REPUBLICAN AILBIS

In the approaching Presidential contest the Republican war cry will be somewhat different from what it has been in the past. Prosperity which ie the past has been proclaimed as a purely Republican product will not be much in evidence. Neither will the "full dinner pail." Instead of this we may expect the argument that bad as things are, they would have been much worse had it not been for the titanic endeavor and matchiesa efficiency of the Great Engineer in the White House. That is the alibi and excuse of every failure in every branch of endeavor. It will be safe to leave it to the people for a correct decision of the con

We know perfectly well that had Governor Smith come to the White House on March 4, 1929, instead of Herbert Hoover, the same voices that are now making excuses for the President would have been pointing out that Democratic irresponsibility and Democratic incompetency were wholly responsible for the depression. Moreover, if a Democrat sits in the White House next year and business continues bad, our Republican friends may be depended upon to assert that the continuance of the depression is wholly his fault, and that all would have been well had Mr. Hoover not been interrupted in his program of rehabilitation and restoration. On the other hand, should the return of prosperity be entemporary with the Democratic administration, they would claim that the Democratic President had no part in bringing about good time: which according to them, will have been merely the harvest of the seed sown by Mr. Hoover

CAMPAIGN STRAWS

Preliminary polls designed to get the drift of political sentiment have begun a appear and some results have been given out.

A pull of 582 newspaper editors by Publisher's Service Magazine showed leading candidates for the Presidential nomination to stand as Republicans - Hoover, 320; Coolidge, 19; Dawes, 10. Democratic-Roosevelt, 154. Baker, 132; Ritchie, 22; Smith, 12.

Seventy representative papers polled by the Literary Digest were askerl which prospective candidates were most talked about by their readers. Trase mentioned 25 times or more were the following:

Republicans-Hoover, 70; Coolidge, 43; Borah, 31; Johnson, 28; Pinchot, 26; Dawes, 25. Democrats-Roosevelt, 70; Baker, 69; Ritchie 63; Smith, 56; Young 35; Murray, 30.

As this is written, Hoover is the only Republican candidate for and announcement has been made and Roosevelt and Rifchie at the only Democratis to declare themselves as candidates. Coolidge and Dawes have definitely come out in favor of Hoover. Most puzzling to political observers is the attitude of Al Smith, who has not committed himself directly or indirectly. It is generally believed he would welcome another nomination, but whether he will become an active candidate is still uncertain.

At present the renomination of President Hoover seems assured, and Roosevelt is in the lead for the Democratic nomination, but there will be some lively juckeying among the Democratic aspirants between now and the lone convention

The bus terminal had been reorganized since the Woman's last trip,

"Pure" English Defined as of Elizabethan Era

The off-quoted saying that the parest English is spoken in Dublin, particularly at Trinity college, is of unknown origin, says the Pathfinder Magazine. Inverness, Scotland, and Belfast, Ireland, are often linked with Dublin as places where exceptionally pure and correct English is spoken by the inhabitants. The saying probably means little more than that the common speech in these places contains an unusually large number of Elizabethan words now regarded as "archaic" or "classical" in England and the United States. Speech in small countries or isolated communities seldom changes as rapidly as it does in the more populous centers. Both Dublin and Belfast were settled by colonists from England and the speech of their descendants did not undergo the same development that the language of the parent country did. The English language of the periods of Elizabeth and King James was, as it were, kept in cold storage in Ireland and many words and phrases were retained in everyday speech which became obsolete in England. Thus it happens that the language approaches the language in use during England's golden era of lit-

Long Welsh Name

Does it not seem curious that any place should be named "Llanfatrpullgwyngyllgogerchwyraudrobbwllantysillogogogoch"? but to a Welshman this is one of the most po-ctical names on his map. To the stranger who goes there and sees the place it is also a locality of charm and beauty. But the name itself is poetry. Llan is "church." Fair is "of Mary," pull gwyngyll is "the pool of white hazels," goger is "rather near," while chwyran drobwil is "the swift whirlpoot" and Tysilio gogo goch is "of Tysilio of the red cave." Is it not, therefore, suggestive of romance and beauty enough to visit the village of the church of St. Mary by the poot of white hazels, near the swift whirlpool of St. Tysillo's church of the red cave?

Ornithologist Honored

The Audubon society was named for John James Audubon, a famour American ornithologist and painte-of bird pictures. He was born on the island of Santo Domingo, in the part now known as Haitl, on April 26, 1785. He was taken to France to be educated and emigrated to America when he was eighteen years of age. Nearly his whole life was passed in the United States. He lived in Pennsylvania, Kentucky, Louisiana and New York. He died on January 27, 1851, in New York
