LIONS SHOW PEP IN MEETING AT NOON THURSDAY

The regular meeting of the Haskell Lion's Club was held at the Tonkawa Coffee Shop Thursday at which time twenty-six members and one visitor were present. The visitor was none other than Bob Wilcox, a former resident of this city.

Under the guidance of F. L. Daugherty, the newly elected president, the club was steered through one of the most peppy meetings for some time.

Spice and humor was added to the gathering when a letter received by Honorable Judge Joe A. Jones was read by Lion Breedlove. The writer of the letter was somewhat riled up over the highway improvement in Haskell county and was 'setting in the shade of a barb wire fence awaiting action,' according to the missive.

After a long windy speech by Grady Harrow recommending the appointment of a committee to have a set program for a few minutes at each meeting of the club, Grady was appointed Chairman of the committee by Lion Daugherty.

FIRE DESTROYS HOME IN THE NEW COOK COMMUNITY

Fire which was thought to have originated from a cook stove completely destroyed the home of Mrs. E. Sonnemaker, in the New Cook community, Wednesday afternoon about three o'clock. The building was a seven room, two-story structure. The house first caught on fire Wednesday morning and men who were working in the nearby fields succeeded in extinguishing the flames after most of the household goods had been removed from the building. The fire broke out again in the afternoon and the house was completely destroyed; but some of the furniture that had not been moved back into the house after the morning fire, was saved. Some insurance was carried on both the building and household effects.

WEST TEXAS UTILITIES CO. ANNOUNCES NEW EXPANSION PROGRAM NOW UNDER WAY

Featured by the building of a transmission line which will carry dependable electric service to Thalia, Lockett and Rayland—three towns which heretofore have been without the advantages of a modern power supply—the current construction report of the West Texas Utilities Company indicates a period of considerable activity, according to information received from company offices here yesterday.

The line which will connect the three new towns to the interconnected transmission line network of the West Texas Utilities Company will extend nineteen and one-half miles southwest of Vernon. With a present capacity of twelve kilovolts, the equipment is designed for rapid enlargement, which will enable the company to meet increasing demands without delay. The station will continue to be operated along the same general line which has made it popular with motorists in the past, states Mr. Bynum. Texaco gasoline and motor oils, together with a complete stock of tires and accessories, is carried by the station.

PIONEER RESIDENT OF OLD GLORY DIES THURSDAY NIGHT

John H. Baldwin of Old Glory, widely known stockman and gin operator, and brother of J. L. Baldwin of this city, died in the Stamford Sanitarium last Thursday night, where he had been taken several days previously after he had suffered a severe attack of heart trouble. Deceased was 70 years of age at the time of his death, and had enjoyed excellent health until some four or five months ago, when he developed heart disease.

Mr. Baldwin was a pioneer resident of this section, moving to Old Glory some twenty years ago, and in addition to his gin properties in that city, also had extensive land holdings in Stonewall county, his large ranch embracing the former townsite of Rayner, former county seat of Stonewall, and old courthouse on the townsite was converted by Mr. Baldwin into a commodious ranch home. He was actively identified with the development of this particular section of West Texas, and enjoyed the friendship of a host of friends throughout West Texas.

Brief funeral services were held at Stamford prior to shipment of the remains to Honey Grove, former residence of the deceased, where funeral services were held Saturday, after which interment was made in Honey Grove cemetery.

Immediate relatives who survive are: The widow, Mrs. Nannie Baldwin; Miss Blanche Baldwin; and Marshall Baldwin, all of Old Glory. A grand-daughter, Miss Edith Bragg resides in Dallas.

Much Interest In S. S. Work of Presbyterians

Officers of the Presbyterian Sunday school report an increased interest and activity in that department of the church's work. Mr. R. C. Montgomery, superintendent, is urging a larger attendance when the 9:45 worship service begins on Sunday morning. Mr. J. A. Prazier is the enterprising secretary of the school. Mr. R. E. Sherrill is the interesting teacher of the Bible Class. Mr. R. C. Montgomery is the teacher of a large class of young women and Aubrey Brown has just taken over the class of young men. All the departments of the school report progressive activity and interest.

Last Sunday evening the young people of the church presented the pageant of "Kingdom Highways" under the direction of the group led by Miss Ethel Frierson. A large number of young people from the other churches was present for this program. The theme for the month leads these young people along the "Highway of Learning," of which department Miss Dixie Orr is chairman. The Sunday evening meeting has been announced for 7:30 o'clock. Intermediates and older Juniors will meet at the same time under the direction of Miss Pauline Frierson and Mary Sherrill.

Worship services will be held Sunday at 11 a. m. and at 8:15 p. m. with preaching by the pastor. Everyone, though, regardless of age or interest, will be helped through participation in this worship service.

Enjoy Family Reunion
A reunion of nine members of the Tonn family was enjoyed at the home of A. Tonn in this city last Saturday. Those attending included the host and hostess, Mrs. Tonn and Mrs. Eugene Tonn of this city; Miss Lydia Tonn; Mrs. W. H. Rainfall which was general over this county and which varied from one-half to two inches fell Thursday morning, practically assuring a bumper crop from the heaviest planting of feed in a number of years, according to farmers and business men.

The rain was also of untold benefit to cotton, which has withstood the hot dry weather of the past few weeks with very little deterioration, and prospects now indicate a heavy yield of cotton, which will need only light rains at intervals during the next sixty days.

Thursday morning's rainfall followed on the heels of the hottest weather of the summer, temperatures of around 100 degrees being recorded here during the preceding six days.

Rains have been fairly general throughout the state during the past few days, and dispatches in daily papers Thursday indicate that the precipitation this morning was general over a wide section of West Texas, with damage from high winds and sandstorms which preceded the rainfall reported in some localities.

A total precipitation of 1.05 inches was recorded by the government gauge kept by Mrs. P. D. Sanders here. Farmers report the rain somewhat lighter several miles north and east of Haskell, but heavier in the Weinert section. South of Haskell, estimates place the fall at two inches in that section.

10 PER CENT CUT COTTON ACREAGE IN UNITED STATES

Southern cotton farmers, faced by low prices and heavy surpluses, have cut this year's acreage 10 per cent under 1930 plantings, according to the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

The agriculture department Wednesday estimated the area under cultivation July 1 at 41,491,000 acres, as compared with 46,075,000 last year. This the smallest acreage planted since 1923 is 11.5 per cent less than 1930 planting and 14.9 below the record of 1923.

Private estimates had foreseen a somewhat greater reduction, New Orleans dispatches said, and cotton declined nearly $2.25 a bale after the government report was issued. All states except Florida reduced their acreage.

Misses Leah Baran and May Belle Taylor spent the day in Abilene last Friday. Miss Beala, Wichita returned home with them and spent the weekend.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Nelson from Abilene were here a short time last Tuesday enroute to Munday.

A week or so ago we heard about several young apple trees being in bearing on M. S. Shook's place just in the north edge of town. That was from hearsay but we now have the proof as Mrs. Shook sent us one of the apples. It's a fell shaped yellow apple measuring two and seven-eighths inches in diameter the largest way, which is a good size considering the drought under which it was grown.

Mr. J. F. Posey of Stamford and Miss Annie Coker of this county were married on last Sunday night by Rev. J. T. Bloodworth as they sat in a buggy in front of the parsonage. Mighty Title Borne by Many Unworthy Rulers

Caesar was a title assumed by Octavianus, adopted son of the great dictator, Julius Caesar, and was by him handed down to his adopted son, Tiberius. It continued to be used by Caligula, Claudius and Nero as members, either by adoption or female descent of Caesar's family; but though the family became extinct with Nero, succeeding emperors still retained the name as part of their title, and it was the practice to prefix it to their own names, as Imperator Caesar, Domitianus Augustus. When Hadrian adopted Aelius Verus, he allowed the latter to take the title of Caesar, and from this time, though the title Augustus continued to be confined to the reigning emperor, that of Caesar was also granted the second person in the state and the heir presumptive to the throne. After the death of Nero, his name was adopted as a kingly title by succeeding Roman emperors. This practice continued, and the same title was used in modern times, as in the case of kaiser and czar.

Source of Fabled River Styx Merely Waterfall

Solos, a village on the slopes of Mount Helmos, not far from Akkrata in the division of southern Greece known as Achaea, is near the supposed site of the fabled River Styx. In Greek mythology the Styx is a mighty river, the tenth part of the water of Oceanus, which flows in the lower world. It is described by Homer and Hesiod as the terrible black water falling from a high precipice and dashing itself upon a lofty rock, through which it passed and then fell into the Crathis.

The fabled waters of the Styx have been identified by students of antiquity as the two slender cascades falling over a high perpendicular precipice of Mount Helmos, near Solos. After winding among a labyrinth of rocks the water unites to form a mountain torrent which eventually joins the River Akkrata (Crathis). Superstitious feelings of dread still attach to the water, which is considered of a peculiarly noxious character.

Pliny Stirred to Wrath

Those who have watched some volunteer fire companies in action will be amused by the fact that Pliny got all wrought up about this matter of fire-fighting back in 100 A. D., writes Joseph T. Armstrong in the New Orleans Item-Tribune. In a letter to the Roman emperor Trajan, Pliny described a fire at Nicomedia, which consumed several homes, the town house and the temple of Isis. Pliny indignantly blamed this damage in part to "the indolence of the people, who manifestly stood idle and motionless spectators of this terrible calamity." He said there were in the town "neither engines, buckets nor any single instrument suitable for extinguishing fires," and recommended that a company of 150 freemen be formed.

White House Baths

"Charming Dolly Madison," one of the most gracious of White House mistresses, set aside rooms for bathing, and instituted the first Presidential bathtubs. These bathtubs remained in the White House only until the entrance of Andrew Jackson, first plebeian President, who promptly chucked them out of doors for representing something decidedly undemocratic, and therefore offensive to the common people. However, the bathtub returned with the fastidious Fillmore to remain evermore enshrined, although the Fillmore tub has long since been replaced.

Mongol Never Hurried

Caravans cannot be hurried, for the Mongol takes his own time. Centuries of experience have taught him how much a camel can successfully do, and he will not push his animals beyond their endurance. Camel caravans can penetrate to every nook and corner of Mongolia, bringing out valuable products for export. The Mongol camel punter will guide his caravan straight across the plain to any desired destination and there pack his loads and take good care of them, but often he will be a year, or two or three years, bringing in the goods.—Frans August Larson's "Horses and Business" in Atlantic Monthly.

Venerable Flemish City

The city of Ghent in Flanders has existed from the very earliest time, and no exact date can be given for its settlement, nor is the derivation of the name accurately known. The site was occupied by prehistoric tribes and later by the Celts and Belgii and Keritii. It is mentioned as early as the Seventh century. According to one author, Ghent was originally Gand, which derives from a Celtic word meaning "confinement," in reference to the location of the city at the confluence of the rivers Scheldt and Lys.

Make Practice of Giving

Giving is much more important in life than getting. And so much better. Let us be the first to give a friendly nod and smile, to speak first, give first, and if such a thing is necessary, forgive first and forget first.—Gilt.

Stay on Board

"The act of alighting from a bus or a trolley car is becoming extremely hazardous," says the registrar of motor vehicles. Thus it is made evident that, once aboard the bus, safety first indicates that a person should stay there.—Boston Transcript.

AIRPLANE CLOUD CHASING REVEALS RATE OF GROWTH

Meteorology Society Learns Ways to Fathom Weather Secrets From Air.

Washington.—Chasing clouds in an airplane to learn how fast they grow and to obtain other intimate secrets men in the new kind of meteorology that was described before the meeting of the American Meteorological Society here by Dr. J. B. Anderson, of the naval air station at Anacostia, D. C.

Doctor Anderson wanted to learn something about the birth and growth of clouds in the more or less permanent layer that hangs over the Pacific coast of the United States. He was especially curious to find out the rate at which they piled themselves up into the air.

He found that to keep his plane even with the top of one cloud he was studying he had to climb two or three hundred feet a minute.

How to get other weather data from the upper air without the expense of going up after it in an airplane was described by Dr. J. Patterson, of the Canadian meteorological service, Toronto. He has devised an apparatus that will flash back signals of temperature and pressure from an ascending small balloon as long as the observers can keep it in sight through a telescope.

Hitherto similar apparatus has been carried up arranged to record its experiences with a pen on a slowly moving strip of paper. But to get the story the weather man would have to wait until the balloon came down again and then depend on the chance of the apparatus being found and sent back by some farmer or woodsman. The new device is equipped with red and white electric lights fed by a flashlight battery. The mechanism is arranged in such a way that the order of flashing on and off of the lights will tell the observer on the ground whether the balloon is passing from warm air to cold, or vice versa. Similarly, another light signals by its flashings how much the barometric pressure is changing as the balloon rises.

Doctor Patterson pointed out that this device should be especially useful to meteorologists in polar regions or other unpopulated parts of the world, where the ordinary registering instruments are useless through the impossibility of getting them back again.

16th Century Furniture Styles Are Coming Back

Chicago.—The newest furniture for American homes this fall will be four centuries old!

At least, that's the impression of furniture men from all parts of the country who attended the National Furniture market and style show at the American Furniture Mart here. They mean, not that all the old beds and chests will be resurrected, but that sixteenth century furniture styles are coming into popularity.

English designs, based on the Jacobean, Gothic and Elizabethan furniture of the sixteenth and early seventeenth centuries, was very much more noticeable in the manufacturers' displays this summer than formerly, it was said.

Although Early American is probably still the volume leader of all period furniture, the Old English styles are gaining ground.

The English furniture was chiefly made of oak, and this wood is used for the reproductions. The original pieces were also massive in size, and although the twentieth century replicas retain the sturdy appearance of their predecessors, they are much smaller, scaled down to meet the requirements of modern homes, which do not contain baronial banquet halls nor castle courtrooms.

Students Contribute to Washington Cathedral

The gifts included provision for stones used for construction of the north transept, the portion expected to be completed for use during the observance of the George Washington Bicentennial next year, and for memberships in the National Cathedral association.

Names of the high schools are to be inscribed in the Cathedral's Book of Remembrance.

Editor Becoming Expert Marksman

A letter received this week from our "wandering editor", who with his family are sojourning on the upper Panhandle, states that he is becoming an expert marksman, having accounted for an incredible number of jackrabbits during his leisure time. We would give the exact number the Boss claims to have killed, but are afraid that it would tax the credulity of our readers to believe—but we'll say that it beats any of our wildest "fish stories" all to pieces. The force cannot account for this sudden sharpshooting on the part of the Boss unless he is already practicing up for a hunting trip this fall—but his partner on these usual "deer" hunts has advanced the theory that the editor is only laying in a supply of "Hoover ham" for the winter.

Wake Up!-- ..it's time to buy!

PROSPERITY is not dead in America—it has simply been asleep—dreaming bad dreams—dreams of depression; of the fear of spending—the delusion of hoarding. We've been in a lethargy from which only a real alarm could arouse us.

But we've heard the alarm now—the alarm of stagnant business; factories with muted machinery and deplorable unemployment—and we're ready now to get up and put our dollars to work.

No, Prosperity is not dead. America still has its great natural and industrial resources—its tremendous capital reserve—fertile lands! immense savings deposits in the banks; the greatest industries in the world; the most skilled workmen; the highest percentage of home-ownership; the highest percentage of literacy; the highest standards of living and the most cultivated desires for the better things in life.

It's time now for us to put activity back of our resources; to indulge our desires; to release the money we have been hoarding—in other words to buy so that merchants can move their goods, place orders with the factories for more; enable the factories to employ more men and give to those men in wages the means to buy what you yourself sell or produce.

But we must all do our part in this Buy Now program. Don't wait for "George to do it" or George will wait for us and none of us will get anywhere. You start patronizing George today and George will start buying from Tom, and Tom from Dick and Dick from Harry and Harry from you.

Depression is merely an obsession—a confession of fear—a compression on the pulse of prosperity that stops the circulation of money. And money is just as important to the life of business as the circulation of the blood is to the life of the human body.

GUARD CHILD'S VACATION

Vacation time is a happy time, but it is also fraught with danger, especially for children, unless simple and common sense precautions are taken for the safeguarding of health.

"Be sure," cautions the department, "that you spend your vacation in a house that is clean and well screened, and that the milk and water are safe. Do not let the children drink water from roadside springs unless they are marked safe for drinking purposes."

"Use no raw milk. If pasteurized milk is unobtainable, boil the raw milk. Do not buy food for children from street carts or from counters where it has been exposed to dirt, dust and flies."

When one considers that one of the delights of a vacation lies in the psychological reaction of letting down the bars, it is only human that the change from the daily routine of living may also result in the individual failing to note some of the dangers that can go with such a change.

CRIME IS ORGANIZED

From investigations by the National Crime Commission, it has been disclosed that a highly organized system of "fences," as receivers and disposers of stolen goods are called, handle more than $500,000,444 worth of loot each year.

Newton D. Baker, former Secretary of War, declares that the lone burglar is now a rarity, and that well organized gangs are plying their thieving trade along efficient business lines.

In order to do this they must have definite outlets for the property stolen. If these could be eliminated, Mr. Baker believes that the total thefts would be largely reduced.

Losses suffered by the public from thefts, burglary and robbery almost equal the destruction by fire. If these losses are to be lessened there must be increased vigilance on the part of all citizens and a greater determination to aid in putting criminal gangs out of business.

WHITE COLLAR JOBS

Boys should be taught to think less of fitting themselves for "white-collar" jobs, says Prof. P. G. Nichols of Harvard, points out the greater opportunities for promotion in industry than in clerical pursuits.

The young man who starts at the bottom in a factory often soon distances one who begins, say, as a bookkeeper. The idea is that while the clerk or bookkeeper may have a white collar job from the very first, the ambitious and intelligent industrial worker has a better chance to rise to an executive position, so that when he does reach the white collar job it means something worth while.

Advice along a similar line is given by President Thatcher of the Massachusetts Agricultural College, who defends vocational schools against the reproach sometimes leveled against them by the classical student. He says that "the idea is erroneous that vocational schools are unqualified because they work with materials near at hand and not with a knowledge of things that are ancient and far off."

Literally, however, the proportion of white collar jobs is constantly increasing. With the continual advent of new machines for doing the "dirty work" of the world, the time may come when everyone may have a white collar job.

The Personal Side

The prisoners at Sing Sing have a baseball team. Probably the players are adept at base stealing.

Cross country running also probably would have a strong appeal to the prisoners.

A ploughing contest is to be broadcast in England. But do you suppose that the censors will stand for the dirt?

Love not only makes the world go round, but also turns quite a few people's heads.

We wonder whether a girl dreads painting her face as much as a man dreads shaving his.

According to the Pathfinder, the Washington correspondents can always fill their space by denying to-day what other correspondents said yesterday.

A social service conference, says a news item, will discuss the modern home and the local jail. With a view, we assume, of keeping both better filled.

Safety organizations are campaigning for better brakes and pedestrians are hoping for better breaks.

The average legislator's most brilliant idea in raising revenue is to tack a cent on the gasoline tax.

The New Jersey lady who ran twelve miles after seeing a skunk in the woods was a good judge of the proper distance.

Unfortunately those who dream of the charities they would engage in, if they had a million dollars are almost invariably about $999,999 shy.

The wets seem to think that eventually a last straw vote will break the prohibition camel's back.

What has become of the old fashioned person who had special Sunday clothes?

A Los Angeles clergyman preached 20 hours to establish a record, taking only lemon juice for sustenance. A sort of lemon-aid, as it were.

Some people yearn to be in other people's shoes, but they're now always willing to follow in their footsteps.

Seeking Council

For Meditation

By LEONARD A. BARRETT

WHITHER BOUND?

THE speed of our modern age leads us to seriously ask, whither bound? One needs only to witness the countless number of automobiles rushing through our city streets to be impressed with the fact that speed is the distinguishing mark of our times.

L. A. Barrett.

More important is the advance movement in science. Here we find a definite purpose which science hopes to accomplish. The advance, however, has in many respects been startling. The atom is no longer the smallest particle of matter, the electron has come to take its place.

How It Started

By JEAN NEWTON

THE WORD "DETERIORATE"

HERE is one of the most extraordinary words in our language. Almost any word we think of is either a modification of a former root or a combination of prefix or suffix with a root, or a prefix, a root and a suffix.

Smiles

Why take life too seriously? You'll never get out of it alive.

WHITHER BOUND?

A certain bishop once said to a little girl: "Ethel, you seem to be a bright little girl, can you repeat a verse from the Bible?"

Jack—There is one thing that I can say, I am a self-made man. John—Are you boasting or are you apologizing?

Porter—Miss yo' train coming? Passenger—My man, why do you say 'your train' when you know that the train belongs to the company?

Porter—Dunno, miss. Why do yo' say 'mah man' when yo' knows Ah belongs to mah wife?

"Got a bite yet, Jack?" "Naw," said Jack. "I don't believe this worm's hair trying."

Identical Wish

He was neatly dressed. His hair was just so, and he had such a congenial look. "I'm seeking a position," he confided to the railroad chief, "a position where the work will be light and will not interfere with my clothes. And of course, I shall expect a considerable salary."

The grizzled veteran sat back and looked him over. "You bet," he answered. "You've got the right idea. I'll keep you in mind and when I find two jobs like that, you can have the other."

All The Same It's hard to give up those we love. When our hearts are full of hope; But it's harder still to find the towel. When our eyes are full of soap.

"How many controls has your radio set?" "There are six in our family."

You can change the meaning of a Chinese word by altering the tone in uttering it, and the same thing can be accomplished with a lot of American words.

Now that we have formal pajamas for women there's no reason why we shouldn't have formal overalls for men.

Plastic facial surgeons, we presume, consider them selves pioneers in the uplift movement.

NEWS FROM OVER WEST TEXAS

Screw Lodged In Lung of Son of Hood Couple

From the Monday Times.

Elden, the little two and one-half year old son of Prof. and Mrs. F. L. Bullington of the Hood community, swallowed a 1 1/8 inch screw on last Saturday while the family was visiting at Wellington, Texas, and was rushed to a hospital at Wichita Falls for medical attention, where an X-ray revealed the fact that the screw had passed through the bronchial tube and lodged in the right lung.

Being unable to extract the screw, attending physicians at Wichita Falls advised that the child be taken to Dr. Jackson's Brochoscopic Hospital at Philadelphia, Pa., and the parents left for that city Monday afternoon.

The many friends of Prof. and Mrs. Bullington will regret to learn of their misfortune and we sincerely trust that the Philadelphia specialist will be able to remove the screw without permanent injury to the little fellow.

Two Cars of Wool Shipped From Comanche

From the Comanche Chief.

What is thought will be the final shipment of wool was made from Comanche Saturday when 28,000 pounds went out over the Cotton Belt to Boston. The wool was produced by Walter Barrett and Clarence Albin and was sold to Max Marshall of San Angelo for 16 cents. Ten cars, totaling over 300,000 pounds and a car of Mohair were shipped from Comanche this season.

Killed Big Snake Monday Night

From the Paducah Post.

Snakes and cement paving are a queer combination, and one which seldom occurs.

Monday night City Marshal J. B. Cabanis was sitting on a bench in front of the First National Bank. Looking out toward the Fair Store he saw something working along, making a poor effort at getting across the street. Going over to where it was he found a long snake trying to get from one side of the street to the other, but snakes have not been educated to locomotion on pavement, and this Mr. Snake was having a hard time getting anywhere.

J. B. picked up a piece of long steel and soon put the would-be rambler where all good snakes are supposed to be.

It is somewhat of a puzzle to know where this visitor came from. It might have crawled out of a storm sewer, or it could have been in some weeds in an alley, and decided to come to the city and view the white lights.

Have Begun Payments On Federal Farm Loans

From the Baylor County Banner.

It is a little hard to see how farmers could repay any loans out of proceeds of this grain crop, but nevertheless it is gratifying to be able to report that payments are being made on federal loans made in Baylor county last spring.

Arrangements have been made whereby these loans can be repaid by partial payments, and this is the way most of the loans are being handled. However, there is one farmer, K. D. Floyd of Bomarton, who is glad to be able to repay his loan in full.

First Cotton Bloom

From the Hamlin Herald.

Last Saturday, J. W. Patterson, who owns a farm, six miles east of town, was in the Herald office and said he found a red cotton bloom in his field that day. So far this is the first found as far as the Herald knows. Mr. Patterson also says he has some fine maize nearly ready to head.

Rotan Boy Barely Saved From Burning Home

From the Rotan Advance.

Mann Underwood, age about 11 years, was rescued by his father when their home burned at 2 a. m. Sunday night. The boy was slightly burned by falling brands before he was taken from the bed on which he was sleeping.

Mr. and Mrs. Underwood were sleeping outside and did not discover the fire until the room in which the boy was sleeping was in flames. Mr. Underwood ran in and gathered the boy up in a quilt and ran out with him. He stumbled as he reached the steps and broke his foot. Mrs. Underwood had placed a purse containing $25 under a pillow of the bed on which the boy was sleeping. She ran to a window by the bed to try to get the money but the flames drove her back.

School Destroyed In Borden County Blaze

From the Scurry County Times.

A delayed report from Borden County indicates that a fire of unknown origin completely destroyed the Mesquite school building Tuesday morning of last week at 6:00 o'clock. Insurance covered the loss.

The building, which was located in the northwest portion of the county, was modern in every respect. It was a one-story brick structure, with five classrooms and a large auditorium.

Collingsworth County To Sell $150,000 Courthouse Bonds

From the Wellington Leader.

Bonds for the erection of Collingsworth County's new $150,000 courthouse will be sold July 13 at the regular meeting of the Commissioners' Court, at which time bids from bonding companies for the purchase of the bonds will be received by the court, it has been announced by County Judge Edward Brown.

Judge Brown was notified several days ago by Attorney General James V. Allied that Collingsworth County's bonds have been definitely approved.

It is probable that the work of tearing down the present courthouse structure will get underway immediately after the bonds are sold July 13. This work will be done by J. A. Dukeminfer.

Farmer Burned With Gasoline

From the Graham Leader.

Jake Jones, 68, a farmer living several miles north of Graham is in a critical condition at the local hospital, the result of burns caused by gasoline explosion.

Flames from the ignited liquid spread over his body, leaving deep burns, about his hands and right leg. He was rushed to the Graham Hospital where immediate attention was given.

Jones was using a gasoline fire to kill ants in the yard around the home. The explosion occurred when he carried a bucket containing gasoline near a flaming ant hill.

Close watch is being made to avoid infection, and while he is in a critical condition it is thought that he will recover.

Young County Pioneer Dies

From the Newcastle Register.

Funeral services were held at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon for R. E. Milligan, 87, one of the oldest residents of Young county, who died in Graham Monday morning after a prolonged illness.

After the funeral the body was taken to Breckenridge for burial. Mr. Milligan had been a resident of Young county for more than 50 years and was engaged in the farming and cattle business for many years.

800 Head Cattle Shipped From Throckmorton County

From the Throckmorton Tribune.

A special train was operated out of Throckmorton last Friday carrying over thirty cars of Herford beef cattle. Sam Davis and J. M. Bachelor sold the cattle to a buyer who shipped them direct to Kansas City. Cattlemen stated that they were the prettiest bunch of cattle that had ever been shipped from here at this time of year.

This week end 900 head of Mitchell cattle that have been pastured on the Sam Davis Ranches will be shipped out.

Work Progressing On Highway 51

From the Rochester Reporter.

In order to clear the right-of-way for federal and state highway 51 through O'Brien, the West Texas Utilities company, is moving its lines 8 1/2 feet west to the property line on Main street down to the home of T. G. Carney, thence across the street to the east side of the new highway. The company will build a new line across the field of Mr. Carney and will remove all lines south and west on the old highway back to the intersection of the new road.

Rock front, fences, etc., also are being moved back from Mr. Carney's land and many other things are being moved off the right-of-way.

Grading work also is progressing rapidly and probably will be completed from the Knox county line to Rule in about 60 days.

Pets Are Welcomed to Church Services

London.—As the attendance of pet animals at recent fashionable church weddings had aroused great controversy, the Rev. Basil Bourchier of Saint Anne's, Soho, a high church priest, together with a neighboring Roman Catholic priest, openly declared that dogs would be welcomed to services as long as the animals behaved themselves.

The Reverend Bourchier would rather have dogs at his services than smug parishioners. The Roman Catholic priest is proud of the fact that his St. Bernard dog attends church every day and lies at the feet of the altar throughout the service.

A poorly clad man went into a bank and asked the president for a loan of one hundred dollars. Whereupon the president asked if he could give a note or any kind of security.

"No," the poor man replied. "Do you expect me to loan you one hundred dollars without any security?"

"Yes," he humbly remarked. "I am a poor, honest working man and I can return the loan within sixty days."

"I believe you," assented the president, "and I'll tell you what I will do. I have a glass eye, and if you can tell me which one of my eyes is glass I will loan you the money."

"The right eye," instantly responded the man.

"Correct," the amazed banker remarked, "but how did you know?"

"Because it was the one that showed the most sympathy," the man replied.

CURRY CHAPEL

We are having some dry hot weather and are needing some rain. The farmers are about through with their crops. The grasshoppers are eating some of the cotton.

WORLD'S OLDEST CITY IS ROCKED

Nakhichevan, Founded by Noah, Scene of Violent Earthquakes.

Washington, D. C.—Nakhichevan, the Trans-Caucasian city recently shaken by earthquakes, does not sound very familiar, but maybe it should! Nearly is Mount Ararat, where Noah is reputed to have grounded the Ark. Tradition has it that the prophet founded Nakhichevan—the name meaning "he descended here"—as soon as the waters receded. Citizens of Nakhichevan therefore claim that theirs is "the oldest city in the world."

"In the present-day world Nakhichevan is the somewhat dim, dusty little sun-baked capital of a tiny self-governing Soviet republic, of the same name, strung along the Persian border near the common 'corner' of Soviet Russia, Persia and Turkey," says a bulletin from the National Geographic society.

A Part of Azerbaijan.

"The republic of Nakhichevan is geographically the southernmost of Soviet republics west of the Caspian sea. Governmentally it is at the bottom of a kind of 'house that has built.' Almost surrounded by the Soviet republic of Armenia, it is nevertheless, a part of the Azerbaijan R. S. R., which in turn is a unit of the Trans-Caucasian Socialist Federation of Republics, which as a united entity forms part of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics. Nakhichevan nevertheless bears the proud title of 'autonomous.'"

"Although the main occupations of the 160,000 Tatars and Armenian peasants of the republic are farming and cattle breeding, Nakhichevan is best known throughout the Soviet world as a producer of salt. Twelve miles from the capital are the rich Lomali salt mines, producing a grade of rock salt noted for its purity. The salt is brought to the city of Nakhichevan by mule track, and shipped by railroad north into other Russian states, and south into Persia.

"Nakhichevan is one of the newer political divisions of the Soviet Union. Along with the rest of Trans-Caucasia it seceded from Russia and became part of three entirely independent republics in 1917. Continued strife and armed conflict followed until April, 1920, when conquering Soviet forces proclaimed Azerbaijan a part of the Soviet Union. The other parts of Trans-Caucasia soon followed. Nakhichevan was almost destroyed during fighting between the Armenians and the Tatars in 1920 and 1921.

Twin Peaks of Mount Ararat.

"Today Nakhichevan is a city of about 12,000, built along the rocky slopes of the River Aras. Stone houses with wide roofs climb from the river to the foot of brush-covered hills in the background. Along the sky line rise the noble twin peaks of Mount Ararat, the taller 17,000 feet high.

"Noah's grave near Nakhichevan's city limits, is shown to visitors, and it stands in high veneration both with the Armenians and Tatars, neither of whom seem to be aware that a similarly honored burial place also exists in the Holy Land, where it is regarded as a holy spot by Moslems.

"The ground which trembled to earthquakes shocks in Nakhichevan has known the best of hosts of marching men through the ages. The mighty armies of Cyrus, Darius, Xerxes, Alexander the Great, and Hannibal followed the banks of the River Aras on their campaigns of conquest and subjection. This highway into Persia has been the scene of untold slaughter and misery, and more than forty great battles have been fought in the vicinity of Nakhichevan by forces seeking to control it."

Tuberculosis in Cattle Cut by Federal Efforts

Washington.—A marked decline in tuberculosis among cattle and swine slaughtered in federal inspected plants has been reported by the Agriculture department since systematic efforts to eradicate the disease were begun.

There has been a great deal of talk, the report from the department said, about the manner in which cattle react to the tuberculin tests, but records show that only 2 per cent of the cattle which react to the test do not have tuberculosis. The other 98 per cent which react to the test have proved to be tainted with tuberculosis.

Pets Are Welcomed to Church Services

London.—As the attendance of pet animals at recent fashionable church weddings had aroused great controversy, the Rev. Basil Bourchier of Saint Anne's, Soho, a high church priest, together with a neighboring Roman Catholic priest, openly declared that dogs would be welcomed to services as long as the animals behaved themselves.

The Reverend Bourchier would rather have dogs at his services than smug parishioners. The Roman Catholic priest is proud of the fact that his St. Bernard dog attends church every day and lies at the feet of the altar throughout the service.

Food for the Family

Eileen F. Partlow

For economic reasons the question of home canning is likely to be more important this season in more homes than it has been since the days of the war, according to the food utilization division of the Bureau of Home Economics, Washington. Canning is a method of preserving food and should not be used as an end in itself.

There is no gain in depriving the family of fresh food so that the pantry shelf may be filled. If a definite program is planned the home garden should provide the necessary fresh vegetables and leave the surplus for canning.

Foods should be canned immediately after gathering for several weeks. The color is preserved, the product is crispier when can is opened and the vitamin content is preserved by the freshness of the vegetable. The control of bacteria, yeasts and molds which cause spoilage is much easier when the product is handled fresh. Greens should be thoroughly washed because the organisms from the soil are some of the most difficult to handle.

Products should be uniform in size and shape to insure even cooking and having a part overcooked or a part of the product undercooked. Beans and peas may be cut diagonally successfully.

The type of containers used depends on the size of family and the equipment for canning as well as on the product itself. Enamel cans protect the color of red vegetables and fruits as beets and berries. They are also used for squash and pumpkins. Enamel cans may be used for corn to prevent a reaction with the tin which cause a taste to form turning corn dark.

Every means should be used to reduce the amount of air in the can since oxygen speeds the corrosion of tin. This can be overcome by filling the can as completely as possible without affecting the seal and by having both the product and the can hot when filling and by perfect sealing.

When glass jars are used either in the pressure cooker or hot water bath (for long time cooking) jars should be sealed completely to avoid loss of so much of the liquid.

Blanching of vegetables is helpful in packing and some sterilization is accomplished. A low temperature of 10 pounds in pressure cooker is best for cooking of all vegetables.

Methods of preserving common products follow:

Beans or Peas

Cut diagonally in about one inch pieces using uniform vegetables, not young tender ones and older shelled ones together. Blanch in boiling water ten minutes, pack in jars or cans shaking the jar to pack, but do not press vegetables to over pack the container. 45 minutes at 10 lbs. pressure or if packed in jars and hot water bath is to be used the intermittent method is most successful; cooking every morning for three mornings, being sure to count time from boiling point.

Corn

Select young tender corn. Cut from cob but do not scrap too close. Add boiling water just enough to keep corn from burning add 12 teaspoon salt and 1 of sugar to each pint. Bring to boil then pack in jars, being careful not to pack too tight. Pressure at 10 pounds for 90 minutes. Pint jars or No. 2 cans should always be used for corn.

THE MAID

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

OF THE employments women choose. This the most honorable of all: So many busy women lose their womanhood beyond recall. But hers is still a home to keep, To wash and bake, to dust and sweep— While other women further roam. Hers are the duties of the home.

For her no noisy spindle whir, Hers still the needle, still the thread. At night the clean-swept hearth is hers. And by her the table spread. And they whose hopes are here discussed Have trusted her as none they trust;

She knows their secrets, knows them well, And yet must neither talk nor tell. Within the walls we hide behind— She sees all things, and yet is blind. She hears all things, yet does not hear.

Of all the ceilings hands pursue, Of all the work that women do, And if the house be great or small, Hers is the most honorable of all. (© 1920, Douglas Malloch.)

Why We Do What We Do

By H. L. THOMSON, Ph. D.

WHY WE ARE CURIOUS

CURIOSITY is one of the few instincts. Wherever instincts are discussed and allowed curiosity is always included. It is on every list.

Curiosity is so fundamental to human beings that it is also listed as an emotion. The same name passes for both. Sometimes the term wonder is used to distinguish the emotion from the instinct, but the term curiosity is used more frequently.

It is no wonder that curiosity plays such an important part in our daily lives. Being one of the original drives to action and also one of the strong emotions we are constantly impelled by this double-barreled incentive to action.

Curiosity is responsible for scientific progress and the advance of knowledge on the one hand and for gossip, nosiness and slander on the other. Curiosity leads a man to explore, to find out what there is to know. Historically this served the purpose of securing food and getting away from the enemy. It is one of the most practical of all impulses.

Curiosity also serves to balance off the instinct of flight and the emotion of fear. Fear and flight would make us too timid for our own good. But if curiosity were to have full scope we would go too far and meet a tragic end. The two act and react upon each other to keep the individual from being over-curious to the extent of foolhardiness and from being timid to the extent of cowardliness.

The balancing of curiosity and fear has given rise to the thrilling experience of romance and discovery. (© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

NUTTY NATURAL HISTORY

BY HUGH NUTTON

GREAT ROARING POWK

A FEW of these creatures can be seen feeding on scrap iron outside locomotive works, which gives them an iron constitution. After they have fed, several powks will perch in the girders above boiler works and caterwaul until the boiler-makers are nearly deafened, and most of the rivets they have put in are loosened. The powk's sound of a boiler thrown by an enraged workman landing on the powk's head gives the creature its name. The powk shown here about to dodge an oncoming boiler has a paper shell body, with a large fibrous head attached on the front end. The eyes, one of which can be seen, are split navy beans with ink spots. Popcorn and split bean wings, along with toothpick legs and split peanut feet, make up the rest of the beast. Before—and After Before they were married he whispered to her: "Were I drowning in the middle of the Atlantic—going down for the third time—you would be the last person I'd think of." It made her feel happy. After they had been married several years he made the same speech. It didn't seem to have the same meaning then. Besides, she didn't like the way he said it.

SECRETS OF NEW BRITISH WARSHIPS ARE REVEALED

Larger Torpedo Tubes an Innovation in Battleships Nelson and Rodney.

London.—Features of the battleships Nelson and Rodney, which have hitherto been one of the navy's most jealously guarded secrets, have recently been revealed.

Each of these ships has two tubes for discharging 24-inch torpedoes, the largest in existence. Beyond their diameter no particulars of these gigantic "tin fish" can be disclosed, but it may be taken for granted that in range and explosive power they are quite unique.

Britain's earliest torpedoes were of 15-inch diameter with small explosive charge. They were not only limited in range and speed, but were decidedly erratic, and almost as dangerous to friend as foe. Later the diameter was increased to 18 inches, and guncocked torpedoes of this size were largely used by British submarines during the war.

They were not entirely reliable, and many a British submarine captain, after maneuvering for hours to get a shot at a German warship, had the mortification of seeing his carefully aimed torpedo run wild. When hits were secured on big German vessels, their robust underwater protection generally saved them from mortal injury.

In the fighting at Jutland British destroyers fired 21-inch torpedoes, some of which got home with spectacular results. The battleship Pommern, lit aboard of the magazine, went up in one tremendous explosion.

Toward the end of the war the Germans produced 23-inch torpedo for the special purpose of arming an "iron division" of 12 big destroyers. These were to have formed the spear-head of the high sea fleet's light forces in the North sea battle for which the Germans were preparing all through the summer of 1918. But the building of these super-destroyers was delayed, and the projected action did not come off; the new torpedo was never tested.

Since the war new types of torpedoes have been evolved both in Britain and in other countries, but as far as is known the British navy is the only one to possess a 24-inch "fish." As smaller torpedoes are now priced at $15,000 apiece, the cost of these huge and complicated weapons must be staggering.

Russian Ship Makes New Wireless Record

Moscow.—A new attainment in the field of long-distance radio communication has been announced here after the return of the steamship Mikoyan from a 16 months' cruise.

Radio operator Vostryakov managed to maintain uninterrupted communication with Moscow while cruising in the Red sea, the Mediterranean, the Indian ocean, the Atlantic and the Arctic.

This is supposed to be the first time that short-wave communication has been maintained with the land at distances that exceeded 3,500 kilometers.

Nearly a hundred thousand telegraphic words were exchanged between the Mikoyan and Moscow during the cruise. As a result of this experiment 15 boats of the Soviet fleet, the Soviet merchant marine, will now be equipped with short-wave radio apparatus enabling them to maintain uninterrupted communication with the Soviet capital.

Because of this successful radio communication the Soviet fleet was enabled to transact much more business than it had expected, especially while the Mikoyan was in the tropics.

Boys Hunting for Gold Find Indian Cemetery

Alma, Neb.—Lure of possible hidden gold nuggets valued at $20,000, coupled with the curiosity of three sixteen-year-old boys, led to the discovery of an Indian burial ground here, with the result that excavations are being conducted on the hillside filled with human bones and relics.

The youths were inspired by the tale that three white men had buried $20,000 in gold on their return from the California gold fields. Indians attacked the trio of prospectors, killing two, while the third fled, leaving the treasure behind. The legend has been told for decades, with occasional expeditions into a valley near here.

When the youths, armed with spades and a screw driver, attacked the soft earth on the highest knoll at the valley, they discovered human bones, a skull or two and several sea shells, beads and pottery.

The boys found that the bones and "Indian jewelry" were so brittle that they crumbled to dust when touched.

They reported their find to A. T. Hill, curator of archeology at a Hastings (Neb.) museum.

Misplaced Semicolon Fails to Alter Penalty

San Francisco, Calif.—Circuit Judge William H. Sawtelle was called upon to determine whether a sentence was of more effect than a semi-colon. Hugh McLeod, British alien, was sentenced in 1924 to serve a prison term for the theft of jewelry. In 1930 the government secured an order for deportation of McLeod on the ground that he had been sentenced and imprisoned. McLeod appealed this order, basing his claim on the position of a semi-colon in a section of the law relating to deportation. Judge Sawtelle ruled that the semi-colon's position did not alter McLeod's case and upheld the order.

L. Taylor, as a result of a meeting held at Childress, Officials for Memphis, Childress, Wellington and Quanah participated in the meeting which was called by Mayor Allen C. Grunsky of Memphis. The communication given Taylor carried an implied threat that if the rates were not cut low enough that action would be launched to secure gas from other sources. The town agreed not to accept the cut if it was not agreeable with all the towns. The Rule Review.
