

'Super Tuesday' called success

AUSTIN (AP) — The architects of Super Tuesday say it worked in Texas although it worked best for two of the more liberal candidates in the Democratic presidential field.

State Sen. Chet Edwards, D-Duncanville, said Wednesday that Super Tuesday was not conceived as a way to boost the candidacy of a Southern conservative.

"It wasn't designed to help any specific candidate. It was designed to give 16 million Texans and citizens throughout the South a voice in the selection of our president and a voice in the setting of our national agenda," Edwards told a news conference.

Edwards and Rep. Clint Hackney, D-Houston, sponsors of the bill that brought Texas into Super Tuesday, said there were several "myths" about their effort.

"One of the myths was that this was designed to elect some Neanderthal Anglo Southerner," Edwards said.

The Democratic presidential primary in Texas produced positive results for Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis and Jesse Jackson, the more liberal candidates.

'No whimp'...

Win helps Bush image

HOUSTON (AP) — While George Bush basked in Super Tuesday afterglow, some Texas acquaintances recalled the Bush of earlier days.

"I've seen very little change over the years," said Ross G. Baker, who has known Bush since 1941. "To those of us that know him, the idea of his being a wimp is ridiculous."

Bush is scheduled to leave today for Chicago, where he will begin campaigning in the Illinois primary. Bush spent most of Wednesday relaxing, while aides huddled to plan strategy.

On Tuesday night, Bush swept most of the GOP primaries and caucuses held in 20 states, dealing a heavy blow to other Republican presidential hopefuls. He netted all of Texas' 111 GOP national convention delegates along the way.

The Massachusetts-born Bush, who adopted Texas as his home state, also maintains a home in Kennebunkport, Maine, but spends most of his time in Washington. Bush's legal residence is the Houstonian, an expensive west side hotel.

Bush emphasized his Northeastern ties during the New Hampshire primary, leading to critical commentary and political-cartoon jabs about where he really calls home. Garry Trudeau's "Doonesbury" cartoons have had a field day with Bush, portraying him as an invisible, wimpy voice.

After serving as a Navy pilot and completing his college education, Bush moved to Midland in 1948. In 1953, he co-founded an off-shore drilling company with J. Hugh Liedtke, now chairman of Houston-based Pennzoil Co.

"No wimp goes out to the end of the world, which at that time was Midland, Texas, and starts his own company," said Barney White, spokesman for what has become Houston-based oil-industry Zapata Corp.

In Midland, Bush became active in the Republican Party, and continued his involvement in party affairs after moving to Houston in 1959.

Rachel Guzman, 33, was pronounced dead at the scene after she was shot three times in the chest and side. Police Chief Roy De Alejandro said Wednesday.

Edward Guzman, 31, her estranged husband, was shot in each arm during a shootout with three police officers immediately after his wife was slain, De Alejandro said.

Robstown patrol officer Lynn Martin, 30, was shot once in the chest during the shootout, the chief said.

Dead winner

EVADALE, Texas (AP) — A Jasper County constable who was beaten in his bid for re-election by a dead man says the sympathy vote cost him the election.

But the son of the winner said the vote was really to keep the incumbent from winning re-election.

Phillip Dougharty, who died suddenly of a stroke Feb. 29, beat incumbent Jasper County Precinct 6 Constable Joe Fisetse Jr. 270-242.

The precinct is in southern Jasper County, around the town of Evadale in Southeast Texas.

Dougharty, 60, had been constable in the precinct from 1979 to 1984, said his son, David Dougharty, 31, an employee of a Beaumont tractor company.

College's place 5 in contested race, 1st for May 7 vote

Wednesday afternoon, the first contested race surfaced for Snyder-based board elections slated in May, a seat involving the governing body at Western Texas College.

Bob O'Day, a former WTC staffer currently employed as a physical education instructor at Central Elementary, filed for place 5 on the board.

On Monday, Dennis Ball, 41, parts manager for a local automobile dealership, filed for the seat also.

Place 5 is currently held by Edwin Parks, who has announced he will not be a candidate for re-election.

O'Day, 53, is the former golf coach-athletic director for WTC. He joined the college staff in the mid-70s and left his post in 1983.

He has run for the college board one time before, in 1984, seeking the place now held by Roy Baze.

O'Day lives at 4502 El Paso and has been a resident of Snyder for 19 years.

Two other college board members have announced for new terms subject to the May 7 ballot, R.C. Patton, place 6, and John Gayle, place 7.

The final day to announce as a candidate is March 23.

Other Snyder-based boards to hold elections May 7 are:

— Snyder ISD board of trustees, with incumbent Mike Jordan announced for his single member district place 2 seat and Terry Martin announced for place 3, a post now held by Charlene Light who has indicated she will not

Decorations for prom continuing here

Planning which dates to January and on-site work which began in earnest Monday will culminate here Saturday with the annual Snyder High School Junior-Senior Prom.

After school and nightly since Monday, from 50 to 70 SHS juniors have been at work at the Scurry County Coliseum in preparation for this year's event.

Theme for this year is "Around the World," and those attending will be treated to scenes recreated on the coliseum floor representing landmarks from around the globe.

The full display will go on view from 8 p.m. until midnight Saturday. Parents and friends of students are invited also at that time to view the decorations from the coliseum seating area.

The largest planned display will be a model of the Eiffel Tower, which is expected to reach from the coliseum floor to its ceiling.

Other displays will include from Mexico, an Aztec pyramid which will double as the staircase from which prom-goers will enter; Big Ben in London and a replica of the Hard Rock Cafe there; the columns of Rome; a Hawaiian beach scene; a ski lodge and life from the Swiss Alps; the skyline of New York; and the towers of Moscow.

Traditionally, the SHS junior class plans and prepares the prom for the senior class. Heading up the planning for this year's prom has been Kay Carter, SHS instructor and junior class sponsor.

Other staffers serving on the prom committee include Vicki Nelms, Patty Grimmett, Penny Hughes, Carbyn Derouen, Charlie Chrane, Sharrylon Vestal, Jerry P. Worsham, Drew Bullard and Ned Moore.

The entertainment for the prom will include recorded music from an Austin-based DJ, Brent Green. Food will be served as well.

Early out tomorrow for spring

Classes for both Snyder public schools and Western Texas College will dismiss early Friday as spring break begins.

Snyder public schools will dismiss at 2:45 p.m. Friday and classes will be out at WTC at 1 p.m.

The college dormitories will close at 2 p.m. Friday and remain closed through March 20, when they will reopen at 2 p.m. Classes will resume on March 21 at 8 a.m.

In addition, the Scurry County Museum on the WTC campus will be closed Saturday through March 20, a Sunday.

In lieu of a week-long spring break, Hermleigh students have

The feller on Deep Creek says, "A quarrel is like buttermilk. The longer it stands, the more sour it becomes."

Determining the value of an item may well include the price—but that is only one of many considerations.

A few weekends ago, Myron Roe of Roe's Furniture and Appliance, received a telephone call from a long-time customer of the Highland Shopping Center store.

The caller was Leroy Hessler who said he couldn't get in touch with A.C. Floyd, so he called the store's founder.

"My freezer quit working," Hessler said.

"What happened to it?" inquired Roe.

"Foot slipped off the brake and ran into it with my car," Hessler confessed.

Roe knew how to find Floyd, and by 8:30 p.m. on a Saturday evening, the two had delivered a new freezer to Hessler and had helped him transfer the contents.

To receive true value, there's a lot to be said for doing business with hometown friends.

A pet peeve of ours is being charged for local calls when staying in a big-city hotel. We'd prefer they raise the price a buck or two rather than charge 50 cents for each call.

Colorado City newsman Gene Dow had a similar experience with a motel and their advertised special.

He told of dropping into a motel advertising "free cable TV." The desk clerk inquired if he wanted a $35 room or a $45 room.

"What's the difference?" he asked.

"The $45 room has the free cable TV," responded the desk clerk.

Value and bargain may not be the same thing. For instance there is a rule of thumb: "At every seventh garage sale you attend, you begin to buy back the junk you sold three years ago."

Railey's tapes go public

DALLAS (AP) — A prosecutor says a tape of phone calls made by former minister Walker Railey to his home on the night his wife was nearly choked to death will be made public.

Dallas County prosecutor Norman Kinne said Wednesday the answering machine tape will be played for newspaper reporters on Thursday and for television reporters on Friday.

Kinne said the release is part of an agreement with ABC's "20-20" program, which will broadcast its report on the Railey case Friday night.

"To prevent them from being scooped, I agreed not to release it to the (other) TV reporters until that day (Friday) and to the newspapers the day before," Kinne said.

He said he decided to release the tape after a state district judge ruled in January that although the tapes weren't public information, they could be released.

The ruling followed an unsuccessful court attempt by ABC News to obtain the tape.

NORTH ELEMENTARY CHOIR—These sixth grade students from North Elementary will combine with sixth-grade students from the other elementary schools and present "Dear Abby" at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at the Worsham Auditorium. This program is in conjunction with Texas Public School Week. There will be a small admission charge. Students pictured are Jeannie Galloway, Jeannie Arnold, Christine Hoyle, Craig Leatherwood, Pam Pinkerton, Norma Reyes, Vernell Kit-

Payroll might not be met

DALLAS (AP) — A federal official says Bishop College, stung by a man who reneged on a $300,000 pledge and caught in a web of debt, may lose its bankruptcy court protection if it fails to meet its payroll again.

Bishop's interim president, Levi Watkins, says he won't know until late today if the payroll can be met.

It has been nearly two months since faculty and staff have been paid.

Judith Swift, attorney for faculty and staff creditors, said some administrators, including Watkins, have been receiving cash advances on their salaries while instructors have not been paid since Jan. 22.

Watkins told The Associated Press on Wednesday that was a "line of propaganda" and a "matter of interpretation."

"I have some emergency cases, yes," he said. "Emergencies of eviction, loss of home, medicine, yes. Anybody who works down here and has an emergency."

Watkins said he had not received an advance.

Thankless Christmas Leaves Bitter Taste in Mom's Mouth

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1988 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Well, another Christmas has passed, and with it remains the hurt of receiving no acknowledgment from a few friends and relatives for gifts carefully selected, wrapped and given with love.

The biggest disappointment was from our daughter and her family. My husband and I provided a vacation for the four of them at a cost of several thousand dollars, and we did not even receive a note of thanks. We did, however, hear that they thoroughly enjoyed the trip.

Our children were always taught to say "thank you" for any gift, large or small. Our two sons always graciously remember us with prompt thank-you's.

When our will is read, I hope my daughter will realize that the trip she and her family took in 1987 was her "inheritance."

And to the others who failed to send a simple thank-you, you have had your last fruitcake.

BITTERSWEET PARENTS

DEAR PARENTS: Failing to acknowledge a gift of any kind may be rude, thoughtless and inexcusable, but it is not unforgivable. Assuming that you and your husband gave your daughter and her family a lovely vacation because you wanted them to have it, knowing that they enjoyed it should have made your gift well worth the investment.

But to punish your daughter by "disinheriting" her is, I think, tantamount to bringing down a fly with a cannon. Please reconsider such vengeful retaliation.

WANTS TO BE A DONOR,

DEAR WANTS: Blood donors are in no danger of being exposed to the AIDS virus, because the only blood they come in contact with is their own, and only sterile equipment is used to collect it.

DEAR ABBY: I was a heavy smoker for 20 years, but I quit 11 years ago. All of us non-smokers must be more verbal to the smokers, as I doubt that they ever read anti-smoking literature. I didn't, because the truth hurts.

I would like to propose an anti-smoking campaign of billboard messages that just might reach the smokers. The message would say: "Educated People Do Not Smoke." This, to me, has more impact than: "Smokers Get Cancer."

If the American Cancer Society would start a special fund for these billboards, I will be the first to contribute.

What do you say, Abby?

JEANINNE DRAKE,
ST. CHARLES, MO.

DEAR JEANINNE: The billboard idea is good, but your anti-smoking message, "Educated People Do Not Smoke," is not only offensive, it's untrue. There are educated people who smoke up a storm. An addiction is no respecter of education.

DEAR ABBY: Regarding hearing aids: The sign in my audiologist's office says it all: "Your hearing loss is far more obvious to everyone else than your hearing aid will be!"

Hijackers demanded to fly to London

MOSCOW (AP) — Armed hijackers threatened to blow up an Aeroflot jet and kill passengers unless they were flown to London, but authorities stormed the plane and at least six people died in a shootout, Soviet media reported today.

Three passengers, a flight attendant and at least two of the hijackers were reported killed as a result of Tuesday's hijacking, the second of a Soviet domestic flight in 1 1/2 years.

The official Tass news agency reported the hijacking attempt the day after it occurred, but an account in today's editions of the Sovetskaya Rossiya daily and reports broadcast by state-run Radio Moscow gave more details.

None of the accounts said who the hijackers were, how many there were, how many passengers were on the plane or whether there were any foreigners among them.

U.S. Embassy spokesman Richard Gilbert said today that the embassy had inquired and been told no Americans were aboard.

The Tupolev-154 jetliner, on a scheduled flight from the Siberian city of Irkutsk to Leningrad, was hijacked after a fueling stop in the Ural Mountains city of Kurgan, Sovetskaya Rossiya said.

The jet, which can carry up to 168 passengers, took off from Kurgan at 1:08 p.m., the paper said. Shortly before 3 p.m., when the plane was near Leningrad's Pulkovo airport, a person aboard demanded that senior flight attendant Tamara Zhaikaya take a note to the cockpit.

The note said: "We demand that you change course. Fly to London. Otherwise we'll blow up the plane along with the passengers," the newspaper said.

The crew kept calm, it said. Pilot Valentin F. Kupriyanov carefully calculated how much fuel was left, then landed at an unidentified airfield in the Soviet Union.

"After landing, the crew entered into negotiations with the bandits, asking them to give up their criminal intentions and not to endanger passengers' lives," the newspaper said.

But the hijackers refused to listen, it said.

"With every passing minute, they became more aggressive, and started to behave like hoodlums in the cabin. The armed bandits threatened to kill passengers. Several hours of negotiations had no result."

trump, which is almost surely the best contract. Although South's bid was best, East found the play to hold declarer to eight tricks.

South was prepared to allow East to hold the first trick with the queen of spades, thus breaking up the defenders' communications. Instead, East played low on the opening lead. Declarer had to win the first trick with the spade 10. He now went after clubs but was stymied when East showed out on the second lead of the suit. Next came a diamond, but West took the ace right away to play a second spade. Down one.

East was convinced by the bidding and the appearance of dummy that the only chance to set declarer would be if partner West had the diamond ace and a second spade. Thus, ducking the first spade lead stood out as the right play. Let's hope that all of us make that play the next time a similar deal arises.

Lifesaving bystanders aid survival

DETROIT (AP) — Bystanders using cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR) can improve the survival chances of patients undergoing cardiac arrest at a rate equal to that of patients whose heart attack occurs in the presence of emergency medical service personnel, notes Internal Medicine News.

According to the medical journal, nearly 23 percent of 472 patients who suffered cardiac arrest outside Detroit's Henry Ford Hospital and received CPR by bystanders survived until they were admitted to the hospital, and 11.9 percent were discharged alive.

However, only 14.6 percent of those who were not given CPR by bystanders survived until hospital admission, with 4.7 percent discharged alive, the publication reports.

Dukakis claims state caucus vote

AUSTIN (AP) — While official results from Democratic Party precinct caucuses are still pending, Massachusetts' Gov. Michael Dukakis' campaign is claiming victory in that Texas contest, too.

Tom Cosgrove, Dukakis state coordinator, said the campaign expects to win the most delegates from the caucuses held after the Super Tuesday primary and to wind up with a total of 71 delegates to the Democratic National Convention.

Cosgrove estimated second-place primary finisher Jesse Jackson would wind up with 54 delegates. "We had a smashing success last night in the precinct conventions," he said Wednesday.

Political analysts said strong organization and a jobs-oriented pitch helped convince Texans to vote for Dukakis in the largest Southern Democratic presidential primary.

Waging a campaign that stressed an economic revival dubbed "the Massachusetts miracle," Dukakis talked about jobs created and taxes cut during his three terms as governor there.

But he also identified his supporters — including South Texas Hispanics, teachers and liberals — and organized heavily to make certain they went to the polls on Tuesday's election day.

"He ran a good campaign," said George Christian, political consultant and former press secretary to Lyndon Johnson. "He had the strategy of finding his constituency and organizing it. His constituency was the Hispanics and liberals. That was a sufficient number to put him at the top."

Tim Richardson, editor of the political newsletter Quorum Report, agreed.

"It was really a flawless strategy from the beginning that relied on basic things. He targeted delegate-rich state Senate districts in the Rio Grande Valley. He put the greatest amount of money up front in field organizers," Richardson said.

"Then he spent the most on the tail-end. He targeted Hispanic areas, including a Spanish-language media assault ... He spent the most and targeted it the best."

Near final results Wednesday showed Dukakis with 33 percent of the vote and 43 convention delegates. Jackson was second with 24.6 percent and 42 delegates.

Tennessee Sen. Albert Gore finished third with 20 percent of the vote and 25 delegates, while Missouri Rep. Richard Gephardt finished a distant fourth with 13.6 percent and nine delegates.

Austin consultant George Shipley, who works for Gore, said Dukakis "spent an exorbitant amount of money" in his campaign. But he also said Dukakis "had a certain appeal — he's the miracle of Massachusetts."

Richardson noted that Dukakis' campaign in Texas benefitted from strong showings in earlier states, such as New Hampshire. Those results helped force the other liberal Democrat, Illinois Sen. Paul Simon, to abandon the South.

"He had no natural enemies for his vote. Gore and Gephardt were natural enemies in Texas. But Dukakis had taken care of his — Simon," Richardson said. "That was reflected when the teachers (the 95,000-member Texas State Teachers Association) switched from endorsing Simon to Dukakis."

Jackson's second-place finish in the balloting and near tie in the delegate race capped his efforts to broaden the support base remaining from his 1984 campaign.

Austrians investigate Nazi past for 50th anniversary

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — This week Austria marks the 50th anniversary of Anschluss, its annexation by Nazi Germany, with soul-searching events likened by some to an exorcism.

The disclosure of President Kurt Waldheim's World War II service in the German army has coincided with a historical reckoning that forced many Austrians to confront the Nazi past they have tried for decades to forget.

"Nobody wanted to talk about the past," prominent Austrian writer Gerhard Roth said in an interview. "Waldheim forced it. If Waldheim hadn't come along, this never would have happened."

"There is a kind of exorcism going on at the moment," said Roth, who has written extensively about Austrian society for publications in his homeland and West Germany.

"It brings up a lot of filth with it, but it is basically a cleansing process," Roth said, acknowledging there have been outbursts of anti-Semitism since the Waldheim controversy came to light two years ago.

The leader of Vienna's Jewish community, the city's Socialist mayor and former concentration camp inmates were expected at the formal opening tonight of the "Gedenktage," or days of remembrance.

Events culminate Friday with a memorial in parliament and another ceremony at the former imperial Hofburg palace.

Roth said many thousands of Austrians of the war generation, together with postwar babies educated by unrepentant Nazis, absorbed National Socialist teachings that went unchallenged for decades.

Now, the nation is beginning to work the past out of its system. Dozens of plays, films, seminars, exhibits, books and a major television series are confronting Austrians with rarely viewed pages of their history.

Recurring images of throngs cheering Adolf Hitler or crowds ogling Jews scrubbing Vienna sidewalks contrast with many Austrians' view that their country was more a victim of Hitler than an accomplice.

A highly praised, prime-time television series takes Austrians back through the turbulent years from 1918 to 1938, when the small alpine nation struggled to come to terms with the loss of the Hapsburg empire.

Rainbow room brings back familiar figures

NEW YORK (AP) — The cigarette girl has returned to the fabled Rainbow Room on the Manhattan skyline like a vision from an old movie of wasp-waisted men in tails and gorgeous dames in sequined gowns.

"Cigars, cigarettes?" she coos to the swells sipping cocktails, a girl with a tray of smokes, a jaunty pillbox hat, puffed sleeves, pumps and fishnet stockings, a neckline down to there and a skirt slit up to here.

This is the 1980s, though, and you may call her a "cigarette woman." The people who run the Rainbow Room atop the art-deco RCA Building use both terms.

The rehabilitation of the famous Rockefeller Center nightspot reportedly cost $25 million, much of it for new plumbing, lighting, kitchens, carpets and custom work. But there was enough left over to hire cigarette girls.

"They seem to fit in beautifully," said Joseph Baum, the restaurateur who masterminded the restoration intent on recapturing the nightclub's glory days of the '30s and '40s. "It's a lighthearted expression of the time."

"They're in their wonderful flouncy dresses and their little pageboy hats — it just makes everyone smile. I think that is just part of the scene," he said.

The four girls — and cigarette girl Katherine Reddick prefers that term — were chosen from the ranks of pagers and coat-checkers. "It sounded interesting," said Ms. Reddick, 24, of Manhattan.

"I'm here not so much to sell cigarettes, but I'm really adding elegance to the room," she said, though sales are brisk, with occasional $100 nights and plenty of generous tips. "I get lots of comments. People say it brings them back to the '30s and '40s. I'm glad to be able to reminisce with them."

Her costume is a 1930s style created by theatrical costume designer Carrie Robbins. "I saw it and said, 'No problem,'" Ms. Reddick recalled with a smile.

"I wanted it so that it was suggesting rather than suggestive," Baum said. "It's lighthearted, rather than what a lot of people have in mind when they think of a cigarette girl. There's plenty of romance without having to add to it."

And just what do people have in mind? Judging from the movies, perhaps a bit of a tart, a young woman in the wrong kind of place at too late an hour?

Report said to vindicate firing action

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — A former Del Mar College regent is seeking the release of a private investigator's report, saying it will vindicate his actions in ousting the school president last year.

Del Mar's board suspended Edwin L. Biggerstaff on June 17, 1987, for unspecified reasons, including "conduct which is a discredit and contrary to the best interest of the Del Mar College District" and "improper use of public funds," according to the board. He was then fired July 29.

An agreement prohibits board members and Biggerstaff from commenting on matters leading to his firing. The board purchased the remaining two years of Biggerstaff's contract for $130,000.

Dr. Edgar Cortes, former board of regents president who led the fight to fire Biggerstaff, on Tuesday asked the regents to release the private investigator's report that played a role in the firing.

Cortes said the investigator's report would vindicate his actions in firing Biggerstaff. Cortes was defeated in a Jan. 16 reelection bid, and said the president's firing was a big issue in his losing campaign.

Underground item surfaces again at university rally

CANYON, Texas (AP) — Speakers at an outdoor rally urged West Texas State University students to be concerned about academic freedom even if they don't support faculty members who have criticized school administrators.

The Rest of the Prairie, an underground newspaper critical of the WTSU administration and the subject of a libel suit, surfaced again at the rally Wednesday as about 300 students, faculty and former faculty members attended a rally to support open communication.

Students and Faculty United for Open Communication and Academic Freedom, a campus group that mobilized to support Dr. Gary Byrd and Dr. Mary Gill, faculty publishers of the underground newspaper, sponsored the rally to spark student involvement.

"I think it is very important that the faculty — and students — should have a place to express their views without fear," graduate student Paula Simpson, a member of the group, said of the underground publication.

Jim Brown, attorney for fired head football coach Bill Kelly, began the rally with a brief speech, saying students don't have to agree with those critical of the school's administration to be concerned about academic freedom.

Brown, who also represents SAFE, Students, Alumni and Faculty for Education at WTSU, urged members of the campus community to be aware of the issues at stake in the controversy.

"What has been at issue is the right to defend what you believe and the right to say that which you believe," Brown said. "For those of you who think I'm being dramatic, I encourage you to talk to some of the ex-faculty who have dared to disagree with the powers that be on this campus."

SAFE, an anonymous organization, and The Rest of the Prairie are being sued for libel by university president Dr. Ed D. Roach.

The suit, filed Feb. 18, alleges the underground newspaper and SAFE placed him in a false light and have resulted in harassment and intimidation including anonymous telephone calls and death threats.

Roach was unavailable for comment Wednesday night, his wife said.

Byrd and Ms. Gill revealed their involvement as publishers of the underground newspaper last month and asked the court to impose sanctions on Roach and his attorney, George Whittenburg, for filing the suit, including court costs and attorneys' fees.

Dr. Don Enrick, former WTSU professor and ex-Faculty Senate president, told the cheering crowd his participation in the rally was to "represent the growing number of ex-faculty" from WTSU.

"I came here to hear the bells of academic freedom ring. Do you hear them ringing?" he asked. "Our hearts are not only with you, but so are our checkbooks."

Many in the crowd of supporters sported buttons and carried signs critical of Roach and T. Boone Pickens Jr., chairman of WT's board of regents.

Ms. Gill said she was glad to see student support for academic freedom and free speech.

"We haven't known how the students felt because we haven't been able to talk to them," she said.

Council looks to thwart referendum try

DALLAS (AP) — Members of the Dallas police force cheered their apparent success in forcing a city election to abolish a citizens review board, but some City Council members say they'll try to avoid a referendum.

"That would be something we hope to discuss over the next week or so," councilman Charles Tandy said Wednesday. "It might not be too late."

Tandy, who voted against strengthening the board in January, said the council probably made a mistake in granting the board the power to subpoena witnesses and conduct independent investigations. Monica Smith, president of the Dallas Police Association, said the council had its chance to negotiate.

"We're going to the people. Let it be their choice," she said.

Billionaire H. Ross Perot, who backed the policemen's efforts, called the apparent success of the petition drive "a slam dunk."

Perot said he joined police in their attempts to eliminate the citizens review board because officers "should have the same constitutional rights and civil rights as the criminals that the police officers have to deal with."

As people approached the polls on Tuesday's Democratic and Republican primaries, off-duty police solicited their signatures on petitions to force a city charter election on two issues — hiring almost 700 more officers to meet a goal of three officers per 1,000 residents, and doing away with the Dallas Citizens Police Review Board.

Ms. Smith said officers collected "far more" than the 20,000 signatures needed to force the election.

Mayor Pro Tem Diane Ragsdale, the city's top black elected official, called the police association efforts "clearly divisive and polarizing. It was divisive from the start."

The January vote strengthening powers of the review board followed months of complaints by minority leaders that internal affairs and the grand jury weren't doing enough to investigate or punish officers who had killed minority citizens.

The board, appointed by the council, investigates injuries and deaths involving police and citizens and also investigates citizen complaints of police misconduct.

City Council members gave the board power to issue subpoenas, which can be quashed only by a vote of eight of the 11 council members. Before January, the board could only issue subpoenas if a majority of the council approved.

Police contend the board is unnecessary because police under scrutiny already face a grand jury and the department's internal affairs division.

"Under the processes in our city, we ask the police officer to give up his constitutional rights in the review process and we're also asking the police officer to submit to six levels of jeopardy while we ask the criminal to be only subject to one level of jeopardy," Perot said.

"A police officer can be tried six times and it appears that his case can be reopened again and again if any citizen raises a commotion. In this environment, our best people will leave police work. In their own words, who does the city support — the people trying to stop crime or the criminal?" Perot said.

Perot said officers conducted themselves Tuesday with dignity, professionalism and restraint, while some elected officials were "yelling, screaming at them" as citizens came to vote.

"It's a sad commentary on civil rights," Perot said.

"Reaction in the community was overwhelmingly negative to that bullying tactic and produced an additional outpouring of support for these police officers," Perot said.

Nostalgic trip on tap for President Reagan

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — For a brief moment, President Reagan was transported back in time — hurling a pigskin to a wide receiver at a sentimental celebration of Notre Dame's Knute Rockne and his own days as a Hollywood star.

"The Gipper" returned to the Notre Dame campus Wednesday to pay tribute to the late football legend and dedicate a 22-cent stamp issued in honor of the coach's 100th birthday.

It was a nostalgic trip into the past for Ronald Reagan, the one-time actor, sports announcer and college football player who clearly reveled in the crowd's friendly applause.

The Notre Dame gathering of students and faculty — including many wearing Roman collars — roared approval as they were treated to clips from Reagan's 1940 film portrayal of Notre Dame football star George Gipp in "Knute Rockne: All American."

The film showed the fresh-faced Reagan, playing Gipp, as he playfully kicked footballs high above the playing field while Pat O'Brien, playing Rockne, persuades him to join the team.

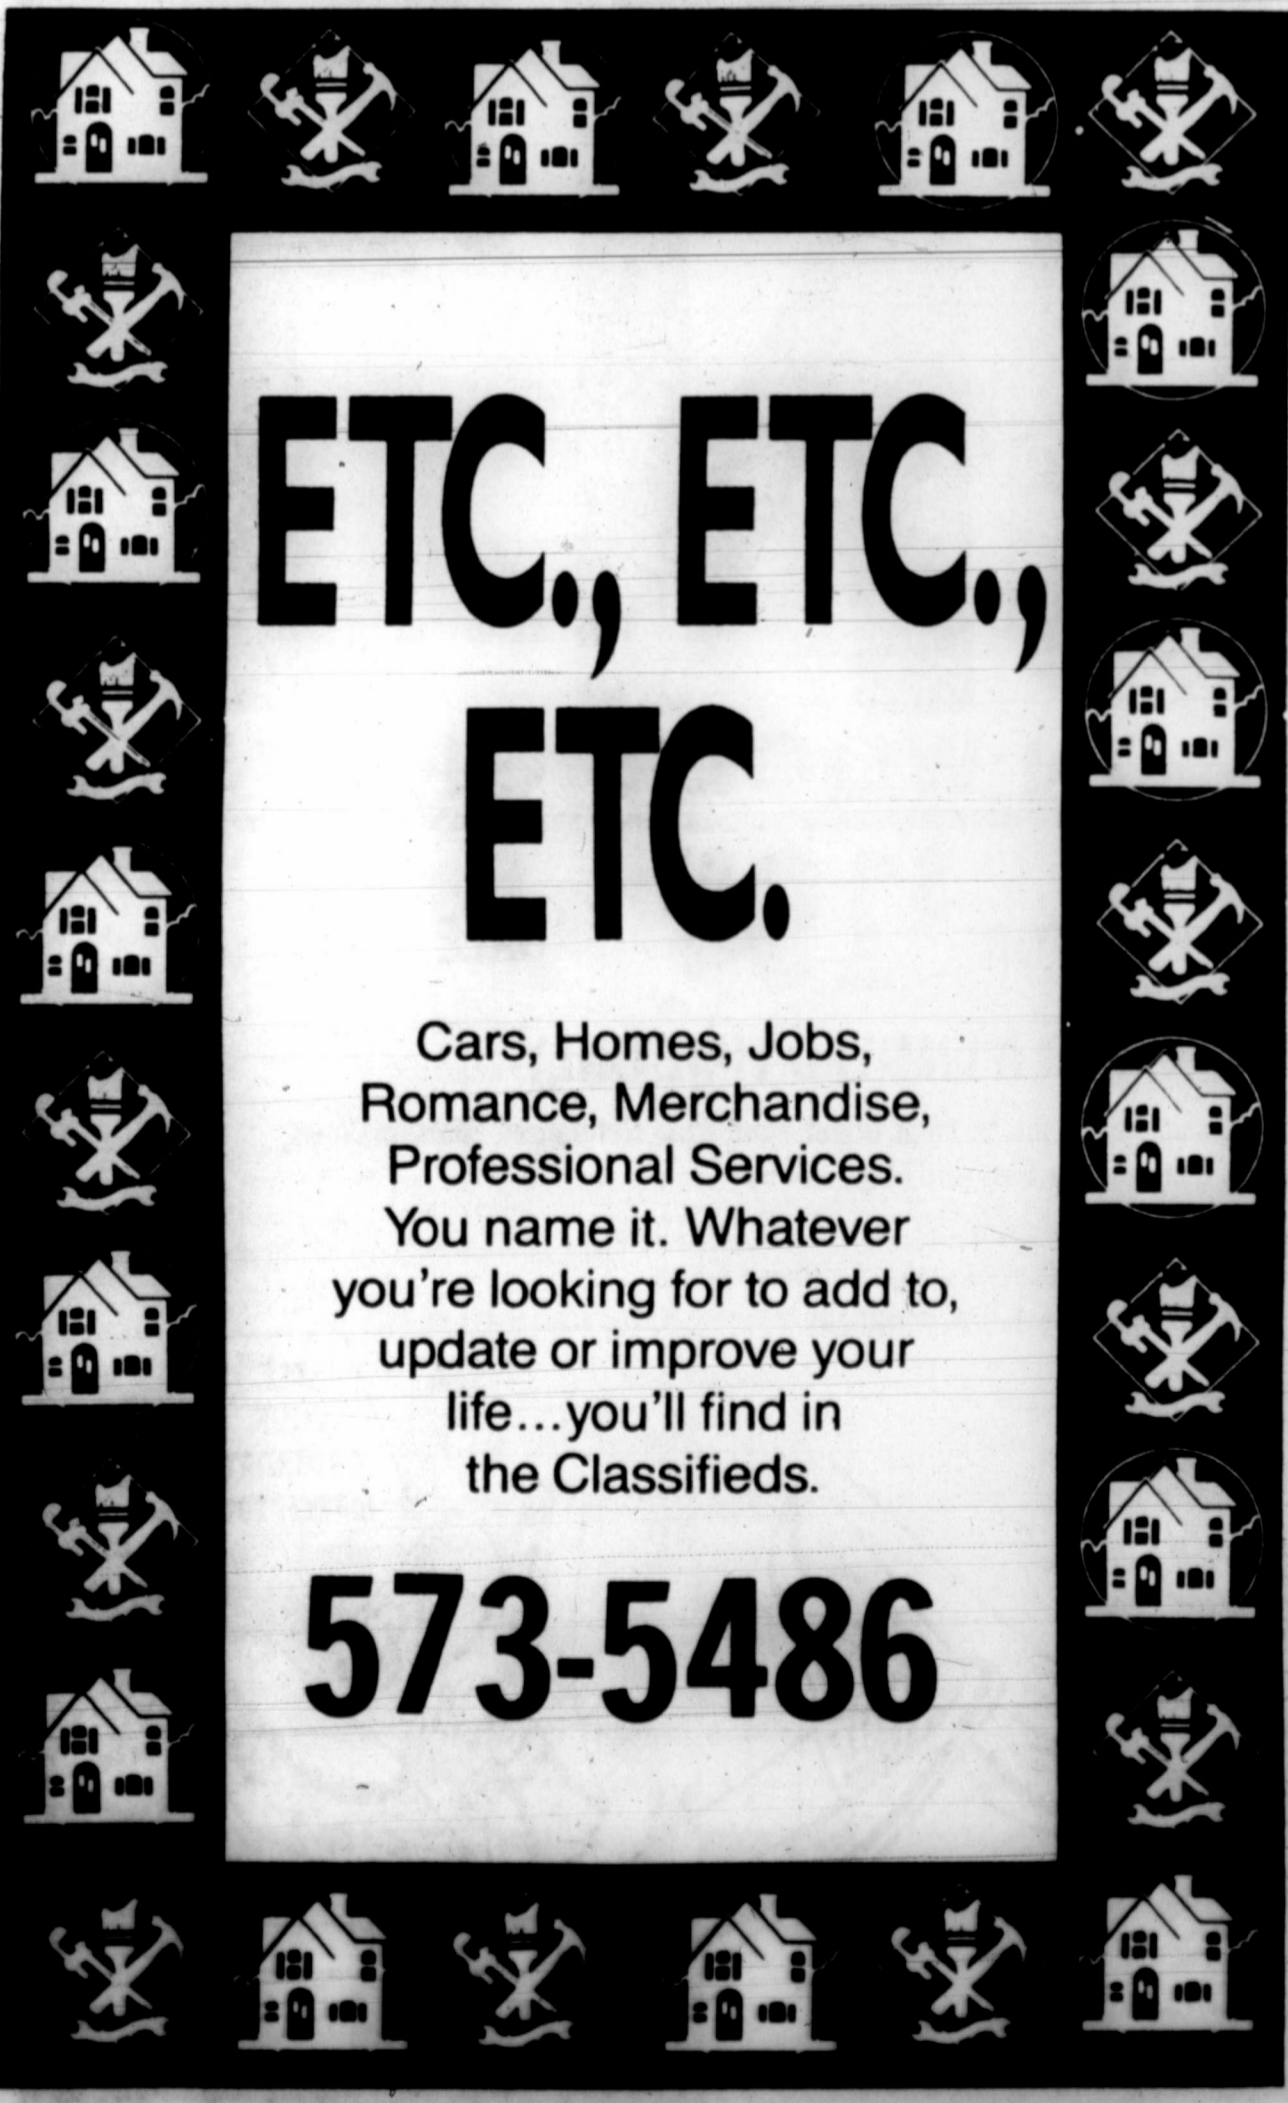

Another clip showed O'Brien, as Rockne, giving a pep talk to his players at halftime of a 1928 game against Army, with both sides scoreless. Gipp had died eight years earlier, but the coach tells his charges that on his deathbed the young athlete said, "Some time when the team is up against it and the breaks are beating the boys, tell them to go out there with all they got and win just one for the Gipper."

Army went ahead in the third quarter, 6-0, but Notre Dame went on to win the game, 12-6. Army was one yard from the tying touchdown as time ran out.

Reagan's supporters adopted the "Win one" phrase during his presidency to help garner support for his programs. And the nickname "the Gipper" has since stuck.

At the end of his speech, the filled-to-capacity crowd was silent as Reagan tried to repeat the lines from Gipp's deathbed scene. Few, however, noticed that Reagan flubbed the line and instead of saying "Gipper," actually pronounced it "Gippet."

Celtics outgun San Antonio, 119-118

by The Associated Press
Dennis Johnson, having one of his worst seasons, is still dangerous at crunch time. Larry Bird, with a broken nose and a broken eye socket, is still dangerous anytime.
Johnson, with a career-low 41.5 shooting percentage and a 12.5 scoring average that is the lowest since his rookie year of 1977, had six points, two offensive rebounds and a victory-clinching blocked shot in the final 1:13 Wednesday night. The performance carried the Boston Celtics to a 119-118 victory over the San Antonio Spurs.

"DJ saved us at the end," said Bird, who had 36 points and 13 rebounds while wearing goggles for the first time in his career to protect his eye.
Bird said the goggles "bothered me throughout the game, but if I get hit there again it could mean surgery."

Elsewhere in the NBA, it was Washington 115, Phoenix 111; Cleveland 117, Milwaukee 91; Detroit 103, Utah 98; the Los Angeles Lakers 104, New York 99; New Jersey 97, the Los Angeles Clippers 93; and Seattle 106, Sacramento 97.
San Antonio scored 10 consecutive points to pull ahead 116-113 with 1:31 left before Johnson hit a jumper with 1:13 left and a layout with 56 seconds to go for a 117-116 Boston lead.

Mike Mitchell, who led the Spurs with 20 points, then sank a jumper with 37 seconds remaining, but Johnson rebounded a missed 3-pointer by Bird and was fouled after rebounding his own missed follow shot.
After making both foul shots to give Boston a 119-118 lead, Johnson then blocked a jumper by Jon Sundvold with two seconds left and Bird retrieved the ball before time expired.
Johnson finished with 36 points, 11 assists, six rebounds, four steals and just one turnover.
The Celtics set an NBA record by taking 21 3-point shots, breaking New Jersey's mark of 20 in a 118-106 loss to the Spurs on Feb. 2.

Aggies shock Arkansas; Tech faces Lady Cougs

DALLAS (AP) - After winning their first ever Southwest Conference Tournament semifinal berth, the Texas A&M Lady Aggies today will try to become the first league team to beat Texas since 1978.

The fifth-seeded Aggies came from a six-point halftime deficit to upset No. 4 seed Arkansas 59-58 on a last-minute bucket.

In Wednesday's other first-round game, No. 3 seed Texas Tech eliminated sixth-seeded Southern Methodist 60-49 and faces Houston in an earlier semifinal game.

After failing to make last year's tourney, Aggie Coach Lynn Hickey called facing the fourth-ranked Lady Longhorns an honor.

"It's just another opportunity to see how competitive we can be," she said.

"There's going to come a time when everything isn't clicking for Texas."

The Aggies improved to 9-8 in the conference and 15-12 overall, while Arkansas finished the season at 8-9 and 13-15.

Texas Tech senior guard Vicky McKenzie, with 14 points, led four Red Raider starters in double figures to raise Tech's record to 10-7 in the SWC and 16-12 overall.
SMU ended its season at 7-11 and 12-16.

After leading 26-23 at the half, Tech opened the second period with two consecutive baskets from Reena Lynch and a 3-pointer by McKenzie to jump out to a quick 33-23 lead.

The Lady Red Raiders held the Mustangs scoreless for almost half the second period, running their lead to 19 points with 10:57 remaining.

Tech Coach Marsha Sharp credited the Red Raiders' defense with shutting down SMU early in the second half.

"I really was pleased with our defensive effort during that period of time," she said. "But we lost our intensity a little bit towards the end of the game."

The Mustangs came back to score 10 straight, led by Dedra Simpson, who led SMU with 14 points.

Lynch scored 12 for Tech, while Tammy Spangler had 11 and Stacy Seibert 10.

Ex-aide disputes Mecham

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — The first defense witness in Gov. Evan Mecham's impeachment trial contradicted the governor's claim that an alleged death threat should not have been reported to the state police.

Richard Burke, Mecham's former chief of staff, told the state Senate Wednesday he considered it routine for the governor's bodyguards to have reported the alleged threat to their superiors at the Department of Public Safety.

During House impeachment hearings in January, Mecham insisted that the report to DPS superiors violated an unwritten rule against disclosing things that happen in the governor's office.

Mecham, a 63-year-old first-term Republican, is accused of trying to thwart an investigation of the alleged death threat by then-state prison construction chief Lee Watkins against a former Mecham aide, Donna Carlson.

The prosecution rested its case Wednesday on that allegation, the first of three major charges against Mecham.

"No man is above the law," prosecutor Paul Eckstein said in his closing argument. "The evidence that has been put before you cries out for a conviction."

Defense lawyer Fred Craft argued that prosecutors had not proven Mecham tried to obstruct an investigation because "nobody told the governor that there was indeed an attorney general's investigation that he could possibly obstruct."

Burke testified that he did not recall Mecham being told the matter involved an actual death threat or that it involved the possible tampering of a grand jury witness.

"I just remember 'threat,'" he said, but added, "To me, serious threat generally means a crime." Burke is a former law school dean and federal prosecutor who came out of retirement last November to serve as Mecham's chief of staff.

Mecham, who ran an auto dealership before he was elected governor in a three-way race, has contended he handled the matter properly by having Watkins' boss, then-Department of Administration Director Max Hawkins, investigate.

When DPS Lt. Beau Johnson reported the alleged threat to his superiors, Mecham had him transferred from the governor's security staff.

The House impeachment articles charged that the transfer was a violation of state personnel law, but several senators argued that the governor had the right to decide who would be his bodyguards. The Senate voted 17-12 Wednesday to drop the count involving Johnson's transfer.

The House also charged Mecham with concealing a $350,000 campaign loan and misusing $80,000 from the governor's protocol fund by loaning it to his auto dealership. A two-thirds vote of the 30-member Senate is required to convict Mecham.

The governor faces an April 21 criminal trial on charges of hiding the $350,000 loan, and a May 17 recall election.

Maricopa County Superior Court Judge Michael Ryan said Wednesday he was "reluctantly" granting a prosecution motion to delay the criminal trial, which had been scheduled to start March 22. The judge said more time was needed to decide pretrial motions and gather a large pool of potential jurors.

Mecham, the first U.S. governor to be impeached in six decades, has not attended the impeachment trial, but senators Wednesday were shown a Nov. 16 TV interview in which he denied knowledge of the alleged death threat.

School fixup projects due trustee decisions

Repair and renovation projects previously discussed by Snyder school board members will move toward the construction phase Thursday during the regular March meeting of trustees.

These include plans to expand a bus parking area at the north end of Travis Field; roof repairs to a section of roof at the junior high girl's gymnasium; and outside wall repairs at the SHS field house and two smaller gymnasiums at the athletic complex.

All will be considered at the 7 p.m. meeting at the administration building.

The expansion of school bus parking will entail removing two storage buildings from the north to the south end of Travis Field and the construction of a fence around the new north-end parking area.

Both of these will be considered as separate agenda items Thursday.

Regarding the work to the field house and two gyms, bids for this work are to be reviewed and possibly awarded Thursday.

School officials also seek permission to take bids for the roof repair involving 22 square yards at the northwest quadrant of the junior high girl's gym.

Other items scheduled for action Thursday include:

- Accepting a bid for an oil lease involving the district.
- Ratifying the report from the 1988 school textbook committee.
- Approving clerks for the upcoming May 7 school board election.
- Casting ballots for directors to serve on the Region XIV Education Service Center board.
- Approving school policy related to student welfare and psychological services.
- Considering the purchase of a series of video tapes to be used for school board training requirements.
- Considering personnel actions to include the resignations of three staffers.

Kemp quits the race; Hart said to be next

By The Associated Press

Republican presidential hopeful Jack Kemp quit the race today, saying "we may have suffered a defeat but our principles have not." Gary Hart was ready to drop out for a second time on the Democratic side as the shrinking field of candidates converged on Illinois, scene of the next big campaign test.

Kemp was crushed in the Super Tuesday landslide of Vice President George Bush, who rejoined the campaign trail today after taking a day off to rest and celebrate.

"I am folding my tent, but I plan to continue to carry the flag," said Kemp, the New York congressman and former pro football quarterback who had hoped to win the GOP nomination as the conservative heir to President Reagan, whose economic programs have included many of Kemp's ideas.

"I ran for the presidency to ensure that the torch that we lit in 1980 in Detroit — when we nominated Ronald Reagan and revolutionized our party — would burn even brighter and light the way into the 1990s," Kemp said in remarks distributed just before he spoke at a news conference. He said both Bush and Sen. Bob Dole have embraced conservative positions.

Meanwhile, sources said today that Hart intends to end his campaign on Friday after failing to generate significant support for his re-run at the nomination. The sources, speaking only on condition of anonymity, said Hart would not endorse any of the surviving contenders.

On Wednesday, Bush suggested to Dole, his closest competitor, that the race for the GOP nomination was becoming just a bit beside the point. It might be time, he said, to turn the attention toward the general election in November.

"I believe it is now time to look ahead to the issues which distinguish us from the Democrats," the vice president told Dole in a telegram in which he rebuffed the Kansas senator's request for a series of one-on-one debates.

"Good luck," Bush added.

Dole was having none of that, as he searched for a share of Illinois' 82 GOP delegates at stake in Tuesday's primary.

"I've got to win in Illinois," he said. Later, he told law students: "I feel like I've just taken the finals, and I didn't flunk but I didn't do too well either."

And he taunted Bush for refusing to agree to the no-moderator debates, saying: "Here's a chance, George, to finish me off right here in Illinois."

For Kemp, a former pro football player, the game was over. Dole said Kemp had telephoned him to say he would drop out today without endorsing either of his principal rivals. Kemp aides also had said he would end his campaign at a Washington news conference.

It looked like the end of the line for Hart as well. The Colorado senator refused to talk to reporters about the Super Tuesday results. But he scheduled a Denver news conference Friday morning, and news reports in Denver said he had told his staff he was abandoning his bid.

The Super Tuesday races left Hart disqualified for further federal matching funds. He technically lost his eligibility last month, but could have restored it with a 10-percent draw in any of the day's primaries.

Hart had already dropped out of the Democratic race once. In May, he quit amid reports of his relationship with a Miami model, and he amazed political observers by declaring in December that he was back.

"Let the people decide," he said. But the people accorded him few votes in any of the early contests.

The rest of the Democrats were gathering for a forum tonight sponsored by Illinois Democrats.

Two of the Democrats — Sen. Paul Simon and Jesse Jackson — were campaigning on home turf in Illinois, with its prize of 173 Democratic delegates. Simon, who bypassed Tuesday's contests and said he must do well in Illinois to continue, wasn't planning to spend any money on television advertising.

Jackson made a triumphant homecoming to Chicago on Wednesday, still thrilled by his showing the day before. He placed first in the popular vote, splitting a big delegate haul with Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis and Tennessee Sen. Al Gore.

"We get stronger every day," Jackson told plant workers in suburban Chicago.

Gore visited a steel-fabricating plant on Chicago's North Side, donning a hard hat and promising to "campaign full blast" in the state.

Rep. Richard Gephardt, who carried only his home state of Missouri in Tuesday's contests, said he was still in the running.

Campaigning in South Carolina, which holds Democratic caucuses on Saturday, he was asked whether he could beat Jackson and Gore in the state.

"We're going to try very hard," he said.

Bell Helicopter returning $90 million in settlement

WASHINGTON (AP) — A four-year dispute over allegations that the Army was fraudulently overcharged for helicopter spare parts has been resolved, with Bell Helicopter Textron Inc. agreeing to pay the government $90 million, Pentagon sources say.

The settlement, believed to be the largest of a defense contracting fraud case to date, grew out of findings by Pentagon auditors of numerous accounting and inventory irregularities at the Fort Worth company, the sources said Wednesday night.

A Pentagon official, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the settlement is to be announced Friday by federal prosecutors in Fort Worth, Texas. A company statement said, "We believe a settlement is in the offing."

Under the settlement, prosecutors have agreed to drop any potential criminal or civil charges in the case, and Bell Helicopter will not acknowledge any wrongdoing, according to the sources.

One Pentagon source said there had never been any evidence of intentional fraud on the part of the company. "This was an accounting problem," he said.

However, during the investigation, there were allegations that Bell Helicopter officials shredded documents, altered computer entries and covered up evidence of deliberate overbillings to the government.

"We have a deal, but it's not done quite yet. The Army and Bell Helicopter do expect to sign a settlement on Friday, though," a Pentagon source said.

In Fort Worth, U.S. Attorney Marvin Collins said he could not comment on the case.

"I'm just unable to count any chickens before they hatch," Collins told The Associated Press when he was telephoned Wednesday night at his home.

Asked about a possible Friday announcement, Collins added, "Not only can I not count unatched chickens, I can't even admit there are any eggs."

Officials at the Justice Department in Washington also declined comment.

Reached late Wednesday, Carl

Harris, a Bell Helicopter spokesman, read from a prepared statement which acknowledged there had been "settlement discussions."

"We believe a settlement is in the offing," the statement said. "We are hopeful it will be soon. However, we are not able to comment until a final agreement is reached. The terms that are currently under discussion will not have a material effect on Bell Helicopter Textron in 1988."

A Pentagon official said that as part of the settlement, Bell Helicopter "will have to hand over a check for $69 million to the U.S. Treasury." The company will also have to turn over approximately $11 million worth of spare parts to the Army.

"The settlement will be worth around $90 million, when all is said and done," the source said.

The source said most of the overcharges came as a result of an accounting problem that dealt with the handling of contracts worth billions of dollars prior to 1985.

The Washington Post reported in today's editions that the $90 million settlement covers most of the $107 million in overcharges that the Defense Contract Audit Agency had identified at Bell Helicopter between the years 1982 and 1986.

The largest part of the settlement, about $46 million, involves alleged violations of so-called "savings clause contracts" that the Army required attached to Bell Helicopter contracts to limit overcharges by the company in early 1984. While the savings clauses limited profit rates to between 12 percent and 13 percent, Bell Helicopter was actually receiving substantially more than that, the Post reported.

Bell Helicopter is a wholly owned subsidiary of Textron Inc., a conglomerate based in Providence, R.I. In fiscal 1986, the parent company ranked as the Pentagon's 14th largest contractor, with $1.6 billion in defense work.

Bell Helicopter holds contracts from the Army for such major helicopter programs as the AH-1 Cobra attack helicopter, the UH-1 Iroquois utility helicopter and the OH-58D Kiowa light helicopter.

A House committee is conducting its own investigation of the case.

China, U. S. smooth over Iran arms sale dispute

WASHINGTON (AP) — The list of American high-technology goods China is allowed to buy will start expanding again because the Reagan administration has determined the Chinese are not selling Silkworm missiles to Iran.

China also says it wants a commodity the United States is sending to 64 other countries: Peace Corps volunteers.

Under an agreement announced Wednesday at the conclusion of a three-day visit by Chinese Foreign Minister Wu Xueqian, the United States will lift a five-month suspension on liberalization of high-tech products China is permitted to buy from American companies.

The restriction was imposed in October to protest what the United States said was sale of Chinese Silkworm missiles used by Iran to attack neutral shipping in the Persian Gulf.

During his visit, Wu continued to deny that such sales were ever made directly by China. Without commenting on that assertion, the administration said it was satisfied with what the Chinese are doing now.

"We are encouraged by Chinese statements and actions regarding Iran's acquisition of Chinese anti-ship missiles, Silkworms," State Department spokesman Charles E. Redman said.

"We have therefore decided to resume the export control liberalization process for China," he said.

This means experts from the state, commerce and defense departments will resume reviewing the list of high-technology products now banned for sale to China to see if any items can be removed.

Cut your own taxes and save Estimate your 1988 bill with care

By Robert Metz and Sidney Kess

(12th of 14 parts)

Not everyone is through with his or her tax chores for the year with the filing of a tax return. Many taxpayers are also obligated to pay quarterly estimated tax installments. The new tax law will make the filing of estimated taxes in 1988 more rigorous, as you are now required to estimate what you owe more accurately than you did in the past.

The required payment of estimated taxes generally results from self-employment income, from which there is no tax withheld at the source; from high-salaried positions in which withholding is not adequate to cover the tax; and from capital gains, interest and dividend income.

The paying of estimated taxes is not optional. If you meet the requirements for paying, you must pay or else incur penalties from the Internal Revenue Service.

You must pay estimated tax in 1988 if you expect you will owe taxes next year of $500 or more, over and above what it is withheld, and you expect to receive more than $500 in gross income that is not subject to withholding.

For 1988, there are numerous changes to consider when you estimate your taxes. Here are the important ones.

- The tax rates drop significantly, to 15 percent and 28 percent.
- The personal and dependency exemption increases to $1,950, although high earners may lose the benefit of the exemption through a surcharge.
- The standard deductions increase to $3,000 for singles, $4,400 for heads of households, and $5,000 on joint returns.
- Only 40 percent of personal interest other than qualified mortgage interest will be deductible.

For 1988, you are subject to a penalty unless you pay 90 percent of your estimated tax liability through withholding and quarterly estimated tax payments. The only exception is when you make each quarterly payment on time, and your estimated tax turns out to be at least 90 percent of the 1988 tax you end up owing. (Farmers and fishermen have more leeway; they avoid the penalty if their estimate equals two-thirds of what they ultimately owe.)

You may also avoid a penalty if your 1988 estimate is at least equal to your 1987 tax liability.

Those on a regular withholding basis can avoid paying quarterly estimated taxes by making arrangements with their payroll department to have additional sums taken from their earnings to cover the additional tax that they expect to owe at the end of the year.

Pensions, annuities and individual retirement account withdrawals are subject to automatic withholding unless the monthly distribution is $450 or less (or a lump-sum distribution of less than $200). However, you may elect not to have withholding taken out of your distributions by filing Form W-4P.

Every employee was required to file a new wage withholding form in 1987. For this purpose, you should have completed a newly revised W-4 form or a W-4A and given it to your employer. If you failed to complete and file either of these forms by Oct. 1, 1987, then your employer is required to withhold income tax from your wages as follows: one allowance if you are single and two allowances if you are married (marital status being determined according to the most recent W-4 filed with your employer).

If you expect to owe no income tax and had no liability for last year, you can claim exemption from withholding. Thus, for example, students whose wages and other income do not rise above the level requiring income tax payments can claim exemption from withholding, and thus will not need to file a tax return in order to obtain a refund.

However, someone who was a student and claimed exemption in past years should not automatically assume that he or she is exempt this year. Elimination of the personal exemption for those who can be claimed as a dependent on another individual's return and other changes in the tax law may mean that the wages of a dependent are subject to tax even though the same wages would have been exempt in years prior to 1987.

If you filed a new W-4 or W-4A in good faith with your employer by June 1, 1987, then you will not be charged with estimated tax penalties due to insufficient withholding on wages. This waiver does not apply to income from non-wage sources, such as self-employment income or investment income.

If anything changes during the year that would affect your withholding (e.g., you married, divorced, had a child, bought a home with a mortgage, etc.), you should file a new withholding form with your employer.

You do not want to have too much tax withheld, since you cannot recover the tax until you obtain a refund. In the meantime, you are in effect making an interest-free loan to the government.

Stomach stapling has her upset

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm very upset with my daughter-in-law's decision to have surgery to staple her stomach. I'm a firm believer in moderation and exercise, and I don't think there is an instant cure for overeating. Somehow I feel that we failed her.

DEAR READER: First of all, I share your concern about stomach-stapling as an appropriate method of weight control. I agree with you that this is a drastic and risky option, for which there are safer alternatives. I hope that your daughter-in-law reconsiders her decision and, rather than undergoing surgery, will examine other weight-reduction methods, such as dieting under medical supervision or placing herself under the care of experts in a metabolic laboratory.

On the other hand, I do not believe that you have failed her. She is an adult and must make her own decisions. You do not have control over her behavior; you need not take responsibility for what she chooses to do. I urge you to let go of the negative feelings of guilt and blame. Take a positive and supportive approach. Perhaps your family doctor would be willing to give your daughter-in-law more information about the hazards of stomach surgery — and to involve her in a diet plan that would be suitable for her.

To give you more information that might help, I'm sending you a free copy of my Health Report, WINNING THE BATTLE OF THE BULGE. Other readers who would like a copy should send $1 and their name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My daughter is blood type O negative, and I am O negative. There are two possible fathers, one AB positive and one O negative. What are the probabilities?

DEAR READER: The ABO blood types are determined by the presence of antigen protein on the red blood corpuscles: Type A has A antigen, type B has B antigen, AB has both, O has neither. The Rh system further classifies the ABO groups into Rh positive or Rh negative.

Since you and your daughter are both O Rh negative, your O negative partner could be the father. I say "could be" because the only factors linking him to paternity are his blood type and your word.

It's easier to say who isn't the father of your child: in this case, your AB-positive partner. Since he has AB antigen, one or both proteins would have been genetically transmitted to his offspring. Because your daughter has no AB antigen and is Rh negative, she is not his child.

In order to prove paternity in a law court, you would need to have more sophisticated and detailed genetic analysis than simple blood type, although — as I mentioned — the blood type can prove who couldn't be the father.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Hispanic leaders say an English-only referendum overwhelming approved by Republican voters is a simplistic idea to solve America's problems.

About 93 percent of the Republican voters approved the non-binding referendum Tuesday.

Hispanic leaders said they were not surprised by the margin of approval, but were concerned about its ramifications.

"The English-only proposition doesn't come up with solutions to illiteracy, to the dropout problem, to discrimination, or with answers to economic development or the budget deficit," said Oscar Moran, national president of the League of United Latin American Citizens.

"It's a very simplistic approach to try to cure the nation's ills," Moran said Wednesday.

The question on the referendum read, "English should be established as the official language of the state of Texas and the United States of America."

Ruben Bonilla, president of the Mexican-American Democrats political action committee, said voters had no choice.

"The referendum was a loaded question. One would have to be a Marxist-Leninist to have opposed the question as it was framed," Bonilla said.

"I think that question, the way it was printed, might even have passed in the Hispanic community," he said.

Fred Meyer, Texas Republican Party finance chairman, said the idea behind the proposal is to help all Americans succeed at the jobsite and other areas in society.

"A high percentage of people feel that if people are not proficient in English, they are really not going to be able to share fully in what this country has to offer," he said.

But Moran, a Republican, said the referendum was another form of discrimination.

"You only see this movement as Hispanics, blacks and other minorities begin to assert themselves in the political arena," Moran said. "It's a very simplistic, backdoor approach that creates divisiveness and polarization in the community." Jose Garcia de Lara, state director of LULAC, said he was not surprised by the vote.

"It's an unfortunate situation for the Republican Party because the issue is nothing more than a racist issue, a nuisance issue," de Lara said.

"I see the Republicans putting this on the ballot because they want to frustrate the Hispanic vote. They never would have put it on the ballot if more Hispanics voted in the Republican primary," he said.

But Lou Zaeske, chairman of the Bryan-based American Ethnic Coalition which helped place the issue on the ballot, said the opponents of the referendum would lose their followers.

"I have an abiding faith that Americans, of whatever ethnic ancestry, will ultimately recognize these self-styled political leaders for what they really are — modern day piped-pipers endeavoring to create special-interest groups by using ethnicity, which they think or feel will serve their own self-interests," Zaeske said.

"They are the ones practicing racism by forcing people to look into their group rather than outward," he said.

Gov. Bill Clements, a Republican, does not favor the issue.

"I don't think it's important one way or the other. I've said that 'before,'" Clements said Wednesday.

Bonilla, a Corpus Christi lawyer who has debated the English-only issue, said the vote destroyed the myth that Republicans were more enlightened voters.

"Their whole argument is that English is the prerequisite to participatory democracy, but the proposition did not address the more serious issue of educational shortcomings that we experience today and the growing problem of illiteracy," Bonilla said.

Lien law for elderly is called appropriate

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — State human services board members support delaying a new law that officials say is designed to help recover nursing home costs but has been misunderstood as working to force people from their homes.

The law lets the Texas Department of Human Services recover medical assistance payments through enforcement of liens or claims against estates of Medicaid recipients after they die. Some officials said Wednesday the legislation has been misunderstood.

The issue, hotly contested around Texas, was the source of a television ad that attacked State Sen. Grant Jones for supporting the legislation.

Texas Board of Human Services members, scheduled to meet in Abilene today, said they would favor a delay in adoption of rules for implementing the law until the issue is reviewed by the state Attorney General's office. Jones, D-Temple, was handily defeated Tuesday by Sweetwater attorney Temple Dickson, who used the ad in his campaign. The ad was utilized in at least one other Texas campaign.

"I have not seen the commercials, but from what I heard, I think the issue has been structured and cast wrong," said J. Livingston Kosberg, chairman of the human services board, which governs the DHS.

"There is no legislative intent or requirement that people give up or sell their homes to receive nursing home care," Human Services Commissioner Marlin Johnston said in a written statement released by the board.

"The notion that we would kick a spouse or dependent or disabled child out of their home is not only mistaken, it's absurd," he said.

Dickson's ad, which Jones blamed largely for his defeat, depicts an elderly woman — played by an actress — sitting on the porch of her home and saying Jones gave people a choice between getting Medicaid or losing their homes.

Story said 'unworthy of comment'

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — The attorney for a man accused of trying to sexually assault Tracy Scoggins claims Miss Scoggins invited his client to her room, a statement the actress dismissed as absurd.

Miss Scoggins said Tuesday that lawyer Jose Montes Jr.'s statements have served only to victimize her again.

Montes said Tuesday that Miss Scoggins met his client, Pedro Concepcion Padilla, in traffic on Interstate 10 Feb. 25 and invited him to her room at the Marriott. Miss Scoggins, who was in El Paso as co-host of the Miss USA pageant, told police that Padilla jumped into the hotel elevator about 11 p.m. Feb. 25 and ripped her evening gown. She said her assailant pushed her into the back of the elevator, but she fought him off.

Hotel guests and security detained Padilla until El Paso police arrived to arrest him. Padilla gave police and a municipal judge a false name and address and was rearrested after posting $100 bail. He was released on the new warrant after posting $100,000 bail.
