At the Saturday night performance, there will be drawings for a handmade saddle, quilt, spurs, lotto tickets and a 'night on the town'.

There will be dances Friday and Saturday nights at the showbarn, with music by the Blue Denim Band. Dancing will continue from 9:00 p.m. until 1:00 a.m.

Saturday will be the BIG day in Silverton, when booths selling arts and crafts, various foods, toys, games, etc. will be set up around the courthouse square. A band will play underneath the shelter from 1:00 until 3:00 p.m., and there will be a parade through downtown Silverton beginning at 3:30 p.m. A barbecue will be served beginning at 5:30 p.m.

On Friday and Saturday, August 12-13, various activities will be held relating to the Silverton School Homecoming. There will be class reunions and a general meeting at the school on Saturday.

Plan now to be in Silverton during the Celebration. There will be lots of visiting with friends you haven't seen in a while, and lots of fun for everyone. Be here!

Silverton Set to Welcome Physician's Assistant Friday

The people of Silverton are all set to welcome Lee Hegarty, a physician's assistant who is currently practicing in Minnesota, when he arrives here Friday to make a decision on whether he will move here.

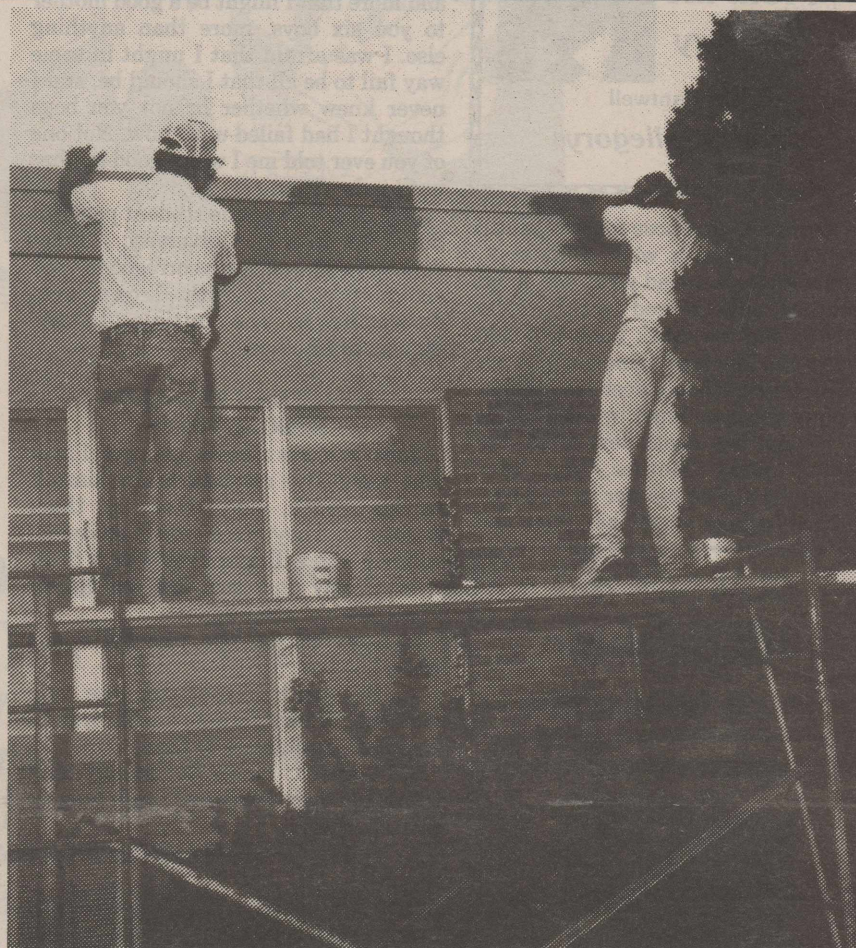

Silverton Chamber of Commerce met with him several weeks ago when he was in Silverton to look over the local medical situation, and will be hosting a hamburger supper for him at Lake Mackenzie Friday at 7:00 p.m. at the group shelter. Everyone is encouraged to attend, meet Hegarty, and enjoy supper in the great out-of-doors. There will be no charge for the meal.

You will be able to help vocalize Silverton's need for a staffed medical facility.

BCAA To Have Meeting at 'Barn

Briscoe County Activities Association will have its regular meeting at 8:00 p.m. tonight (Thursday, July 28) at the showbarn in Silverton.

The rodeo will be discussed, and all members are urged to be there. New members are always welcomed.

A face-lift is being performed on the Silverton School, and Tuesday morning Ralph Hill and Kirk Couch were busy painting trim on the Junior High building. Other school employees also are assisting with the painting of the trim. A new roof is being installed on the school gym. Soon everything will be in readiness for the school homecoming on Saturday, August 13, and the opening of school on Tuesday, August 16.

Football Workouts to Begin Here August 3

Two-a-day football workouts will begin here August 3 at 7:00 a.m. Players who have not begun preparing themselves for the beginning of workouts need to start now, according to Coach Clyde Parham, who agrees that the summer has gone by fast.

Dwain Nix of Cardinal's Sporting Goods will be at the Field House August 3 at 4:00 p.m. He will be selling shoes to Junior High and High School players. There will be samples of four types of shoes to choose from (Nike, Pony, Riddell and Reebok). He will take your size and order your shoes at this time. The shoes are expected to arrive here the following Monday, but you will need to begin practicing the first week in last year's shoes.

Friday, July 29, Dr. Turner of Plainview will give physicals beginning at 12:30 p.m. at the gym. All of those wishing to participate in football, basketball, golf, tennis or track, and are entering Junior High or High School (7th or 9th grade) MUST have a physical. The cost is $14.00 per student.

The football motto for the year will be "You MUST be ready!" "I will explain our motto in further detail later," Coach Parham said. "Enjoy the rest of the summer. Come in prepared to WORK and to WIN!"

All of the pre-season polls have picked the Owls to finish in fourth place

The football motto for the year will be "You MUST be ready!" "I will explain our motto in further detail later," Coach Parham said. "Enjoy the rest of the summer. Come in prepared to WORK and to WIN!"

All of the pre-season polls have picked the Owls to finish in fourth place in District 3-A. "We must WORK HARD to have another great year," the coach concluded.

Riley Harris entered Methodist Hospital in Lubbock last week and is receiving treatment in Room E769. He was feeling better early this week. It was not known when he would be able to return to the Lockney Care Center.

School Supply Lists Needed From Teachers

School supply list updates are needed from the Silverton ISD teachers. Getting this done now will help insure that all items will be available for purchase locally.

The parents have already begun coming to the Briscoe County News for the lists, so in order to give them the proper information, the updates are needed soon.

A Voice From the Country

Earl Cantwell
Gems & Allegorys

"Attention men whose mother is still living . . . Ponder it well!" Charles A. Blanchard wrote. I read years ago about a mother who reared six boys to manhood and her work done had lain down to die. The boys came home to see their mother and her eldest son, a great and powerful man, knelt by her bedside and wiping the death-dew from her forehead said, "Mother, you have always been a good mother to us boys." The tired woman closed her eyes, and great tears pushed out under the lids and ran down her wasted cheeks. Then she opened her eyes and looked searchingly into the face of her first-born and said, "My boy, I prayed more and more that I might be a good mother to you six boys, more than anything else. I was afraid that I might in some way fail to be all that I should be, and I never knew whether or not you boys thought I had failed until now. Not one of you ever told me I was a good mother until today."

A mother's ad in the student paper at Southern Illinois University: "Sweet little old lady wishes to correspond with six foot student with brown eyes answering to the initials J.D.B." Signed, his mother.

JONATHAN EFWARD'S RESOLUTIONS

Jonathan was a great and useful man who made five resolutions for himself in his youth, and lived by them faithfully. They were worth studying. Anyone who will adopt and follow them will greatly increase his usefulness. These are his resolutions.

1. Resolved: To live with all might while I do live;
2. Resolved: Never to lose one moment of time, but to improve it in the most profitable way I can;
3. Resolved: Never to do anything which I should despise or think meanly of in another;
4. Never to do anything out of revenge.
5. Resolved: Never to do anything which I should be afraid to do if it were the last hour of my life.

GUIDELINES FOR THE VERY YOUNG

The Boston School committee directed that the following commandments be read biweekly to pupils in grades seven through twelve.

1. Don't let your parents down; they've brought you up;
2. Stop and think before you drink;
3. Be smart, obey! You'll give orders some day;
4. Show-off driving is juvenile; don't act your age;
5. Ditch dirty thoughts fast or they will ditch you;
6. Pick right friends to be picked for a friend;
7. Choose a date fit for a mate;
8. Don't go steady unless you're ready;
9. Love God and neighbor;

10. Live carefully; the soul you save may be your own . . .

OUR CHILDREN

Children are a poor man's riches . . . The more children's fingerprints in the home, the fewer on police records . . . Good manners require a good deal of time, as does wise treatment of children . . . The unchurched child is tomorrow's criminal . . . Child by child we build a nation . . . Letter to the Editor

Dear Editor,

I received two nice letters this week as result of my letter which you published recently about the death of high school mate, Jack O'Neal. His wife wrote me and said Jack had told her about his high school chemistry experiment that went astray. She said she knew little else of his school days. Perhaps some other of his classmates could add to her knowledge. If so,

please write to:

Mrs. Lu Ann O'Neal
107 Driftwood
Fredericksburg, TX 78624

The second letter was from Mrs. Winnie Redin, my third grade teacher. She and many other teachers in the Silverton School System, really worked hard to give me and others the best education possible. I really appreciate the doors they opened for me and I am sure many others feel the same way.

I am enclosing a poem that my grandson, Alden Sanders Crow, wrote and sent me a copy. I am also enclosing other poems my wife's mother, C. May Cohea, wrote so you may see where his talent originated. Mrs. Cohea is deceased, but lived in Amarillo many years.

Sincerely,
John H. Crow

WYATT EARP
by Alden Crow
Sixth Grade

Dodge City was a town in trouble

They needed a marshal on the double
Wyatt Earp, all the men said
Had a very level head
Wyatt was one they chose
On the job he did not doze
One thing Wyatt always said
Is that outlaws need to be hit in the head
Wyatt never shot any of them
Because he hated a requiem
He kept the peace so well in Dodge City
All other officers were looked on with pity

When Wyatt needed to be helped out
His brother Morgan came about
When Dodge City calmed down
He thought it was time to leave the town

As the story was told
Wyatt went in search for gold
In Cheyenne he couldn't see the gold glow

Because of fluffy, two feet snow
He did not know where to go
So he guarded stages for Wells Fargo
From Dodge he got word, somehow
They needed him right now

On his way
He met Doc Holliday

When he got back
He gave crooks no slack
When Dodge quieted he had flown
With Doc and his horse to Tombstone
There with his brothers he mined
But nothing at all did they find

So a job he took
Trying to catch a crook
He got so much trouble from Curly Bill
It almost made him ill

He had to use his gun
But he didn't find it fun
At the O.K. corral he fought
His brother Morgan got shot

Wyatt just got a scratch
And Doc's hat needed a patch
A few weeks later the crooks got
His brother Virgil with a buck shot

Then he and Doc had to go
To the state of Colorado
Forty-seven years later Wyatt died
But he still had his pride

THE HOMECOMING

by May Cohea
First Place Panhandle General

They were all there—Dave and Julie and Clem—

Just as she'd planned for them
So many times at Christmas and Thanksgiving,
When she had stood until her limbs
were numb,

And watched for them to come,
There at the window. They were so busy living;

They just forgot, tho, after, they'd repent—

And each time they had sent
Her presents, and sometimes a hurried letter,
Even now, they had not meant to come too late—

Intended but to wait
The word that she was growing worse, or better.

But on her face, I thought, was no
reproof

That they had held aloof
So long—the waiting now was in the past—

They were to her once more as lass and lad;

She seemed to smile, so glad,
I thought she knew that they had come at last.

Local Campers Enjoy Texas Elks Camping

This past week, Jason Dewayne Gamble and Edwin Joseph Aulbach attended the Texas Elks Camp in Ottine. The camp is located between Luling and Gonzales next to Palmetto State Park. The camp's primary purpose is to serve children who have special needs. The boys had the opportunity to participate in all types of activities such as swimming, fishing, arts and crafts, hiking, athletics, field trips, nature studies, outdoor camping, campfire singing, cookouts, and therapeutic horseback riding.

The camp is free for qualifying youngsters, courtesy of the Texas Elks Children's Services, a statewide project of the Texas Elks. Texas Elks Camp meets or exceeds all standards set by the American Camping Association.

The camp staff is composed largely of college graduates with degrees in recreational therapy or in related social sciences. Most have worked with camps before and all have been chosen based on their abilities to work hard and care for children with special needs.

Family Enjoys Tour

July 4, Elvin and Dorothy Norris of Safford, Arizona, arrived in Silverton. Early July 5, Ed and Ann Norris, Charlie and Fern Parker and Elvin and Dorothy boarded "Ole Yeller" headed for Bayse, Virginia. First night was spent in Russellville, Arkansas. After breakfast, they traveled on to Bristol, Virginia-Tennessee, one of those cities located in two states. Up early, on the road to Cordova, Tennessee, home of Martin, Kelly, Megan and Krista Norris (Elvin and Dorothy's granddaughters).

Martin took the group on a tour of Memphis, first to Graceland where a look over the fence was sufficient in that corner of the world where Elvis lives. Then a trip down Beale Street and historic Memphis. The following day included a hairy drive through Nashville, a stop for the girls to tour The Hermitage, home of Andrew Jackson, then on to Bayse in the Shenandoah Valley and a mountain resort called Bryce which was home for a few days with day trips to various points.

Saturday the group took a trip to Richmond and toured the Monticello home of Thomas Jefferson. Sunday, they toured Mt. Vernon, home of George Washington, then the Manassas museum. Monday, Elvin's friend, Col. Parker Thompson, met the group for breakfast in Winchester, and gave a guided tour of the city including the home of Stonewall Jackson. After dropping off Parker at his home, the group went on to Harper's Ferry, then to a guided tour of the Antietam Battlefield.

Tuesday they traveled to Washington, D. C. where the first stop was at the Visitor's Center in Fairfax, Virginia. They experienced city transportation to the D. C. Mall and joined a tour that made stops at the Washington Monument, Jefferson Memorial, Lincoln Memorial, Vietnam Wall, Arlington National Cemetery to watch the changing of the guards. They viewed the rest of the grounds from the tour bus window. Next on the agenda was Gettysburg. The group watched a map light show of the battle followed by a two hour tour of the battlefield and a trip through the museum. On to Hershey, Pennsylvania to Chocolate World.

After a short night's rest, the group began their journey home. They made a stop at Lexington to go to the burial sites of General Lee and Stonewall Jackson.

Entire Children's Home Visits in Silverton

Many families in Silverton had the pleasure of sharing a wonderful weekend with visitors from Gallup, New Mexico. All of the residents of the Manuelito Children's Home spent last weekend in Silverton as part of a vacation trip to Arkansas. There were thirty children and eight adults who visited in the homes of O. C. and Faye Rampley, J. L. and Faye Self, Jerry and Brenda Patton, Ted and LaVern Kingery, Dick and Joan Roehr, Tom, Deb and Donny Burson, and Gary, Cathey, Leslee and Lindsey Weaks.

The activities of the weekend included Sunday morning worship services with the singing being led by Mitchell Gray and the sermon being delivered by Norris Thomas, one of the houseparents. The local congregation and guests then enjoyed a delicious lasagne luncheon in the Church of Christ annex. During the evening services, Mike Gray, Home Superintendent, presented slides and a report of the activities of the children during the past year. Following the services, a hamburger cook-out was enjoyed by all present. A highlight of the evening was the making of homemade root beer by O. C. and Faye Rampley.

Early Monday morning, everyone gathered back at the annex for a delicious breakfast of pancakes, sausage and ham before bidding goodbye to the group as they departed for Oklahoma City, the second stop on their journey. The group will be back in Silverton Friday for an overnight stop before returning to Gallup.

Briscoe County 4-H'er Attends Electric Camp

Ashleigh Wyatt, a Briscoe County resident, recently participated in an electricity camp sponsored by Southwestern Public Service Company. More than 125 4-H'ers from throughout the Texas South Plains attended the camp June 27-July 1 at Camp Scott Able, near Cloudcroft, New Mexico.

Students had opportunities to build their own "hands-on" projects. They also participated in demonstrations and lectures on basic electricity, safety, wiring and electrical terminology.

County agents and SPS employees served as advisers and instructors.

Southwestern Public Service Company is a regional electric utility that primarily provides electric service to a population of about one million people in a 52,000-square-mile area comprising eastern and southeastern New Mexico, the South Plains and Panhandle of Texas, the Oklahoma Panhandle and southwestern Kansas. Corporate headquarters is in Amarillo, Texas.

Saving Money on Your Insurance

BY J. ROBERT HUNTER

Texas Insurance Commissioner

"Life Insurance Basics"

Maybe a TV commercial piqued your interest or maybe you're a new parent with a mailbox full of ads from agents. Suddenly you're asking yourself: Do I need life insurance? If so, how much, and what kind?

Life insurance may be complex but its purpose is simple: to protect dependents from hardship if a breadwinner dies prematurely.

This means you usually don't need life insurance unless somebody else depends on you for support or if you have assets sufficient to protect loved ones.

How much life insurance do you need? One rule of thumb for a family with two children is five times your yearly salary. If you want a more sophisticated approach, try the worksheets in the July 1993 Consumer Reports.

There are two types of life insurance — "term" and "cash value" (including whole life). Because there is no cash-value buildup and agent commissions are low, term gives several times more protection for your premium dollar than cash value life. Most people should buy term because you can afford to buy a lot when you need it — when the babies come.

Term life is so called because it is good only for a "term" of one, five, 10, 15 or 20 years. You can convert most term policies to cash value life without further proof of good health. Term life prices vary widely, so get several quotes before buying.

The most common type is annual renewable term. You buy it a year at a time, and it is guaranteed renewable — even if your health has declined. A disadvantage is the premium increases each year. A $100,000 policy that costs you $135 a year at age 30 might cost you $205 at age 45 and $550 at age 60.

Some companies offer low initial rates for annual renewable term but increase them steeply in future years. Ask the agent: What will this policy cost in five years or 10 years?

Annual renewable term might become too expensive as you age but most folks need less as the kids grow up and graduate. When you retire, you should need no life insurance if you have made appropriate retirement savings.

Level term life insurance has appeal if you want to avoid rapidly rising premiums in your middle years.

A level term policy covers you for five, 10, 15 or 20 years with no change in premium. Unlike annual renewable term, these policies often are not guaranteed renewable. You must pass a physical to renew it, and your premium will be higher on renewal.

One last word: Agents may push you to buy cash value life. Stand firm for term if you need the most protection for the fewest dollars.

Next month: Cash-Value Life Insurance

Cantwells Enjoy Having Home Filled With Children

Elton and Lanita Cantwell had a houseful of shouting, laughing and singing when their grandchildren came to visit. There were piano concerts and lots of fun.

Cally and Cameron Burk came from Raton, New Mexico on July 10 and were joined by Devin and London Cantwell of Amarillo Tuesday through Friday.

Soon after the Cantwell children returned to their home, Brenda, Holly Beth and Daniel Gaskins of Ropesville arrived. Debbie Burk came Saturday. On Monday, the home grew very quiet when Debbie left with her children and the Gaskins children for New Mexico and Brenda Gaskins also returned to her home.

The Cantwells still think grandchildren are GRAND, and "blessed is he who has a quiver full." (adapted)

Seniors Go To Camp

No, this is not about seniors in high school or Senior 4-H'ers going to camp. "Hats Off To Seniors Camp" is a camp for senior adults who want to energize and entertain themselves through educational and recreational programs.

The cost to attend the camp is determined by the accommodations you choose: single occupancy, $160; double occupancy, $140 per participant; triple occupancy, $130 per participant; TV hookups, $15 per night plus $90 per day fee per occupant fee. Starting a Business
At Home?

by Terry Richardson
Social Security Office Manager
Plainview, Texas

You've said goodbye to the gang down at the office and now you're starting your own business. And you're operating it from your home. No more rush-hour traffic. No boss looking over your shoulder. You're on your own!

Whether it's a lifetime career change or just a short-term venture to help you care for your children or an aged or ailing parent, you'll need to follow some basic business reporting rules. No matter what kind of business you're operating, you'll have to pay Social Security taxes. When you work for someone else, your employer pays half of the Social Security taxes and the other half is withheld from your pay. When you're on your own, you pay all of the tax.

Now that you're self-employed, it's important to keep your Social Security reporting current. As you earn money and pay Social Security taxes, you're earning credits to qualify for Social Security benefits. (You'll need 40 credits to be eligible for retirement.) You may think it will be years before you'll collect Social Security, but it could come sooner than you expect. If you should become disabled, you and your family could collect monthly benefits. Or if you die, your family members could be eligible to collect survivors benefit. But if your Social Security taxes aren't current, you and your family could be ineligible for benefits.

For more information about reporting self-employment income, call SSA's toll free number, 1-800-772-1213 and ask for a copy of the factsheet entitled If You're Self-Employed. Or you can pick up a copy at your local Social Security office.

CAPITOL COMMENT

U.S. SENATOR
KAY BAILEY HUTCHISON

Regulators are Threatening
Texans and Their Rights

Texans, be wary. Your property rights are under assault by the federal government. Washington wants to regulate matters as basic as whether a city can pump water to someone's house. Protection of plants and animals has been given a priority over people, thanks to ill-considered federal laws and regulators.

One high profile case can be found in South-Central Texas. The single supply of water for the city of San Antonio is the Edwards aquifer. But changes in the aquifer level could adversely impact certain animals, such as blind salamanders, in violation of the Endangered Species Act.

Instead of allowing state and local citizens and elected officials to resolve the problem, the U.S. Justice Department stepped in. Citing a technicality in yet another federal law, the Department of Justice rejected Texas' plan, approved by the state Legislature, to regulate the aquifer. So, claims the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, the 69 federal agencies doing business in the aquifer region must protect these species.

Just think about this. The federal government can stop the flow of water to anyone who owns property. Farmers may not be able to grow crops. Land development will be stymied. Homeowners may see their water service drastically curtailed. And all this because people in Washington believe that some amount of water taken out of Edwards aquifer will permanently harm these salamanders — a claim that no study conclusively supports.

We simply cannot allow unelected bureaucrats from Washington to take over decisions the should be reserved to the people and their elected representatives.

Burdensome mandates, as dictated on the federal level, are not confined to the San Antonio area. In a 20.5 million acre area of Central and Southwest Texas, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service is preparing to designate all or parts of 33 counties as protection areas. The reason? To protect a bird called the golden-cheeked warbler.

If this proposal is adopted, businesses would be discouraged from forming and expanding, workers could lose jobs, and property-owners would be at risk. Any development judged as adverse to the golden-cheeked warbler would be prohibited by the government. Landowners, whether individuals or businesses, would in many cases be required to get formal federal approval to clear or develop property.

As Congressman Lamar Smith has noted, such a plan could wreak havoc on area businesses. "Left unclear is whether anyone in the (U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service) has taken time to consider the economic impact on (these) 33 counties," he said. "It could be devastating."

These developments infringe on individual property rights in violation of the Constitution. Needless to say, the federal regulators will not pay for the damage or economic disruption caused by their actions. But the 5th Amendment prohibits that "private property be taken for public use without just compensation."

One of the greatest challenges facing us as a society is ensuring that mankind can make progress in harmony with its environment. Striking this balance is not always easy. It will take a concerted effort on all levels of government and cooperation between the public and private sectors. One thing, however, is clear: we must find ways to achieve that balance without trampling on individuals' constitutional rights.

No Increase in Denials Seen in Proposed Disability Process

by Terry Richardson
Social Security Office Manager
Plainview, Texas

A recurrent theme in the public comments on Social Security's proposed re-engineering of its disability program is the fear that the new process will result in the denial of benefits to more people. A number of persons asserted that the change in the process will effectively change the definition of disability. I would like to address this issue today.

For any of the more than two million people who file disability claims each year, the process is a bureaucratic marathon. From the beginning, their claim is shuffled from one decision-maker to another—more than 26 persons are apt to review an initial claim. The applicant may not get a chance to see the decision-maker until the third level of appeal. The process currently averages 155 days from an applicant's first contact with Social Security until the initial decision and as long as two years for people who pursue appeals through the administrative process.

The intent of the proposed disability plan is to streamline the process to arrive at accurate decisions faster. It will not change the definition of disability, only the process by which the disability decision is reached. People who meet the definition of disability in the law—who have a mental or physical disability which is expected to keep them working for a year or more or to result in death—will still qualify for benefits. People who do not qualify will not have to wait an unreasonably long period to find out.

A major change calls for putting the claim in the hands of a disability claims examiner who will control the file until a decision is made on the claim. The plan permits a hearing and an opportunity to present more evidence before a decision. A new, simplified "index of impairments" will replace the current complex "listing of impairments" to permit earlier decisions. By assisting the claimant in every possible way with the information and services needed to pursue a claim, we hope to reduce the amount of time it takes to get an initial decision to less than 40 days.

Some have questioned whether the simplified index of impairments will result in denying more people. It shouldn't. The index will be used only to allow an individual; it will not provide the basis for denying a claim. Claims by individuals who do not meet the criteria in the index will be decided at the next step of the evaluation process, which is based on an assessment of the individual's ability to function.

The new process makes it possible to decide some claims faster by focusing on the real issues in a claim. For example, in conducting an initial claims interview, the disability claims manager will be able to quickly determine whether an individual is working and whether the claimant has a medically determinable impairment that does not meet the criteria of the index. Thus, from the beginning, the disability claims manager will be able to focus the interview on obtaining information and evidence necessary to decide the claim at the next step of the process and explain to the claimant how we will make that decision at that step.

Also, we would expect that individuals who are correctly allowed under the current listings would be so severely impaired that we would allow them at the next step in the new process in which we assess their ability to function sufficiently to perform substantial work. In other words, any applicant who would qualify under the present process is likely to qualify under the proposed process. The difference is that he/she will find the experience a great deal less complicated and traumatic.

Less than 5 percent of the total annual health care expenditures are invested in efforts to PREVENT causes of death including alcohol, tobacco, and other drug use.

ASBESTOS MANAGEMENT

A federal law called the Asbestos Hazard Emergency Response Act (AHERA) now requires each school to conduct inspections to determine if asbestos is present in any buildings. If asbestos is found, it is evaluated by a specially trained, certified individual to determine if it poses a hazard. If a hazard does exist, the school must plan specific actions to eliminate the hazard. Procedures must also be adopted to ensure that the condition of nonhazardous asbestos does not change in any way which would create a hazard.

This school district has concluded an asbestos inspection, and we are able to tell you that asbestos was found in the following buildings: Silverton Elementary, Silverton Cafeteria and Home Ec. and Silverton Jr. High. The form and condition of this asbestos indicate that it is not hazardous, but special operations and maintenance procedures will be used to ensure this remains true. Periodic surveillance and reinspection by certified personnel will be used to verify that the material remains nonhazardous. Asbestos with some hazard potential was found in the following buildings: Silverton Field House, Silverton High School and Silverton Gymnasium. The district has adopted a specific plan and timetable for implementation to eliminate any possible hazard.

The inspection information and the plan for dealing with any potential hazard that may exist are all detailed in our asbestos management plan, prepared by the Texas Association of School Boards. This document is available for your inspection at Silverton ISD, Office of Superintendent of Schools, Silverton, Texas. If you have questions about the plan, you may contact: Superintendent, Silverton ISD.

The introduction to the management plan provides a good overview of asbestos and the circumstances under which it can be a hazard. We hope you will take time to read it so you will better understand some of the procedures you may see in use in district buildings. The regulations governing asbestos are very stringent. We are required to use some of these procedures to reduce to an absolute minimum even the remotest possibility of asbestos contamination. Such procedures, however, together with the management plan, are evidence that this district intends to fully comply with all federal and state asbestos requirements and that your school board and administrators have no greater priority than the health and welfare of the students and staff members entrusted to their care.

QUESTIONS TO THE CLEAN TEXAS
2000 HOTLINE: 1-800-64-TEXAS

Q: Our washing machine is on its last legs. We've heard that front-loading machines, even though they cost more, will actually save us water, energy and money in the long run. Do you have any information about them?

A: Your information is correct. Front-loading machines use roughly one-third less water and energy than top loaders. As bonuses, they also require less detergent and their spin cycles remove more moisture from clothes than top loaders, reducing the time and energy needed for drying. A major national chain store estimates an average family can save 5,000 gallons of water annually with a front loader. A consulting company connected to the respected Rocky Mountain Institute says that if you wash 300 loads a year, a front loader will save you $100 each year. If your water or energy rates are higher than average, you would save even more. Front loaders are harder to find and they are significantly more expensive than top loaders, but the price should drop as demand increases. Even if you only wash three loads a week, your $50 annual savings would pay you back well before the normal life expectancy of the machine is over.

Q: What should I do with pressure-treated lumber that I can no longer use?

A: The best solution for getting rid of pressure-treated wood is to find someone else who can use it, because frankly, none of the disposal choices are very good. Pressure-treated lumber contains chemicals that are forced deep into the wood fibers to preserve the wood against insects and rot. That's why it's popular choice for decks, fence posts and other outdoor projects. The commonly used chemicals are chromated copper arsenate and pentachlorophenol—both of which are toxic. If you're working with treated lumber, even if you're just pulling nails out of old boards you want to throw away, wear gloves and a dust mask and clean up your sawdust. Potential willing takers of your excess treated wood are organizations like Habitat for Humanity, which builds housing for low-income people. A high school woodworking or carpentry class might want your wood, or you could try a nearby carpenter who might be able to use the wood for repairs. Don't be tempted to burn it in your stove or fireplace because of the release of toxic metals and chemicals.

Board members of the Lubbock-based Plains Cotton Growers unanimously approved a new operating budget for the 25-county producers organization at its July 13 directors meeting in Lubbock.

The PCG board approved a budget totaling $319,950 for fiscal year 1994-95, which began July 1.

In presenting board members with the recommendations of the PCG Finance Committee, Chairman Don Langston congratulated the PCG staff for trimming approximately $25,000 from budgeted expenditures during the previous year.

In addition to approving the new operating budget PCG board members also heard reports on the status of PCG's two ongoing projects: the High Plains Boll Weevil Control Program and the Plains Cotton Improvement Program.

Reports also were given detailing the status of several important pieces of agricultural legislation by PCG President Frank Jones and Executive Vice President Donald Johnson. Among the topics discussed were Federal Crop Insurance Reform, the plant Variety Protection Act and the USDA Reorganization Bill.

"Right now there are several pieces of legislation being considered by Congress that will have a significant effect on the manner in which farmers are allowed to do business and the manner in which USDA farm programs are delivered," says PCG President Frank Jones. "Farmers and agribusiness people across the High Plains have a vested interest in the outcome of the many legislative issues currently being considered."

The board of directors and staff of Plains Cotton Growers are dedicated to serving the interests of the High Plains cotton industry, adds Jones. Without such an organization, the High Plains cotton industry would have not have a way to ward off potentially-damaging new legislation or overly burdensome new regulations.

In other business the PCG board approved President Frank Jones to represent the organization at the upcoming National Cotton Council, Cotton Incorporated, and Cotton Board Caucus to be held in Dallas on August 5.

Rounding out action taken by the PCG board was the selection of new members to the PCG Nominating and Executive Committees. According to PCG's by-laws, the Nominating Committee is composed of the organization's three most-recent past presidents and four members elected from the PCG board. Current PCG officers are not eligible to serve on the Nominating Committee. The PCG executive committee is made up of the current PCG officer corps, the two most recent past presidents and one member selected from each of PCG's six districts.

Nominating Committee members for 1994-95 are PCG Chairman Wayne Huffaker, Past Presidents Larry Nelson and Steve Verett, Castro County Director Kevin Riley, Hale County Director Ronnie Hopper, Lubbock County Director Rex McKinney and Dawson County Director Lloyd Cline.

Members of the 1994-95 executive committee are PCG President Frank Jones, Vice President Jackie Burris, Secretary-Treasurer Don Langston, Board Chairman Wayne Huffaker and Past President Larry Nelson. District representatives on the PCG executive committee are District 1-Mark Williams, Parmer County; District 2-No member selected; District 3-Dan B. Smith, Floyd County; District 4-Benny Robertson, Dickens County; District 5-Rickey Bearden, Yoakum County; District 6-Wesley Butchee, Gaines County.

Lubbock will be the site of an "Economics of Defoliation" seminar July 28 in the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center Theater. The free seminar is being sponsored by Miles, Inc. along with Texas Tech University, the Texas Agricultural Extension Service and the Texas Department of Agriculture.

Up to four continuing education units are available for producers attending the seminar. Registration for the seminar is scheduled to begin at 8:30 a.m. July 28.

Help Your Heart

Before Packing Picnic Basket, Learn About Cholesterol

Before you pack that picnic basket this summer, think about cholesterol.

You've probably heard of it. You know it's something to be concerned about. You may even know it can be more dangerous than those nagging ants you'll run into at the park.

So what is it?

Cholesterol is a soft, fatty substance that flows in your blood.

Your body produces what is called blood cholesterol. It's found in foods that come from animals, such as meats, poultry, fish, seafood and dairy products.

There's good and bad cholesterol. It travels in your bloodstream attached to special carriers called lipoproteins. The good cholesterol is the high density lipoprotein (HDL). Doctors think it carries extra cholesterol away from your arteries. A high level of HDL helps protect you from a heart attack. If you have too much of the bad cholesterol — low density lipoprotein (LDL) — it can build up on the inner walls of the arteries. This can clog the arteries to your heart and increase your risk of a heart attack.

To lower your bad cholesterol, eat more low-fat, low-cholesterol foods and cut down on high-fat foods, especially those high in saturated fatty acids (primarily those from animals such as meats, whole milk dairy products and commercially prepared baked products). Palm, palm kernel and coconut oils are also high in saturated fatty acids. So eat more:

- Fruits, vegetables, breads and cereals
- Turkey, chicken (without the skin) and fish — roasted, baked, grilled or broiled

- Skim or low-fat milk, low-fat cheese and margarine

You should also eat less:

- Eggs, fried foods and creamy gravy
- Fatty meats, hot dogs, sausage and bacon
- Whole milk, cream, cheese and butter

Following these American Heart Association tips will help you have a hearty — and healthy — picnic. For more information, contact your local AHA or call 1-800-AHA-USA1 (1-800-242-8721).

Millions Available in Special Funding For Texas Transportation

Would your community benefit by having a historic property rehabilitated? Maybe your town could profit by having landscaping and other scenic beautification projects. How about revitalization of your downtown area? These are just three possibilities of many transportation enhancement categories available for special funding.

The Intermodal Surface Transportation Efficiency Act of 1991 allowed $180 million to help fund special projects in communities across Texas. Historically, there has been low interest in West Texas and the Panhandle since the inception of the program. The $180 million will be consumed over a course of six years, which means time is running out. Communities in other areas of Texas have benefitted greatly. Some projects funded include rehabilitation and operation of historic transportation buildings, structures and facilities. Facilities could include old railroad stations, historic airports such as those used in training bases in World War II, or even the construction of bicycle and pedestrian paths.

Categories are not simply limited to "Planes, Trains and Automobiles!" Other categories for funding might include projects to control and remove outdoor advertising, archaeological planning and research or mitigation of water pollution due to water runoff.

During the first round of submissions from various communities across Texas, 291 projects were found eligible out of 339 received. Out of this group, 112 were selected for funding in which approximately $98 million was awarded. The program is cost-reimbursable up to 80%. Remaining costs must be paid with funds provided locally.

The first call for project proposals was issued in August 1993. The second call began May 18 and ends August 16, 1994. A third call for project proposals will be issued in the near future. For information concerning this program, contact Sterling Brooks, Public Information Officer, Childress District, Texas Department of Transportation (TxDOT), 817-937-2571.

He that will have his son have a respect for him and his orders, must himself have a great reverence for his son.

BAD HABITS MAY BE FUN,
 BUT WE PAY THE PRICE LATER

Many of us, because of job stress, family problems, or just being "one of the gang," have fallen into the trap of tobacco, alcohol or some other drug, and have become addicted. "I can quit any time I want to," we say, but some of us never seem to want to. "It's fun." "I enjoy it." "It calms my nerves." "It makes me feel happy." Maybe it is fun now, but we will eventually have to pay the price in permanent damage to the heart, lungs, liver, brains, and worst of all, our unborn children. And speaking of children, we should teach them to shun these things, before it's too late. Prevention is a lot easier than trying to stop, once we're "hooked." Your clergyman can be of great help in this situation, so have a talk with him. It's a vital first step.
