Governor Miriam A. Ferguson has isked them to reconvene today to consider emergency legislation. Chief Exhibit: Miss Nora Walters, Mes- of the subjects is enactment of laws that will carry into effect a constitutional amendment voted on Aurust 28 to authorize the issuance of sists of Mesdames Jesse Smith, Jess state bonds, not to exceed $20,000,-All 000 to succor families made destitute because of unemployment. Second in importance, the governor listed proposed amendments to the state's stringent anti-trust laws, which might hamper industry from taking full advantage of the president's relief program. Although the executive did not include passage of a sales tax in the list of subjects named as creating an emergency, many legislators believed that method of raising revenue to support the government likely would be brought up during the session. Sentiment seemed pretty evenly divided on the issue whether revnue-raising measures were needed at this particular time. The constitution limits a special session to 30 days, but the governor can follow up with a call for a succeeding session should she see a need for one.

for Farm Loans Are Now In Effect

According to information received by V. W. Meadors, secretary treasurer of the local Farm Loan Association, every effort is being made to expedite the closing of loans under the new Emergency Farm Mortgage Act of 1933. Effctive September 1, 1933, the Federal Land Bank of Houston assumed the duties of Agent of the Land Bank Commissioner and have issued new consolidated applications and prepared a consolidated appraisers report which will make it possi-ble for the Bank and Commissioner to consider loans on the basis of one application and one appraisers report and will result in a saving of time and expense to the applicant. Loan applications of $5,000 or less have had the initial application fee cut more than half.

According to Mr. Meadors the Federal Land Bank system is working under emergency conditions. Every bank and every National Farm Loan Association is doing its utmost to make a success of re-financing, within the limit of the law, the load of debt which burdens

American farmers. Parmers paying a high rate of in-terest on their land should refinance their debt under this new low rate and liberal terms now being offered by the Federal Land Bank and the Land Bank Commissioner. Applica-tions should be made through V. W. Meadors, secretary treasurer of the Haskell National Farm Loan
