According to the woman, the 18 year old had also assaulted her about a month ago and she chose to talk with his parents instead of reporting it to police then.

In other police related activity, Chief Gillilan released the activity figures for his department for the month of August. Congressman Accompanied by KC Man Hightower Tours Armored Division

By PFC Patrick O'Sheehan
NORTH FORT HOOD, TEXAS - Saying he was "pleased to see more new equipment finally making its way" into Guard units, U.S. Rep. Jack Hightower concluded a full day's tour of 49th Armored Division infantry and field artillery soldiers recently in their first of two weeks' Annual Training with the Texas Army National Guard.

The Vernon, Texas, Democrat, whose congressional district, stretching from Bellville to Texline, is the largest in Texas, was eager to observe operations of the nation's largest reserve forces division for himself.

"It's always helpful to see troops in a field training situation," Hightower said.

"Where we are it isn't always easy, dealing with figures and budget requests, to translate those dollar amounts into what they really mean in terms of people, equipment and training activity."

Following an introductory briefing at 2nd Brigade headquarters, Hightower, accompanied by Brigade Commander Col. Royce S. Ivory of Lubbock and 2-131 Battalion Commander Lt. Col. David Counts of Knox City, was airlifted to the field.

Hightower's first stop was the Field Motor Park of the 2nd Battalion 142nd Mechanized Infantry where he reviewed long rows of M-113 Armored Personnel Carriers lined up for servicing and was welcomed by the crews.

One of his well-wishers was the battalion's sole female, Spec. 5 Robin L. Farmer of Lubbock, a headquarters company medic who has better than six years Guard service.

Another was 21 year old 2nd Lt. Mark L. Burkett of Canyon, who indicated morale is higher in the unit even though longer hours have made training rougher and more tiring.

The touring party was then helicoptered to C Battery, 2nd Battalion, 131st Field Artillery by Lt. Col. Counts. The veteran Congressman was treated to a "Fire Mission Hightower" demonstration by the 155 mm tracked howitzers and then taken to see the troops.

Hightower's last stop was C Battery's field kitchen for a hot meal, the Congressman joked "was as good as home-made, maybe better."

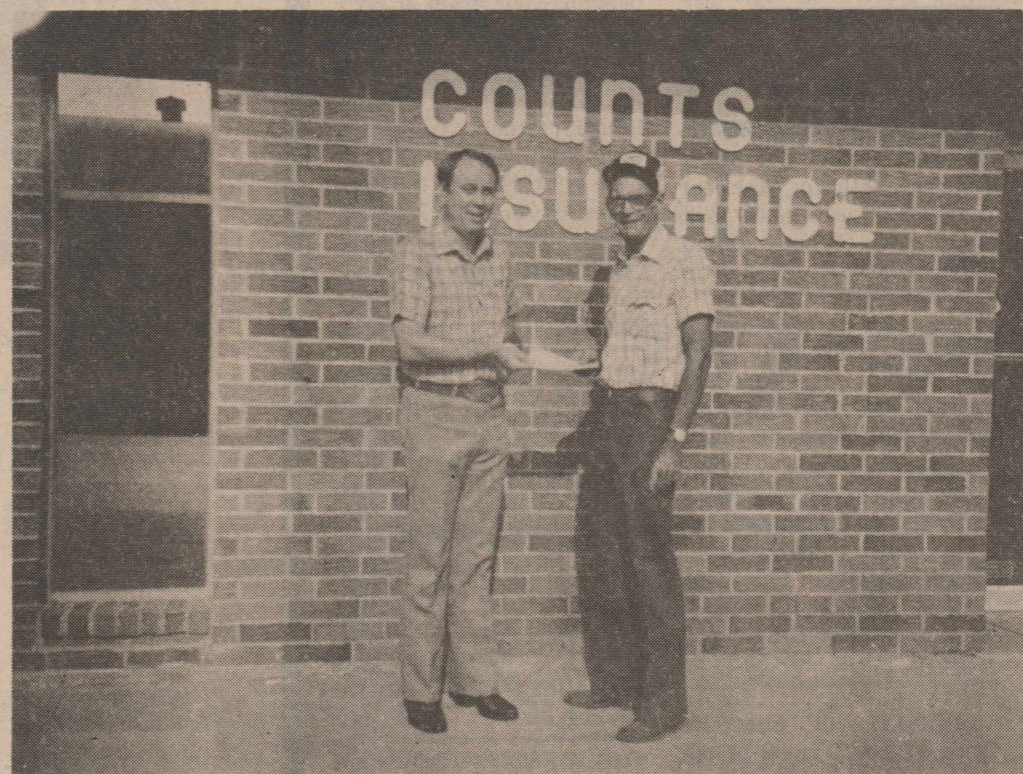

"I try to be supportive of the National Guard," the third-ranking majority member of the House Military Appropriations Subcommittee said, "but it's difficult to really know what you haven't seen. That's why I'm here."

Letter To The Editor

Dear Editor,

I would like to accommodate my friends and fellow participants in the Senior Citizens' Program who have frequently asked in what area has our program not made progress and why the County Program is not under the director of the Area Aging Service in Abilene as the other 18 counties. Here are some facts I think all of you would like to know then perhaps you will be able to define "progress".

A Pilot Program begun in 1980 provided means for establishing a central kitchen and dining room for the Knox City Senior Citizens and meals to the 4 satellite centers, Benjamin, Goree, Munday and Truscott. Prior to this day Knox City Independent School had contracted to serve noon meals three days each week to the Senior citizens.

As these groups increased in number and interest, the County had more responsibility in maintaining the nutrition and social programs. The necessity for fund raisers by each site became more important in order to keep the budget in line and to prevent deficits in food cost and up keep. The participants became aware of what their contributions meant to the success of the program. Only a mention of a need for support and everyone was ready to make an extra contribution. Through monthly fund raising projects of individuals of civic clubs and local citizens we have kept the program expanding throughout the county.

Besides the 100 chairs purchased by the Knox City Citizens and numerous other items, a new building has been acquired with the local center designated as a county focal point providing health screening, information and referral services, educational training programs and Social Security Services. Approximately 100 meals or more are now served daily with an average of $3000.00 monthly meal contributions. "And He said unto them, these are the words which I spake unto you. While I was yet with you, that all things must be fulfilled, which was written in the law of Moses, and in the prophets, and in the Psalms concerning me." (St. Luke 24:44).

The Book of Psalms has undoubtedly found more response in the human heart in all of the ages than any other book in the Bible. The weary travellers in every condition and experience in the Journey of life, the Psalms have been deep wells of consolation and rivers of refreshing assurance and strength. And what makes the Book more precious to our hearts is Christ's own assurance that He, Himself is found in this Book of Sacred Songs.

In the Book of Psalms, we are given an insight into our Lord's inner feelings, and suffering for us, as in no other Book. It is also a remarkable fact that of all the citations in the New Testament from the Old, which have a Messianic reference nearly one half are made from Psalms. In studying all of it carefully you will gain much understanding of all the Scriptures as they tell the same wonderful story of a Loving God who sent His Precious Son into this world to die for our sins.

Adults Need Calcium

COLLEGE STATION - Parents who tell their children to "drink your milk so you can have strong bones," should be telling themselves the same thing. Adults who don't consume the recommended two servings of dairy products each day may not be getting enough calcium, says Dr. Alice Hunt, a nutritionist with the Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service.

This lack of calcium can lead to serious health problems for people as they age, she says. For example, osteoporosis is a painful and crippling bone disease that occurs when bones become so thin and brittle they break very easily. It most often affects post-menopausal women with a history of calcium deficiency, explains Hunt.

Lack of calcium can also cause loss of the bone that supports your teeth, says the nutritionist. This may speed up periodontal disease which leads to a loss of teeth.

Hypertension, or high blood pressure, which may lead to heart attacks or strokes, has also been associated with lack of calcium, says Hunt.

About 75 percent of the calcium in the American food supply comes from dairy products, so the obvious way to increase calcium is to eat more foods from this category, says the nutritionist.

Even if you don't find it very "adult" to drink a glass of milk with meals or you don't like the taste of milk, there are many other ways to add calcium to your diet with dairy products, Hunt explains.

In addition to eating a well-balanced diet that includes foods from all the food groups, Hunt suggests the following for adults who want to add calcium to their diets:

- Drink cocoa instead of coffee or tea.
- Add cheese to sandwiches.

Usage Of "Graywater" For Home Irrigation

Some areas of the county received a nice rain last week, but most of us are still watering everything in the yard that is green to keep it that way. There is an alternative to using fresh water for home irrigation during these extremely dry conditions, if you use reasonable care.

"Graywater" can be an alternate source of water for home irrigation according to Jerry M. Parsons, Area Vegetable Specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Household wash water such as dishwater, bathwater, or laundry water is called "graywater".

Parsons warns, this water contains food residues and other organic matter that may attract insects and rodents. It also may contain bacteria and viruses that could cause illness.

Household wash water is much better for plants than no water at all but there are possible problems. If your home has a water softener, your household wash water contains more sodium than it would otherwise.

Sodium may cause soils to become tighter and resist water penetration over a period of time. This can be counteracted by mixing gypsum into the soil surface at a rate not to exceed ¼ pound per square foot.

Chlorine and boron are common ingredients in laundry products which Parsons points out, can cause problems. Bleaches commonly contain chlorine that can damage plants, particularly if it touches the foliage. It is safer not to use bleach if you plan to irrigate with washcycle laundry water.

Boron content can not be determined by reading the label on a container. If the trade name sounds like "boron" or "borax" these products contain fairly high levels of boron which can be toxic to plants.

Parsons also recommends that package softeners that are added directly to wash water be avoided if you plan to use the water for irrigation. These products probably contain either boron or metaphosphate, or both. The sodium in metaphosphate tend to seal up the soil and the boron may accumulate enough to become toxic to plants.

Don't worry about the phosphates in ordinary detergents adds Parsons. They will not hurt plants. In fact, they usually are in a form that acts as plant fertilizer.

Parsons pointed out the following rules for irrigating with "used" water that will reduce the chances of plant damage:

1. If you use wash-cycle laundry water for plants, mix it with the rinse-cycle water. This will cut the concentration of harmful chemicals, probably enough to avoid plant damage.

2. Watch closely for signs of plant damage. If certain plants show symptoms first, they probably are more sensitive. If possible, irrigate them with better quality water. Use of wash water is questionable on very salt-sensitive plants such as azaleas and strawberries.

3. Don't use wash water for potted plants. With their restricted root zones they are much more subject to damage. You might save cold water from the shower (before the water warms up) for potted plants or other special uses.

4. Don't pour water directly at the base of tree trunks or shrubs. This may cause crown rot; besides, the feeder roots that take up water are located farther out.

5. Be sure you apply enough water so the plants get a good drink. If you just wet the surface of the ground around deeper-rooted plants, they will get little benefit.

Senior Citizens Report

By Janie Wilkinson

Another week has rolled around and our children and grandchildren are back in school. Can you remember your first day of school? Memories, memories! I was always glad when school started, I had to hoe the entire summer, then we had six weeks of school and school turned out for six weeks for boll pulling to help the parents harvest cotton. I went back to school after Christmas. I was real proud to be back in school even though I had to make all my school work up. It wasn't only our family, it was all of the country kids, we thought all the city kids were rich, but I have found out since I have grown older, the city kids pulled bolls too. Remember Sunday dinner when company came, all the kids would wait last to eat, gee, only thing that was left was the neck and wing of the chicken. Can you remember that! We chased the chickens down, yep, we kids. Anyway since we are senior citizens I just wanted to bring back those times that we were in school. Remember, if we got a spanking in school, we got a harder whipping when we got home. Now the teachers have to call the parents first before a spanking. Sure am proud my teachers didn't come to my house when I was in school I would not be writing this now. Judge Williams' sister, Miss Jew Williams, taught me at Weinert. Nuff of that-how things have changed.

We had a good week at the Center, lots of visitors and new members. Sonny and Jill Kinsey sang for us. June Tankersley played piano and Lyndol Cypert spoke to us on medicare and Medicaid. It was very interesting and he answered lots of questions we were in doubt about. Thanks to each of you, please come again. I have "gabbled" enough, but just remember, "Have you done a good deed for someone today?" Hope to see you next week.

DON'T SHOOT AT POWER LINES!

Never shoot at power lines or the insulators that hold them. A severed line could cause a dangerous power outage, and the downed line itself could also be a very serious safety hazard.

Here are a few other tips on how to live more safely — electrically:

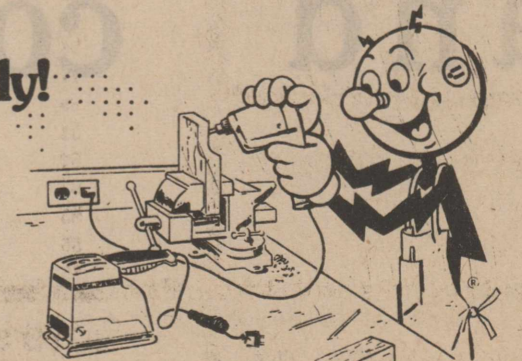

Keep Children Away from Outlets!

Don't let small children play near electrical outlets. A child could easily put a finger or some object in an outlet when you're looking away. A wise safety precaution would be to put safety caps in all wall outlets.

Use Power Tools Wisely!

Be extra careful when using power tools. Always be sure the wiring is adequate for the job. See to it that there are enough circuits of the right size, and that all circuits are grounded. Also, never use electric tools in the rain or on wet surfaces.

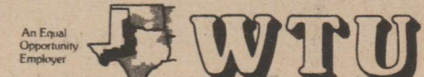

Electricity

It's the Power of Choice.

Camping For Older Texans

COLLEGE STATION - Texans 55 and older have an opportunity to enjoy camping programs at the Texas 4-H Center at Lake Brownwood this fall.

Called Octoberfest '84, the camping program offers senior citizens a chance to spend a week learning and doing in a comfortable and supportive atmosphere, points out Marshall Crouch, 4-H specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System. The program allows participants from throughout the state to meet new friends and enjoy old ones and to take part in an enriching experience.

"This is the fifth season for these camps and participation has been truly outstanding," notes Crouch. "Some 2,500 Texans aged 55 and older have enjoyed the camps in the past years."

This year's program offers five different sessions: Oct. 2-5, Oct. 9-12, Oct. 16-19, Oct. 23-26 and Oct. 30-Nov. 2.

Each session allows participants to engage in a variety of "hands on" experiences as well as to enjoy a wide range of recreational activities, says Crouch.

Programs will feature Extension specialists in horticulture, family life, entomology and housing. Among the many activities will be oil painting, needlecrafts, basketweaving, nature hikes, boat rides, outdoor recreation and sports, dancing, bingo, shuffleboard, bridge, dominoes and a host of social events. There will also be sessions on chime making, chair caning, needlespoint, basic drawing, cake decorating and antiques. And Lake Brownwood offers plenty of good fishing, notes Crouch.

"We feel this camping program is the best camping deal in Texas, and we hope older Texans will take advantage of it," says Crouch. "Interested individuals should contact their county Extension office for reservation forms. Reservations must be received at the 4-H Center at least one week prior to the camp the individual plans to attend."

Leathers and Suedes Require Special Care

COLLEGE STATION - Fall clothing purchases often include leather and suede, both major investments because of their cost. Clothing specialist Ann V. Beard of the Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service cautions that buyers should be aware of what to expect in the way of wear and care before they buy.

"When selecting, look for careful matching of colors and textures," the specialist advises. "Light or pastel colors are less likely to fade in cleaning than deep colors." Avoid purchasing articles with heavy buckles or trim permanently attached, she says, since this makes proper cleaning difficult and sometimes impossible. Also avoid a fit that is too snug, because hides are stretched during tanning and some relaxation shrinkage can be expected during use.

Read any care information that comes with the garment before buying, and then save it for later use, she says.

Beard also recommends the following safety precautions for caring for leather and suede:

- Cleaning will need to be done by a professional, but you can frequently brush suede with a soft brush or wipe leather with a damp cloth to help remove surface oils.

- Protect the collar area from perspiration and body oils by wearing a scarf.

- If the article gets wet, allow it to air dry. Never expose it to direct heat. Try to avoid heavy staining, but if it occurs, take the garment to a professional leather and suede cleaner. Do not try to remove spots at home.

- When it is taken in for cleaning, bring in all matching pieces at one time. Share the care information labels and warnings, and tell your cleaner about stains or any other problems. Don't be surprised if your cleaner asks you to sign a consent form before cleaning. This is a common practice.

- If you know something about leather garments, you will know what to expect after cleaning," Beard says. "Most garments are made of skins taken from various portions of an animal, and possibly from five or six different animals.

- Even with careful matching, there is some variance in texture, weight and color. These variations may be accentuated after cleaning."

According to Beard, dyes that were added by the tanner may vary in color fastness, as will skins from different parts of the animal. During cleaning, spray dyes will be applied to even these out. This may not be an exact replica of the original immersion dyes.

Also, oils that are lost in cleaning will be replaced, but it may not be an exact replica of your new garment.

Some skin imperfections such as scar tissue, vein marks, wrinkles and stains may be more noticeable, too. Some of these marks can be likened to the scratches on old silver—they just make your garment look more valuable, she says.

Jane's News Notes

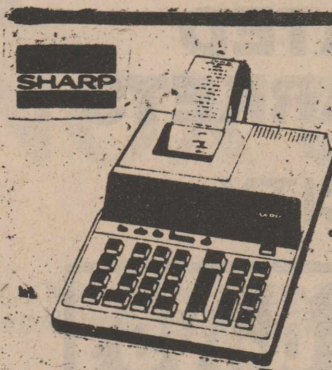

By Jane Locknane

Support The Hounds!

Many food products are now labeled "light" or "lite" to capitalize on consumers' interest in lower calorie foods. While these products may be lighter in color or taste, they often have the same number of calories as other brands of the same product. The labels on some vegetable oils and peanut butters state they have "no cholesterol". What many consumers don't realize is that cholesterol is found only in animal products so a vegetable product wouldn't contain it anyway. It's a similar story with orange juice that advertises "no sugar added", when by federal standards any product labeled "orange juice" can have nothing added. So watch out for those labels.
