Cooperative Use Pays Well

Here is a lesson in the value of co-operation.

Time was when every community had its own small, isolated electric power plant—if it had any electric service at all.

That was before it was technically possible to link up groups of towns and provide them with power through widespread systems of electric transmission lines.

Today many communities share each power plant. Thus they utilize the facilities more efficiently and receive a higher grade of service at a much smaller cost. The small town's new industrial importance is a direct outgrowth of this improvement in power supply.

The West Texas Utilities Company is rendering this dependable, inexpensive and elastic type of power supply to 125 progressive West Texas cities and towns.

Do you know that your increased use of Electric Service is billed on a surprisingly low rate schedule... and adds only a small amount to your total bill?

Fight That Fenced Romans
 The prodigious strength of the bear, which makes him a by-no-means unworthy antagonist of the lion in a fight did not escape the attention of old-time writers. In later days such contests were popular in Roman amphitheaters, and bears were almost as valuable as lions to those who provided the costliest shows ever provided for the people's amusement, those in Roman amphitheaters in the days of Nero and Caligula.

Great Russian Church Goes
 The church of the Redeemer, at Moscow, which the Soviet government razed, was built to commemorate the deliverance of Russia from the French in 1812 and 1814. It was a thank offering of the Russian people for the victory of the War of Liberation. The work was actually begun in earnest in 1837 and the cathedral was completed in 1883.

Millions Spent on Structure
 It is impossible even to estimate the cost of St. Peter's church at Rome. This church, which is probably the largest church edifice in the world, has been centuries in the building, and the question of money cost has not entered into the matter at all. Millions have been spent both for the structure and for the decorations.

Billions of Bills Burned
 Agents of the United States treasury destroy two billion bills with a money value of ten billion dollars. The old bills, torn and defaced by constant use, are replaced by new treasury notes. Sometimes this paper money is reduced to pulp from which manufacturers make fine "leather" bags for ladies.

Generous Sheik
 The story is told of an Arabian sheik who was so generous and yet so poor that a thief coming into his tent to steal, and finding nothing, the Arabian called him as he was going away and gave him his bed, remarking that "it was a pity he should go away empty-handed after all his labor."

Fierce Eastern Cat
 The fishing cat of India and Ceylon kills sheep and is even said to carry off babies. Its chief diet, however, consists of fish and large marsh snails. This member of the cat family has coarse fawn-colored fur spotted with black and is about the size of a large terrier.

Von Steuben's Great Work
 Washington's drill master was General Von Steuben, a German officer, who aided General, later President, Washington, in the Revolutionary war, and was the first foreign officer to aid in drilling the raw Colonial troops.

Here's Optimism
 Subscribing without hesitation to the bromide, that it takes all kinds of people to make a world, we can't resist the comforting conviction that the most desirable type is in the majority and multiplying.—Toledo Blade.

Commandments on Stone
 Standing as a gatepost at a Mexico (Maine) farmyard is a stone tablet bearing the Ten Commandments, carved more than 125 years ago by Ben Edmunds, a preacher, who was known as "a Maine Moses."

Ice as Electrical Conductor
 The electrical conductivity of ice at ten or more degrees below the freezing temperature is only about a hundred-thousandth that of the water from which it is frozen.

Temple Built to Honor Great Egyptian Goddess
 The temple at Denderah is one of the most famous temples in all Egypt. According to the historical facts which the scientists have been able to dig out of the hieroglyphic records, it was restored by Pharaoh Popt I, who lived four thousand years ago in the Sixth dynasty. There is a high wall round the temple, with a majestic gateway, and to walk through this gateway is to be awed by the majesty of the columns of the entrance hall. The capitals of these columns are graven in the image of Hathor, the goddess to whom the temple is dedicated. She is represented as a woman with the ears of a heifer and with hair flowing down both sides of her head. A center aisle leads through the Hall of Columns to the shrine proper. On each side of this aisle are chambers which are identified by hieroglyphic inscriptions denoting their particular uses. Also there is a gallery encircling the shrine and from this still other chambers open. On the roof of the temple is a shrine to Osiris and here there are hieroglyphics describing the ritual of the Osiris cult.

Even Primitive Peoples Had Reckoning Systems
 There have been systems of reckoning time found among the records left by the most primitive peoples. Well regulated systems existed in the Egyptian, Babylonian, Syrian and many other early nations. The Roman and Greek calendars were taken from the Egyptian, Babylonian, Phoenician. The Julian calendar was derived from these and from the ancient Roman calendar and was proclaimed about B. C. 46. Pope Gregory in 1582 A. D. authorized the revision of the Julian calendar, which was adopted by the Roman Catholic countries, but not by Great Britain or America until 1752. By this time there was a variance between the calendars of those nations and those adopting the Gregorian calendar at the earlier date, necessitating an adjustment of 11 days. The Gregorian calendar has now been adopted by practically all the Christian nations and for business purposes by such nations as Japan and China.

Melasses Windows
 An English scientist has developed a method which may prove one of the most important inventions for many years. At the present time the world produces more sugar than it can use for food. One of the great problems is to know what to do with the surplus. The invention concerns a process by means of which crude sugar in the form of molasses can be converted into a substance as hard and as transparent as glass. It has, moreover, the valuable property of passing the health-giving ultra-violet rays which are stopped by ordinary window glass. The material can be blown, molded, or rolled, just like glass.

Sundial for Nightwork
 A sort of sundial which works without the sun is being erected on the top of a Moorish tower in the gardens of the port of Guayaquil, in Ecuador. A powerful beacon light is being revolved from the top of the tower, operated electrically from a synchronized clock. The beams of light, which makes a complete revolution every 12 hours, will tell the time at night by shining on a number of well-known landmarks as it revolves. The same spots will be lighted up at the same time every night.

Odd Australian Animal
 The Jerboa, or Jerboa rat, which inhabits the southern portion of Australia is an interesting little animal. Its body is three inches, its tail four inches long, the last inch of the tail being black and tufted like a lion's. The body color is gray, white underneath. The hind legs resemble those of a kangaroo, the white feet having four claws. The short front legs have five fingers. Its head is pointed, its ears particularly large, eyes small and bright.

Best for Bostons
 "American Well Wisher" writes in the London Daily Telegraph, "Londoner" pays the Americans a compliment (quite unwittingly) when he credits them with giving the first letter in the alphabet its right pronunciation. A cultured and much-traveled friend, an Englishman, told me that the best English he ever heard spoken was in Boston (Mass., U. S. A.). Having lived there many years I believe this to be true."

Flower Growing a Gamble
 Southern France and Italy and Spain to a lesser extent, having succeeded certain oriental and Balkan regions as the center of production of flowers and their essence, enjoy a quite lucrative trade from them. It is an important business. Since growing regions for choice products are small, crop failures, not unusual with so delicate a product, cause abrupt and violent fluctuations. For the same reason, speculation in these commodities is gambling of a most precarious sort.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S CLUBS

No movement having for its object the betterment of rural life is more worthy of encouragement and support than that of forming and maintaining boys' and girls' clubs, and it is gratifying to note that the movement is spreading rapidly and that more than a million and a half young people on the farms of the country are enrolled in clubs.

In a recent survey it was shown that civic bodies, fair committees, bankers and individual business men in many states are taking notice of the club movement, and are fostering it through the offering of prizes, scholarships, trips and other rewards for efficiency shown by farm boys and girls in carrying out the various projects included in the club program.

Club activities not only serve to prepare young people for their life work, if they choose to stay on the farm, but the conducting of their own meetings develops qualities of leadership and confidence in themselves. Even those who enter other pursuits are better fitted for their future careers by the discipline and training which are inseparable from club membership.

Every rural community should co-operate with home demonstration agents and other extension workers in promoting boys' and girls' clubs. It is a splendid enterprise, which will have a most beneficial effect on farm life in the future.

THE AMERICAN JUNGLE

It is not a pleasant thing to think about, or to write about, but the fact is that the appalling increase in violent deaths in the United States is a severe indictment of our boasted civilization.

The record for 1931 shows approximately 34,000 dead from automobile accidents, 15,000 burned to death, and 12,000 homicides. The homicide death rate has doubled in the last 30 years, reaching 10.8 per 100,000 of population in 1931.

In the same year Canada's homicide rate was only 1.6, while London's was 0.8 and Liverpool's 0.5. In other words, population considered, the United States as a whole had more than 13 times as many murders last year as London, and more than 21 times as many as Liverpool, and nearly seven times as many as our neighbor, Canada.

While remarkable progress has been made in the reduction of the death rate from disease, this has been largely offset by the increase of deaths from external violence, which claims a total of more than 100,000 annually.

Considering all the dangers which surround us, it would seem that life is less secure on an American city street than it would be in an African jungle.

FUTURE MEAT SUPPLY

Within 50 years the principal source of the world's meat supply will not be cattle, but reindeer from Alaska, Canada and Siberia, in the opinion of Stefansson, famed Arctic explorer.

He gives several reasons for his prediction, an important one being the economy in raising reindeer, which live on grass in summer and on lichens and bushes in winter. Besides reindeer meat may be kept in natural cold storage in the far North until it is desired to ship it out.

Another reason for the predicted decline of cattle as a food source is the increase of tuberculosis, which is making serious inroads on the Argentine herds and threatens American herds also.

The possibility of having to eat reindeer meat is nothing to be alarmed about, Stefansson says, as its taste is little different from that of beef. But most folks will prefer to stick to beefsteak as long as it is available.

GOOD OLD DAYS

The old-time livery stable and corner saloon have given way to the ornate garage and filling station; the movie show has replaced the town hall; we go in an hour now a distance it formerly took a day to travel. One can go from coast to coast in a single day in the air. He can telephone from a ship at sea to any one of the 18,000,000 telephones in the United States. He can listen on his radio to speakers thousands of miles away. In a short time he'll be able to see them, too. Our homes are heated by scientific and healthful methods. We have our own cooling systems. Oil and gas and electricity have taken the place of coal. We have the news of the world on our doorsteps, morning and evening, thanks to the stride of modern newspapering. Our lives are full of events. We go places and see things. Our horizons have broadened. Back-breaking drudgery has been eliminated in every avenue of activity. Household appliances, electrically operated, have come to lessen the work of the housewife. We have more time for play, and the golf links is an adjunct of every village and hamlet as well as the larger cities. We have improved our highways and have made our cities sanitary and attractive. But, why go on? Truth is the so-called "good old days" are only a figment of the imagination. The days we are living now are the best the world has ever seen up to now. And "we hain't seen nothing yet."—News-Telegraph, Atlantic, Iowa.

WHEN TO DO IT

"It comes easy and it goes easy."

That tells the story of the advertising appropriations of many business houses.

In the recent boom days advertising space was one of the easiest things in the world to sell—when the merchants didn't need it. People were buying their goods anyway—everybody had money.

Now that the lean years are here, when money is spent with great care, unwise merchants discontinue advertising—when they most need it.

In the boom days people went into a store, bought at random, and without thought of the morrow and swaggered out without counting the change.

Today they count the change before they make a purchase, and more frequently after doing the counting they delay the purchasing.

If a few pennies can be saved on a dollar, right there is where the people want to go, and they will—if they know where to go.

And right then is the time for your advertisement to be in front of them.

Advertisements Printed for Your Convenience

Suppose all the advertisers in your favorite newspaper should stop advertising for a week.

What inconvenience would result! How much telephoning and shopping around to get the answers to such questions as: "What's playing at the theatres? When will that new vacuum cleaner be on sale? Who is offering shoe bargains? Where can I buy that dry shampoo Emily told me about?"

The answers to these questions, and to hundreds of similar ones that people ask every day, are news. VITAL news. You're really interested to learn that a certain store is selling a product you need for a price you can afford to pay.

Furthermore, the advertisements save your time, for you can read them quickly. They save your energy, for you can read them at home and plan just what to buy and where to buy. And they save your money, by enabling you to adjust your needs to the limitations of your budget. In short, they are pocketbook editorials, condensing and interpreting for you the merchandise news of the day.

Go Window-Shopping in Your Easy Chair

Relax for a moment and turn the pages of your newspaper. Let the advertisements help you to make your shopping plans. Do you need a dress, or a coat, or a hat? Perhaps a new blanket for a guest-room, some curtain material, or even a few new pots and pans for the kitchen? Of course, there are many things you want and need . . . but you may be letting many of them wait until you see in a store or a window exactly what you have in mind, at an especially alluring price.

Those are the very things you will find in advertisements. Attractive articles, new and improved ones, prices that make quick action an economy. Think how many steps it can save you to hunt out these things, and find them, in comfort at home! If a special opportunity is offered, you'll know about it in time. When new articles are announced, you can have them before they are the least bit out of date. And you can save hours of waiting and asking, miles of steps—and money too!

These are but a few of the ways the advertisements in your newspapers can serve you. If you read them regularly, you are sure to grow wise in the ways of purchasing . . . and saving.

Greek Legend Gave Us Augean Stables Story

In Greek legend Augeus was a king of Elis who possessed a herd of 3,000 sacred oxen whose stalls had not been cleaned for 30 years. The cleaning of these stalls in a single day was one of the 12 difficult and dangerous labors imposed upon Hercules by Eurystheus, king of Argolis...

First Skates Were Shinbones

The art of skating has come a long way from the original skating which was the forerunner of the present sport. Where the long knife-like blades of speed skates permit speeds of a mile in less than three minutes, and the broad blades rounded at each end, allow a fancy skater to outdo the ballet dancers in the performance of their graceful and speedy figures...

Manila Up to Date

Venice of the Orient is one of the names given to Manila of the Philippine Islands. The name comes to it because it is situated on both banks of the Pasig river and enjoys some canal life from the river. These waters provide a lot of bridges for the city suggestive of the Rialto of the Old world.

City Typical of East

Northern Africa is the gateway to the Orient. Nowhere else has the East with its fascinating Moslem art and customs advanced so far west as in Tripoli, Tunisia, Algeria and at night by train for Marseilles and arrive 36 hours later at Algiers, amidst mosques and sparkling white round-domed houses.

Vienna Old and Beautiful

Vienna, founded 2,000 years ago by the Kouans, destroyed and rebuilt several times, is still a queen among modern cities, although it is no longer the residence of an imperial court. It has a famous opera, by many considered among the best in German-speaking lands. It certainly has the oldest tradition, dating back into the thirteenth century.

Eagle Long Associated With Pomp and Majesty

The Persian monarchs adopted the Eagle as a symbol of monarchy. The Assyrians carved it in stone along with their other emblems of power, as did the Egyptians also. Poets of antiquity termed it the king of birds as the lion was dubbed the king of beasts.

"First Citizen" Worried Over Supply of Butter

That butter was used generously in the George Washington household back in 1799 is disclosed in Washington's diary. Procuring enough butter was a problem for Washington despite the fact that several hundred cattle roamed his pastures. During the winter of 1790 he was short of this necessary article for cooking and table use.

East Indian Nationalists

Officially there is no official Indian flag. Great Britain still regards India as a British-governed empire with not even dominion status. Consequently the only official flag for India as a nation and people is the Union Jack. For certain colonial purposes, as is the case with other member nations of the British empire, the Union Jack is flown with the colonial badge at the intersection of the crosses, or a red or blue ensign is flown with a badge in the fly.

A Modern Child Says:

"I had a hard time keeping my face straight today when I was sent out in the car with father and he told me it was time for me to learn to drive. He picked out a nice quiet road and showed me how to start the engine, shift the gears, set the brakes and everything. You can't imagine how much he enjoyed showing me. It made me ashamed, really, and almost sorry that I had learned to drive three years ago in Skinny Brown's car. But you should have seen how pleased and proud dad was when he stalled the engine on the railroad tracks while explaining to me how to avoid it and I spoke up and told him how to get off. He's telling the neighbors how quick I pick things up."—Kansas City Times.

Far-Eastern Civilizations

The civilization of China goes much farther back than that of Japan. As a matter of fact, Chinese civilization was introduced into Japan about the first century A. D. In modern times, however, Japan has outstripped China in many respects. Japan having adopted western standards of living to a much greater degree. While Japan has shown a capacity equal to that of any other known people and, while their manners and customs and certain institutions were modified in ancient times by Chinese culture, they have kept pace with European and American civilization.

Early Aqueducts

As early as the year 812 B. C., Apollon Claudius Caecus constructed an aqueduct which brought in a supply of water to Rome. The second aqueduct, known as the Aqua Valens, was constructed 60 years later. Toward the close of the first century A. D. there were also aqueducts. Some of the structures still remain, both in Italy and in other parts of the former Roman empire, examples existing at Nîmes, France, and at Segovia, in Spain.

When is Boxing Day? In England that is the name given to the day after Christmas.
