Two Active 4-H Clubs in County

As the school year begins again, so does the new 4-H year. Briscoe County has two very active 4-H clubs: the Silverton 4-H Club and the Valley 4-H Club. Membership in either club is open to any youth age nine through nineteen or in the third grade.

4-H'ers attend regular monthly club meetings where they learn about the different projects available in 4-H. They also learn about conducting meetings, and further develop their leadership and citizenship skills. If you would like more information about joining a 4-H club, call the Briscoe County Extension Office, 823-2131, Ext. 12, or come by the courthouse. The following information is just a sample of what some of these 4-H'ers have already gotten involved in this year.

To help prepare the new officers of the 4-H clubs for their duties, a Leadership Lock-In was held in conjunction with Floyd and Crosby counties. At the lock-in, 4-H'ers learned a little bit more about 4-H, the responsibilities associated with their newly-elected offices, and how to manage the different roles that they are involved in. They also had a great time and got to meet many 4-H'ers from other counties. 4-H'ers from Briscoe County attending were Ashleigh Wyatt, Kevin Womack, Jeremiah Brooks, Sara Kirchoffner, Taylor

Griffin and Michael Reagan.

Southwestern Public Service Marketing Associate Christi Pare recently presented a "Kids' Cooking School." During the cooking school, the youth attending were taught how to prepare simple snacks and dishes, as well as receiving information about safety in the kitchen. This activity usually begins the 4-H Food and Nutrition Project which will begin toward the end of September. Objectives of the Food and Nutrition Project include learning the importance of including foods from each of the basic food groups in the daily diet; understanding the principles of nutrition as they relate to health, physical fitness and appearance; learning about the wide variety of foods and demonstrating skills in planning, purchasing, preparing and serving tasty, attractive and nutritious meals and snacks.

Any youth wishing to participate in the 4-H Food and Nutrition project should call the Extension office today to sign up.

Clothing Record Book Places Sixth at State

The 4-H Clothing Record Book belonging to Ashleigh Wyatt recently has placed sixth at the State 4-H Record Book Judging which was held at College Station in August. The record book won first on the District level and then advanced to the State competition.

Ashleigh's record book contained all of the activities that she has been involved in during the past 4-H year. Some of the highlights of her year included winning first place at the District Fashion Show and advancing to the State Fashion Show, placing second at the State 4-H Roundup with her Clothing Method Demonstration on Recycling, and organizing a Multi-County 4-H Fashion Board.

She also has been involved in numerous leadership roles at the local, county, district and state levels. Her citizenship activities have kept her very involved in learning about doing for others.

New Season Set For Community Concerts

Outstanding musical entertainment will be offered by the Plainview Community Concerts Association during its 1993-94 season.

Cherish the Ladies will open the season on October 28. Formed in 1985 and named for a well-known jig, Cherish the Ladies has performed in concert halls and at major folk festivals throughout the United States, Canada, Great Britain, Europe and Ireland. The group has been featured on National Public Radio and PBS television in North America, as well as BBC and RTE radio and television in Europe. Cherish the Ladies offers brilliant instrumental and vocal abilities, a satisfying mix of traditional music and new compositions, and dramatic choreography.

Their performances—powerful, entertaining and colorful—have earned them loyal followers from coast to coast.

Hungarian Virtuosi Orchestra will perform February 15. Direct from Budapest, Hungary on the River Danube, and steeped in the rich, centuries-old traditions of the virtuosic Hungarian violin style, the Hungarian Orchestra makes their North American debut concert tour in the spring of 1994. Comprised of twenty-three outstanding string players, the Hungarian Virtuosi Orchestra has emerged as one of the most distinctive European ensembles since it was founded in 1988 by graduates of the world-famous Franz Liszt Academy of Music. The ensemble's early success has led to concert tours throughout Europe and the release of several critically-acclaimed recordings.

The Tennesse Waltz will conclude the PCCA season on March 21. Six of Nashville's best pickers back up eight incredible singers/dancers in The Tennesse Waltz, a high-energy, fast-paced show that traces the history of country music from its Appalachian roots to the sounds of today. This fully-staged revue depicts the well-known stars of country music performing the songs that made them famous. Starting with the well-loved gospel harmonies of groups like the Carter family and the singing cowboy stars such as Roy Rogers and The Sons of the Pioneers, the show moves through the golden age of country music from Minnie Pearl, Flat and Scruggs, Hank Williams and Patsy Cline to George Jones, Loretta Lynn and many more. Ending with a tribute to current stars such as Randy Travis, Garth Brooks, Reba McEntire and Kathy Mattea, The Tennesse Waltz is filled with rousing music, tender ballads, comedy and traditional country dancing that will have audiences everywhere clapping and singing along.

All concerts will be in Herral Auditorium on the Wayland Baptist University campus.

Membership is the key to attending Community Concerts, as no single tickets are sold. A membership drive will be conducted September 13-18 with headquarters at the Plainview Chamber of Commerce building, 293-1881.

Memberships are priced at $20.00 adult; $10.00 student; $50.00 family; $30.00 single parent family.

Representing Silverton is Eloise Strange, 823-2042.

SPS Updates Officials On Texas Rate Review

Southwestern Public Service Company said today it continues visits with city officials throughout its Texas service area to update them on a rate hearing scheduled to have begun August 31 in Austin.

"To date we have not been able to reach an agreement relative to our future retail sales," said SPS President Coyt Webb. "But we feel there is a lot of support to get this divisive and expensive process behind us. SPS remains open to settling this case."

"Even though some parties have claimed that SPS is over-earning," Webb said, "SPS, just like most of the people in the area we serve, has had declining earnings. Last year our earnings were at a five-year low, and we won't do much better this year. Also, we think we have contributed to the well-being of our customers during these tough economic times by continuing to lower our rates and by actively pursuing new markets and operating efficiencies."

SPS filed additional testimony in the rate review this week and overall has prepared more than 20,000 pages of information and data. The rate review was initiated by the Public Utility Commission of Texas in October 1992.

"The company has provided answers to more than 2,100 questions submitted by regulators and intervenors," Webb said, "so we are not guessing at costs. SPS has examined every dollar. Based on this most-recent cost-of-service study, if all of SPS's true costs to provide electric service were fully recognized, its average retail rate would increase by about 1%. But we did not initiate a filing to increase rates."

"We have acknowledged that some reduction in electric rates may result as a reflection of today's lower interest rates," Webb said. "But we disagree with the level proposed by other parties. First, the return on equity proposed is much less than what has been recommended for other utilities with much higher rates. And second, we believe it just makes good sense to reward outstanding performance, rather than impose a penalty. SPS's electric rates already are the lowest among all investor-owned utilities in the state."

In addition, the remaining amount of the recommended reduction is based on expense disallowances which SPS believes are not justified. One proposal is to disallow $3 million of SPS's marketing program, such as the promotion of energy efficient heat pumps and presentations by home economics representatives, who demonstrate electric safety and other topics to adults and school children throughout the service area.

"Our efforts to market are directed to providing customers with energy choices and to efficiently utilize our existing generating equipment," Webb said. "These efficiencies help make our unit cost less expensive for all users."

The leve of rate decreases being recommended by some participants in this case is completely unjustified, Webb said.

"Our company wants to remain active in the development and well-being of the communities we serve," he said. "But this will be very difficult to do if some are successful in driving SPS revenues down to the unreasonable levels they propose."

"Hopefully, we can sit down and develop a resolution of this case that can be acceptable to all parties, as we have for the past 15 years," Webb said. "The alternative is a fully-litigated rate case lasting for months, together with all the adversity that develops from such a process."

Tule Lake Golf Club News

First Recruit School in Three Years Offered

Texas Department of Public Safety is accepting applications through September 30, 1993 for its January 1994 recruit school — the first opportunity in three years for men and women who want a law enforcement career to join the agency.

Following 22 weeks of intensive training, successful applicants will be commissioned as state troopers for the Texas Department of Public Safety, charged with enforcing traffic laws on rural Texas highways. Troopers investigate accidents, recover stolen vehicles and other property, seize illegal drugs, apprehend wanted persons and perform a variety of other law enforcement duties.

After four years with the Department of Public Safety, troopers will be able to compete for promotions within the Traffic Law Enforcement Division, which includes services such as Highway Patrol, Drivers License, Safety Education, License and Weight and Motor Vehicle Inspection. Promotional opportunities eventually will be available in other DPS areas, such as Criminal Law Enforcement—Narcotics, Criminal Intelligence, Motor Vehicle Theft, Polygraph and the Texas Rangers.

The Department of Public Safety will consider applicants who are at least 20 years of age and have either 60 hours of college credits or prior military or law enforcement experience. U. S. citizenship, a Texas driver's license and a willingness to accept assignment anywhere in the state also are required. An applicant must successfully complete a written examination, a physical exam, an agility test, oral interviews and a thorough background investigation before being accepted.

The DPS offers state benefits, and a starting salary for trooper-cadets (while in training) of $1,720.78 per month. Following graduation, troopers will be paid $1,982.82 per month, with a raise every six months for the first year. Commissioned officers also receive hazardous duty pay and monthly allowances for meals, uniform cleaning and footwear. Uniforms and equipment are furnished by the Department.

For details on this challenging career opportunity, contact your nearest DPS office.

TWC Adopts Oil Filter Recycling Standards, Rules

Texas Water Commission has adopted new management standards for the recycling of used oil filters. The action culminates several months of public comment and industry input, including a public meeting in June. The rules fulfill the intent of Senate Bill 1340, the Omnibus Recycling Act, which was passed into law in 1991.

These rules, which address the generation, collection, transportation, storage, processing and final disposition of used oil filters, are designed to protect the environment and provide guidelines for the emerging oil filter recycling industry. The rules take effect 20 days after publication in the Texas Register.

It currently is illegal for commercial generators to dispose of used oil filters in landfills in Texas counties with populations of 200,000 or more, and in counties located east of I-35, I-35W and I-37 with populations of 100,000 or more. By December 1, 1993, it will be illegal for commercial generators to dispose of used oil filters in all Texas landfills. On April 1, 1994, the law bans disposal into municipal landfills of used oil filters generated by individuals who change their own oil.

Main elements of the recycling rules include:

- Removal of all free-flowing oil from used filters.
- Proper transportation of used filters, including labeling of containers of used filters, cleanup of any spills during transport and delivery of filters to a registered used oil filter processor or end-user.
- Proper storage of filters in non-leaking, covered containers. For storage of more than three 55-gallon drums, the standards require secondary containment in case of spills.
- Processing of used oil filters in preparation for the recycling of its components, including used oil and steel.
- A provision for a system of documentation to track the transfer of used oil filters through the recycling process. This tracking mechanism is designed to discourage illegal dumping and is subject to future modification.

The regulations are aimed at halting the flow of an estimated 50 million used oil filters buried annually in Texas landfills. The dumping of these used filters fill precious landfill space, threaten water supplies and waste scrap metal.

To lessen the impact on small businesses, the new rules also provide an exclusion from the more stringent storage requirements for persons storing less than three 55-gallon drums of filters; however, these small businesses still are required by the new rules to properly dispose of their used oil filters.

The mission of the Texas Water Commission is to protect human health and the environment. It is the primary agency in Texas responsible for the prevention, control and abatement of water pollution and for the regulation of solid and hazardous waste.

Horseshoeing Craft Thriving

taken from the Valley Town Crier
August 11, 1993

With more horses than any other state, good horseshoers are in demand in Texas. They never lack horses to shoe.

Although he has a degree in agriculture, Roy Dale Wood has been earning his living as a horseshoer for the past 10 years. "It pays better," Wood said. "A good horseshoer can keep busy every day and earn over $35,000 a year."

A newcomer who just moved to the Valley in January, Wood grew up in the Panhandle. He learned to trim hooves and shoe horses on the family ranch near Silverton, between Lubbock and Amarillo.

"Most ranches don't have a lot of horses anymore, some don't even have one," he remarked. "Ranchers hire professional day workers, who furnish their own horses, to come in and work the cattle."

"Most horses are used for pleasure riding these days, and there are more around Houston than any other area in the state. But there are a lot of horses in the Valley, too."

While he was in college, Wood worked for a veterinarian, and also assisted a fellow student who shoed horses. A professional cowboy for a number of years, Wood rode saddle broncs, bulldogged and team roped, as well as taking care of the family ranch.

"I learned a lot from Paul Jones who lived in Silverton at the time. He's a well-known 40-year veteran of the horseshoeing trade. I helped him with rough stock and broncs," Wood, who began horseshoeing for the public in 1982, remarked.

"Proper hoof care and shoeing is as important to your horse as good nutrition."

He has put shoes on horses, ranging in size from miniatures to draft horses and has shod a lot of winning Quarter Horse racers. He also shoes horses for Roy Cooper, eight-time World Champion Calf Roper.

Since man has taken the horse out of its natural environment and conditions, his hooves can't maintain themselves without protection and care. The hooves grow continuously, just as your fingernails do, and should be trimmed regularly.

Most horses need to wear shoes to protect the hoof against excessive wear. Calks or heels on shoes help to keep them from slipping, and shoes can correct faulty gaits.

"People who rodeo, or whose kids rodeo, realize that hoof care is important," Wood commented. "Horses are expensive; they may have $50,000 or more invested in horses and equipment. They know that proper hoof care and shoeing, done on a regular basis, prolongs the lives and usefulness of their horses."

The horse doesn't come to the farrier. Modern-day horseshoers carry their equipment in their pickups or vans and go to the horses. Most have a regular route of customers that they provide hoof care and horseshoeing services for.

"The hoof grows at the same rate, with or without shoes," Wood said, "and in the Valley, they need to be trimmed every six weeks."

"You have to do a good job because of word-of-mouth advertising being the way a horseshoer gets most of his business," he remarked.

"Just one slip of a horseshoeing tool, and you could permanently injure a horse."

Starting at 6:30 a.m., Wood spends his mornings shoeing horses. "It's too hot for the horses in the afternoons," he said.

And how does a farrier shoe a horse? He starts by removing the old shoes, if the horse is shod. Using nippers, he trims off the horn and levels the wall of the hoof. Then he uses a rasp to file the outer wall of the hoof to nearly the same level as the sole. He trims any ragged edges off what is called "the frog."

At the base of the leg, the frog acts as a shock absorber and bears the brunt of the weight, which could be 1250 pounds or more, when it lands on one hoof at a time when the horse runs.

After the hoof is trimmed so the horse stands flat and level, the horseshoer fits the shoe to the hoof and nails it in place.

Nowadays, very few horseshoers use forges like the old-time blacksmiths did. They buy factory-made shoes which come in all sizes. The farrier adjusts the shoe, using a hammer and anvil, to fit the hoof.

"A horseshoer can work all day every day," he remarked. "You get paid for what you do, but if you don't shoe horses, you don't get paid."

Although a horseshoer can earn several hundred dollars a day, it's dangerous work. And Wood has $14,000 worth of steel in his right leg because one horse kicked and broke the top of his femur bone. "I've been kicked many times," he said.

"You have to keep your body in shape and stay healthy to be a horseshoer," Wood, who jogs daily, said.

It does take some physical strength to shoe horses, but there are some women in the field. And not everyone learns by doing. Several schools teach this ancient craft which is becoming more scientific all the time.

"When you're called by a new customer, you never know if the horses will be gentle or wild," Wood said. "Sometimes I've had to tie horses down to shoe them, or use a lip chain as a deterrent to keep from getting kicked. And sometimes I've had to use tranquilizers."

Although he has been traveling back to the Panhandle every six weeks to take care of his customers there, Wood said, "My book here is almost full, and I want to stay in the Valley. So, I'm going to turn my horses in the Panhandle over to a brother and his son who are horseshoers."

Shoes on leisure horses usually last about three months. After six weeks, they need to be removed, the hooves trimmed and the shoes reset. If a horse is being used extensively, shoes may last only four to six weeks. Left on too long, shoes can cause problems.

"Horses are expensive, and proper hoof care and shoeing can help them perform better," Wood remarked.

"Kids who ride or show horses usually aren't involved in drugs and gangs. The youth rodeo associations require kids to make good grades in order to compete."

With the horse population numbering in the millions, horseshoeing is a wide open field. The old saying, "no hoof, no horse," still applies. A good farrier is hard to find, and a knowledgeable horseshoer is the horseman's best friend.

Social Security Number — Do You Have One?

by Mary Jane Shanes
Social Security Office Manager
Plainview, Texas

Everywhere you go, someone is asking for your Social Security number. Many businesses and schools use the Social Security number as an identification number for their records. Employers use the Social Security number to report tax information required by the Internal Revenue Service. And of course we use your Social Security numbers to keep a record of your earnings while you're working and a record of your benefits once you're receiving Social Security checks.

If you want to work, you must have a Social Security number. You probably have one because every child in the United States over the age of one needs a Social Security number to be claimed as a dependent on his or her parent's income tax return.

If you do not have a Social Security number, you must apply for one from Social Security. There is no charge for this service. To apply by telephone, call Social Security's toll-free number, 1-800-772-1213, and ask for a form, SS-5, Application for a Social Security Card. You also may ask for this form at a Social Security office near where you live. If you are 18 or older, you must go to a Social Security office in person to apply.

You must show your birth certificate and some form of identification. You may use a driver's license, school record or medical record as identification. If you're not a U. S. citizen, other documents are necessary to get a number. Check with Social Security for more information.

If you have lost your card, you can get a replacement card by filling out the same form and showing some identification.

You also need to complete the SS-5 form if you have changed your name so you can get a new Social Security card. The new card will have your old Social Security number but will show your new name. You do not get a new Social Security number. You will need an official document that identifies you by both your old name and your new name. For example, a marriage certificate, a divorce degree or a court order that changes your name. You also may have two documents, one which shows your old name, and one which shows your new name.

All documents which you use for identification purposes must be original documents or certified copies of these documents. Uncertified photocopies of these documents are not acceptable. Take or mail the completed SS-5 and the documents to your nearest Social Security office. Your documents will be returned to you right away.

If you have any questions about applying for a Social Security card, or about the documents you need to show us, contact your nearest Social Security office. You also may call Social Security's toll-free number, 1-800-772-1213, business days between 7:00 a.m. and 7:00 p.m. for help.

Public Notice

Southwestern Bell Telephone Company (SWBT) is asking the Public Utility Commission of Texas (PUC) for approval to offer Caller ID service in Texas. This service includes Calling Number Delivery, Calling Name Delivery and Anonymous Call Rejection (ACR). This service will be deployed statewide on a staggered, city-by-city basis, over a period of years in Texas in association with residence, business single and multiline services, but not PBX, Centrex or Plexar services, where facilities are available. Caller ID is an optional service which allows a subscriber to see date, time, and the phone number (Calling Number Delivery) and/or name associated with the number (Calling Name Delivery) of most direct dialed local calls and some select long distance calls before the telephone is answered. Anonymous Call Rejection is a Caller ID service which permits a subscriber to automatically reject calls from callers who have blocked their number/name. Per-call and per-line blocking will be available when the service is deployed. Detailed information on Caller ID service and how to block will be sent to each customer in their telephone bill during the next few weeks.

Persons who wish to intervene or otherwise participate in this proceeding should notify the PUC before October 6, 1993. Other parties may seek to also obtain Caller ID service in association with PBX, Centrex and Plexar service. A request to intervene, participate or receive further information should be mailed to the Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Blvd., Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757. Further information may also be obtained by calling the PUC Public Information Office at (512) 458-0256 or (512) 458-0221, tele-typewriter for the deaf. For information regarding Caller ID service, residence customers should call 1-800-464-7928, and business customers should call 1-800-499-7928.

The High Plains played host to cotton breeders from across the Cotton Belt during the recently-completed 1993 Cotton Incorporated Cotton Breeders Tour.

According to Lubbock-based Plains Cotton Growers (PCG) the Cotton

Incorporated tour visited several area cotton breeding operations. Approximately sixty cotton breeders and Extension personnel attended the tour.

Tour stops included research facilities operated by Cargill, Delta & Pine Land Company, SEEDCO, All-Tex Seed & Delinting, Brownfield Seed & Delinting, and Holland Seed Company. The CI Tour also paid visits to TAES facilities at Halfway and Lubbock to see Dr. John Gannaway's work on behalf of the Plains Cotton Improvement Program (PCIP).

In addition to the High Plains stops, the tour also visited TAES facilities in Pecos and El Paso, and a stop in Las Cruces, New Mexico.

Tour participants were provided information about the various breeding programs and given an opportunity to observe the different techniques employed by High Plains cotton breeders. Of particular interest were the various variety tests that allowed them to see how cotton varieties from other areas perform on the High Plains.

In conjunction with the CI Tour, a "Seed Law Forum" also was held on Wednesday, August 25. The meeting, sponsored by the Texas Seed Trade Association, covered a variety of topics including updates on the Plant Variety Protection Act (PVPA), public seed release policies and the new Texas Seed Performance Arbitration Law.

Reports also were given on potential new cotton crop and seed treatment materials, the PCG High Plains Boll Weevil Control Program and Texas Boll Weevil Eradication plans.

AREA ACTIVITY CALENDAR FILLING UP

According to Plains Cotton Growers, the High Plains will be the scene of several very important events during the coming months.

Events Calendar

- August 28: Plains Ginners Annual Meeting, Lubbock Plaza Hotel
- September 10-12: Cotton Board Annual Meeting, Lubbock, Texas

- September 29: Waste Pesticide Collection, Hereford, Texas
- October 13: Plains Cotton Growers Board of Directors Meeting, Lubbock, Texas
- October 12-14: Texas Farmer-Stockman Show, Lubbock, Texas

EXTENSION TOPICS FOR TODAY

by Ronda Alexander
Briscoe County Extension Agent
Home Economics

Cholesterol Education Month

During September, which is National Cholesterol Education Month, start buying and preparing heart-healthy foods. The foods you eat and the way you prepare them can affect your risk for heart disease. Choose foods lower in saturated fatty acids, total fat, cholesterol and sugar. Following these tips may help you to maintain desired weight and maintain or achieve a recommended blood cholesterol level and blood triglyceride level.

When selecting foods from the meat group, choose poultry, lean meat and fish. When buying red meats, select the leaner cuts with less white or fat in them. You also should trim any excess fat before cooking. Don't forget to remove the skin from poultry products. If you are trying to reduce your cholesterol, you also should limit eggs in your diet. The American Heart Association recommends no more than three whole eggs a week. By substituting two egg whites for a whole egg, you may still have eggs in recipes, while reducing the cholesterol content since the egg whites contain no cholesterol. When cooking meats, you should bake, broil, roast, poach or braise instead of frying to reduce the fat. Avoid adding gravies or sauces containing fat to meats.

Fresh, frozen or canned fruits and vegetables contain no cholesterol and are almost always very low in saturated fatty acids. You should, however, avoid any with added sugar or fat-containing sauces.

Choosing skim, 1/2% and 1% milk, rather than 2% and whole milk, is a much healthier choice to make from the dairy group. Instead of hard cheese, choose low-fat cottage cheese, farmer cheese or pot cheese which are lower in saturated fatty acids. Choose low-fat cheeses that have between two and six grams of fat per ounce. Also remember that you can substitute low-fat or non-fat yogurt for sour cream in recipes or as toppings.

Select liquid vegetable oils that are highest in unsaturated fatty acids such as canola, safflower, sunflower, corn, olive, sesame and soybean oils for use in cooking and in salad dressings. By following these tips for taking control and buying and preparing heart-healthy foods, you may control your risk factors associated with the development of coronary heart disease.

FAITH GIVES CREDIT TO WORK FOR OUR ENVIABLE LIFESTYLE

The work we've done has been the way
We've earned the life we live today.
The farmer with his fields of wheat
Provides the food for us to eat.
The worker in the factory
Assembles with efficiency
Each necessary home appliance
That's conceived by modern science.
Bible passages we've read
Declare that man must earn his bread;
And we've become, by this decree,
A model for the world to see.
Thus, from the way that we've progressed,
Our nation has indeed been blessed.
So on the Sabbath, go and pray,
Then celebrate on Labor Day.

CARD OF THANKS

OUR GRATITUDE TO ALL!
Ewing is home doing well. We were fortunate he did not have a heart attack. He only had a blockage to his heart.

Our daughter, Helen Youngquist, and son, Robert, of Lubbock, came and took us to the emergency room at Methodist Hospital in Lubbock where a new technique was used to remove the blockage.

Our granddaughter, Glenda Nalle, wired a picture of Ewing's heart and the blockage to Arlington to our son, Ronald. He immediately caught a plane and was at the hospital in about one and a half hours.

Modern technology is great, and coupled with prayer is wonderful. We are so grateful for the prayers of the people of our community.

Thank you for the church prayer letters, cards, phone calls and visits, to those who pinned notes to bulletin boards in the waiting room for your prayers, to Bro. Donahoo for your visit to the hospital. To all we are forever grateful. May God bless each of you.

Ewing and Louise

We wish to thank everyone for their prayers, cards, phone calls, visits, flowers and food while I was in the hospital and since I've been home. A special thanks to those who were at the hospital for Glenn's surgery.

We love you,
Glenn and Winnie Smith
