Of course, you've heard the expression, "He's just walking around to save funeral expenses." Well, I know some folks who are. They don't take an interest in anything. MISS ANN RICHLAND locked the back door of her small house, and went out to the tumbledown old barn which had become a shelter for the ancient automobile that she vaingloriously called "the car." She had dusted and washed it that very morning. There was a minute or two of hesitation on the part of the car, after Ann had stepped on the "gas," and then an excited thrill shuddered through the vehicle, and it rolled importantly through the open door and down the incline to the grassy yard, where it rattled and snorted while

"Like a bird !" laughed Ann hap-

Brown's farmhand?" "That's what I wanted to know! You see the bank has a registered bag coming along on the evening train-they're keeping the bank open after hours to receive it. Ann locked her car in the old barn and walked over to the nouse. She was feeling very lonesome, and rather upset about what Dan Mills had told her, for Brown's land adjoined Ann's on the south! She went around to the south porch now, and started back aghast at the sight of the strange "farmhand."

"The same Ann Richland." he said in a voice that thrilled Ann. "Why-" stammered Ann. "I do not remember you-you have made a mistake!" And all the time she was wishing that Dan would come along so that she might appeal to him for help. Then a sudden shocked expression come to her charming face. "It must be Everatt Lewis," she said softly.

"Of course it is-I know I look years older than you ; but there was the war, and it rather battered me up; since then, I've been back to my old job-teaching scho until I was bitten with a longing to come back to Little River and see the old place. Then I saw an advertisement of old Ben Brown's place open for summer boarders, so I tele-graphed that I would be here on the two-thirty train today. Old Ben was there, hustled me into his wagon and drove me out to his place. First thing he said-something about my being too dressed up for a hired man-brought forth an explanation, and he was so mad because he had probably mislaid the real farmhand at the station, that he put me off his place-I'm on my way to the village hotel. stopped here, Ann, for the sake of old times—you know what I mean?" Ann blushed benutifully and nodded and offered to drive him to the village hotel. In five minutes the old car had become a wonder-ful charlot in which two people rode once more through the sc of happy youth.

HE Old Year has been ushered out . . . the New Year has been bowed in. And with 1988 has come a new spirit-a spirit alive with courage and energy, and illuminated by a brighter aspect down the track to Recovery.

Prosperity

And there is reason to look into 1983 with strength renewed and hopes heightened. Such obvious factors as freer spending, rising prices and more activity in the marts of commerce indicate that there is a real and tangible basis for better feeling.

In keeping with the spirit of the season, we "resolve" for 1988 to continue our same high quality of service . . . we pledge ourselves to continue to work for the greatest good of this vast "Land of Opportunity" . . . and we wish for you a happier and more remunerative year.

Wrong Ideas of Looks as Index to Character

Contrasting blonds and brunettes, Prof. Otis W. Caldwell and Gerhard . Lundgen, of the Institute of School Experimentation at Columbia university, who had most of the plain and embroidered superstitions on the operating table for several months, clear away much of the fog about these matters in a report of their studies. They said :

"Being trustworthy does not depend upon a person's complexion. Individuals differ in traits of character regardless of complexion. An Individual may develop the general trait of trustworthiness by forming the habit of being trustworthy in different situations, while brunetteness and blondness is determined by heredity."

When individuals have a square jaw and also a strong and determined will, it is merely coincidence, the investigators found, or a matter of chance. "Any individual's honesty," the report says, "cannot safely be de-termined by the simple test of abil-ity or lack of ability to look another person in the eye. Hardened criminals can look the world in the face in spite of their guilt, and many honest individuals may be unable to do so because of a nervous disposition of temperament." The experimenters asked 918 high school seniors about the superstischool seniors about the supersti-tion of knocking on wood, when beasting of good luck, to keep the luck from changing. Of the total number questioned, 91.6 per cent had heard of the superstition, 30 per cent believed it was true, 40 other practiced it or were influ-

Dish-Washing Problems If husbands wipe the dishes, maybe they will get busy and invent some way of keeping house without dishes. It is the men who have designed all the devices in the kitchen, from the cook stove to the electric refrigerator. Man's watchful eye is always instigating ideas for his "incessant" contriving. But somehow his glant intellect stands nonplussed before the problem of washing dishes. A problem that has been the most vexatious to the feminine soul from the very beginning. The scullery has always been the hated department of house-hold tasks. It rides the household work to this day. A machine for washing dishes has been provided by man's cunning, but it must consume lots of dishes to be worth while in the family menage; and the woman's sense of beauty forever bars the pasteboard substitute that can be burned after using .- F. R OGER TRUE always had dread-ed parties, but that night of the Shaw's dinner party everything seemed different. The charm ing Mrs. Shaw greeted him with a saming smile and Mr. Shaw, whom he had met only once before, had greeted him like an old friend. After that Shaw and he had gone arm in arm into the drawing room while Mrs. Shaw had presented him to the other guests. "I do want you to meet Mr. True," she would say to one of the older women, "Roger True, you know. It's a great treat to have him with us." Or to another guest, "Molly, dear, this is our friend Roger True. You and he must have a chat together." And then Mr. Shaw again taking his arm led him into the study to two of the older men. "This is Roger True," he told them. "He's doing great things at the Durand plantput over that new dehydrated proc-ees." And then Roger True forgot all about his anndy red hair, his pectacies and his large awkward hands, and felt as much at ense as he would have felt at the Durand

Naturally Mrs. Shaw didn't present him to Stells Howe because it was Stella who had introduced him to the Shaws just ten days ago at the Country club. Stella, talking to one of the younger men when Roger came in, had merely smiled and said "Hello, Roger," as Mr. Shaw led him to the library.

That half-hearted sort of greeting from Stella had been a little disconcerting and as Roger talked easily with the men in the library he had it in mind that later he must have a talk with Stella. .

In the back of his mind Roger tried to figure out what had happened. Either Mrs. Shaw was one of those perfect hostesses whose object is to make shy and awkward guests feel at home, or else her guests were much more responsive than any he had-met at parties at home.

Mr. Shaw insisted on driving Roger back to his hotel, an arrangement that made it impossible for him to go home with Stella. "I'm sorry I didn't have a chance to talk to you," he told her when they chanced to meet in the hall. "Maybe I can see you tomorrow evening."

"Maybe," said Stella rather vaguely.

Boger sat thinking things over in his hotel room after the party trying to account for his amazing success as compared with the sense of complete failure that he usually experienced. The odd thing had been that of all the guests he had met. Stella and the Shaws were spend owe an obligation to those who are unemployed, and are facing a winter of distress and poverty. That obligation can be partially met by contributions to charity. Of greater moment is the obligation to give their less fortunate fellows jobs.

All over the country there are homes in need of repair. People have been holding back and refusing to spend-waiting for better times. And yet it is obvious that better times will never come until money again flows through the business arteries and into the channels of trade. Today we can do some needed re-roofing, repair the bathroom, repaint the house, fix the plumbing, and a hundred other necessary improvements for much less than what they cost in the past, and for much less than they will cost in the future when better times actually come. By doing these things now, we are putting money into our own pockets, as well as into pockets that are empty. Increased purchasing power is the vital need of the hour. More jobs, more payrools, more busy industries. Look around your property and see what improvements you need, and act. It is cheaper and better than charity.

THE NEW CONGRESS

Final returns of the recent election show that the Democrats will have an overwhelming majority in the new (73rd) Congress. In the Senate they will have a majority of 22 votes, while in the House of Representatives the Democrats will outnumber both the Republican and Farmer-Labor bloc of five by 193.

The terms of the new members begin March 4, but they will not take their seats until December, 1933, unless President Roosevelt calls an early special session.

The party lineups in the 73rd Congress will be as follows: In the Senate, Democrats, 59: Republicans, 36. and Farmer-Labor, 1. In the House there will be: Democrats, 314: Republicans, 116, and Farmer-Labor, 5.

It is indeed fortunate for the country that the executive and legislative departments of the government will be under the control of the same political party, as divided responsibility in the face of conditions crying aloud for effective and constructive leadership would be a publie calamity.

FALSE ECONOMY

True economy is entirely praiseworthy, particularly for those who have difficulty in making ends meet, but there is a petty sort of skimping which is not economy, and which is really wasteful in the long run. Time and effort expended to effect the saving of a penny here and a nickel there often is a source of loss in-stead of gain. Shopping around for an hour in the hope of asving a few cents on a trivial purchase is one example of this. Another is to buy an inferior article when a good one would cost but a little more.

The same principle applies in business mana, at. To deny oneself the use of a reasonable amo of up-to-date equipment in an effort to curtail expendi-tures is not economy because such equipment will usu-ally pay for itself many times over in time and labor sav-

Mary Had a Little Lamb By JANE OSBORN by McGlure Newspaper Syndicate

T WAS the summer after Mary Lester's sophomore year in the take university that she met Bob Lamb at a country house party. Bob Lamb had just finished his junior er at a smaller college. It was perfectly clear from the end of the frot day at the hospitable old farmouse that Mary liked Bob and that was keen about Mary. But Bob ed from any deputy collector or ight he had no right to speak at marriage he had a year more of college and it would be still another year-whatever work he took up-before he could think of supporting a wife. But he did not besitate to tell Mary of his feelings for her. For the time all he begged of her was that she would permit him to be somewhere near her. It was Mary's idea then, that Bob should transfer himself from the smaller college and enter the senior class of the university she attended.

So when Mary went back to college it was noised about that she had brought a "heavy suitor" with The girls in her fraternity ber. sume laughed at her and with her. Then one of them sitting at the piano began softly playing the strains of "Mary Had a Little Lamb."

The girls took up the words and Mary sat there blushing. "But Bob's fleece isn't as white as snow." protested Mary weakly. "He has black hair."

Bob Lamb had been transferred nom the fraternity in his own colto the chapter in the university where it was soon passed around that they had a girl to thank for the transfer.

"Nice girl-Mary Lester-a junior Gamma Sigma," informed one of the $5,000 each shall make a return on "Some one ought to drop a word of thanks to Mary-she did as a good turn."

One of the men who had listened to the remark began softly to whistle the notes of "Mary Had a Little Lamb."

Some one with a bass voice began croaking the words.

No one meant to give offense, but everywhere Bob Lamb appeared with Mary-at college dances. at concerts or just strolling around the campus-there was always some one nearby to warble or whistle the annoying tune. All Bob desired was just to be somewhere with Mary. Yet as the teasing persisted they saw less and less of each other than they had hoped for.

So after the end of Mary's junior year and Bob Lamb's senior year they felt that they had seen far too litzie of one another. Bob was going to New York to go into business with his uncle and Mary would be back at college for her final year-

$20,000.00 In Taxes Must Be Paid or Haskell School Will Close

To the Citizenship of Haskell Independent School District:

After two weeks careful study of the financial situation of our schools we find some immediate steps necessary if we are to continue longer this year or to open at all next year. There is an outstanding obligation of $14,000 in scrip for last year and this year. In addition to this there is a deficit of $8,000 in interest and sinking fund. There is still an estimated expense of $12,000 for the remaining five months of this session, making a total of $34,000 needed to round out this seesion of school. Of this, we expect to receive approximately $14,000 from the State, making it necessary for us to collect approximately $20,000 in local taxes within the next thirty of sixty days.

There wasen tent colony for the men and another for the women-a study camp where serious-minded students went to study astronomy under the direction of a number of renowned astronomers. Neither Bob nor Mary had felt more than a passing interest in the study of the stars, but at least there would be opportunity to see each other at ctures and on observation excursions. They could sit together in the evening on mountain tops gazing at the stars. True, there would be the other students and the learned professors, but there would be no one to tense them. They needs's let anyone know that they had ever met before. It was Mary's ides that their names must not go with them. Some one might think of the stupid song about Mary and her hute lamb. It would be simple enough in Mary's case. She could eastly use her middle name, Ella. It took some maneuvering on Bob's part. Finally he took an old friend. Bill Ball, into his couldence and arranged to use his college certificate for enrollment.

For the first two weeks of the session at the summer camp every. thing went heautifully. Then it became apparent that Bob-row Bill and Mary - now Ella - con-Ealltrived to sit next to each other on all occasions. One evening when the class of campers were starting of up the mountain side some one In the party began to hum the tune of the nursery song that had bene so odious to Mary. It seemed as if everybody took up the sirwhistling or warbling as they went Then some one began singing the

We find more than $30,000 delinquent taxes on the rolls covering a period of the last four years. The Board has been lenient during the past two years, due to prevailing conditions. We have come to the point, however, where it is imperative that something be done. We realize that it means a sacrifice for many people to pay school taxes now, but we feel that it would be nothing short of a calamity to close our schools. This your Board does not intend to do without an effort to adjust matters.

At a meeting on January 3, we secured the services of Rex Ragan, an efficient and experienced man in tax matters, to assist us in clearing up the situation. There are many conflicting problems arising which the members of the Board do not have time to work out. We are urging all who are delinquent to see Mr. Regan in his office over Oates Drug Store at once.

In order to assist taxpayers as much as pessible, we have authorised Mr. Regan to accept any dolinquent tax payments up to February lat without interest or penalty, regardless of the time of delinquency As our representative, Mr. Regan is in position to amist taxpayors in adjusting any tax problems.

The Interests of our children demand that t id. A co-operative plan is our first day. 1
