been the national champion several times in each event, and was a member of the 1988 Olympic Team. She is assigned to the Air Force Academy as an assistant coach.

Six Air Force shooters will try out for the three men's events. Second Lts. Justin Broughton, Brian Curtis and Dan Wilcox will try out for the men's air rifle event.

This event is nearly identical to the women's event, except that the men's match is 60 shots. Broughton is a Minuteman missileer in the 741st Missile Squadron at Minot Air Force Base, N.D. Curtis is a Peacekeeper missileer in the 400th MS at F.E. Warren AFB, Wyo. Wilcox is assigned to the athletic department at the Air Force Academy.

Wilcox, along with Capt. Trace Weisenburger, will try out for the men's three-position event. Like air rifle, this event is similar to the women's event except that the men fire 40 shots from each position. Weisenburger is a C-5 pilot in the 21st Airlift Squadron at Travis AFB, Calif.

The men have a third event, called the prone, or "English," match. The match involves firing 60 shots from the prone position at 50 meters at targets the same as the ones used for the three-position event. Second Lt. Will Reinert, Capt. Doug Clark, and Wilcox will try out for this event. Reinert is a munitions officer in the 9th Munitions Squadron at Beale AFB, Calif. Clark is a weather officer assigned to Headquarters, Air Education and Training Command, Randolph AFB, Texas.

In spite of the tiny size of the 10-ring on both the air rifle and 50 meter targets, competitors are not allowed to use telescopic sights. Only "iron" or "peep" sights are permitted. Competitors are also not allowed to use artificial support of any kind.

The U.S. Air Force International Rifle Team is composed of the 10 best rifle shooters in the Air Force. Members must supply their own equipment and must train during their off-duty time. The Air Force provides team members with ammunition, uniforms, and a small travel budget. The team travels to four-to-six competitions annually, with members attending numerous others on their own time and at their own expense.
