THE CONSTITUTION

The people of Haskell county have been interested in recent discussion of the Supreme Court's decision in regard to the NRA and have been hearing suggestions that the Constitution be amended in order to give to the Federal government undisputed power to deal with social and economic questions.

Inasmuch as the issue will no doubt be directly before us in the course of the next few years it might be well to understand a few things about the Constitution, the Courts and the government. The right to amend the document of our liberty is as valuable as the instrument itself and no founder of our government ever intended to deny to the people that privilege.

It is the function of the Supreme Court to interpret the Constitution and apply it in relation to new laws. That this was done in the NRA case cannot be doubted, nor does any person have the right to assail the judges because of their interpretation of interstate commerce.

It is, none the less, the right of the President, or of any political group in this country, to propose amendments to the Constitution, and no one has any particular ground for criticism when such amendments are proposed. The sanctity of the Constitution is acknowledged when change is proposed through constitutionally provided methods.

It is, lastly, the right of the people of the United States, acting as provided by law, to amend, abolish, or alter their Constitution. Whenever the required number of citizens of this republic believes that their welfare would be better safeguarded by such changes it is their right to act and no one should criticise or attempt to abridge that right which is of vital importance. The Constitution is a great document of liberty only so long as it serves human needs and whenever it fails to do so refor mis imperative.

In this discussion we take no position in regard to the coming battle over widening the powers of the Federal government. Those who believe in the Constitution will be divided on the two sides of the debate; those who are against the Constitution will be advocating something besides a constitutional amendment.

UNHEEDED WARNINGS

One of the most amazing facts about modern life is that the great loss of life through various kinds of accidents seems to make no impression upon the general public. The World War casualty list horrifies us and impels us to work for the prevention of another such halocaust, but we seem to be entirely indifferent to the fact that a much greater toll is being taken each year in accidents which might easily be avoided. The automobile has become the greatest death dealer in the accident list, but drivers continue to take every chance, with an inevitable percentage of fatal results. The same is true of other practices which take their grim toll of human life. Persons who take every precaution to guard their property and their health immediately throw caution to the winds when they get their hands on a steering wheel and positively invite disaster through failure to observe the most elementary cautions. The jaywalker is equally reckless. willingly taking the chance of being run down and maimed or killed merely to save a few moments of time. Those who are disregardful of other hangers help to swell the harvest of deaths which reaches a staggering total each year. And the most lamentable part of it all is that no amount of warning appears to have any appreciable effect.

AFTERMATH OF A FOLLY

The chain letter craze seems to have had an even shorter life than the miniature golf fad, which previously had held all records for briefness of popularity. And the last flareback of the dying craze is having unfortunate results for the luckless mail carriers. A great many people sent out dimes, dollar bills, or whatnot, at the tail end of the craze, at a time when it was mathematically impossible for them to reap the gains they had anticipated. They sat back and waited for the harvest. When it didn't come in, they began to blame the postmen. An official of the National Association of Letter Carriers reports that disappointed chain letter senders are actually acusing postmen of abstracting moneyladen envelopes and keeping the money for themselves. The charge is too absurd for discussion, of course. But it isn't much more crack-brained than the whole chain letter idea was in the first place.

TO REVEAL WHISPERS

The Senate has passed a bill requiring all persons who receive pay for trying to influence national legislation or the work of national government departments to register their names with the government in Washington. If the House concurs, the measure will become law, and all Washington lobbyists will have to be registered. The work of the lobby will go on, of course, even if this bill does become law. But the bill should have a very healthful effect, just the same. It is perfectly proper for any group to send a representative to Washington to explain its wishes. All that we have a right to ask is that such men appear openly, under their true colors, and let everyone know who is paying them. That is what this bill seeks to accomplish.

Apparently this business of being vice president is not such a bad job after all. John N. On the surface, the announcement may be taken as an example of the truism that in politics great are the rewards of regularity. Whatever his inward feelings about the New Deal, Mr. Garner has been extremely loyal to his 'Chief," the President. The only apparent exception was his reported belief that it would be good politics to have the Senate override Mr. Rosevelt's veto of the bonus. Otherwise, Mr. Garner's dependability, plus his astuteness as a political and legislative strategist, has been of too much value to the White House to be ignored.

Figures that Prove Banking Efficiency

Not many people realize how economically banks serve them.

According to figures recently published by the Post Office Department, it costs the Government an average of 14 cents for every money order issued.

Banks are nearly three times as efficient. The average cost to them for a check drawn and paid is only 5 cents.

Nothing could show more convincingly how banks serve their depositors with a minimum of waste and expense.

number of weeks before recovery oc-Fortunately undulant fever has a low death rate. Body temperature may reach a higher mark each day than the day before, and then gradually return to normal over a period of several days. Fever may be absent for some days and come back again to act the same way as before, registering higher each day and then gradually going lower. The patient's temperature chart as kept by the nurse in home or hospital, may resemble smooth waves or undulations. The appearance of the temperature curve in typical cases has given this disease the name un-dulant fever. The term "Malta" fever has been in common use in recent years but the name undulant fever is more accurate.

Undulant fever is one of the in fectious diseases known to be transmitted from animals to human beings. In cows and hogs, the germ causes a disease of great economic importance known as contagious abortion. When this germ invades the human body, the resulting disease is undulant fever. Prevention is dependent upon (1) eradication of the disease in farm animals, (2) careful pasteurization of dairy pro ducts and (3) avoidance, insofar as possible, of direct contact with infected animals.

Filene, One of Boston's Best Known Merchants

Advertising----

"To some advertisers, advertising is still looked upon as an expense connected with the job of getting a business or a product before the public, and they look forward to the day when this expense can be largely eliminated and the money once spent for advertising be 'saved'.

"We might as well think of gasoline as an expense connected with the job of getting a car started, and hope for the time when the car, being well on its way, will have no further need for gas.

"There is some validity, of course, in such a point of view. A car can save a good deal of gas while it is going down hill; and a business can save a good deal on advertising while the business is going down hill.

"How to go down hill, however, is not our problem now. Our problem now is how to make the grade. Of course, if any business man really wants to know how to keep going down and down and down, I don't know of any better way than to try to save on advertising.

"Advertising is the voice of business. To think of it as an expense is to misunderstand it entirely. It is as necessary for a business to learn to advertise as it is for a child to learn to talk; and it is not his LEARNING to talk, but his NOT learning to talk, which is expensive."

There is a certain rare organism that has the ability to live on a limited amount of oxygen in a can, and which doesn't affect the odor or appearance of the product, nor can it be detected by tasting. The only sure way of putting this organism out of business for keeps is to process by steam pressure in the first place and boil thoroughly after opening the can. Though this enemy is rarely present, it is deadly poison; therefore it is important to take these precautions against it. There is no danger from this "critter" if

AUSTIN. Texas .- Several cases of ider poisoning caused by the bite were forthcoming when they meant f the so-called black widow spider have been reported in Texas this year and people who live in rural districts might well take precautions against bites from these poisonous insects, warns Dr. John W. Brown, State Health Officer.

The scientific name of the black widow spider is Latrodectus mactans, and it is called the "hour-giass," "black widow," and "shoe button spider." Its shiny black, round abdomen gives rise to the name of shoe button and the bright red patch, which may be shaped ike an hour-glass, is responsible for the hour-glass designation. It obtains the name 'black widow' from its custom of eating its mate. The dy of the female is often an inch in length and the long, shiny black legs may stretch over a spread of as much as two inches.

This spider builds its web in dimly ighted places, generally in old toilets, garages, and other outbuildings Its rough, coarse, irregular web is found under floors, in corners, between rafters, but especially under the floors of toilets, sheds, barns, etc.

Many requests have been received by the Texas State Department of Health relative to the best methods of controlling these insects. Other methods of control are unknown, although efforts are being made at the present time to find a parasite which will feed on the egg masses.

After the sharp, stinging bite acute pain develops in the region of the surface bitten, spreading to other parts of the body. In addition to the pain, there is generally writhing, muscle contraction, difficult breathing, cold perspiration.
