Saying that he may have heard too much about the cases privately to be completely objective about them, District Judge Gene Dulaney has asked to have himself removed from hearing the lawsuits filed by opponents of a Texas Department of Corrections unit at Snyder. Dulaney called District Judge Weldon Kirk of Sweetwater, administrative judge for this judicial region, Wednesday to ask to be relieved of the cases, and Kirk assigned District Judge Joe Evins of Edinburg to hear them, Dulaney said Thursday morning. "I have friends and know a lot of people of both sides," Dulaney said. "I think I could still be objective, but I might not be completely objective." Dulaney on Dec. 29 heard a full day of arguments on the opponents' motion for a writ of mandamus for access to all information pertinent to Snyder's application for the TDC unit and then recessed the hearing to await an attorney general's opinion on what information or documents the opposition should be entitled to. The 132nd District Court judge said Thursday that he preferred to have a judge hear the cases who lives far away and is not personally familiar with the issues involved. "I have heard too much about it," he said.

TDC litigants single out individuals

By DONNY BROWN
SDN Managing Editor
A group of six litigants who oppose the building of a Texas Department of Corrections facility in Scurry County filed three lawsuits Wednesday—bringing the total of legal actions filed to five—which attempt to block incentive offers made to TDC in exchange for the prison bid. For the first time, the legal actions, filed in 132nd District Court, bring suit against two individuals, County Judge Bobby Goodwin and Joe Fowler. Six individuals bringing the lawsuit are listed. In the first suit opposing the prison filed Dec. 9, 22 plaintiffs were listed. Litigants listed in two of the recent suits are Jeanne Bullard, Gloria Griffin, Jonisue Stiff, Ava Lopour, Joe Lopour and Louise Thompson. Thompson is dropped as a plaintiff in the lawsuit filed against Joe Fowler. Regarding Fowler, it is unclear if he has been singled out in the voluntary capacity of president of the Industrial Foundation or as a member of the Snyder city council. The third lawsuit is against the City of Snyder and the Scurry County Industrial Foundation. Allegations in the lawsuits stem from county offers to TDC related to dirt work and paving at the proposed prison site and, in the case of Fowler, the city and the foundation, the offer to donate to TDC the local industrial foundation building. The same allegations made against Fowler—which include such charges as distributing "various tales, stories and fabrications" and allegations of making "false and misleading" statements to both TDC and local tax payers—are repeated in the lawsuit challenging the city and industrial foundation. Among other items, the lawsuit against Goodwin seeks some $566,000 in a personal judgment against him assuming offers they allege he made to TDC are found "binding and lawful." In a hearing here Dec. 29 related to the original lawsuit, Goodwin testified "the $566,000 figure was included in the original prison bid document submitted to TDC as a general estimate of what dirt work and paving at the site might cost. Goodwin said the figure was

Winter storm grips Texas

by The Associated Press
North Texans picked their way over a thick coat of ice today after a winter storm that stranded travelers and caused at least five deaths lingered over the state. Patches of freezing drizzle and snow flurries continued over northern portions of Texas this morning, and forecasters indicated the storm would likely end from the west, perhaps in the form of snow, sometime today. "It's going to take some vastly improved weather over a period of days to thaw out," said Harvey Jordan of the Texas Department of Highways in Austin. In Dallas, ice and slush-covered streets were blamed for more than 150 minor accidents and about 60 major accidents Wednesday, but few wrecks were reported today, said Sgt. V.J. Aurentz of the Dallas Police Department. "It's pretty bad, but people are more prepared for it today," he said. The icy streets and bitter cold temperatures helped fill hotels and shelters for the homeless Wednesday night. About 130 flights were canceled at Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport Wednesday. Operations were shut down this morning, with American Airlines planning to start flying planes out at 1 p.m. Arrivals were scheduled to begin at 2 p.m., said spokesman Steve McGregor. Between 3,000 and 4,000 passengers spent the night at the airlines' two terminals, including some who slept aboard planes that used auxiliary power units to keep warm, McGregor said. A dozen special flights were scheduled this morning to move those passengers out, he said. Airport officials said the runways had been sanded and remained open, but travel had been greatly reduced. Southwest Airlines also reported delays and cancellations at Dallas' Love Field Wednesday. As flights were canceled at the airport, hotels filled up around the city with commuters and travelers unable to get home. "I bought a razor and a brush—that's all I've got," said C.D. Lively, 54, of Garland, whose company put him and five co-workers up in a downtown Dallas hotel. Hundreds of businesses closed and schools let classes out early, while churches and other organizations canceled Wednesday night activities. Dallas Independent School District canceled all of today's classes.

Hundreds stranded... U.S. is in arctic grip

by The Associated Press
A powerful storm piled up snow and glazed roads with ice in the Southern Plains today, stranding hundreds of travelers in Texas and forcing the Oklahoma Legislature to adjourn, while a cold wave kept much of the nation in its Arctic grip. Wednesday's storm headed east today after dumping about a foot of snow from Utah and southern Colorado across Oklahoma and southern Kansas to parts of Arkansas, and closing schools as far east as Memphis, Tenn. Arizona, New Mexico, Missouri, and northern Mississippi got lesser accumulations. Heavy ice and snow accumulations coated highways in northern Texas and Louisiana. Much of the East was under winter storm advisories through Friday.

"We're not recommending travel unless it's life or death or God's will—or something like that," said state Highway Patrol spokesman Lee Lamirand in Oklahoma City, where a record 11.9 inches of snow closed Will Rogers World Airport overnight. State Transportation Director Neal McCaleb declared a storm emergency Wednesday and hired private contractors to help keep

Icy roads force late school start

All three Scurry County schools postponed the startup of classes Thursday and canceled rural bus pickups due to icy and hazardous conditions of roads and highways here. Both Snyder ISD and Ira ISD began classes one hour later at 9:30 a.m. and Hermleigh classes did not start until 10 a.m. The city and county experienced a spate of wrecks Wednesday due to the ice-slick roads (see related story) and some public facilities opted to close Thursday. The campus of Western Texas College, with only administrators and staff on campus, was closed Thursday, as was the Scurry County Senior Citizens Center. See CLOSINGS, page 9

Icy road conditions cause many wrecks

City and state officers were kept busy Wednesday with an outbreak of ice-related traffic accidents, several requiring hospital treatment for the victims but none involving life-threatening injuries. Four wrecks involved overturned vehicles. A 1987 Jeep Pathfinder driven by David Logan of Midland was going north on Highway 350 6.5 miles south of Snyder when it went off the roadway and turned upside down in a drainage ditch at 12:45 a.m. Logan was thrown out of the vehicle and was lying beside it after the accident, and he was taken to Cogdell by Snyder EMS Ambulance Service. He was treated and released. A 1978 Chevrolet pickup driven by Sharyon Bond of 311 29th St. was southbound in the 3800 Block of College Ave. when it went out of control and turned over on its side at 9:02 a.m. The driver was held for 23-hour observation at Cogdell Memorial Hospital. A 1988 Chevrolet van driven by Becki Lyons Lewis of Rt. 3, Box 63, went out of control at 7:30 a.m. a mile south of the city on Round Top Rd. and overturned on its side in the ditch. Neither the driver nor two children, 8 and

The SDN Column

By Roy McQueen

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Hard knocks hurt only if you're doing the knocking." Professional and semi-pro (college) football is going to have to make peace with the fans. If the trend continues, and if there's another year like 1987, there may not be many folks willing to watch those guys run into each other on the green turf. Many avid fans soured on professional football during the players' strike. High player salaries require high ticket prices, and the result was plenty of empty seats. It was the first time in many seasons that Cowboy football was blacked out on Dallas TV because there were unsold seats. It's not much better on the college level. At Tech, for example, a season ticket holder has to pay $34 a game. It's less if you're willing to take pot-luck on seat location. Although we were pleased with the strong Aggie snowing in the Cotton Bowl against Notre Dame—the big bucks are still a vital part. A&M and Notre Dame each got $2.3-million for appearing in the Cotton Bowl, and bowl officials are already seeking a corporate sponsor for next year. They say all bowls will have to offer more in order to attract the top teams. This year, Cotton Bowl tickets were $25 each, and it appears certain that there will be another increase in ticket prices. Even with the Houston Oilers in the playoffs, there were unsold tickets for last Sunday's NFL Wild Card game. In order to air the game, a local TV station spent $40,000 for Oiler tickets to insure a sellout. It may be a little old-fashioned, but what ever happened to 'love of the game'? There may be a football strike in 1988—but we predict it will be the fans holding out.

RAMALLAH, Occupied West Bank (AP) — Soldiers fired tear gas to break up violent demonstrations in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip today, forcing a U.S. senator to cut short a visit to a refugee camp. From the gate of the Kalandia refugee camp near this West Bank city, Sen. John Chafee saw soldiers firing tear gas to disperse rock-throwing protesters, a U.S. diplomat said. Chafee, R-R.I., decided not to enter because of the violence, according to the diplomat.

Jail meeting

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements and officials from 24 counties meet today to continue looking for ways to relieve overcrowding at county jails packed with prisoners awaiting transfer to state prison. "I don't see any solutions at this point, but all my lines of communications are open," Clements said Wednesday. The Texas Department of Corrections, which is under federal court orders against overcrowding, has been accepting a limited number of new inmates in recent months. That means county jails, particularly in urban areas, have to hold convicted felons until TDC space becomes available.

Convicted killer is executed

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — A Texas man who repeatedly said he wanted to die after he was convicted of killing a woman during a $1 burglary of her home got his wish when he was executed early today following delays caused by confusion over stay requests.

Robert Streetman, 27, of Silsbee, was pronounced dead at 3:26 a.m., seven minutes after the lethal drugs began flowing through his arms. He had no final statement, replying only, "No, sir," when asked if he wished to make a statement.

The execution came only after cautious state officials, concerned that an unprecedented middle-of-the-night second appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court may have been pending, halted the execution about 2:10 a.m. as Streetman was being strapped to the death chamber gurney.

Less than 30 minutes earlier, the high court had deadlocked 4-4 on a request for a stay, apparently clearing the way for the nation's first execution this year.

A high court spokeswoman, Suzanne Ward, however, said no such second appeal was filed.

"We're willing to take as much time as possible," J. Kirk Brown, Texas Department of Corrections legal counsel, said.

Brown said once the Texas attorney general's office and the governor's office were certain no appeals were pending, the execution went ahead.

Brown said he understood Streetman was annoyed at the last-minute confusion.

"He was prepared to go forward with the process and had readied himself," Brown said.

According to department spokesman Charles Brown, "When they had the delay and they (officers) went to take him off the gurney, he said he wanted to get it over with."

Streetman was convicted of the December 1982 slaying of Christine Baker, 44, of Kountze, who died when a single shot was fired at her through a window while she sat knitting and watching television in the living room of her home, her dog lying at her side.

Focus on Divorced Parents Is Blurred in Wedding Photo

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: You were wrong, wrong, wrong to tell that woman who is about to marry a divorced man to "grin and bear it" when her fiancé takes her to his daughter's wedding, and is asked to stand next to his ex-wife so his daughter can have a picture of her parents together. Abby, they are not together anymore, and the daughter had better live in the present and forget the past.

The man I married was married before. He has two daughters in their teens, and when they marry, I do not intend to stand by and let my husband take a picture with his "ex" and children to preserve the illusion of a "family." They are no longer a family. As the wife of the father of the bride, I should be in the picture — not the ex.

BURNED UP

DEAR BURNED: Please simmer down and read on:

DEAR ABBY: A letter in your column struck a nerve with me. I was 12 when my parents' marriage ended in a bitter divorce. When I married at 19, my mother had remarried and my father was soon to wed. My wedding went smoothly. I did not seat my divorced parents together. Neither did I expect them to dance together. All I asked them to do was to stand together for one picture with me and my new husband. I didn't do it to "preserve the illusion" of Mom and Dad together. It was my gift to me as a grown woman standing next to her parents.

DEAR ABBY: After years of searching for "Mr. Right," I have finally found him. We are very much in love and absolutely sure of our feelings for each other.

There is, however, one major obstacle standing in the way of our marriage. He wants children, and I do not. We each have sound reasons for our opinions and we respect each other's views.

Have you or your readers any suggestions? We are in desperate need of some creative thinking, and are quite open-minded.

STUMPED
IN SAN FRANCISCO

DEAR STUMPED: There can be no compromise. Either you must agree to have a family to please him, or he must agree to forego having children to please you. Either way, you are bound to resent each other. Keep looking. Your "Mr. Right" is wrong for you.

DEAR ABBY: Why do people brag? I have a friend who really overdoes it. She brags about how well her married children are doing, how beautiful their homes are, what fabulous trips they take, and the expensive gifts they give her on all occasions. Of course, her grandchildren are smarter than anybody else's. One of them (she says) has the IQ of a genius.

By the way, before her husband left her for another woman, she bragged about what a great marriage they had.

How can I get her to knock it off? Her constant bragging gets on my nerves.

CAN'T STAND BRAGGERS

DEAR CAN'T: Some people brag to impress or convince others. Your friend was probably bragging to cover her unhappiness. Braggers are a pathetic lot. You can't get people to do — or not do — anything. But you can absent yourself from their company.

Toyotas rise 24 percent in price as U.S. dollar falls

NEW YORK (AP) — American consumers aren't feeling the full brunt of the dollar's nearly three-year decline despite big price rises for items such as cutlery, cameras and china.

Imported coffee, fruits and vegetables are cheaper now than when the dollar peaked in early 1985. It costs $18.95 for a bottle of Moët & Chandon champagne on New York's fashionable Upper East Side, but that's only $1 more than in the fall of 1986.

A cheaper dollar makes imports more expensive, but fears of a round of serious import-price inflation have eased in recent days along with the dollar's rebound from its depressed level of the final days of 1987.

The only drawback to the modest import price increases is that it means the falling dollar is not helping U.S. manufacturers combat the flood of imports as much as expected.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics says cutlery rose 40 percent, cameras 39 percent and china 50 percent in its tabulation of import prices between March 1985 and September 1987.

Price increases have been smaller for footwear (about 14 percent), furniture (about 19 percent), and apparel (about 13 percent).

Even though the Japanese yen rose 70 percent against the dollar in the two years from October 1985 to October 1987, the price of a typical car from Toyota Motor Corp. climbed only 24 percent.

Toyota's basic four-door Corolla sedan rose 24.5 percent during the period to a suggested list price of $8,898 from $7,148. The 1988 model, though, has a fancier interior, longer wheelbase, better suspension and more efficient engine. How does Toyota do it?

"Japan's nothing but a big factory. Raw materials come in at one end and finished products come out at the other, and raw materials prices have gone down," said James Olson, spokesman for Toyota Motor Sales USA Inc. in Torrance, Calif.

Toyota also cut overhead costs, froze hiring and, Olson said, took "a huge-hit in profits" to maintain its U.S. sales. Toyota's U.S. market share actually rose by the end of 1987 to 6 percent from 5.6 percent a year earlier, he said.

French winemakers have tried to hold the line on their prices in order to hang onto their share of the U.S. market.

Even the modest French price increases have given an edge to winemakers in the United States as well as emerging winemaking countries such as Australia and Chile, whose currencies have fallen or steadied against the dollar.

Coffee prices are down 21 percent since early 1985, partly because of better crops and partly because the dollar has risen against currencies of the Latin American nations that produce the beans.

Sugar, likewise, is up a scant 7 percent, according to Bureau of Labor Statistics data for the period from March 1985 to September 1987.

Savings Bonds sales reported

United States Savings Bonds sales in Texas during fiscal year 1987 amounted to $366,982,471. T. J. Morrow, district director for the U.S. Savings Bond Division in Texas, announced recently. These sales represent 94.6 percent of the state's 1987 assigned dollar goal of $388 million.

Sales of Series EE Bonds amounted to $6,412 during September 1987 in Scurry County. H. W. Cargile, volunteer chairman said. The October 1986 through September 1987 total for the county was $199,792 which represents 76.8 percent of the county's 1987 assigned dollar goal of $260,000.

Pork and potatoes for easy main dish

By NANCY BYAL
Better Homes and Gardens
Food Editor

In Louisiana, pork and sweet potatoes just naturally go together. Look for 1/2-inch pork rib chops on special at your supermarket. They're often offered in packages of eight or more, enough to repack in moisture- and vaporproof wrapping and freeze for several meals.

PORK CHOPS LOUISIANNE

4 pork rib chops, cut 1/2-inch thick (1 1/2 pounds)
2 tablespoons cooking oil
4 medium sweet potatoes, peeled and sliced
1 green pepper, sliced into rings
1 small onion, sliced into thin wedges
1/2 cup water
1/2 cup frozen orange juice concentrate, thawed

1 tablespoon cornstarch
1 teaspoon instant beef bouillon granules
Several dashes bottled hot pepper sauce

Trim excess fat from pork chops. In a 12-inch skillet brown chops on both sides in hot oil. Season with salt and pepper. Place chops in ungreased 9- by 9- by 2-inch baking dish. Arrange potatoes, pepper rings and onion wedges over pork chops. Season vegetables with salt and pepper.

In a small saucepan stir together water, juice concentrate, cornstarch, bouillon granules and hot pepper sauce. Cook and stir until thickened and bubbly; pour over chops and vegetables. Cover and bake in a 350-degree oven 50 to 55 minutes or until meat and vegetables are tender. Makes 4 servings.

New treatments help Alzheimer's symptoms

By NYU Medical Center

Treatment can now help control some of the most distressing behavioral symptoms of Alzheimer's disease, enabling the patient to remain at home and avoiding institutionalization, according to clinical researchers at New York University Medical Center.

"We cannot make patients remember where they have misplaced things," said Dr. Barry Reisberg, associate professor of psychiatry and clinical director of the center's Aging and Dementia Research Program, "but the emotional reactions — the delusions, anxieties, phobias — do respond to a variety of psychoactive medications," including both tranquilizers and antidepressants.

Reisberg added that since both positive responses and side effects may be different in people with Alzheimer's than in people with other illnesses, the drugs must be administered cautiously, with gradual determination of proper dosage for each individual.

Loss of memory and the ability to cope with day-to-day tasks that come with Alzheimer's can lead to reactions which seem bizarre to others.

"For example, people who cannot recall where they have put things may develop the delusion that someone is stealing their possessions; in fact, this is one of the most common problems in Alzheimer's," Reisberg said.

"As an individual becomes aware of increasing mental disability, depression may set in," noted Steven H. Ferris, associate professor of psychiatry and executive director of the research program. The patient may become agitated and even violent as recognition of familiar people and surroundings is lost.

These developments are particularly disturbing for spouses and other caregivers, who are already under tremendous stress. The symptoms are major causes of institutionalization, which families often regard as a last resort.

Alzheimer's affects an estimated 10 to 15 percent of people over age 65. Of these, about 5 percent suffer a severe loss of mental ability and learned skills, eventually progressing to an inability to walk or talk; the others have milder symptoms. Since the American population is growing older, it is expected the number of Americans with this age-related disease will increase.

Additionally, the NYU researcher encourages involvement of Alzheimer's patients' families in a nationwide voluntary group that offers information, support and practical advice: the Alzheimer's Disease and Related Disorders Association (ADRA), 70 East Lake Street, Chicago, IL 60601; 1-800-621-0379 (in Illinois, 1-800-572-6037).

Indian tribe retains old ways

MIAMI (AP) — Their homeland is 25 miles west of here, a swampy wilderness the white man calls "The Everglades." They speak a language heard nowhere else in the world and they subsist as their forefathers did on fish, wild boar, turkey, alligator and deer.

They plant pumpkin, corn, sweet potato and beans and harvest native fruits at nearby hammocks; many still cook by wood in palmetto-thatched huts called "chickies."

These are the Miccosukee Indians, a tribe that fought three wars in the 1800s against the U.S. Army and never surrendered; a tribe the federal government refused to recognize until 25 years ago when Cuba and some Central American nations offered the Miccosukees diplomatic relations as a sovereign nation.

"The white man tries to classify us with all Indians," said Tribal Chairman Billy Cypress, 37. "They label things they don't understand, but we don't care what they call us, we know who we are."

Floridians and tourists get only a superficial view of the Miccosukees as they traverse U.S. 41 (Tamiami Trail) between Miami and Naples. The tribe owns 76,000 acres of reservation land and leases another 125,000 acres from National Park Service.

Travelers come in contact with tribal members only at a cultural center, service station or Miccosukee Restaurant, which the tribe owns. Indians also provide airboat rides through the Everglades.

The 368 registered members of the tribe, however, live almost in obscurity off parallel roads on both sides of the highway. Also out of sight are the tribe's school, health clinic, administrative offices, library and police department.

This was done by design. The Miccosukees are traditionalists adhering to centuries-old customs and believing in tribal legends. For them, the Miccosukees fell from heaven into a lake and swam ashore to build a home.

The tribe originated around what is now Tallahassee. When Spanish explorers arrived in the 16th century, several tribes, including the Miccosukees and Seminoles, formed the Creek Confederacy.

After Spain sold Florida to the United States in 1821, the white man, explained Cypress, began to crowd the Indians farther south until the tribes were ordered moved to Oklahoma. The Miccosukees and Seminoles refused and joined in three Seminole Wars against the United States.

Indians who survived did so by fleeing into the Everglades where soldiers were unable to track them down.

Time brought on an undeclared truce which exists today and while the Seminoles received recognition from the government, the Miccosukees did not. U.S. authorities had lumped the two tribes together.

When the tribe sought and obtained recognition from foreign countries, the U.S. formally recognized the Miccosukee Tribe Jan. 11, 1962.

"We would like to be left alone. The white man says Indians can't think for themselves or govern themselves, but we are civilized," Cypress emphasized, "and want to help make the rules for the Miccosukees."

Schooling, said Cypress, is not mandatory. Children may attend the reservation school "or be taught Indian ways by their parents."

The medicine man is still one of the most important individuals in this tribe. Ailments are cured either with folklore medicine or medications received at the tribal clinic.

A communal society, Miccosukees share in the proceeds from tourism. Each member receives $100 every six months.

Cypress admits the tribe cannot survive without the white man's money.

Cuts are being made in the $1.5 million funding sent from Washington each year.

"The money provides only 56 percent of our needs," said Cypress. "We have to make up the difference."

The tribe is building a service plaza on a new stretch of Interstate 75 in Collier County and has decided to do as their Seminole brothers have done.

"Our only salvation is bingo," he admitted. The tribe has requested permission to construct a bingo hall in South Dade.

"We need the money for housing, health and social services," said the tribal chairman.

"We have to play the modern role of the Indian, but we will protect the tribe at all costs."

Cleaning tips ease work load

NEW YORK (AP) — Recent studies indicate that the average person between the ages of 25 and 44 spends 6.8 hours each week on housecleaning, a 40 percent drop from the 11.3 hours recorded during the mid-1960s.

With less time available for cleaning these days, the key to a cleaner home is to use that time more efficiently, notes an article in Guideposts magazine. It offers cleaning tips to incorporate into your housecleaning routine to simplify the task and save precious time:

— Carry a tote tray of cleaning supplies and a plastic trash bag for emptying wastebaskets and ashtrays. Don't backtrack; finish each room completely and carry everything you need from one room to the next.

— Start at the back — or top — of the house and work down and forward to the front. Similarly, work from the top of each room down to the floor, vacuuming only after you've completely dusted the room.

— Dust louvered window shutters or blinds by wrapping a white cleaning cloth over a putty knife.

— Move furniture the shortest distance possible. For example, tip dining room chairs back when vacuuming, instead of moving them.

— Apply a small amount of lemon oil to the inside of a glass shower door. This will reduce the water and soap scum that builds up.

— Use different colored cleaning cloths for the various types of chores so that you don't, for example, wipe floors with the window-cleaning cloth. Use one for scrubbing fixtures, another for windows and mirrors and a third for dusting and polishing furniture.

Exercise for the brain

NEW YORK (AP) — It's smarter to exercise than to think about it, according to the Reebok Aerobic Information Bureau.

It says University of Southern California researchers split 48 senior citizens into two groups: exercising and non-exercising. Intelligence tests before and after 12 weeks of exercise show that the exercising group improved its problem-solving abilities.

SWC hoop wars get started; Aggies turn tables on SMU

by The Associated Press

It was not the same song, another verse when the Southern Methodist University Mustangs took on the Texas A&M Aggies for the second time in less than a week in college basketball.

SMU won the first game in Hawaii, but Texas A&M took a 58-53 victory in the conference opener for both teams Wednesday night. The victory avenged an 89-66 SMU victory a week ago in the Rainbow Classic.

In other SWC games, Baylor defeated Texas Christian, 75-61, Texas Tech defeated Rice, 74-66, and Arkansas routed Texas, 91-62. In a non-conference game, New Orleans defeated Houston, 71-64.

"To jump on us like they did in Hawaii made our guys very respectable of them and while I doubt it, they may have taken us a little lightly," A&M coach Shelby Metcalf said.

"We've played 13 good games this year and one bad one," SMU coach Dave Bliss said. "That's not to take anything away from Texas A&M. The Aggies played a good game tonight."

Donald Thompson scored 18 points and grabbed eight rebounds to lead the Aggies to the victory.

The Aggies upped their season record to 9-6, while SMU fell to 11-3.

Darryl McDonald added 15 points, while Keron Graves got 12 and Doug Dennis 10 for the Aggies.

Eric Longino led SMU with 16 points, while Kato Armstrong added 13 and Carlton McKinney 11.

Darryl Middleton scored 26 points to lead Baylor to a 75-61 victory over Texas Christian in the first game pitting the Iba coaching cousins.

The win upped Baylor's record to 10-4 on the season, while Texas Christian fell to 6-6.

The Bears, coached by Gene Iba, were ahead only 27-25 at the half thanks to a pair of Middleton free throws with 27 seconds left. But in the final 20 minutes, Michael Hobbs churned in 18 points and Robert McLemore 10.

Moe Iba's Horned Frogs committed seven turnovers in less than six minutes early in the second half. Opportunistic Baylor converted those Frog miscues into 12 points as the Bears' lead quickly ballooned to 41-31.

Texas Christian was led by junior college transfers John Lewis and Tim Chase with 18 points apiece. Lewis also limited Baylor backcourt standout Michael Williams to just six points.

Sophomore guard Jerry Mason scored a career-high 30 points, including six 3-point shots, to lead Texas Tech to a 74-66 win over Rice.

Rice had stayed within four points of the Red Raiders during the final seven minutes of play, but a missed 3-point attempt by Ronald Robertson with 12 seconds left and David Willie's two missed free throws with 10 seconds to play kept the score at 70-66.

Mason then sunk two free throws to put the game out of reach.

The Red Raiders improved to 6-5 overall and 1-0 in the SWC. The Owls dropped to 3-8 and 0-1.

Redshirt freshman Larry Marks came off the bench and scored 19 points and grabbed eight rebounds to lead Arkansas to a 91-62 victory over Texas.

Arkansas, now 10-2, went out to a 19-2 lead, holding Texas without a point or rebound for the first 5:48. Texas is 7-7 overall and 1-1 in the SWC.

Tim Scott had 18 for Arkansas and Allie Freeman and Ron Huery added 11 each.

It was Arkansas' most lopsided victory over Texas since 1945.

Molitor drops demand; reaches an agreement

MILWAUKEE (AP) - Paul Molitor's willingness to drop a demand for a three-year deal cleared the way for agreement on a $3.2 million contract between the 11-year veteran and the Milwaukee Brewers.

"I can't blame them for wanting to do that (have a two-year deal) since I've only averaged 120-some games the last five years," Molitor said Wednesday after agreeing to a two-year contract that also includes incentive clauses.

"It got to the point where if I held onto that third year, it would risk my chances of coming back."

In exchange for his concession on contract length, the 31-year-old Molitor was able to get when the Razorbacks won 74-38.

New Orleans notched its 20th straight home victory over Houston 71-64 as Gabe Corchiani scored a career-high 25 points and Ledell Eackles 18 points as a reserve.

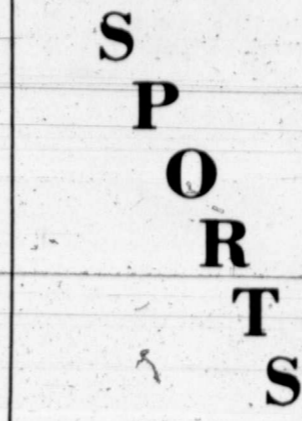

Rolando Ferreira had 17 points and 11 rebounds for Houston, followed by Richard Hollis with 16 points and Horace Chaney with 14.

O'Connor says suing agents will stop underhanded deals

ATLANTA (AP) - The way to stop agents from signing college athletes before their eligibility expires is to sue both the agents and athletes, according to the counsel for the American Football Coaches Association.

"I can assure you that if agents are sued for interfering with student-athletes who still have eligibility, that you're going to see some results," Gene O'Connor told the AFCA's annual business luncheon Wednesday.

He said the prohibitive cost of defending themselves would act as a deterrent to unscrupulous agents. And he also predicted that juries "will award substantial punitive damages against these agents who have corrupted the situation. "Also, student-athletes should be sued for fraud in the event that they file a false affidavit stating that they have not taken money and that they are truly eligible, but in fact they are not."

O'Connor also said the NCAA should impose substantial fines when recruiting violations first occur instead of waiting for "repeated and serious violations" to crop up.

"I don't believe there are sufficient economic penalties for the day-to-day garden variety violations which will deter and really curb those persons who violate the recruiting process," he said.

"If somebody is going to fine substantial recruiting violators at the outset, on the first violation, the administration, the athletic director and the coaches are going to take notice and be more vigilant."

"Waiting until the very end, only after repeated and serious violations, does not stop and curtail what goes on."

"Taking some of the TV money away or imposing the death penalty is not enough economically, as far as I'm concerned. The absence of a substantial fine for a first violation is a mistake."

He suggested early fines of $5,000-$10,000 against an institution and also recommended a policy of total amnesty for self-disclosure "as long as the situation is rectified satisfactorily."

He said college presidents and should be made "personally responsible under the NCAA code for the violations that occur. I'd put into their contracts the same

Satellite owners will have to pay for baseball now

NEW YORK (AP) - Free baseball for satellite dish owners is a thing of the past.

General Instrument Corporation of San Diego will announce today that it has agreed to scramble the signals of all major league baseball games this season, The Associated Press has learned. Those who have used satellite dishes to watch baseball will have to buy a decoder, and possibly pay a rights' fee to the baseball commissioner's office. That includes everyone from homeowners to the major networks.

Hughes Television Network of New York, which will handle transmission of TV signals for the teams, last month signed a contract with the commissioner's office to scramble them.

General Instrument will handle the scrambling under a contract with Hughes, a source who spoke on condition of anonymity told the AP.

Mark Medress, a General Instrument vice president, confirmed Wednesday night that an announcement would be made today, but declined further comment until after the announcement.

Until now, all baseball signals have gone unscrambled and thus were available to anyone with a satellite dish.

Television stations have been allowed to use several minutes of videotape from other stations' events in exchange for allowing other stations to use tape from their own telecasts.

Baseball owners have struggled in the past over satellite transmissions. When the Atlanta Braves won the National League Western Division in 1983, owner Ted Turner went to court in an unsuccessful attempt to allow his superstation to broadcast the playoff games.

In 1985, after pressure from Commissioner Peter Ueberroth, the Braves agreed to pay $30 million to a central fund over five years to compensate other teams from superstation WTBS' intrusion into their markets.

language that coaches have in their contracts if they violate the rules. I don't think there ought to be two standards - one for coaches and one for presidents and trustees."

He pointed out two cases in which the U.S. Supreme Court has held the heads of major food and drug corporations criminally liable even though they were ignorant of the violations in question.

"There's no criminal standard on presidents or boards of trustees," he said. "What public policy in America justifies an exemption for chief executive officers of institutions of higher education and boards of trustees from the same penalties that officers of public corporations are subject to?"

Gregg meets with SMU rep

DALLAS (AP) - Green Bay Packer Coach Forrest Gregg met with a Southern Methodist University athletics official but not about applying for a job as head coach at his alma mater, Packer president Robert Parins says.

Parins denied any knowledge that Gregg's meeting involved an application for a job as SMU coach.

"I'm not aware of anything," Parins said after a telephone conversation Wednesday with Gregg, who was on vacation in Texas. "He's always expressed an interest in the university because that's where he played."

Gregg "had a chance interview with someone from the (SMU) athletic department but it certainly had nothing to do with applying for a job," Parins said.

"I am in Dallas visiting my daughter, period," Gregg said in a one-sentence statement issued by Packer public relations director Lee Rummel.

SMU Athletic Director Doug Single said he talked Tuesday with Gregg but refused to say whether they discussed the coaching vacancy.

A Dallas radio station reported that Gregg also met with SMU President A. Kenneth Pye.

The Dallas Times Herald reported that Gregg appeared to be a finalist for the SMU position. The newspaper said that an NFL coach said Gregg was interested in the job.

Grades leave Dusters on icy ground; only five players eligible to return

By BILL McCLELLAN

The ice, the cold, they are minor problems for Coach Kelly Chadwick.

In a scenario as freaky as the West Texas weather, the Western Texas College Lady Dusters coach has seen his team go from a possible national championship contender to one that will have to struggle to win another ballgame this season.

"I've never been faced with this situation before," said the 1986-87 Region V Coach of the Year, who lost seven of his 12 players to grades, homesickness or personal reasons over the holidays. "We can't do the things we used to do, that's for certain. We can't get a lot of fouls and we can't try to press anyone. We can't play the kind of defense we've been playing, and defense has been the key to our success. I don't know how we are going to do it but we are going to try our best. None of these kids are quitters and certainly I'm not."

The problem mounted slowly, then snowballed. Cathey Crowder, a 5-10 freshman from Ira, suffered a season-ending knee injury before the first game. Erica Bunce, 6-2 freshman from San Antonio, and Lisa Houston, a 5-10 sophomore transfer from Michigan City, Ind. by way of Los Angeles, quit the team. Pampa freshman Jackie Reed, 5-9, left for personal reasons. And that was before grades came out.

"Ever since I started coaching ball I knew it could happen. When you are only allowed 10 scholarships you're handicapped in the first place," said the coach. "And, anytime you have so many freshmen you expect to lose some...but nothing like this. I think one or two is the most I've ever lost in a semester."

All-conference prospects Kayla Thompson and Staci Smith, and Carolyn Colbert and Sharon Rosemond were caught by the grade crunch and won't be eligible when the Dusters tip off the second half of the season today in

KELLY CHADWICK

Odessa.

Smith, a 5-10 freshman from Amarillo, averaged 14.2 points while shooting .638 from the field during Western's first 15 games. Thompson, the Dusters' floor leader and one of only two players who returned from last season's regional champion team, averaged 10.8 points and was leading the conference in steals (.60) and assists (7.6 average). Colbert, a 5-9 freshman from Dallas, was leading the team in rebounding with a 6.1 average.

The situation might have been easier to take, were it not for the fact that the Dusters were 12-3 for the season, with two of the losses coming to Top Ten teams Odessa and Trinity Valley. A berth to the Region V Tournament was practically assured, and the Dusters' tradition of never finishing below a tie for second in the conference was, too.

"I felt like we had a chance to have the best team we've ever had here. I wasn't the least bit scared of Odessa and I don't think the kids were, either," mused Coach Chadwick.

"It's like the farmer who has a cotton crop and it hails the day before he comes to pick it. It's tough on me, it's tough on the college, it's tough on the girls who didn't make the grades, and it's tough on the five girls we have who are eligible," said the coach.

The five player team is made up of sophomore Nancy Bals, 5-10 from Lubbock, and four freshmen - Stephanie McKnight, Julie Roewe, Tabitha Walton and Nicky Allen.

Another justice resigns post

AUSTIN (AP) — Just two days after former Chief Justice John Hill's replacement was sworn in on the Texas Supreme Court, another high court justice quit his job.

Justice Robert M. Campbell resigned Wednesday, saying he wants to campaign against changing the state's system of electing judges to an appointive one. Hill had resigned to campaign for an appointive plan.

Campbell's resignation was accepted by Gov. Bill Clements, who aides said would immediately begin looking for a successor.

"I feel that I, as senior justice on the court, must speak out," Campbell said in a statement distributed after he met with Clements.

"An unmasking of this proposal for appointment of our judges by an elite group instead of by election reveals it to be a mere scheme to give big-business interests the power to control our courts," Campbell said.

He said the proposals for appointing appellate court judges "constitutes a hypocritical deception."

Clements, who earlier appointed Thomas R. Phillips to become the first Republican chief justice, said his search for Campbell's replacement would be thorough.

"The Texas Supreme Court is at a crossroads. It is vitally important that our justices interpret Texas law based on fairness, judicial balance and reason. I am committed to finding an individual who meets that criteria," Clements said.

Campbell, 52, was most recently elected in 1986. His term didn't expire until the end of 1992.

Hill had no comment about Campbell's decision. "I sure don't," he said in a telephone interview Wednesday night.

Campbell in September had announced his candidacy for chief justice, but said two months later that he didn't want to interrupt his court workload with an election campaign.

While saying he believes strongly in the elected judge system, Campbell didn't feel that his seat on the Supreme Court allowed him to speak out.

"To do so without violating my obligation to refrain from using the Supreme Court as a political platform requires my resignation," Campbell said.

Campbell, from Waco, was sharply critical of Hill's actions during the swearing-in ceremony Monday for the new chief justice. During that ceremony, Hill advocated changing to an appointive system.

"I have forced myself to neglect this obligation (to speak out) because I have felt a deeper obligation to refrain from being a party to the dragging of our Supreme Court down into the muck and mire of politics," Campbell said.

After Clements appoints a justice to serve this year, voters in November will elect someone to complete Campbell's term, said George Bayoud, Clements' chief of staff.

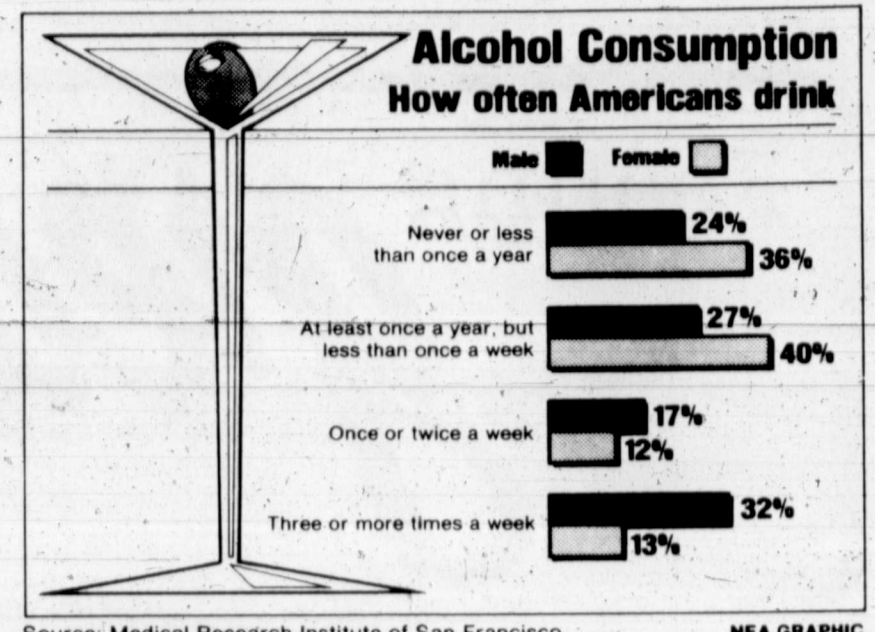

Campbell's resignation came as the latest shock to a Supreme Court that has been at the center of a storm of negative publicity in the past year. Last June, two justices were publicly rebuked by the State Commission on Judicial Conduct.

The Supreme Court received criticism nationally for refusing to hear the appeal of Texaco Inc. in its $11 billion legal battle with Pennzoil Co.

The court also has been the subject of a recent segment on the CBS-TV "60 Minutes" program, which examined the role campaign contributions play in the election of Texas Supreme Court justices.

And this week, the controversy about such contributions was the subject of a Time magazine article entitled, "Is Texas Justice for Sale?"

British statesman Sir Anthony Eden was born in 1897.

Americans with family incomes greater than $30,000 a year are far more likely to be regular drinkers than less affluent Americans, according to a 1984 survey. In addition, Americans 55 years of age and older are less likely to drink than people in other age groups.

Texas won because of its solid proposal

AUSTIN (AP) — Austin could become an international hub of electronic wizardry now that Sematech has announced it will become the city's second national semiconductor consortium, officials say.

Sematech and the Microelectronics and Computer Technology Corp. will complement each other, University of Texas Chancellor Hans Mark told a news conference Wednesday.

Texas, which lured MCC in 1982, beat out 11 other states to win Sematech after a month-long competition that ended Wednesday.

"MCC worries about computer architecture and software, whereas Sematech worries about the hardware," Mark said. "With these two organizations, we have in this town the potential to become the center of electronic manufacturing and electronic technology in the world."

The Sematech consortium was conceived to develop and test advanced manufacturing processes, materials and equipment for the U.S. semiconductor industry. It also is supposed to help the United States regain its edge in competing with the Japanese.

As the basis of transistors and other electronic components, semiconductors are the heart of computers, electronic consumer products and contemporary military weapons systems.

"Frankly, I think most of the things they (MCC and Sematech) will do together we don't even envision yet," former MCC head Bobby Inman said. "You'll find that they'll be out at the leading edge of what's happening in this country."

Charles Spork, Sematech board chairman and president of National Semiconductor Corp., noted that a number of companies are members both of the new research center and MCC.

"The time is past when the United States can afford to run multiple duplications of its efforts in the area of (research and development)," he said. "We clearly are going to logically work together to avoid that duplication."

Texas won Sematech because it had a solid proposal supported strongly by state officials, Spork and other Sematech officials said.

"We ended up choosing Texas for a whole bunch of balanced reasons," Spork said. "One very major one was the level of enthusiasm and support that we found across the whole broad spectrum of entities in Texas."

Spork was joined at a news conference by Gov. Bill Clements, U.S. Rep. J.J. "Jake" Pickle, D-Austin, and officials of the Austin Chamber of Commerce and UT.

"This is a home run, believe me," Clements said. "This is a great day for Texas and for Sematech."

Although Spork called Texas "the best of the best," he said the other 11 finalist states also offered strong proposals and will be awarded $50,000 planning grants to submit proposals for university "centers of excellence" for semiconductor research.

Other finalists were Arizona, California, Colorado, Florida, Massachusetts, Missouri, New Mexico, New York, North Carolina, Oregon and Wisconsin.

Sanford L. Kane, chairman of the Sematech site selection committee and an IBM vice president, said Texas had solid offerings in all areas.

The Sematech board approved the Austin site unanimously after finding that while other applicants may have been stronger than Texas in one area, they were weak in others, officials said.

Kane and Spork declined to list weak spots in proposals submitted by the other 11 finalists. "At this point, what's the point of stepping on somebody after they've done such a fine job?" Kane asked.

Some Sematech employees could move into the Austin plant, a vacant Data General facility, as early as February, Clements said.

The consortium will employ about 700 people when operating at full capacity in about two years, Spork said. About half the employees will be from the consortium's member companies and about half will be new hires, he said.

Most of the jobs will be in technical and engineering fields, Spork said.

Pike Powers, who helped spearhead the Austin drive for the Chamber of Commerce, said about 2,400 spinoff jobs are expected from the economic surge created by Sematech.

Plans call for the semiconductor industry and the federal government each to provide $100 million for Sematech's annual budget, which has been projected to be $250 million annually for the next six years.

Texas offered a $68 million incentive package to lure Sematech to Austin, including about $50 million for a facility and $18 million provided by UT and the Austin community.

Sematech stands for Semiconductor Manufacturing Technology. Among Sematech's member companies are computer makers such as IBM, chip makers such as Dallas-based Texas Instruments Inc., and producers of chip-making equipment.

Preliminary report finds no fraudulent enrollments

CORSICANA, Texas (AP) — Whether the courses conformed to state guidelines is still in question, but a preliminary report indicates that nursing home residents were not fraudulently enrolled in Navarro College's off-campus classes.

Navarro President Kenneth Walker said Wednesday that the state auditors report found no wrongdoing on the college's part, despite allegations that elderly people were put into courses they couldn't comprehend simply to net the college tuition fees.

State auditors and college officials are still discussing whether the courses conformed to state guidelines, Walker said.

If auditors determine the classes — taught to 800 residents in 13 nursing homes and retirement centers — were below standards of the Texas Higher Education Coordinating Board, the college may be required to repay state funds.

But criminal allegations are "out of the question. The auditors found there was no fraudulent enrollment. So now we're left with the rather nebulous concept of course quality," Walker said.

State auditor Larry Alwin said a copy of his office's report will not be available until college officials have a chance to respond in writing. He said he would not comment until the report is released.

Dr. Gott

Night sweats tied to infection

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Seven years ago, my wife suffered a stroke. Eighteen months ago, she had 10 inches of cancerous colon removed and 12 months ago she had a heart attack. Two months later, she began to perspire so heavily that I have to change her nightgown three times a night. Now, two months after her problem began, I am getting the same problem. The doctor thinks it must be something in the house. What do you think? We shower daily and keep the house spotless.

DEAR READER: You are describing night sweats. Excessive perspiration, with or without fever, can indicate the presence of infection or inflammation within the body. Night sweats used to be considered typical of tuberculosis; however, they can occur in the presence of other infections, too.

I am not aware that allergies or exposure to household substances cause night sweats. More likely, your wife has an infection — possibly as a result of her colon surgery — and you may have contracted it. Ask the doctor to refer you for a second opinion.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I am active in a group of adoptees. How can adopted children find out their family medical history? Why are adoption agencies so reluctant to gather that information from the birth parents and so unwilling to give whatever data they have to adoptees?

DEAR READER: Adoption agencies have traditionally refused to disclose information about natural parents and adoptive parents. They reason that this information could disrupt the bonding that takes place between an adopted child and the child's new parents. In addition, the agencies have been reluctant to run the risk of natural parents trying to see their children — or get them back — years after the adoption.

Today, this secretive, and sometimes harmful, behavior is giving way to more open communication when, in certain instances, adopted children are eager to know more about their biological families. Adopted children are now more able to seek out facts about their natural parents by obtaining hospital birth records and petitioning adoption agencies to open their files.

From a health standpoint, this makes sense. Because the tendency to many diseases appears to be inherited, children should be entitled to a "genetic biography." In addition, these children, as they mature, often develop a normal but insatiable urge to know more about their natural families.

Of course, there are times when biological data serve simply to open new wounds and cause discomfort. For the most part, however, I agree that adoptees should have access to facts about their backgrounds, once the children are old enough to be able to assimilate the information, make peace with the inevitable feelings of rejection and get on with living.

If you have questions about MENOPAUSE, you can get answers in Dr. Gott's new Health Report on the subject. Send $1 to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to ask for the Health Report on Menopause.

GM turns on high tech to impress several dealers

NEW YORK (AP) — Chelsea Bendell came to the General Motors Corp.'s by-invitation-only car show to see the future, and there it was: a screaming red Corvette with a spaceship-style interior and a front end like a shark's face.

It was smiling at her. Chelsea, 8, smiled back. "Can I get in it?" she asked, and scrambled aboard before anyone could respond.

"That's the generation that's going to buy a car like that," said her mother, Anne Bendell, whose husband, Harold, is a Chevrolet dealer, one of thousands from across the nation invited to the exhibit.

Her opinion remained unchanged by the news that Chelsea probably would have to shell out $100,000 for a car like that. "So? In 10 years, a phone call will probably cost $1,000."

GM reportedly spent $20 million for the three-day show. Clearly, money was not the object; improving GM's image was. Tired of being thought of as the lumbering giant cranking out the same old cars, the company shipped 24 one-of-a-kind and 1988 models into the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel and asked anyone who might care to come see how clever GM really is.

If the dealers who wandered through the display rooms on Wednesday were any indication, GM had successfully portrayed itself as a confident, creative carmaker ready to cruise into the 21st century on scads of spiffy wheels.

"I love this! I want one!" said one dealer dancing around the cherry red Trans Sport 6-seater van with gray corduroy seats, a personal computer built into the passenger side and a plastic windshield sweeping up over the top of the front seats like a transparent tumor.

A van similar to the Trans Sport goes into production in 1990. "That big old Safari station wagon — it's just not us anymore," said Terry Henline of the GM design staff.

Just what is GM these days? In the Grand Ballroom, where GM's futuristic "concept cars" were displayed, conversations were peppered with words like "sleek" and "adventuresome."

Shuttle delays are proving to be costly

WASHINGTON (AP) — America's ambitious program of planetary exploration, already years behind schedule and hundreds of millions over budget, may be hurt again by the continuing problems in getting the shuttle back into space.

One project in particular, the Magellan probe to map Venus, faces a critical timeline. Under the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's flight schedule, which envisioned the first post-Challenger launch on June 2 this year, the Magellan spacecraft would have been sent on its way from the cargo bay of the fifth shuttle, on April 27, 1989.

All of NASA's planetary probes are built to be launched from the shuttle.

"You only get a launch opportunity to Venus every 18 months," Samuel Keller, the second-in-command of NASA science programs, said in an interview Wednesday. At other times, Earth and its nearest neighbor are in the wrong position for targeting.

Every day these expensive science spacecraft spend on the ground costs huge sums that bring little return. And since the Challenger blew up two years ago, scientists with years of work tied up in the probes have seen their careers languish.

Just keeping Magellan, the $1 billion Hubble Space Telescope and the Jupiter probe Galileo in storage has cost well over $100 million. The space telescope, for example, costs $6 million to $8 million a month while it's grounded.

Depending on when the next shuttle is launched — possibly as long as three months beyond the June 2 date — NASA may be forced to jigger priorities for shuttle payloads. Those priorities were arrived at through painful evaluation of the limited space opportunities in the wake of the Challenger accident that killed seven astronauts.

Planetary exploration was hardest hit by the halt in manned flight and near-halt in launching unmanned rockets. The last U.S. planetary mission, the Pioneer probe, was launched to Venus in 1978.

The Soviet Union, in the meantime, was a major player in sending probes last year to meet Halley's comet and it has scheduled unmanned missions to Mars beginning this year.

American, Southwest...

2 airlines have best records

WASHINGTON (AP) — American Airlines and Southwest Airlines are the leaders in on-time performance after three months of government scrutiny, while Northwest and Delta are at the bottom of the latest rankings.

The Transportation Department's consumer scorecard for November, which was released Wednesday, showed American and Southwest as the only airlines landing more than 80 percent of their flights within 15 minutes of schedule. The two carriers were first and second in September and October as well.

Overall, the 14 airlines checked by the department reported that 76 percent of their flights arrived on time during November, about the same as in September but somewhat lower than October's 80.6 percent.

In the three months the ratings have been compiled, Northwest has been among the tardiest carriers. The airline, which also has ranked among the carriers with the most passenger complaints, was next to last in September, moved to 11th in October and dipped back to second from the bottom in November.

Delta Air Lines consistently ranks among the carriers with the fewest complaints against it by passengers (fifth best among 19 airlines during 1987), but its on-time record took a nose dive to the bottom in November, trailing the other 13 airlines.

Delta flights arrived on time 70.1 percent of the time during November. The airline has ranked among the half-dozen tardiest airlines in each of the three months and in November also had the highest percentage of chronically late flights that arrived late at least 80 percent of the time.

USAir and Pacific Southwest Airlines, which earlier this year was purchased by USAir but operates independently, also have fared poorly in the on-time competition. USAir was last in September, PSA was last in October and neither has moved higher than 10th.

Piedmont Airlines was among the top five carriers in both September and October but dropped to 12th in November. Its on-time performance fell from better than 80 percent to 73.2 percent.

Continental Airlines dropped from third behind American and Southwest with a better than 81 percent on-time record during the first two months to 9th in November with 74.5 percent of its flights arriving promptly.

Meanwhile, the number of chronically late flights declined from 150 flights in September to 71 in November.

School is appealing aid denial

DALLAS (AP) — Bishop College will have to depend on private contributions while it appeals a U.S. Department of Education ruling denying the school $400,000 in federal student aid, officials say.

"We've got to tell contributors to double up again," interim president Levi Watkins said Wednesday. "We're back where we were in August" when the college first lost federal funds.

College attorneys on Wednesday appealed the education department's Dec. 23 decision not to re-certify Bishop's eligibility for federal aid monies.

The school, which is in Chapter 11 reorganization, had counted on the funds when it began classes in the fall, and its continued operation are in jeopardy without the money, Watkins said.

"We have gotten along to this point with some difficulties in meeting the payroll," he said.

Berry's World

Infant's abuse is detailed

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The family of an 8-month-old baby played sadistic games with her until she died, a social services caseworker says.

Ray Macias Sr. is in jail on murder charges in connection with the Dec. 29 death of Sarah Macias, his niece.

Macias and his wife, Guadalupe, went before State District Judge Tom Rickhoff Wednesday to ask that their five children not be turned over to the state.

Rickhoff ordered that the children, ranging in age from 11 months to 13 years, be kept in foster care without visitation from their parents until an investigation into the baby's death is complete.

Texas Department of Human Services worker Rhonda Smith testified Wednesday she was told of the abuse by three of the baby's cousins.
