The AAA determined 12c a pound to be the average price of lint cotton on ten designated spot markets. Under the Bankhead act, this determination automatically fixes the ginning tax at 6c. The act fixes the rate of tax at 50 per cent of the proclaimed price, but in no event at less than 5c a pound.

A total of 10,500,000 beles of tax exempt cotton for the current year.

A total of 10,500,000 bales of tax exempt cotton for the current year has already been allotted among cotton belt states.

The Bankhead tax produced $555,738 in revenues up to March 1, 1935. Since the crop this year probably will be much larger than in 1934 and the amount of overproduction correspondingly greater, tax collections should be substantially above that sum a year hence.

GREAT-HEARTED DAVID

International Sunday School Lesson for July 21, 1985.

GOLDEN TEXT: "Not looking each of you to his own things, but each of you also to the things of others." Phillip-

(Lesson Text: 1 Samuel 26:5-12; 2 Samuel 1:23-27)

Our lesson today concerns one of the greatest figures in Old Testament records. His life was full of so many important events that it is difficult to condense the study of it for one lesson. David was the son of Jesse, a descendant of Boaz, who married the Moabitess Ruth. When Saul was king, David, the young shepherd, undertook and completed a perilous task of bravery and skill in killing Goliath, winning the admiration and love of Saul. As a result of this feat, David was raised to prominence and honor in his kingdom, much in the same manner that Colonel Lindbergh became a popular and praised figure overnight by the success of his daring in crossing the Atlantic.

David enjoyed the favor of the king and was thrown much in the company of the young prince, Jona-than, who rejoiced in the success of his friend. Quite different was the attitude of Saul, who became jeal-ous and sought to kill David.

Jonathan braved the wrath of the king on several occasions in an effort to point out the injustice which was being done to David, and while his efforts to preserve friendship between the two succeeded to some extent, they ended in failure.

As Saul continued steadfast in his efforts to kill David it was necessary for the latter to flee. Strangely, he was helped by two of Saul's own children, his wife, Michal, and the son, Jonathan, both of whom loved David and realized the wrongs being attempted by their father, and king. In parting, Jonathan and David renewed their covenant of friend-what you can take out of it—and nothing more.

"But some people are born rich and influential," you say.

You're wrong: Some people are born with riches and influence adjacent to them. But such assets won't do them any good unless they make them do them good. They will remain merely scenery. A man may possess a bankbook and a family tree and yet be an empty husk himself—unless he has the spunk to fill his husk for himself.

Rich man, poor man, beggar man,

Rich man, poor man, beggar man, thief—we're all in the same boat when we hit this trail.

We're all on our own.
And we all must make our own terms with life.
The game is up to YOU. It is as much up to you as it was up to your great-great-grandpa when he ship by which David promised life to Jonathan and his household. Jonathan deserved considerable credit for the friendship which existed between him and David. He was the prince and naturally would have inherited the crown. He realized that this would not take place but that the kingship would descend upon David's head Notwithstanding, his unselfish nature and his friendship for David were sufficiently powerful that he was willing to step aside without a struggle and rejoice in the promotion that would come to his friend. David likewise trusted Jonathan for he made a covenant that when he came into pow-er he would not kill Jonathan or his children, the usual barbaric custom of kings in that day to remove all possible rivalry to their throne. David's characters also stands the test of friendship well. As long as Jonathan lived, David treated him deferentially in recognition of his position. David even extended this attitude to Saul, regardless of the latter's efforts to have him murdered. Then when Jonathan was killed in battle with the Philistines and Saul had committed suicide, David magnanimously remembers only the noble traits of his enemy, Saul, and the wonderful friendship which ex-isted between himself and Jonathan.

The world now needs increased practice of the art of friendship, the ability to understand, appreciate and help others. It needs men and women, who, in their affections and loyalty, will be worthy of friendship of the highest type. We should realize more the values of genuine friendliness and be more careful and thoughtful in attending to the little things which are necessary to maintain affection. Friendship has two sides, that of helping others, and reaping the rewards and benefits which come with it. At the base of all true friendship lies the ideal Christian brotherhood, inspired by that love which should exist between all of God's creatures.

David "is the man after God's own heart," says A. P. Stanley, "not in' the sense of a faultless saint, far from it, even according to the defective standard of Jewish morality; still further from it, if we compare him with the Christianity of a civilized age; but in the sense of the man who was chosen for his own special work, the work of pushing forward his nation into an entirely new position, both religious and so-But the hold which David has fixed on the memory of the church and the world is of a deeper kind than any which he derives even from the romance of his life or in the attractiveness of his character. He was not only the Founder of the Monar-chy, but the Founder of the Psalter. He is the first great Poet of Israel. Although before his time there had been occasional bursts of Hebrew poetry, yet David is the first who gave it its fixed place in the Israelite worship."

IMPROVING ON NATURE

Those great stone faces which sculptors are carving on the rocky peaks of various mountains about the country provoked some heated argument at the recent national conference on state parks, held in Skyland, Va. Gutzon Borglum, sculptor who is carving the giant memorial on the face of Mount Rushmore, in the Dakota Black Hills, said that such monuments were an integral part of natural scenic beauty. And then up rose Tom Wallace, editor of the Louisville Times, to declare that such projects are, in the very nature of things, horrible. such things are an outrage," he declared. "They don't belong, anyway." This gentleman seems to have voiced a thought that has occurred to more than one citizen in recent years. There is something permanent and inescapable about these gigantic memorials in living rock. You can't escape seeing them, and if you don't happen to like them there is nothing much you can do about it. And that fact is perhaps an indication that we should go slowly in ordering any more of these mountain sculp-

PROGRESS WITH YOUTH

By the end of this month, if all goes as expected, there will be approximately 600,000 young men in the famous Civilian Conservation Corps. The work of doubling the strength of the corps has been going forward rapidly, and an enrollment of 400,000 was recorded early in July. New camps are being established in every state in the union. The War Department is building 1,400 new sets of camp buildings, and tent colonies are being erected in many localities. All in all, the work of enlarging the organization is going forward with the same quick efficiency that has characterized nearly all of the CCC operations. Here, it seems, is one fight-the-depression venture which has been a huge success. It has taken thousands of young men off the streets, enabled them earn a living and build themselves up physically and mentally; and at the same time it has been doing a great deal of highly valuable work in the conservation of our natural resources of woodland, stream and field.

STILL A FOURTH OF JULY TOLL

Looking back at the Fourth of July casualties, the freedom. newspaper reader cannot help reflecting that we are still a long way from the "Safe and Sane Fourth" which was set up as our goal so many years ago. As the peril of fireworks grows smaller, the peril of automobile traffic grows greater. The old swimming hole also claims the world safe for democracy". its victims; and the firecracker itself, although less destructive than formerly, still takes its toll of maimed hands, burned faces and injured eyes. To be sure, a vast improvement has been made. The Fourth is no longer the occasion for free-for-all hoodlumism that it used to be. The bang of explosives no longer sets the key for the whole day. But we are still criminally carleless on this holiday. Each July 4th brings a long list of people all the groups who want a change to whom our merry-making has brought death or injury.

HOW VETERANS FEEL

Europe is generally admitted to be drifting steadily vote from President Roosevelt we toward war. How do the European veterans of the last war feel about it? As fighting men, do they welcome the the whole of American history." approach of a new war? They do not. Representatives of the war veterans of Germany and the allies met in Paris recently and passed a resolution calling for the maintenance of peace, abolition of war-like policies and the settlement of international disputes by arbitration. are the parents of the taxpayers lea-"The veterans of all nations are passionately attached to gues with which you are familiar, the maintenance of peace," they declared. "Men who read like a who's who of American incite war are not friends but enemies of their own countries." There is a calm note of warning in this statement which the super-patriots of all lands, following policies that can lead to nothing but war, would do well to heed, and never have had any, but I don't

TO SQUELCH HITCH-HIKING

The Pennsylvania state highway patrol has declared war on the hitch-hiker. Capt. Wilson C. Price announces that anyone caught thumbing a ride in Pennsylvania hereafter will be jailed or fined, and he adds: "A many respects worse than before hitch-hiker and a panhandler are the same, except that the panhandler whines for a dime and the hitch-hiker wants a ride that is often worth a $10 bill." This stand may seem a little harsh, but there are plenty of motorists who will applaud it. For, when all is said and done, the average hitch-hiker has a colossal nerve. As Captain shot in Paris the Wilson remarks, he is a panhandler on a big scale. It is hard to feel indignant over a plan to squelch him.

Qnap CURRENT COMMENT.

SHARE THE WEALTH (Wheeling Register)

President Roosevelt now asks Congress for increased taxes on large incomes and on corporate incomes. In asking for these taxes the president adopts a course that should strike a popular chord and at the same time move splendidly toward balancing the budget. In so doing the president steals a lot of Huey Long's thunder. It is Long who has been filling the radio channels with his plans for sharing the wealth. President Roosevelt does not propose any such fantastic idea as Long proposes but his proposed taxes would poerate to reduce large fortunes and redistribute wealth.

Operation of President Roosevelt's tax program would mean smaller incomes for the extremely wealthy and larger incomes for the mass of the people.. It would make the consumer business in the nation increasingly important because it would make more persons better able to consume larger quantities of the nation's goods.

Congress undoubtedly will enact the proposed tax laws, next year if not at the present session. And the result will be another step forward for the New Deal-the New Deal that is a plan to bring the greatest good to the greatest number.

THE PAROLE SYSTEM (Huntington (W. Va.) Advertiser)

Unhappily, in its practical operation, the parole system has been responsible for ghastly errors in dealing with criminals. The paroled John Dillinger is the most glaring example of its misuse. The notorious bandit and killer reached the peak of his criminal career after a governor released him upon society. Now we find that Willard Mahan, central figure in the kidnaping of the Weyerhaeuser boy is a paroled convict, who was serving 20 years in the Idaho penitentiary when a governor turned him loose to participate in the most sensational crime of

ishing Fee System for Paying Officials

Two years ago a Senate investigatny committee discovered a number of flagrant abuses of the fee system as practised in Texas for recompensing certain public officials. The fee system was established and written into the Texas Constitution at a time when it was impossible to pay salaries and the theory was that an official was entitled to "all he could make." Since the Senate ommittee discovered and reve the malpractices existing under the system there has been a demand for Constitutional change on this score, according to Secretary of State Gerald C. Mann.

Proposed Amendment No. 6 on the ballot provides that the fee system as a method of paying certain precinct, county and district officials shall be abolished in counties having 20,000 or more population according to the last Federal census. The Legislature will, if the amend-ment is adopted, set the salaries for officials now receiving fees in such counties. In counties of under 20,-000 population the Commissioners Courts may put their county and precinct officials on a salary basis if they so desire. The Amendment does not specifically state who shall set the salaries of such officials in this case. If this amendment is adopted all district officers must be compensated on a salary basis. The amendment provides that fees shall continue to be collected as at present but they will go to the county instead of the officer. The evident purpose of this amendment is to place as many public officials on straight salaries as possible and thus abolish, insofar as is possible the payment of officials through the present fee system.

Proposed Amendment No. 7 — Free Text Books for Private and Parochial Schools

The Texas Constitution present time provides that the State is without authority to furnish free text books to other than public schools. Proposed Amendment No. 7 on the ballot for the August 24th election would permit the State to supply free textbooks to all schools, private and parochial. Such textbooks, it is presumed, to be the same as used in the public schools. Advocates of this Amendment state that this would entail no addi-state that this would entail no additional expense because the State now purchases more books than are necessary. However, this point is merely one of the claims made and has not been substantiated by the Secreatry of State. Advocates point out that they pay taxes to support public schools but that if they choose to send their children to private or parochial schools the least the State can do is to supply the taxtbooks free.

the State can detection textbooks free.

Probably the most important and less publicized provision of this Amendment is the fact that it proposes to rewrite Section 5 of Article Seven of the Constitution so as to the apportionment of schools the apportionment of schools.

GAS BURNER

takes the place of all moving parts in ELECTROLUX

It is this fundamental difference why emineers say gas is the logical method of refrigeration. It it why Electrolux is recognized everywhere as the cheapest refrigeration money can buy. Any wonder when Electrolix operates without a single moving part to make noise or to wear and need replacing? Because of this simplicity Electrolux saves enough on operating cost, depreciation and food bills to pay for itself. See its modern beauty . . . compare its advantages, then you'll know why 500,000 have bought Electrolux!

Old Buildings Now Being Razed For Centennial

DALLAS, Texas.-With demolition of scores of old structures at ready well underway in Fair Park, plans moved forward rapidly today toward actual start of construction of the Texas Centennial Exposition, to open here next June 6, in commemoration of the 100th anniversary of Texas independence

Backed by the Federal government, the state, the city and thousands of citizens throughout the country who have subscribed to a Centennial bond issue, the $20,000,000 World's Pair will portray the glam-orous romance of Texas history and the growth of the rich Southwestern

The Exposition, which is expected to attract 15,000,000 visitors to Dallas will be the climax of a statewide celebration of Centennial year,

Fair of Texas has annually attracted upwards of 1,000,000 visitors in its sixteen days of operation. Old days. Pair exhibits are being razed to buildings to be built for the 1936 and other relatives here this week World's Pair. Architectural plans are nearing completion and construction work on the new buildings is expected to start soon.

The state of Texas will $1,200,000 on a great Hall of State. A Petroleum and Gas building wil feature the largest exhibition of oil well machinery and equipment ever presented in the United States; the Electrical and Communications Building will graphically depict the modern marvels of science.

The city of Dallas will erect a $500,000 palace to contain the art works of the old masters. The Negro Building will portray the progress in the arts, industries and sciences of the race. It will be the first Negro Building ever featured in an international exposition. Ag-Cotton, Pan riculture. Live Stock, American, Mexico, the Medical Arts, Homes, Pure Foods and Transportation will have buildings of their own. Already constructed are the $560,000 auditorium building, with its great pipe organ and the $375,000 sports stadium, which will seat 46,000 people.

YOUR HEALTH

By John W. Brown, M. D. State Health Officer

AUSTIN, Texas, July 10—Flies spread disease. They are reared in filth and through life make frequent trips from filth to food. Germs causing dysentery and other intestinal disorders are transported on the hairy feet of flies. These insect pests are regarded as having played a leading part in causing food-borne epidemics of typoid fever, stated Dr. John W. Brown, State Health Offi-

Flies multiply rapidly as soon as warm weather comes to stay. A female deposits more than a hundred eggs at a time in organic material such as manure or in an unsanitary outdoor toilet. The life cycle from egg to larva (maggot), to pupa, to adult male of female fly requires but ten days. A week later, fifty females, under favorable conditions, are ready to deposit a total of 50,000 eggs. During the summer season, nine generations of flies may result from one female that laid the first batch of eggs in the spring. It is estimated that if the offspring of single overwintering female were to survive through nine generations, descendants in the fall would number over five and a half trillion.
