GLAD TO SAY A GOOD WORD FOR IT

Prominent Waco Woman Relieved After Eighteen Years of Suffering

"To begin with I was in a general rundown condition," said Mrs. W. A. Tooker, 402 South Eighth St., Waco, Texas, while in a conversation with an Orogatoric representative a few days ago.

"I had no appetite at all, gained and lost weight, and just anything I did eat would disagree with me and cause terrible indigestion pains. Gas would form on my stomach and I would have terrible headaches and would have aching limbs that made me feel as if I were just the best of nothing. I would get so tired that I would not be able to get up after a night of sleeping in bed and I would feel as if I were just the best of nothing. I would get so tired that I would not be able to get up after a night of sleeping in bed and I would feel as if I were just the best of nothing."

"Well, my condition kept getting from bad to worse, until I felt as though I would never be well again. I kept hearing so much talk about this new medicine, Orogatoric, that I finally decided to give it a trial, and see if it would help me and other people were saying it had helped them so much. So I bought a bottle, and the results have been wonderful. I am free from all my former ailments, I have good appetite, and can eat just anything without the least ill effects. I am never bothered with indigestion pains or gas, and it has corrected my constipation. I get a good night's rest now due to the fact that I am no longer restless and nervous, and never have those headaches. The beginning of a new day now is great, for I know that I can go on with the usual daily routine without the possibilities of feeling miserable all day. I have taken two bottles of this medicine and I think it is the best medicine I have ever taken. I can truthfully say that I feel like a different woman now, and I'm glad to say a good word for Orogatoric."

Genuine Orogatoric may be obtained at Oates Drug Store. Adv.

STOKES NOW WORKS WITH BEST OF THEM

"I suffered with constipation for five years, and during the past two years was so weak and run-down, and had to spend so much time in bed, I finally had to quit work en-

J. T. Stokes. I suffered with indigestion and would blow up so after meals I couldn't fasten my clothing, and had awful pains in my stomach, between my shoulders and around my liver. Every pain in my body is gone. I eat hearty meals and my digestion is perfect. I'm so strong and well now I can put in a hard day's work with the best of them. The clothes I couldn't fasten are loose on me now and I feel like a different man.

"Sixteen Pills did me of constipation, and I'll gladly tell anybody what I think of this wonderful treatment."—J. T. Stokes, 3039 Arizona St., Dallas.

RELIEF that is REFRESHING. "We have used Theodor's Black-Draught for years in our family. I can highly recommend it for many ailments. We take it for colds and for constipation. I have four children, and I give it to them. When my little girl gets bilious, or complains of headache, I give her a treatment of Black-Draught, and she is all right in a day or two. Sometimes when I have indigestion from improper eating, I have headache. Then I take Black-Draught. I always feel fresh and have more energy after I have taken it."—Mrs. E. A Lesson From the Mud Hole

By MARTHA M. WILLIAMS

IF YOU know the thing you want, there's always the chance of getting it by hook or crook or odd chance. But if you do not know—well, there is quite another story. As Squire Jim Lewis, poor gentleman, was to prove. He did not lack either possession, or occupation. Contrariwise, he suffered an embarrassment of riches—a big farm, full stocked with the best of everything, a fine substantial house, a good name, money in bank. There did seem nothing left a reasonable man to sigh for.

AUTO TRAVEL COMES HIGH ON POOR HIGHWAYS

(By E. E. Duffy)

The motorist who pays out a dollar in car operating expenses in traveling over high type roads must pay $1.18 in traveling the same distance on intermediate type roads. The travel cost over the same distance on low type roads is $1.38.

These costs, determined by Professor T. R. Agg and H. S. Carter of Iowa State College for the "imaginary" average car, clearly indicate the high cost of traveling over so-called low type roads. According to their calculations the cost of driving over gravel and so on is one third greater than driving over smooth concrete.

For the sake of convenience, let it be conservatively considered that the cost of driving a car over concrete is five cents a mile. A dollar will then buy 20 miles of travel on hard pavement. The average motorist now travels some 6,000 miles yearly at, therefore, an estimated cost of $300. If the motorist's traveling were all to be done over intermediate type roads rather than concrete, the additional cost for this "privilege" would be $34. But if the motorist were compelled to bump over low type roads the extra travel cost would be $114, which is $114 that could be better spent.

A motorists' association has just pointed out that sixteen states this year spent less money on highway improvement than they did last year, even in the face of mounting car registrations. Obviously this cannot be called economy, for every mile of unimproved road a community tolerates costs the taxpayer hard cash through extra car expenses which have to do with fuel and oil, car depreciation, tire wear and allied items.

Cheaper motoring can only come through more extensive highway improvements and these must come through the expedient of making more money available for highway construction.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT WHEN YOU BUY A RADIO

A radio isn't of very much value unless it works. And the average radio owner knows very little about the inner workings of the strange device.

So we're prone to look to our radio dealer for results, and if anything goes wrong we call on him for help.

Picture, if you can, the helplessness of a certain Haskell man who bought a radio recently from a mail order concern. It worked for a while and then ceased to function. He now hesitates to call on a local radio dealer because he didn't give his home merchants a chance to figure with him when he purchased. Meanwhile his mail-order radio complacently sits at home in complete silence.

That's something to think about when you buy a radio. The home dealer is here to counsel, advise and repair.

Some of the most reliable makes of radios are sold right here in Haskell. And when you buy from your locale dealer his personal interest is included in the transaction.

INFERTILE EGGS BEST PRESERVED

Only Fresh, Clean and Sound Should Be Used.

Only those eggs that are fresh, clean and sound of shell should be preserved or "put down" for use next winter. One spoiled egg will, in many cases, cause the entire lot to spoil. To be absolutely sure that the eggs are fresh and the shells sound, they should be candled," says A. G. Oliver, extension poultryman at the North Carolina State college. "An old shoe box may be used for this purpose by cutting holes in it to fit the eggs and fitting it over a lamp or an electric bulb. "This test will show up any porous or cracked shells and will also show if germination has started. This is a safety-first precaution and, as it takes only a few minutes time, should be practiced by every housewife before putting down any eggs. "For best results infertile eggs should be used, but fertile eggs can be used with good results if they are put down each day. If this is done the danger of germination will be eliminated. "Never wash the egg before preserving as this removes the natural protective coating on the shell. "In preparing the solution, Mr. Oliver advises one quart of water glass to nine quarts of pure water. The water should be boiled and cooled before mixing with the water glass. "For containers, a clean stone jar is the best, but tin or wood vessels may be used. A six-gallon jar will hold about fifteen dozen eggs. Mr. Oliver states that the eggs at the top of the container should be covered by at least one and one-half inches of the solution. It is not necessary to fill the jar at one time, as fresh eggs can be added each day, taking care, however, that the eggs on top are always covered with the solution. "The containers should be kept covered to prevent evaporation and should be stored in a cool place until needed. "Give Good Ventilation During Summer Months. Plenty of ventilation should be provided for brooder houses during the hot summer months, advises John Vandervort, extension poultry specialist of the Pennsylvania State college. "Ventilators at the rear of the chicken house and windows at the front and on the sides should be kept open to allow free circulation of air, Mr. Vandervort says. Results of poultry demonstrations among college flocks prove that pullets reared in hot, stuffy houses are likely to be stunted and unprofitable. "Frequent cleaning of the house in the summer is necessary also to prevent flies from breeding and to keep the air in the building pure. Coarse wire netting placed around the roosts will keep the pullets from the manure, one means of helping to prevent tapeworm infection.

Roger Bacon First to Talk of Metal Airship

In the all-metal airship we see realized an eighth-century-old Baconian project. In the Thirteenth century, says Domestic Air News, United States Department of Commerce, Roger Bacon, English philosopher and Franciscan friar, seems to have been the first to realize the principles of aeronautics. If we discard Kircher and the legends, Bacon wrote in glowing language on the possibility of constructing engines of immense size and power that could traverse the land and the water with great speed and carry with them persons and merchandise. He proposed the construction of an aerial machine which "must be a large hollow globe of copper or other suitable material . . . filled with ethereal air or liquid fire" (some have claimed Bacon referred to rarefied air and hydrogen gas) and then launched from some elevated point into the atmosphere, where it will float like a vessel on the water. "There may be made, Bacon said, "flying machines so that a man sits in the midst of the machine revolving some engine by which artificial wings are made to beat the air like a flying bird."

ABSENT MINDED

"Jack is awfully absent minded." "How so?" "He scratched his wife and kissed a match the other night."

Fight at First Sight

The "cichlids" of the fresh water carp family are said to be among the most ferocious of fish. They are quite difficult to mate and have to be kept separate, for they fight and kill each other with little delay. When they are once mated, however, they take great care of their progeny. A flower pot or hollow stone is found, which they clean spotlessly and in which they raise their family. They guard their eggs in alternate shifts, fanning them with their fins. Just before hatching, the female dies a fat in the sand or shingle and transfers the young fish to it. They are then a wriggling mass of black jelly. After two or three hours she dies another pit, and this process goes on till the youngsters can swim about.

Old Customs Dear to Hearts of Britichers

The archbishop who lives at Lambeth palace is a very kind archbishop, the poor of the district will tell you. Every Thursday at the main gateway 20 half-crowns are distributed to 20 poor people of the parish. The custom is a very old one. Years ago it took another form. On Sundays, Tuesdays and Thursdays 15 quarter loaves of bread, 9 stone of beef (made into broth and served in pitchers) and 5 shillings' worth of halfpennies were the gifts. One is reminded of this and other quaint customs, surviving or revived, by the fact that the lord mayor of London revived the Boy Players a few weeks ago. They gave a performance at Salters' hall, the first since 1698, when they were the favorite players of Queen Elizabeth. The Salters' company is named after John Salter, who died in 1665. Formerly a service to his memory, held each year, took the form of a procession to his tomb, upon which each person knocked with a stick, and called three times in a loud voice: "How do you do, Brother Salter? I hope you are well!"—London Mail.

After Sedan

In his book, "Napoleon the Third," Mr. D'Auvergne gives an interesting picture of the meeting between the vanquished emperor and Wilhelm I of Prussia after Sedan. "The old king took the Frenchman's hand and said something about the fortunes of war having decided between them . . . with a friendly, encouraging gesture. Wilhelm of Hohenzollern gripped the broken monarch by the arm and led him into an inner room. They discussed the battle and the origins of the war . . . 'Really, I think I cheered him up,' wrote the chivalrous old king to his wife."—Illustrated London News.

Inventor Dares Death Testing Rocket Plane
Frankfort-on-Main, Germany—A wealthy young German's dream of an airplane propelled by the explosion of rockets has advanced to the stage of practical experimentation supported by a successful trial flight.

The inventor of the rocket plane is Fritz Von Opel, who risked his life in a daring attempt to prove a theory to which he has devoted himself for more than a year.

After two unsuccessful trials, during which the young experimenter's hair had been singed by flame, the motorless airplane shot into the air with the roar of a cannon, streaked through the sky and landed after a flight of about six miles.

Opel, who had demonstrated with some success in motor cars that explosion of rockets could be used as a propelling force, had secretly experimented with Wilhelm Sander, rocket engineer, for more than a year to find a suitable plane for the application of their theory.

The plane is a short and fatless monoplane, resembling a motorless and propellerless glider. The pilot's seat is in the front wings above the fuselage. The wing spread is approximately thirty-eight feet and the plane's weight 500 pounds.

The rockets, attached to the side of the fuselage, are discharged by means of fuses in the cockpit, which weigh an additional 100 pounds. The plane has no under carriage and is shot from rails.

The Beautiful Girl in Distress

By LEETE STONE

JOHN LESTER had never had time to take a vacation. Being the oldest son of a widowed mother with four younger children who were always needing a pair of shoes, or something, John had tended strictly to business in the glove factory ever since he was fourteen. Religiously, ever since, he had turned over the weekly pay envelope to his mother. Now he was twenty and he craved a vacation.

Friends there were in the factory who had been allowed time off to go abroad and sojourn a few weeks in their native land; others who received a day or two off now and then to gratify a fishing hobby in the nearby ponds and lakes; but he, John Lester, had stuck to the job. His only Saturday afternoon and Sunday relaxation was his old flyover of the vintage of 1921.

A dangerous curve near the Main street of John's old New England home town had yielded what was left of the car. There had been a collision; result: the partial wreck of this early flier. John happened to pass by, on foot. The owner and driver of the damaged motor, shaken and distressed, had hailed John and told him he could have the shabby remains for the taking away. Then the disgruntled survivor had hopped on the first bus heading Hartford way, leaving his wreckage and his cares behind him.

For John Lester all events were the cloak of opportunity, and this chance donation was no exception. For a year the maimed and musty flier had been blocked up by the backyard of the Lester home. With John it became a passion to rehabilitate the crippled car.

John's working companions at the factory, his boss, and all the neighbors came to regard John's hobby with warm interest. Stopping at the boy's bench one day, the boss said:

"How's she comin', John—the flier, I mean?"

"Well, let me know when she's right, John. You've got a two weeks' vacation with pay coming when you want it. You've been a mighty steady hand!"

Before seven one morning, while the sunrise birds were still chirping and chattering in the tall maples John Lester stepped on the starter button of his home-made car and rolled proudly down the road on the first vacation of his life after years of earning and striving to swell the Lester family budget.

Near evening of John's day of dreams, after spinning over every inviting country road that presented itself at many little crossroads, John nearly rammed the rear end of an expensive, heavy touring car parked just around a bend. A smartly dressed, slim young man leaned from the driving seat and called to John as he was endeavoring to pass:

"Will you be so good as to try to tow me to the nearest state road garage?"

Request registered in John's mind, a tone, "my intention—or something, is dead—please!"

"To my best!" was John's quick reply.

He fished an old tow-rope from under his back seat and attached it to the touring car—all the while wishing that he had had the flier-back to find a beautiful girl in distress instead of this delicate looking young man.

All went well until the procession struck a low, long grade. Part-way up a vicious upstart in the shape of a high rock in the left-hand road track spotted the inevitable—the old tow-line parted with an angry twang. Bad enough; but the shrill, feminine shriek that penetrated John's ears, instead of the dismasted expletive he instinctively expected, caused him to turn around in complete wonder.

The violet blue eyes of the person he was attempting to salvage met his appealingly, and he was still further amazed to note a distinctly girlish gesture of the trim head, bidding him come back.

An instantaneous survey of the slim, well contoured figure in checked lumber shirt, knickers and golf shoes was completely revealed to John.

"I know," her words leaped out. "I'm a girl—got my brother's clothes on. Trying to run away—they want me, my mother, anyway, wants me to marry some one I don't like. Listen! Whoever you are—help me out of this, won't you?"

"If this old car I assembled from a roadside wreck will carry on, I'll be back in half an hour with a mechanic that'll know your car—how'll that do?"

"Oh, fine! Only hurry! Of course, your car will make it. Why, it looks like new. My dad makes cars, and if you can do that well with a wrecked one, he'll give you a real job in his factory—do hurry, won't you?" Right there at the end of the broken tow-line the girl in boy's clothes flashed John a dazzling smile that started something in his heart.

Epicures of Insect World
It is now a definitely established fact that mosquitoes are of two species, the migratory and the non-migratory. Either kind is easily recognized by a careful observer. The migratory species will cover anywhere from a half dozen to a dozen skins for his dinner, while the non-migratory kind will take an entire meal at one sitting.

Health Hint
Sometimes strychnine poisoning may result from the employment of a rat or vermin powder. In all such cases an emetic should be given to induce vomiting, or a stomach pump used if available, and the doctor called immediately.

WHAT STOPPED HIM?

She—Don't you dare kiss me—or I'll slap your face.
He—Don't think it's fear that stops me.

Ohio Has Unusual Philatelic Collection

Steuersville, Ohio.—Two of the most remarkable philatelic collections in the country are the property of C. A. Vowinkel of this city. One of them, said to be the largest of its kind in the United States, is composed of more than 2,000 envelopes with the different styles of postmarks used in Ohio between 1800 and 1850. The other, which won an award at a recent exhibition of the Pittsburgh Philatelic society, is a collection of Ohio letters, posted between 1800 and 1825, before stamps came into general use. The letters were folded and sealed to form their own envelopes. After the postmark was affixed the postage—to be paid by the addressee—was designated with a hand stamp.

The Valiant, The Prize Winning Play To Be Produced In Haskell.
 It is with a great deal of pleasure that we announce this week, that we are ready with the great melodrama stage play, "The Valiant" that so many Haskell folk are deeply interested in. The plays that have been produced at the Haskell High School for the past few years have been to a great extent, comedies and farces, and these have been well attended and seemed to have pleased the audiences, but too many have voiced the opinion that higher types of plays would be more appreciated. Well in "The Valiant" you will find the best. This is the play produced in Austin, Texas, two years ago by Miss Annie Kate Ferguson, and it won first place in Texas. Two Haskell pastors, three High School teachers and others have read this play and have unreservedly said, "That is the best one act play I ever read." We have been untiring in casting it as perfectly as is possible. The cast follows: The Valiant, G. V. Wim-bish; the prison warden, F. L. Daugherty; the prison chaplain, Rev. G. R. Forrester; the girl who travels a thousand miles to carry a message to a condemned brother, Geneva Golden; prison deputy, Lewis Sherman; prison attendant, William Richey. Pianologue, "Mother O' Mine, by Kipling, Rev. E. Gaston Foote. The Poem, "The Valiant, read of Louella Woodson. As a prelude to the play there will be five groups of High School girls in dance drills from as many countries: Italian group, Cathryn Wingo; Annie Maud Taylor, Lillian Kaigler, Janie Lyle Martin, Anita Collier, Frances Walling; French group, Elizabeth Gilbert, Annabel Burt, Hazel McIver, Madalin Maples, Virginia Sills, Mary Frances Collier; Japanese Group, Contine Guest, Henrietta Isbell, Aletha Fay Davis, Agnes Grissom, Mattie Muriel Walling; Wilda Pippin, Nancy Guest, Irene McGregor; Spanish, Ella D. Koonce, Louise Kaigler; Clown dance, Christine Tucker; American group, Vannie Lee Marrs, Lena Bell Kemp, Vivian Bernard, Bessie Bee Kaigler, Selda Maples, Mary Willis, Lorane Newsome, Vada Thomas, Frances Ratliff. This play has a two fold mission, the proceeds will be divided fifty fifty between the beginner department of the Methodist Sunday School and equipment for the High School. SALVATION AND REWARDS

This Bible offers salvation to the lost and rewards to the saved. No one will understand the doctrines of grace correctly, unless he keeps these thoughts in mind.

1. Salvation is a gift. Rom. 6:23: "For the wages of sin is death, but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord."

2. After the sinner receives salvation, he is rewarded for his works. 1 Cor. 3:12-15: "Now if any man build upon this foundation gold, silver, precious stones, wood, hay, stubble; every man's work shall be made manifest; for the day shall declare it, because it shall be revealed by fire; and the fire shall try every man's work of what sort it is. If any man's work abide which he hath built thereupon, he shall receive a reward. If any man's work shall be burned, he shall suffer loss; but he himself shall be saved; yet so as by fire." The sinner clearly teaches that if a man is on the true foundation Jesus Christ, he is eternally safe. Then in addition to his salvation, if his works have been good, he will receive a reward. On the other hand, those who stand in the judgment saved, because they have received Jesus' salvation, but they will stand there empty and all. They will be like a family stepping from a burning house without a rug, because their works will not stand the test of judgment.

3. Salvation is by grace and pardon. John 3:16: "He that believeth on the Son shall everlasting life." The Scriptures abound with this teaching.

4. Rewards are to be received in the future. 1 Peter 5:4: "And when the chief Shepherd shall appear, ye shall receive a crown of glory that fadeth not away." Rom. 10:27; Luke 14:14; 2 Tim. 4:8.
