CC judging teams do well in Kansas

The Clarendon College Meats and Livestock Judging Teams performed well in Kansas last week.

The Meat Judgers were in Garden City and were the Champion team. Individual results were Courteney Walker, 2nd high; Thachary Mayer, 3rd high; Taylor Studenbordt, 4th high; Dyllan Galligan, 8th high; and Maggie Roque 10th high.

Livestock Judgers competed in El Dorado and saw much better results than the previous week.

The freshman team was 10th high team out of 26 teams with Ty Gaitlin ending up 16th out of 178 individuals, and the Sophomore team finished out 15th out of 28 teams.

Coach Johnny Treichel said this was a tough contest where little things added up. There were some big cuts between animals which left little room for error. Coach Treichel has been happy with the progress the teams are making, especially with reasons but will continue getting further prepared for the big contests this fall.

Chronic wasting to be meetings' focus

Several chronic wasting disease informational meetings will be held in the Panhandle in September by the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department, Texas A&M AgriLife Extension Service and the Texas Animal Health Commission.

These meetings, which will address chronic wasting disease management, new Texas Parks and Wildlife Department regulations, and proposed Texas Animal Health Commission rules, will be held in Dalhart and Amarillo.

The first meeting will be at 7 p.m. Sept. 28 in the Dallam County Courthouse, 501 Denver Ave. The second will also begin at 7 p.m. and will be Sept. 29 at the Amarillo Public Library Downtown Branch, 413 E 4th Ave. Both are free and open to the public.

Tomecek said these meetings were spurred by a single mule deer harvested in 2015 in Hartley County that was positive for chronic wasting disease, a fatal condition that affects the nervous system in white-tailed deer, mule deer, red deer, elk and moose.

This was the first detection in the Panhandle of Texas.

Chronic wasting disease is one in a group of diseases called transmissible spongiform encephalopathies, such as scrapie in domestic sheep and goats, and bovine spongiform encephalopathy in cattle.

The disease cannot be transmitted to humans or livestock. It is caused by a type of misfolded protein, which causes host animals to replicate the misfolded protein. Prions interrupt and degrade nerve cells and ultimately eliminate basic nervous system functions, leading to death.

C Bar C team wins third straight title

It was déjà vu all over again when the C Bar C Ranch won the 22nd annual Col. Charles Goodnight Chuckwagon Cookoff last Saturday, September 24.

The wagon team members from Hartley bested 13 other teams to claim their third consecutive championship from the Saints' Roost Museum, placing in four out of five cooking categories on their way to taking first place for Overall Cooking and the champion bean pot for best Overall Wagon & Cooking.

C Bar C Ranch has earned five championship titles at the Clarendon cookoff and is the only team to win three titles in a row from the cookoff.

Officials with the Saints' Roost Museum, which sponsors the event, said they fed about 750 people at the cookoff, compared to about 615 people last year.

The C Bar C placed first in Meat, second in Beans and Bread, and third in Potatoes.

The ninth annual Junior Cookoff the day before the big event drew eight contestants, who were paired with experienced wagon teams to prepare potatoes for the cooks' dinner Friday night. Millie McAnear from Clarendon won first place and was teamed with the Trapdrag Wagon from Pampa.

Kami Duncan of Clarendon was second, working with the Honey-Do-Spoiler Wagon from Pampa; and Mycah Woodard, also from Clarendon, was third and worked with the Crosstimbers Ranch from Mustang, Okla.

Other junior participants included Boe and Coy Boedeker of Lockney

Following the Junior Cookoff, 215 people enjoyed a delicious steak dinner Friday night on the museum grounds, compared to 214 the year before. The invitation-only event was held exclusively for Chuckwagon teams and members of the Museum and their families as well as 76 members of the Goodnight family.

The trade show was held throughout the day Saturday, and live entertainment was provided. Relatives of Chuckwagon inventor Charles Goodnight also were present for their annual reunion.

The 14 wagons served a menu of chicken fried steak, mashed potatoes, gravy, biscuits, beans, and cobbler. Prizes totaling $3,250 were paid out to the winners.

Complete results were:

Overall Wagon & Cooking: 1) C Bar C Ranch.

City okays 2% trash rate hike

The Clarendon City Council authorized high garbage rates during their regular meeting last Thursday, September 22.

The two percent increase is expected to bring in $7,190 in added revenue for the city.

City Hall said officials were able to avoid a previously predicted larger rate increase by moving one employee from sanitation to public works.

The increase, for most residential accounts, will go up from the current $21.34 to $21.77.

In other city business, aldermen appointed Nathan Floyd to fill the vacant council seat created earlier last month when Sandy Skelton was appointed to finish the term of Mayor Larry Hicks. Floyd will serve the remainder of Skelton's term as alderman, which expires in May.

Alderman Larry Jeffers was elected as the city's mayor pro-tem.

The council discussed ongoing negotiations to transfer ownership of McClellan Field and the city's interest in the softball field to Clarendon ISD. Aldermen expressed their desire for the city to retain the right to get the properties back if the school does not use them for ballfields.

The council considered engineering proposals for a Community Development Block Grant application, and selected KSA Engineers for that job.

An updated solid waste contract with the City of Pampa was approved as presented.

Foster & Lambert were approved to perform the city's audit for fiscal year 2015-2016.

The council also agreed to proceed with the condemnation process on two properties with code compliance issues – the former Ruby Bromley home at Carhart Street and Wood Avenue and the Mays property in the 500 block of S. Sully Street. City Hall says the next step will be to conduct public hearings on the properties.

Local woman sentenced in district court

A Donley County case was among the pleas heard by the District Court when it met in Childress last Monday, September 19.

District Attorney Luke Inman prosecuted the cases for the State of Texas, with the Honorable Judge Stuart Messer presiding.

Lucinda Jean Hearn, 35, from Clarendon, pleaded true to allegations listed in the State's Motion to Adjudicate and was sentenced to six years in the Institutional Division of TDCJ for the third degree felony offense of forgery against elderly individual.

On May 20, 2013, Hearn originally pled to the charges from the December 18, 2012, offense in Donley County. The State filed the motion to adjudicate on September 15, 2016, alleging six violations of community supervision.

Hearn is also required to pay $473 in court costs to Donley County, a $1,500 fine, and $945 restitution.

Hearn was also convicted for the third degree felony offense of credit card abuse against an elderly individual and sentenced to six years in the Institutional Division of TDCJ.

Hearn, was arrested in Donley County for the offense that took place on June 29, 2016. Hearn pled to an information filed by the State on September 14, 2016.

Pursuant to the plea agreement, Hearn is required to pay $418.95 restitution and $488 court costs.

WARNING: The following column is an editorial (i.e. an opinion, a point of view) and may contain ideas with which some readers may freely disagree.

Let Gary debate Hillary, Donald

The first presidential debate of 2016 is now history, and it appears almost certain that the United States is in heap big trouble. Unless, of course, people wake up and take this country back.

Businessman Donald Trump is a bombastic fire-brand with a questionable grasp on the issues and apparently no concrete plans for much of anything. He has made some major flip flops on important issues and has put forth some proposals that are totally counter to the Republican ideals he's supposed to represent.

His redeeming qualities are that he's rich, he's not afraid to step on anyone's toes, and he has little or no use for the political establishment that has made a wreck of this country.

This all means that Trump is just infinitesimally a better choice than his Democratic opponent, a former first lady turned senator turned Secretary of State now making her second run at the White House. Hillary Clinton is, to be kind, a pathological liar who is corrupt, arrogant, angry, and above the law. Clinton wants bigger government, more regulations, more rules on business, and for the rich to "pay their fair share"... whoever "the rich" are.

The secretary's best attribute, for many, is that she isn't Donald Trump.

Most people on both sides of the aisle, if they are honest, will tell you that they wish there was someone else to vote for but they plan to hold their nose and vote for one because he or she isn't the other.

There is another option. You don't have to vote for Trump or Clinton. You have another choice, and that person is Gov. Gary Johnson.

The Libertarian candidate is polling higher than Ross Perot was in the 1992 election, but due to the rules of the "non-partisan" (and yet run by Republicans and Democrats) Commission on Presidential Debates, the former governor of New Mexico has been excluded from the national stage.

Johnson polls high with young people and with active duty military people. He's a two-term former Republican governor from a strongly Democratic state, which demonstrates his ability to work with people with different views.

Wouldn't it be nice to have a presidential candidate who could do more than hurl personal insults or work to force their will on other people?

Our problems today have been created by our two-party system, but Johnson offers a fresh approach. He offers the chance to have a president who will govern from the position that We the People should be afforded the most liberty possible.

That will surely freak out some conservatives who want everyone to fit perfectly into their morality cookie cutter as well as some liberals who want the government to regulate and control the economy. But I think it's safe to say that most people want the government to just leave them the hell alone. And that's what Gary Johnson stands for... leaving people the hell alone. Get the government, as much as is reasonably possible, out of our daily lives so that we can live up to the best potential that our God given talents will allow.

Do I agree with every position that Gov. Johnson has taken? No, I don't. And that's okay. We don't have to agree on everything, but we agree on the big things... free markets, personal liberty, and limited government.

If either Donald or Hillary are elected, the partisan divide will only deepen in America. And I'm not sure how much further we can divide before this nation gets finally torn asunder.

Johnson offers a third choice, and I dare say it's a better choice. We've tried a Clinton before, and Trump represents the worst of the conservative stereotypes. Let's at least look at something else before casting a vote.

At the very least, America deserves to hear what Gary Johnson has to say. And the only people who can make that happen is the Commission on Presidential Debates. They have denied him that right once. Let us hope they can be persuaded to join the next two debates. He's on the ballot in all 50 states, and he has earned the right to be heard. And then the People can listen and decide for themselves the fate of this Union.

Meanwhile...

Your humble editor is waiting patiently for the hand-wringers and the nannies to call for imposing waiting periods or perhaps background checks for purchases of pressure cookers.

This comes after a terrorist earlier this month killed people in New York with a bomb made from a pressure cooker. He didn't use a gun, so we've been spared the onslaught of demands for more gun regulations, but the anti-gunners have not yet clamored for measures to keep us safe from pressure cookers. The suspect behind the bombing has, however, been charged with using a weapon of mass destruction.

I personally have been quite leery of these weapons ever since the lid blew off my Memaw's pressure cooker about 30 years ago and sent frijoles all over her kitchen and sent my cousin's wife and I running for our lives. I'm here to tell you these things are dangerous and scary and ought to at least be used only by people who are properly licensed.

Of course, I don't know what we do about it. Even if you get some new rules in place, there are already a lot of pressure cookers out there in houses all over America. And this guy - the madman that he is - probably did not go buy his at a reputable dealer like Bed Bath & Beyond or Henson's. No, you can bet your beans that this guy got his pressure cooker at some back alley garage sale where the serial numbers had been scratched off.

Men: Guinness record within reach

Samsung scientists who packed too much charge into the latest smartphones may be graduates of the "Duracell School of Battery-Making." Who knows what happened, but my Uncle Mort - reaching into the deepest crevice of his unbounded wisdom - believes some of 'em want to both "burn something as well as start something."

The 104-year-old denizen of the thicket in East Texas continues to be amazed about the far-reaching news topic making big splashes in public and social media.

Company leaders now are recalling Samsung Galaxy Note 7s. Mort believes they'd call the battery folks on the carpet if not for fear of their setting it on fire....

Mort's not saying the Samsung folks are grandstanding. "This is a serious matter, and people who would quickly settle for '15 minutes of fame' could wind up facing '15 years of law suits'."

Mort has dealt with multiple dozens of so-called "inventions" that shook his work shop to numbers just short of the Richter Scale.

"There are safer ways to make the Guinness Book," he claims. "Just the other day, an 81-year-old guy in China had eye brow hair measuring 7.2 inches." ...

Guinness believes this to be a world record, but this heralded bunch of record-keepers had best take note: Guys around the world will challenge this record, figuring it would involve no exercise, no money and no great thought. During my college years, I spent summers editing a small weekly newspaper called The Brown County Gazette." It fell on hard times later, and is now defunct. It was published in Bangs, TX, something of a "Mayberry" community, where weekly headline stories were sometimes hard to come by.

One week, a farmer showed up with what he called "the largest watermelon ever grown in Brown County." I repeated his claim in the caption under a photo that made the front page on a sleepy summer day....

Woe was me! As the weeks rolled by, other farmers delivered melons, each claimed to be still bigger.

In those days, running newspaper photographs involved engraving costs, and the publisher was hesitant to expend such funds, except maybe to run with an obituary.

And even then, whether a photo ran sometimes rode on whether the person was a luminary, but that's another story....

Think of the possibilities if efforts to cultivate long eye brow hair catches on. Men long since bald have new hope. Many, no doubt, have abandoned hope.

Mort figures this to be the perfect time for him to set out on developing a the idle american by don newbury

"potion" to spur eye brow growth, with this leading to new hair styles. "We'll have guys trying 'comb-backs' instead of 'comb-overs'," he cackled.

And he has strong advice for people holding stock in companies that manufacture hair pieces. "Sell now," he advises....

Mort mentioned participants eager to participate can do so no matter their age or no matter their station. "Rich or poor, at home or in care centers, guys with no head hair will be welcome," he bragged.

He warned, though, that if the eye brow rage catches hold, we may have to consider furrowing other parts of the body, since brows will be busy.

I guess we can't have it both ways. Maybe some guys with heads absent of hair will have to decide whether to content themselves in being bald or reveal worry in some other manner....

Before leaving the subject of hair, I must share a vignette observed recently. At a school luncheon on "grandparents' day" (when we're permitted to bring food of grandchildren's choice and then go to the bookstore to buy them presents), a kindergartener couldn't find his granddad.

The principal asked him to describe the missing grandpa.

"Well, he's got a bunch of hair on his chest..."

Navasota's great graveyard event

Navasota is celebrating its 150th anniversary and a number of things are happening. Planning is underway on an annual graveyard event the last weekend of October called Legends and Lanterns, where actors portray the lives of people who are buried there.

"We're up to working on our fourth year of it," says Mavis Anderson, who writes the scripts for the project. "It has become sort of a local institution, really. This year I'm sticking my neck out, though, because we do things around themes and since this is an election year, this year's theme is Politics As Usual. We'll mention some of our elected officials who served on local and state levels."

Mavis says she has to be careful when she's researching and writing.

"When you start doing the family history, half of the people in town are mad at you because you tell stories on their family and the other half are mad because you don't tell their family stories. We're never trying to pull skeletons out of the closet or embarrass anybody or anything. I also don't believe in making it sound like everybody who settled here was a saint and a hero. They were people. They had families, personal concerns, they had reasons for moving from wherever they came from to here and reasons for staying here or reasons why their families moved on."

Actors come from Navasota's community theater.

"What we do is have our costumed actors at the actual gravesite where the people are buried. We put visitors in groups of about fifteen or so with one of our theater people who serves as a tour guide and takes the group around from grave to grave, so it takes about an hour to cover everybody."

The event is a fundraiser for the guest column

by tumbleweed smith

theater. Admission is ten dollars.

"The actors doing the portraying memorize their scripts. The guides have a script in front of them in case the actors suffer a mental lapse and need prompting."

People visit six or seven gravesites during the nighttime tour.

"It's pretty dark out there, so you have to stand close and listen carefully. The tour guides carry lanterns around and there is a lantern at each gravesite."

The earliest grave in Navasota's Oakland Cemetery dates back to when the city started in 1866. Some of the headstones are worn and difficult to read, but through investigation of the graveyard layout, organizers are able to tell where people are buried.

"Part of what we're doing is not only telling the stories of the people who are out there, but trying to connect with what was happening in the general area around Navasota as well as the state and the nation. Last year our topic was a toast to Navasota's foreign born so we named it Imported Spirits."

Lifelong learning, facts about mobile spyware

Hi, gang! Two very good articles this week. Lifelong learning and Who's stalking: what to know about mobile spyware

"Lifelong learning" by Jennifer Leach Assistant Director, Division of Consumer and Business Education, FTC

It's Adult Education and Family Literacy Week. It's a time to raise public awareness about the importance of both things – adult education and family literacy – and the 36 million adults in the US with low literacy skills. The FTC has a consumer protection website with plain and simple advice on dealing with everything from making a budget to rebuilding your credit to avoiding job scams. Consumer.gov and Consumidor.gov were designed for anyone who's short on time and needs just the facts; people with limited reading ability; and educators who want their students to have financial literacy and life skills, like how to buy a used car.

Educators tell us their students need these skills – but the teachers could use more help getting the information across. So we created a series of lesson plans to help adult education and English as a Second Language (ESL) teachers use Consumer.gov's resources in the classroom. Every day, we work to make sure the site is useful to anyone who uses it. There are videos, an audio read-along of all the text on the site, worksheets and presentations, and everything is available to order – free – in print. This year, the National Coalition for Literacy (NCL) has given the FTC one of its 2016 Literacy Leadership Awards for its commitment to serving and guiding adults with limited reading ability, and for its outreach to those working with them, particularly teachers in adult basic education and ESL programs. It's an exciting honor, and one we'll celebrate by doubling down on our efforts to tell people about fraud, and how to report it. Care to join us?

"Who's stalking: What to know about mobile spyware" by Jacqueline Connor Attorney, FTC, Division of Privacy & Identity Protection

Do you think an abusive partner or ex is monitoring you through your phone? They might be using stalking apps (spyware) that secretly track your devices. Here's information about what stalking apps are, how to tell if they're on your device, and what to do if they are.

What are stalking apps? Stalking applications are apps or software that someone can download onto your phone to track or monitor you. They can share detailed information about your phone activities – like phone conversations, text and email messages, photos, and account passwords – without your knowledge. Some stalking apps also advertise that they can turn on a phone's microphone and camera remotely so that the monitoring person can see and hear what's happening around the phone, even when it's not being used. How can I tell if a stalking app is installed on my phone? If an abuser has installed a stalking app on your phone, your phone will probably look the same. No new icon will be displayed, and most anti-virus software won't detect it. But these clues may suggest that a stalking app could have been installed:

The abuser has had physical access to your phone; The abuser knows a lot of very specific information about you, including your exact locations, the content of conversations you've had, what you've texted and to whom, and what you've searched for online; The phone's battery drains faster, without any difference in your phone usage; There are unexplained data usage charges on your bill; or You have trouble turning off the phone.

What can I do if I think a stalking app is installed on my phone? If there's a stalking app on your phone, here are some steps to consider: Get help. Law enforcement and domestic violence advocates can help you if you believe a stalking app has been installed on your phone. Check to see if your phone has been "rooted" or "jailbroken." Stalking apps aren't sold through typical app stores. In addition, they usually can be installed only on a phone that has been "rooted" or "jailbroken," which allows a person full control over the phone's operating system. If your phone is rooted or jailbroken and you didn't do it, a stalking app could be installed. "Root checker" apps can quickly tell you whether a phone has been rooted or jailbroken.

Back up your phone. Before making any changes to your phone, consider backing it up, which could help to save any potential evidence of abusive behavior. Local law enforcement may be able to help you to preserve evidence. However, do not sync your backup to a new phone, to prevent the spyware from reinstalling.

Reset your phone. The only way to effectively remove a stalking app from a phone is to reset it and re-install the manufacturer's operating system. Remember that taking any of these steps could tip-off your abuser – especially if you use your phone to research your options, make a call, or have a conversation near your phone. If you are concerned your phone might be monitored, consider leaving it behind when you are seeking help. Do what is best in your particular situation. Want to learn more? Check out our technology tips for domestic violence and stalking victims and the National Network to End Domestic Violence's technology safety tips. Additional help is available through the National Domestic Violence Hotline. If you think you might be in danger right now, call 911.

The tales of Moonshine

Last week after we got through with the fair with my aunt, uncle, and cousins, we got to go to PetsMart and pick out our very own beta fish.

the cub reporter
by benjamin esclack

I got a blue fish that I don't if is a boy or a girl, but I named it Moonshine because it has a moon-shape on the end of its tail. My sister got a red and hot pink one, and she named it Jerry. Hers is a boy, and she really wanted me to name mine Tom.

My fish recently started making a bubble nest, and if it was a female, she would lay her eggs in it. And then the male would guard the eggs.

I like having a fish because when you put your finger on the tank, mine will come up and touch your finger and then it will go on. Mine also has a special trick that it can stick its top fin out of the water like a shark.

Register to vote

If you have become 18 years old this year, moved to the state or changed your address or perhaps have never voted, you have until October 11 to register to vote in the upcoming election. It is a simple process; register online by answering a few questions, request to have a form mailed to you or go in person to the county voter registrar's office. They ask if you are a citizen of the United States, why you are requesting the form, name and address, date of birth and the number on your Texas driver's license or Texas ID or last four digits of your Social Security number. Do this by October 11, and you can vote November 8. The card you receive will indicate the precinct you are allowed to vote in or the voter registrar's office will tell you. Register and vote.

Plan to attend Howardwick's second annual picnic that will be located at the Howardwick City Park on Saturday, October 1, from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. They will be selling hotdogs and hamburgers, you may see a car show, participate in a golf cart/ATV poker run and listen to live music.

The Forest Service will be there to present the Fire Wise program to educate the community to prepare their homes for wildfires along with Smoky the Bear. Fire trucks will be available for kids of all ages to ride around Howardwick, come spend a fun-filled day and support a good cause with all proceeds going to the Howardwick fire department.

Whistle-Stop LEGENDS

Whistle-Stop owners Jordan and Kimberly salute our Weekly Legend...

COL. CHARLES GOODNIGHT

Charles Goodnight accomplished many things in his life, and it is no understatement to say that he permanently impacted the Texas Panhandle.

In addition to his role in early cattle drives, Goodnight opened the Panhandle to ranching and helped establish the famed JA Ranch. He is credited with helping save the American bison, he was a friend to the Indians, and he even produced an early motion picture in the Panhandle! He was a Donley County Commissioner and his name is inscribed on the Courthouse cornerstone, and his invention – the Chuckbox – is the basis for our annual Chuckwagon Cookoff in Clarendon.

The Whistle-Stop and the community salute the memory of Col. Charles Goodnight for his unforgettable pioneer legacy. Thank you, sir!

Clarendon Colts clobber Booker

The Clarendon junior high Colts posted another win when they defeated Booker 44-14 last Thursday night on the road.

Jordan Herndon earned the first six when he took it in from three yards out to set the tempo of the game. Antwan Bassett added the two-point conversion.

They added a long touchdown on a 97-yard run before the first quarter ended with Herndon running in the bonus. Bassett earned the next touchdown on a 12-yard run and then forced a safety after a Bassett fumble recovery to make it 24-0. Bassett got the last score of the half to put the Colts up 30-0 at the break.

In the second half, Herndon caused a fumble, and Jodee Pigg recovered a Booker fumble. Herndon scored again on a 32-yard run with Josiah Howard adding the bonus. Aaron Roys grabbed a Booker kickoff and returned it 70 yards for a touchdown with Howard adding the conversion once again.

"Our outstanding defensive players were Antwan Bassett, Brock Hatley, and Gavin Nazario," coach Brandt Lockhart said. "We did a good job of executing on both sides of the ball. We still need to keep improving on our technique. Overall I was pleased with our effort."

The Colts will have next Thursday off and will take on Lockney at home on Thursday, October 6, at 5:00 p.m.

Drugs in the News
New Type 2 Diabetes Drug Approved by FDA
The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) approved a new injectable prescription therapy for type 2 diabetics called Adlyxin (lixisenatide). It is approved for adults and used in combination with proper diet and exercise. Over five thousand people were treated with the new drug in thirteen clinical trials. According to the company, a reduction in hemoglobin A1C, a measure of blood glucose (sugar) control, was met in all trials. Common side effects reported were nausea, vomiting, and low blood sugar. Type 2 Diabetes occurs when there is an insulin deficiency or when the body cannot use insulin correctly, leading to increased blood sugar. Hormones in the stomach (called glucagon-like peptides or GLP) are also responsible for activating insulin secretion. In type 2 diabetes, this activation is reduced. Adlyxin will stimulate GLP which also slows

Broncos stampede over Booker

By Sandy Anderberg

With their district season looming, the Clarendon Broncos are riding high on the positive momentum they have established in their pre-district schedule.

Making a solid statement in their first six games, the Broncos are in control of their game and district season. According to head coach Gary Jack, no team has gotten a 5-0 start since around 1992. Their 61-0 blowout against Booker has set the tempo and given the Broncos the confidence they need going into the second and most important half of their season.

Up by 35 points after the first eight minutes, the Broncos were able to coast to a big Homecoming win in Bronco Stadium Friday night before a huge crowd of supporters.

Quarterback Damarjae Cortez was unstoppable as he threw for 176 yards going six for seven and knocking down five touchdowns in the first quarter of play. Cortez threw a 41-yard strike to Andy Davis early in the game for the first six with Clay Koetting adding the kick. Keandre Cortez scored next on a 48-yard pass from D. Cortez, and Bryce Grahn caught the D. Cortez pass for two on the conversion. Bear Smith and Jacob Jeffers posted the next two touchdowns on a 37 and 20 yard pass respectively with Koetting adding the kick. K. Cortez struck again when he grabbed a 35-yard pass from D. Cortez to end the first quarter scoring frenzy.

"Damarjae had a great game for us," Jack said. "He threw five touchdown passes in the first quarter and also took the ball in from 75 yards out on the first play of the third quarter. He had a big night."

Koetting scored from six yards out in the second quarter and D. Cortez took it in for the bonus. D. Cortez added the next score on a 75-yard run and Ryan McCleskey added a 10-yard run in the third. McCleskey got the call again in the fourth and took it in from 27 yards out for the last Bronco score.

The Broncos offense went crazy racking up 471 yards with 289 of them on the ground. The Kiowas were helpless in any effort to stop the strength of the Bronco offense.

"Our offensive line did a great job blocking for us," Jack said. "And we've got guys doing a great job catching the ball because of it. Seth Greer, Taylon Knorpp, Isaac Dunham, Justin Christopher, Nick Shadle, Marshal Johnson, and Jacob Jeffers all did a great job. Our offense really clicked."

Booker struggled offensively and only mustered 28 total yards in the game.

"Our defense is playing well," Jack said. "Dalton Benson and Nick Shadle each had 10 tackles, Daquawne Oliver, Jacob Jeffers, and Bear Smith each had seven, and Caton Grahn had six. A lot of guys got a lot of playing time and up and down the board, we did well. Our defense capitalized on mistakes from their offense."

The Broncos will be off this Friday night, but in two weeks, they will begin district play. According to Jack, the district schedule will be a tough one, but he feels the Broncos are ready.

"It was a good homecoming win for us. There were lots of positives and we're pretty excited. We are definitely playing well right now. We are getting better in all phases."

The Broncos travel to Lockney Friday, Oct. 1, with a 7 p.m. kickoff.

Marshal Johnson breaks through the offensive line and tackle the Kiowa's quarterback during the Bronco's Homecoming game last Friday.
