USFL pro football has been exposed on national television for a couple of weeks or so and we still have our doubts as to its success. Competing with basketball, track, hockey, and baseball coming into season it has a hard row to hoe for a beginning. Crowds are light, but what few games we have viewed a good brand of pro ball has been played, but the old zip is not there. Certainly fans have not had time to line up their favorite teams and interest may pick up.

We fear all pro football suffered a heavy loss during the NFL players strike. The strike was unpopular with most fans. Will you be as high on your favorite NFL team this fall? We watched 'Crazy Ray', the unofficial mascot of Dallas Cowboys do his bit at the recent Rattlesnake Roundup at Sweetwater. His job there has been to entertain the crowds during the show, especially the kids. In past years most of the children wanted his free autographed picture, as well as a balloon. This year few of them asked for a picture, just a balloon which Ray can twist into various animals. He is a good card magician and entertained his crowds well, but few Dallas Cowboy T-shirts were shining.

Similar to a war-did anyone win the strike-even us fans? Hooper Shelton, Job Printing

Sherbet ice cream, "pig" energy and lawns. What do these things have in common? Well, nothing actually; they are just 3 things I grabbed out of the air to tell something about. (Who knows when you might need some pertinent info. on one of these fascinating subjects.) Take sherbet - did you know it does not contain dairy products or eggs. The Persians are credited by food historians as creating the first fruit ice by drizzling snow with fruit juice. The French were enjoying sherbet, or sorbet as it was then called, in 1533. Americans had to wait until the 19th century when it was brought to New York by Italian immigrants. (Bet you thought Italians just loved spaghetti.) Now for the "pig" energy. (waiting for this one weren't you?) It seems energy history is in the making on a Texas (where else) pig farm. Bio-gas, a mixture of methane and carbon dioxide produced from pig manure has been fueling a water heater used to keep baby piglets warm. Pig waste soon will drive a motor-generator that will power a grain milling and pig feeding operation. (Folks, this is using one's head!) Okay - so much for sherbet and "pig" energy what can I possibly come up with about lawns. (Need you ask.) The word lawn use to mean "an open place in the forest." Europe's fendal lords changed the meaning when they discovered it gave them an open shot on enemies not to mention it was vital for horses, cattle, sheep, and etc. for feed. Around the 16th century animals kept the grass trimmed for free. In the spring of 1982 it was estimated professional care for an average lawn of 7500 square feet cost between $170 and $200. a year. (By the way-mowing, snow shoveling and removal of cans and fast food containers were not included in the total.) As I said earlier, so what if sherbet, "pig" energy, and lawns have nothing in common. This just gives you 3 less things to wonder about, right? Next week, how about ulcers, skylights and underinflated tires-or nasal sprays, jet lag and the Federal Reserve - maybe.... Preserving a Grand Relationship. Are we creating a nation of "grand-orphans"? According to a study by child psychiatrist Dr. Arthur Kornhaber, only one out of every 20 children has any sort of regular contact with a grandparent. In his book, Grandparents - Grandchildren: The Vital Connection, Kornhaber points out that in times past grandparents played a central role in many families,

The crosses in the shadows were real. Three hung there and died in agony... two for their own wrong-doing... one for yours.

That chapter to which the Book lies open — it tells of the scandal... the indignity... the injustice — and the pain.

The lilies?... symbols of what men call Easter Day! When the women found the tomb empty... and were afraid to believe He was risen...

IT is not a pretty picture. IT is the stark reminder of man's distrust of God... and God's love of man.

And you'll let nothing keep you from worshipping your Lord when you stop thinking of IT as a pretty picture.

IT happened.

For you — IT happened.

I recently attended a program on wardrobe planning. We were told that scarves are coming back in and the instructor showed new ways of wearing almost any scarf whether short narrow, long narrow or square. So if you have kept your scarves from previous years, you'll find you can get them out, and coordinate them with your present wardrobe to change the look of a garment worn last year.

Fashion this year is showing skirt lengths from mini-skirts to the skirts that are just slightly above the ankle. To be really well dressed, the individual should decide on the length best suited for her and stick with it.

What is Classic styling in clothing? Styling that never goes out of fashion includes: medium width collars and lapels, jacket hemline that is slightly below the widest part of the hip, set-in-sleeves, narrow hemlines, sleeve of medium fullness gathered onto a band, moderate width in blouses and skirts, straight legged pants without a cuff, pant hem at top of heel, 1/4 to 1/2 inch waistbands, slim, a-line and flared skirts and a basic shirtwaist dress.

For those of you interested in learning to sew synthetic suede, you'll want to mark April 22 on your calendar. That is the day Nancy Brown, Clothing Specialist, Texas Agriculture Extension Service, College Station, will be in our county to present a program on techniques of sewing synthetic suede. Watch for information on the place and time of day for this program.

Stenholm Announces Plans For High School Art Competition

Congressman Charles Stenholm announced plans today for an art competition for high school students, grades 9 through 12, in the 17th Congressional District.

The winning entry will be displayed later this year in a national exhibition in the corridor leading to the United States Capitol.

According to Congressman Stenholm, the art competition is part of AN ARTISTIC DISCOVERY, a nationwide activity initiated by members of the United States House of Representatives to recognize the creative talents of young people.

"I believe that no group of Americans is more creative, expressive, and curious about our society than our young people," said Congressman Stenholm. "This competition enables us to encourage and recognize their rich and diverse artistic talents at a time when local arts budgets are being curtailed."

The competition, to be conducted at no expense to the Federal Government, is open to any high school student in the 17th District. Artwork must be no larger than 30" x 30" (unframed), and two-dimensional. Eligible categories are paintings, drawings, collages, and prints.

A regional show, scheduled in Snyder for Thursday, April 28th, is one of eight (8) to be held over the district prior to the District Show on May 14th in Abilene. Students in the counties of Fisher, Scurry, and Mitchell should contact Jo Flynn in Snyder prior to April 28th

Registration for summer classes at the Rotan extension center of Western Texas College will be held May 24 in the high school library.

Students are to register between 6:30-8 P.M. and can purchase textbooks at that time. Classes will begin June 1.

Courses scheduled in Rotan are Government 231, Government 232, History 131, History 132 and Psychology 231. All classes will meet during evening hours.

Persons wishing further information about the Rotan classes may contact Mrs. Pat Hamric or call her office at 735-3041 or Dr. Duane Hood at WTC in Snyder.

Machine Talks For Waco Patient

Steve Edwards Describes Work With ALS Patient

EDITORS NOTE: The following article appeared in the Waco newspaper in late February and spotlighted the work of Steve Edwards, son of Mr. and Mrs. W.T. Edwards of Rotan. Edwards is currently head of the Audiology and Pathology Department at the Veteran's Administration Hospital in Waco. He is a 1964 graduate of Rotan High School and graduated Texas Tech University in 1968 majoring in speech. Arnold Mikeska watches as guests come into the room at the Veterans Administrations Medical Center, then he drops his eyes to the computer keyboard attached to his wheelchair.

His fingers slowly punch a couple of keys, and the computer, in an eerie, mechanical voice, greets: "Good Afternoon. How are you?"

Mikeska's speech synthesizer is not unlike the thousands of others used by people suffering diseases that affect speech. But Mikeska's therapist, Steve Edwards, is confident the unit's potential soon will make it unique.

Edwards is programming the synthesizer to reflect Mikeska's personality through voice variations, a task he hopes to complete by early summer.

"We're trying to imitate or emulate the way Mike (short for Mikeska) uses language to reflect who he is as a person, as well as communicate simple language," Edwards said. "It's the difference between getting a letter from somebody and hearing it face to face."

Mikeska, a 54-year-old Army veteran who lives at 400 Austin, has been using the synthesizer only about three months. Ten years ago he was diagnosed as having Amyotrophic lateral Sclerosis - a degenerative disease that affects the muscle nerve cells, eventually eroding all muscle control.

Edwards says Mikeska's battle with ALS also known as Lo Gehrig's disease has been comparatively successful. The average victim dies within three to four years.

"Mike has been at this plateau longer than any case I've heard about," he said. "But there's no way to predict how long before it becomes active again."

Mikeska struggles with each word he says, but Edwards encourages him to exercise his voice. He wants his client to stall for as long as possible the inevitable dependence on the synthesizer.

Mikeska has been coming to the medical center's speech pathology department for 2 1/2 years to strengthen his "articulation" and voice production. He visits four days a week, spending two adapting to the computer.

The Texas Instruments speech system costs about $500 and consists of a keyboard console, a speech synthesizer, speakers and a power inverter connected to his electric wheelchair battery. The system is attached to a fold-away plate, constructed by the center's Manual Arts Therapy department.

Edwards has about 50 short responses programmed into the TI unit, which was purchased for Mikeska by the Dallas Veterans Administration. He hopes to program between 200 and 300 responses, including alternative pitches for different meanings of the responses.

Edwards said the wide spectrum of human personalities would make it impossible to formulate a computer program for all speech-impaired people. "But we've discovered some principles of intonation...that could be used for the population of the speech-impaired as a whole."

"The first thing we have to do is get the rules of inflection down. Then we're going to work on chaining (responses)," he said. "We want to give him the ability to say something like he would say it-not like the machine would say it."

"We want it to be able to build sentences like the brain builds sentences. The TI system forms words by combining recorded, individual sounds, called phonemes. In other systems, the whole word is the smallest unit, which restricts the user to words recognized by the system.

A name, for instance, couldn't be formulated on that type of system.

Mikeska enjoys amusing visitors by working up a phonetic spelling of their names that the computer can repeat. Edwards says he hasn't seen a name yet that this client couldn't instruct the computer to say correctly.

Edwards has a hand-held speech synthesizer that allows the user to form simple sentences with whole words, a limited and more costly ($2,000) system. He says the TI system is more promising. "No. 1, it's cheaper," Edwards said. "No. 2, it's a computer-it can do thousands of things (other systems) won't."

"Once we get the basics down, there's a world of opportunities we hope will open up to us."

Hustlin' Round Hobbs

By Joy Walker

We finally got a little rain, with a thunderstorm and some hail, but not enough to hurt anything. Some folks measured more moisture than others, with Rotan reporting an inch. We got a little over 7 tenths here at the house. Sure was good to see it rain again, and the pastures could use a lot more.

Mrs. Bea Hardin has been gone for over a week. She left last Thursday and went to Victoria with Wendy Hardin from Abilene. While at Victoria she visited with Mr. and Mrs. Doc Hardin and family. Then she went on to Corpus Christi and visited with Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Hardin and family and Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Hardin and family. She returned home Sunday night accompanied by her grand-daughter, Wendy. She really enjoyed her trip and her visits with her sons and their families.

Mr. and Mrs. David Etheredge and Delinda Teel went to Dallas over the week-end. They attended Clifford Teel's wedding while they were there; he is Debra and Delinda's brother. They left Friday and returned home on Sunday and visited with Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Crow in Euless during the week-end.

Debbie Stephenson from Abilene has been visiting with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Dale Cave; she spent a week with them while she was on her Spring break. She also visited with her other grandmother, Mrs. Claudine Stephenson in Rotan while she was here. Mr. and Mrs. Dale Cave went to Crossroads Baptist Church on Friday night and heard the Quartet from Hart. LaVerne and Preston Upshaw from Hart sang at the Crossroads Revival every night.

Mrs. Opal Phillips attended a Birthday party for Mrs. Mike Porter on Sunday which was held in the home of Mrs. Marie Phillips Thornton. Happy Birthday to Pat. All of the Phillips, Hyers and Porters attended. Monday Mrs. Opal Phillips and Mrs. Mike Porter attended the funeral of George New in Anson; he passed away Saturday in Abilene at the hospital. Mr. New was the father of Mrs. Bobby (Martha) Wright of this community. Our sincere sympathy goes out to Martha and the remainder of her family.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Ratliff, Mark and Dusty Williams all from Abilene visited with the James Ratliffs on Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Tracy Knipe from Snyder also were there visiting.

Jim and I went to Merkel and then on to Abilene last Tuesday. On Wednesday Mrs. Donnie Gruben and I went to Snyder, and then Jim and I made a quick trip to Sweetwater late that afternoon. We visited with Jim's sister, Mrs. Orvel Hillis, while we were in Sweetwater. Friday we went back to Merkel and almost ran into the wind and rain coming back, but got to the house before it hailed. Saturday they called off the Track Meet at Stamford because of the rain they had the night before so we went back to Abilene for the day. It was sure cold and windy all day Saturday and very unpleasant, and the folks who went to Olney for the Track Meet there said it was sure a bad day to sit out. Heard from Melody and Mark's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lynn Parrish from Lytton Springs spent the week-end visiting with her and Patti Parrish. It has really been raining down there so she said, in fact, has rained almost every day for the past week. Wish we could get some of their rain.

Well this is about all for this week. Hope that everyone has a Happy Easter, and the weather is warmer; maybe we will get some more moisture before the week is over.

Tax Planning By Gerald Rodgers, CPA

If you expect to have a balance due of $300 or more at the time you file your 1983 individual income tax return, you may be required to make quarterly tax estimates.

Quarterly tax estimates are filed four times a year: April 15th, June 15th, September 15th and the following January 15th. They are filed on IRS Form No. 1040-Es.

Most taxpayers whose earnings are primarily from wages will not have a requirement for making estimates. The first year you change to self-employment status or have an increase in income not subject to withholding, you could come under the requirement for filing quarterly estimates.

A short example: Mr. I.M. Payen estimates his 1983 tax liability for income tax and social security contributions to be $10,000. If at least 80% of this is paid in quarterly installments, he will not be penalized. This would require payments of $2,000 on each of the four dates listed above.

There are four exceptions which will keep you from being penalized. The easiest to rely on is the "100% of last year's tax liability" test. If Mr. I. M. Payen had only paid in $7,000, he would be subject to penalties unless his 1982 liability was less than $7,000. It's very simple to avoid penalties and easy to determine next year's tax estimates by using 100% of the tax liability on the return currently being filed.

The penalties for underpayment vary as the IRS interest rate varies. The rate was 20% of the underpayment for the period February 1, 1982, to December 31, 1982, and it is 16 percent of the underpayment for the period January 1, 1983, to June 30, 1983. The rate will be changed each July and January 1st in accordance with fluctuation in the prime rate charged by lending institutions.

There are special exceptions for farmers and commercial fishermen. Professional assistance is advisable to eliminate penalties for underpayment.

Rotan First Baptist Planning Revival Services

Religion has been with man since the beginning of time. Although, before time God was and after time God will still be. People have never understood life without time, Christians included. Christians believe that God loved the world, in which he made, so much that he sent his only son to live among the people, to die among the people, and to be raised from death unto life without end in heaven. This having happened some nineteen hundred years ago in Jesus Christ we live to the assurance that we will live with the one true Jesus in Heaven throughout eternity after we die. After accepting this fact and making public this belief, what a christian does with his life is entirely up to him. In ancient times, as well as the present, myths plagued the people's minds. Myths are conducted in the minds of one's self. In my life experiences, before becoming a christian seven months ago, many myths were given birth to in my own mind. I thought there were too many hypocrites in the church. When I went to church one night, after many years of abstinence, the hypocrite situation seemed so small up against the love and genuine concern for my personal well being that so many displayed so openly. I must add also that this concern has been shown ever since. One more myth was expelled in my former statement. I always thought that christians were only concerned for their own happiness and well being.

Among my many myths was the one about christians having the most dull and troublesome lives of all. What a shock I was in for! In the last seven months I have done more living than I was able to grab hold of in twenty-one years. This life I now enjoy is the type of life that could have been many years ago.

One myth that I face today is the one of others who think christians are "Superpeople." Christ-different characteristics of the way they act and believe.

In the coming "Alive in Christ" revival, many myths will be expelled if we let Jesus speak to our inner soul and tell us the truth.

Psychologists tell us we have three basic needs—mental, physical, and spiritual. The Bible tells us if we do not accept Jesus publicly, hell will hold all three.

I, Todd Goodwin—publicity chairman, have experienced the truth and invite you to do the same. The first step is winning the battle in your own mind.

Attend the revival services and find out first hand.

Attending state meetings in San Antonio recently were Josie Baird and Delila Baird of Rotan and Mmes Kenneth Whisenant, Henri Gay Ison and Pauline Norwood of Abilene.

The group represented local chapters of Magna Charta Dames, Daughters of American Colonists, and Daughters of the War of 1812.

The Misses Bairds and Mrs. Whisenant are members of George Cogdell Chapter of DAC of Snyder and Rotan. In addition to representing the local chapter, Josie Baird reported as Chairman of the State Regents Project; Delila Baird, as chairman of the state committee on Colonial and Genealogical Records; and Mrs. Whisenant was the out-going Texas state librarian. Following election of officers for the next biennium, Delila Baird was installed as state historian for 1983-1985. Heading the Texas State Society for the new term is Mrs. Jack Miller of Victoria.

The National Society Daughters of American Colonists is a hereditary society composed of women who establish lineage back to an ancestor in one of the original thirteen colonies with service before the American Revolution. George Cogdell was organized in 1977 with Miss Josie Baird as Organizing Regent. Mrs. Douglas K. Hill of Snyder is completing her term as chapter regent, and Mrs. Whit Clark of Rotan is the regent elect.

The Texas Division of the National Society of Magna Charta Dames is divided into Colonies. Mrs. Whisenant is Regent of the West Texas Colony and Josie Baird is on the State Board. Magna Charta Dames is made up of women who can document lineage back to one or more of the Barons who were responsible for the signing of the Magna Charta in 1215.

Members of the United States/Daughters of the War of 1812 are descendants of men who fought in that war, or who rendered civil or military service during the period following the American Revolution through the War of 1812. Josie Baird is president of the Abilene Chapter, Mrs. Whisenant is State Curator, and the Misses Bairds hold state chairmanships. Mrs. Hubert Menger of San Antonio is state president. Also, during the stay in San Antonio, a reception was held for members of the San Antonio Company of the Jamestown Society of which the Misses Bairds and Mrs. Whisenant are charter members. The Bairds are serving as San Antonio Company genealogists. Mrs. Leta Baughn of San Antonio is organizing president.

County Agent Report

By Richard Spencer

Most discussions regarding the United States and Russia usually center on military strength. But in the crucial area of agriculture and the capacity of each country to feed its own people, Russia is in deep trouble.

While our exportable food surplus is climbing, the Soviet Union's dependence on imported foods is growing.

This year Russia will import more than 40 million tons of grain, or nearly one-fourth of all the grain imports will come from the North American breadbasket, mostly from the U.S.

By comparison, the U.S. will export about three times more grain than Russia's total imports. The Soviet Union has a centrally planned economy in which the country's leaders annually plan that their agriculture will produce sufficient food to feed their people and livestock. However, each year their production continues to fall short by a growing amount, with bad weather generally blamed for the deficit.

With 3.7 million people in U.S. agriculture—of which 2.4 million are family farm managers—this nation produced twice as much grain the past year as the Soviet Union with its 26 million farm workers.

Individual productivity and individual decision-making in the U.S. make all the difference in the world. Our farmers respond daily to market signals and information; they are flexible, adaptive creatures.

In turn the government makes all the decisions in Russia. Farm workers on collective farms customarily leave their tractors promptly at five o'clock regardless of the circumstances. This clearly shows that the proprietary initiative of the U.S. farmer is missing.

As long as this situation exists, the Soviet Union will continue to depend heavily on other countries for its food and fiber supplies.

The long line of ships that now connect American farms with Soviet dining tables constitutes a growing economic link between the two countries. This eventually could affect their political relations as well.

It's the Law

Letting our elected representatives know what laws we want is a vital part of our political system—but many organizations don't realize the importance of timing when speaking out on legislation. Now that situation is changing, thanks to a new book that's becoming a blueprint for business to get and use political power.

The new book, "Fighting to Win: Business Political Power" by Edward A. Grefe, describes how each business can organize itself and its allies into a potent pro-business single issue voting constituency to negate or combat legislation or regulation. The book tells how a business can build a legislative support system—a phrase that may be new to the business lexicon, but old in its use by successful political practitioners. It includes material on creating public affairs programs, issue selection, identifying a corporate constituency, early warning systems and data assessment, handling external relations and case studies.

Prove Your Own Yields For Federal Crop Insurance

COTTON

You may prove your actual 10 year average yield, add up to 10 per cent for participation in PIK, and insure 65 per cent or 75 per cent of that amount at 60 cents per pound.

In proving your cotton yields the ASCS may insert an adjusted yield for certain years in which you had low production. This is based on how your "good" years compare with the county average for those same years, and may be used in place of up to six consecutive "bad" years.

Proving your own yield does not raise your premium, only the guarantee. Premium is based on the usually lower yields which have been assigned each farm by FCIC.

GRAIN SORGHUM

Grain sorghum insurance is also available. Although most farms have no proven grain sorghum history, the FCIC has assigned each farm a yield upon which both insurance premium and guarantees are based.

Sales closing dates for cotton and grain sorghum are April 15. If interested in cotton insurance, you should allow time for obtaining your 10 year average from the ASCS office.

Premium is due only after the crop is harvested.

serving as a source of strength and support and giving uncritical affection to children. Today, as young families move frequently and older couples often retire to better climates, snapshots, phone calls and occasional visits have replaced the frequent visitation that used to foster close emotional links between grandparents and their grandchildren. To counteract this isolation, Kornhaber suggests more communication through the regular exchange of letters or tape cassettes; having children send homemade presents to grandparents and the latter send family heirlooms to youngsters. "Vital connections, moreover, need not be limited to kin" he says. A few determined children go out and find surrogate grandparents. Almost any older person can find surrogate grandchildren. Undivided attention given by an older person can foster a close and enduring attachment with any child. In fact, older people who are not related to the child can often serve the same important function as real grandparents. Some of us are so lucky that we have all of our grandchildren near to us, not far across the country, but for those of you who aren't that lucky, don't forget to write or call them at every opportunity.

In order to enjoy life these days, everyone has to have at least one vice. Most people have more than one vice, usually several. Wether it be booze, smoking, gambling, women, or just plain talking too much. One always needs something to do to kill extra time and liven up things once-in-a-while.

I, myself, have only one small insignificant vice. It is seeing how much sugar I can consume in a very short time. I probably hold the "unofficial" record of taking in large amounts of sugar I have eaten 1,463 M&M's at one setting. I've consumed 6 and 3/8's doughnuts at one time. I have eaten 2,014 potatoe chips another time. With these credentials I should be in the Guinness Book Of Records. I always wanted my name in print. By the way mom, aren't those chocolate chip cookies done yet?

I was interested in Rep. Charles Stenholm's remarks in the daily papers concerning the recent social security issue. HE described the action as a "quick fix" and described the entire action as a way of saying "we're going to let our grandkids solve the problem". I know Congressman Charlie is right - he's attuned to our thinking, answerable to us and if he thinks in his mind that Congress "side-stepped" the issue then I believe what he's saying. I did like one provision of the new social security plan. That of forcing all federal workers hired after January 1, 1984 to join the Social Security forces. I had a hard time before understanding why they were exempt from Social Security. It always looked to me like they should have been leading the way.

I read this in "the Art of Hanging Loose in an Uptight World" by Dr. Ken Olson.

Flush all those bad tapes, the shrink man said. Get all of those negative thoughts out of your head.

The ain't fair blues recording is wearing mighty thin. Think positively about yourself that's how to begin. I know it will take some time. We all walk before we fly. Be honest and trust those old gut feeling. Say yes to your life and try.

I thought this was a neat saying. I get a little tired of people who have nothing else to do but start gossip and try to make someone else as miserable as they are so...try it think positive about yourself, you're great!!
