U.S. Congressmen condemn Ortega

WASHINGTON (AP) — Members of Congress are condemning Nicaraguan President Daniel Ortega as they become convinced he ordered a military incursion into neighboring Honduras, and the action is renewing calls for U.S. aid to the anti-Sandinista rebels.

"There's a feeling that Mr. Ortega is pretty damn stupid, indeed," said Rep. Dan Glickman, D-Kan., a member of the House Intelligence Committee who was briefed Thursday on the border incursion against the Contra rebels.

"This so-called final offensive against the Contras may have made sense militarily, but it was bad politics," said Sen. Claiborne Pell, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee.

Briefings for members of Congress by top Reagan administration officials portrayed the Sandinista military action as a long-planned and skillfully executed attack that was threatening a Contra command center about 10 miles northwest of Bocay, Nicaragua, just inside the Honduran border.

Several moderate Democratic House members, who were behind a failed March 3 attempt to provide strictly "humanitarian" aid to the rebels, said the move gave new impetus to the effort to pass an aid package.

But while there was unanimity that the Managua government had made a grave political miscalculation, opinions were mixed on the wisdom of President Reagan's decision to deploy a 3,200-man task force to Palmerola Air Base in Honduras.

Pell, D-R.I., said the move tended to reduce Honduras to the status of a U.S. client state and "may well be a greater threat to Honduran sovereignty" than the border incursion.

Oil news not good at meet

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — With predictions of continued price volatility and ever-growing oil imports, oil and gas executives were hard-pressed for good news at the Texas Railroad Commission's annual State of the Industry meeting.

"The good news is that now somebody will finally have to pay attention to the bad news," Jack Montgomery, vice president of supply for Amoco Corp., said at Thursday's meeting.

The best good news anyone could come up with was that the outlook for the Texas energy industry was slowly improving and that Texas and the United States still have oil and gas available for exploration and production with improved technology.

A principal topic of discussion was the need for unity within the natural gas industry and expansion of the market for gas.

Texas supplies 40 percent of the nation's natural gas, but the in-

Electric sources replaced

An $89,000 project was completed this week to replace four electrical transformers that had been serving the Western Texas College campus since it opened in 1971.

Working for Westinghouse, which provided the new transformers, a crew from Mashburn Trucking and National Rigging of Saginaw used a heavy-duty crane to pull the old 5,000-pound transformers out and install the new ones.

The power sources were replaced near the student center, the dormitory, the fine arts building and the physical education building, WTC business manager Gay Hickman said.

Hickman noted that all of the electricity was shut off on campus while the transformers — representing all of WTC's electrical power — were replaced.

The $89,000 contract was with Westinghouse for a "turnkey" project, to include the cost of installation, the official said.

Dam 20 percent done...

Stacy intake now near construction

The "straw" that will sip water from Stacy Dam—the gigantic lake project undertaken by the Colorado River Municipal Water District—is expected to be let for bids in June.

The "straw" is the water intake system which will supply the water district and its member cities, which include Snyder, Big Spring and Odessa.

Under separate contracts, the cities of San Angelo and Midland will be served also. Abilene has contracted for Stacy water as well, but it will build its own intake system.

CRMWD officials report corings for the foundation of the district's water intake have been completed. When the dam is closed and the lake fills, a portion of the intake will be underwater.

And if the schedule goes as planned, the intake will be completed some five months before the waters of the Stacy reservoir rush over it.

The intake is being built west of the dam's embankment and is located on an arm off Gatlin Creek which converges with the lake's primary source for water, the Colorado River.

The intake will be located on a five-acre tract and is estimated to cost $2.7 million. This compares to Stacy's estimated $71 million price tag for the entire project.

As work on the water intake system begins, staffers with CRMWD note that Stacy Dam is approximately 20 percent complete overall.

The construction of the dam itself has now progressed to approximately 10 ft. below its final level.

The dam will be built to impound water on the north side of the Colorado River as it flows east to west some 25 miles southeast of Ballinger.

When completed, the dam will be 9,000 ft. long and contain 4.3 million cubic yards of fill.

The dam will be built up to the river with a target date of "closure" in October, 1989. The intake system now under construction.

Party conventions due here Saturday

State convention delegates will be chosen and resolutions debated when Scurry County Democrats and Republicans hold their county conventions Saturday.

Democratic chairman Gene Bowlin expects about 40 persons to attend the 2 p.m. Saturday meeting over which he will preside in the Snyder Junior High School auditorium.

Five delegates and five alternates will be chosen to attend the June 17 and 18 state convention in Houston, and Bowlin said the majority will probably favor Tennessee Sen. Albert Gore for president, in light of Gore's having led the Super Tuesday ticket of presidential candidates here.

But the chairman also expects some delegate representation for Chicago minister Jesse Jackson. "Sometimes in these small counties, it comes down to who you can talk into going," Bowlin said.

Only one resolution came out of the March 8 precinct conventions to be considered at the county-wide gathering, a proposition calling for stricter enforcement of laws requiring the payment of child support.

GOP county chairman Nona Morrison will preside over the Republican convention beginning at 7 p.m. Saturday in the school administration building on 37th St.

The Republicans will choose 11 delegates to attend the state convention June 9 through 11 in Houston from among precinct delegates Alta Nation, Mary Frances Penhall, Bill and Shirley Jones, Stan Paregien, Loy McSpadden, Rod Waller, Mrs. Rod Waller, Janet Polk, Lonnie Russell, Louise Thompson, Gene Dulaney, Mary Dulaney, J.O. Morrison, Nona Morrison, G.L. Autry, Frances Autry, Jeanne Bullard, Homer Godair and Anne Overhulser.

Newly elected party chairmen Earl "Hassie" Sneed for the Democrats and Donald Burk for the Republicans will take office next month.

Scouters due honors at C-City dedication Ceremonies at Lake Colorado City are scheduled Saturday from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m. for the Buffalo Trail Boy Scout Council's newly named G. Newell Hughes Aquatic Base and Training Center.

Two facilities at the training camp, one still to be constructed, will be named in honor of two Scurry County men, Nolan von Roeder, who passed away in 1963, and Lyle Deffebach, who died in November of 1987.

The dedication ceremony is slated at the facility located some seven miles southwest of Colorado City.

Both men are former members of the executive committee for the Midland-based Buffalo Trail Council, which serves Scurry and 17 other counties.

In honor of Von Roeder, a chapel is to be constructed at the site and named in his memory. A residence at the camp in which the caretaker lives is to be named the Deffebach Ranger Residence in honor of Deffebach.

Other facilities at the camp which will be named for other council leaders as well.

Plans for the Saturday ceremony will include tours of the facility beginning at 10 a.m. A barbecue lunch will be served at noon and reservations for it may be made by calling the council at (915) 684-7171. The charge will be $5 per person.

The dedication ceremony will be held at 1 p.m.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "More and more people are looking to Washington for leadership. Too bad he died in 1799."

Keeping tabs on our neighbors:

Every small town in West Texas has a similar problem—trying to compete with the giant city merchants. Walter Buckel, in the Lamesa Press-Reporter, penned the following which merits our consideration:

"A fellow from Lubbock was trying to peddle shop towels and uniforms for our press operation. He was a nice fellow, very personable, not pushy and very courteous—a good salesman.

"But you aren't local," I told him. "We like to deal with the local person who does a little business with us while we utilize his services. By working together and helping each other to the extent we can, we can overcome our economic downturn of the past years and come out alright."

"You Lamesa folks stick together good in that respect and I appreciate you doing it," he countered. He was also rather surprised that a small price difference didn't enter into my reasoning. "In the small town, we have to help each other and use each other's services. That's the only way we can survive."

"He shook my hand. 'I hadn't run into your idea of helping each other. But I can't help but agree and respect you for it.'"

"That's the name of the game when the going gets tough—help each other as much as we can. I'll buy your gas and you buy my paper and advertising. I'll buy your car and you buy my products. I'll buy your groceries and you buy from us."

"When all of us learn this very simple lesson that we desperately need each others products and services, we can overcome whatever difficulties that may arise from time to time."

Things may be tough all over, according to Hereford's O.G. Nieman.

In large airport the other day, Nieman observed a stockbroker asking a Hare Krishna for money.

In Brief

'Witch Hunt'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Retired Army Maj. Gen. Richard Secord, under indictment in the Iran-Contra affair, today said he "absolutely" doesn't expect to serve time for his role in the secret weapons deals.

"I think the legal system itself is going to see the merit of our case and will dismiss this indictment very quickly," he said on ABC-TV's "Good Morning America."

Asked if he expected to "do time" on the charges, Secord said: "Absolutely not."

Deaths down

WASHINGTON (AP) — Traffic fatalities in the United States last year were the "lowest in history" based on miles driven, the Department of Transportation reported.

The department reported on Thursday that fatalities dropped significantly in 1987 and attributed the decline to increasing use of seat belts and a reduction in drunken driving.

The department said its characterization of the 1987 fatality rate as the lowest in history used as a yardstick the number of deaths per 100 million miles of travel.

Investigators say...

Swaggart may have been set up

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Television evangelist Jimmy Swaggart may have been victim of a setup when he was photographed at a motel with a known prostitute, according to two private investigators.

Larry Carroll and Joseph A. Oster say they are not denying that Swaggart was with a prostitute.

"We're not saying he wasn't there, we're saying what has come out so far is not the whole story," Oster said.

Carroll heads a Baton Rouge-based firm known as Carroll Security Consultants Inc., which handles employment screening for the Swaggart Ministries. Oster heads the West Monroe-based firm of Joseph A. Oster and Co.

Carroll said a Texas man — described as a Swaggart benefactor — hired him and Oster to investigate how Swaggart came to be photographed at the New Orleans area motel last October with the prostitute.

Carroll said he knows the person employing him only as a voice on the telephone.

Both Carroll and Oster say they send their written reports to a post office box, and are paid with a check bearing an illegible signature.

The woman who admitted being at the Jefferson Parish motel with Swaggart said they did not have sexual intercourse but he paid her to perform pornographic acts.

Carroll and Oster say they want to find out exactly how the photographs of Swaggart came to be taken and whether others may have violated some laws in making the case against Swaggart.

Carroll and Oster are looking particularly at the roles a Lake Charles-based private investigator and law enforcement officials played in the Swaggart drama.

The Lake Charles investigator, Reed Scott Bailey, was hired by the Rev. Marvin Gorman, who filed a $90 million defamation lawsuit last year against Swaggart, a fellow minister in the Assemblies of God church. Gorman, a New Orleans minister, was defrocked after admitting to an immoral act with an unnamed woman. He has accused Swaggart and other Assemblies officials of ruining his ministry with false reports that he had several adulterous affairs.

Gorman is reported to have given Assemblies of God officials the photographs of Swaggart and the prostitute outside The Travel Inn.

Debra Murphree, arrested for prostitution at the Travel Inn in September, claims to be the woman in the photograph. Carroll said he's not sure it was Murphree.

Another loose end that Carroll and Oster are exploring is the suggestion that someone from the Jefferson Parish sheriff's office may have been involved in helping to set up Swaggart.

Shortly after the Swaggart story broke, Jefferson Parish Sheriff Harry Lee said he could not rule out the possibility that someone from that office participated in such a setup.

Marvin Gorman's son Randy worked as a reserve officer for the sheriff's office until he was relieved of his duties. Lee said he determined from an investigation that Randy Gorman had not been involved in any setup of Swaggart.

Bailey said that he went in February to the Sherwood Motel, located near The Travel Inn, to interview Peggy Carriere, an admitted prostitute.

Carroll and Oster said both Murphree and Carriere failed lie detector tests.

Murphree took a polygraph test when she attempted to sell her story to a supermarket tabloid, The National Enquirer. Her responses indicated deception on some key questions, Enquirer Editor Ian Calder said, and the tabloid refused to pay for the rights to her story.

Carriere, who lived at the Sherwood Motel, claimed to have been offered $10 to perform a sex act for Swaggart but said she laughed off the offer, according to Carroll. She claimed to have seen Swaggart three different times with three different women.

Carroll said an outside polygraph operator was hired to test Carriere and the results indicated deception on key questions about her alleged encounters with Swaggart.

Anti-satellite project canceled by Air Force

DALLAS (AP) — LTV Corp. officials said up to 350 people will be laid off following an Air Force stop-work order on the anti-satellite program, the second time this year the company has announced layoffs due to defense spending cuts.

Fifty people at LTV Missiles and Electronics Group will be laid off today and the remainder will follow over several months, the company said Thursday.

The stop-work order was issued a week ago and is preparation for formal cancellation of the program expected next week, said Raymond A. Hay, chairman of the Dallas-based company.

Last month, LTV's Aircrafts Products Group announced it plans to cut 1,000 jobs this year due to an expected three-year slump in defense spending.

Many of the ASAT program's 475 staff members already have been reassigned to other missile division programs, the company said.

"While we look forward to another good year for the division in 1988, the impact of the ASAT program made the layoff decision unavoidable," said Felix W. Fenter, Missiles Division president.

Cancellation of the ASAT weapons system program was due to "continuing restrictions imposed by Congress on testing and development," Hay said in a statement.

For the last three years, Congress has prohibited the Pentagon from testing ASAT against objects in space.

Because of that prohibition, and because of budget difficulties, the Pentagon killed the program in unveiling the fiscal 1989 budget.

The air-launched ASAT Miniature Vehicle developed by LTV is built into the nose section of a missile. Homing devices and maneuver rockets in the vehicle allow it to locate and intercept a target satellite in orbit.

Hay said the program is being canceled because of political pressures from some members of Congress who feel further testing will hurt U.S.-Soviet treaty negotiations.

Mike Hatfield, manager of public information and advertising for the division, said the order to stop research was not a result of Dallas-based LTV's progress on the project.

"As a matter of fact, it's a tragedy. It has nothing to do with LTV's performance or the desires of the Air Force," he said.

Overloaded Employees Are Set to Pull Computer's Plug

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1988 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I work in a three-person office. We have lost our boss. Where is he all day? He's playing with the new computer in the back room while three of us underpaid female employees literally run this place and make all the major decisions.

I am sure that many other employees in similar situations feel as we do — that a computer is a new toy for the boss. I see no constructive use of this expensive equipment in our particular operation.

I think computers are overrated, overpromoted and placed in places where there is really no need for them. You can guess where a large percentage of the new year's budget is going. And it won't be for an increase in salaries for the three of us who do what really needs to be done around here.

ANOTHER NO-BOSS OFFICE

DEAR NO-BOSS OFFICE: The function of an office computer is to make retrieval of information faster and easier, and to simplify and speed up composition and production of written materials.

I presume your boss is busy programming information into the computer's "memory" for the use of everyone in the office. Once that chore is completed, you will (or should) be instructed on how to get that information out of the computer, which will lighten your workload. Patience, ladies.

should attend — regardless of what kind of wedding is scheduled.

As for the gift, if you regard the wedding gift as fair exchange for a ceremony, dinner and dancing, then you owe them no gift. But if you want to give the newlyweds a practical memento of your good wishes, give them something useful. They probably have very little.

DEAR ABBY: I recently read the following item, comparing the top seven major problems — past and present — confronting our schools, and thought you might like to print it. I believe that many fail to realize that the majority of a child's learning takes place in the home and not in schools.

We cannot expect educators who must deal with these problems to solve them in the school. My source for this material was the Fullerton, Calif., Police Department and the California Department of Education.

TOP PROBLEMS IN 1940:

1. talking
2. chewing gum
3. making noise
4. running in the halls
5. getting out of line
6. wearing improper clothing
7. not putting paper in the waste baskets

TOP PROBLEMS TODAY:

1. drug abuse
2. alcohol abuse
3. pregnancy
4. suicide
5. rape
6. robbery
7. assault

DEAR CHARLES: Thank you for a provocative item. One wonders, is this progress? Readers, I welcome your comments.

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Six months ago the gland located in the right side just under my jaw began to swell. Within three months the gland on the left side became swollen. Since then a gland on the right side of my face, in front of my ear and just above my jaw, has swollen. I have lost some hearing in my right ear. My eyes are very swollen, my vision is blurred and my sinuses are swollen.

I do have hypothyroidism, but my doctor does not think it is the cause. An ear, nose and throat specialist wants to do a lot of tests, but my husband just lost his job. Is this annoying condition something that can wait until we are back on our feet financially?

DEAR READER: Swollen lymph glands in the neck always indicate inflammation or infection. Usually, the cause is straightforward and treatable: dental infection, an impacted wisdom tooth, a strep throat, mononucleosis and so forth. However, sometimes swollen glands reflect a more serious disorder, such as cancer. The diagnosis usually can be made by certain tests, including biopsy in some instances.

Sinus infection, allergies, ear infections and hypothyroidism do not ordinarily cause swollen lymph glands. Therefore, I think that you ought to follow the advice of your ear, nose and throat doctor and undergo further testing. Do it now.

You mention having temporary financial difficulties that are interfering with getting proper medical care. I advise you to discuss this problem with your doctor. In my opinion, no needful patient should be denied medical attention, or feel guilty about needing help, because of financial reasons. Most doctors are willing to reduce their fees or give free medical care, depending on circumstances. In addition, most hospitals and laboratories expect to discount or donate services to some patients who are unable to pay. I'm not talking about welfare; I'm referring to ordinary people who need help and, for one reason or another, are unable to pay the full freight. Work with your doctor to examine your options; don't put off taking care of yourself.

DEAR DR. GOTT: The Sunday newspaper contains three or four flyers advertising different health-insurance plans. Every evening on the TV I see ads for HMOs, PPOs, etc. etc. How is the average citizen supposed to figure out what sort of insurance he or she needs?

DEAR READER: The choices can be confusing. To help you decide on what coverage is appropriate for your situation, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report, INSURING YOUR GOOD HEALTH. Other readers who would like a copy should send $1 and their name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR ABBY: I cannot believe the telephone call I just received from "Dianne," my husband's future sister-in-law. (She is marrying my husband's brother.)

Dianne said, "Buddy" and I are being married by a justice of the peace, but we can't invite you to the ceremony because the space is so small, there's not enough for everybody. Please meet us afterward at a restaurant — it's going to be "Dutch treat."

I am shocked and appalled. Do you think my husband and I should attend? And if so, what would be an appropriate gift considering we have to pay for our own dinners?

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You won't be in the frame of mind to fool around today. You'll spot tasks that require attention, and get right to them. This should be a productive day.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Try to make life a game today, even your critical involvements. If you don't take yourself or events too seriously, you'll come up a winner.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Domestic matters that you have been neglecting lately should be given top priority today. What you previously viewed distastefully won't carry that stigma now.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Usually you're a rather optimistic person, so don't step out of character today. This is not a time to play host or hostess to negative thoughts.

Host families sought

The local chapter of International Youth Exchange is currently seeking host families for foreign exchange students. A family is needed for the 1988-89 school year and several families are needed for this summer.

Summer visits will be for one month. So far one student from Germany has confirmed a stay in Snyder and others are being planned. Several local students will also be making trips abroad this summer, but final details will be announced at a later date.

The IYE chapter is also beginning its fund drive. Anyone wishing to contribute may contact Rita Carter, secretary-treasurer, at 2901 33rd Street.

Other officers of the organization are: Barbara McCormick, president; Jack Gorman, coordinator-between IYE and the Rotary Club which arranges the foreign exchange visits; and Roy Carter, past coordinator.

Smoking increases risk of stroke in women of all ages

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP)—Women who smoke half a pack of cigarettes a day are twice as likely to have a stroke as women who have never smoked and those who smoke two packs a day have six times the risk of a stroke, researchers say.

Their study, presented Thursday at a meeting of the American Heart Association, is the first to show a conclusive link between smoking and strokes in women, said the study's principal author, Dr. Graham Colditz of the Harvard University School of Medicine in Boston.

"Taken in conjunction with the results for men, this clearly implicates cigarette smoking as a risk factor for strokes in women," Colditz said.

Before 1984 smoking was not considered a risk factor for strokes in men or women. In 1984, however, the American Heart Association listed cigarette smoking as a possible risk factor for strokes.

Little has been known about the effect of smoking on strokes in women, however. Earlier less definitive studies had suggested it increased the risk, some had found no effect and one had found that smoking decreased the risk, Colditz said.

Heart disease and stroke have been studied less extensively in women than in men, possibly because those diseases are less common in women than men. But heart disease and stroke, taken together, are the leading cause of death in women — as they are in men.

The heart association estimates that 500,000 Americans have strokes each year. In 1985, the latest year for which figures are available, 152,700 Americans died from strokes.

Colditz said his results are more convincing than those of previous studies largely because of the number of subjects in his study — almost 120,000. They are nurses who were recruited in 1976 for a huge study attempting to correlate various aspects of diet, health, family history and such things as height and weight with the occurrence of disease.

In a separate finding reported Thursday, analysis of the nurses' drinking habits showed that even modest amounts of alcohol can lower the risk of coronary heart disease, marked by clogging of the coronary arteries that supply blood to the heart.

This effect has been observed in men, but it has not been as thoroughly studied in women.

"A couple of drinks a week is enough to lower the risk," Colditz said.

Meir Stampfer of Harvard, the principal author of the alcohol study, said analysis of the alcohol intake of 87,566 of the nurses showed that as little as two drinks a week could lower the risk of coronary heart disease by 40 percent.

There is a catch, however. Alcohol has been shown to raise the incidence of cancer — and that effect begins to occur with the consumption of three drinks a week, Colditz said.

Most authorities believe that the question of alcohol's effect on health has not been answered well enough yet for them to recommend that people drink moderately.

Cold front does not stop planned parties

SOUTH PADRE ISLAND, Texas (AP)—There's more fun than sun at Texas' spring break headquarters, but chilly temperatures haven't slowed down the round of rowdy parties.

During the height of spring break, it never quite quiets down, no matter what the hour.

An estimated 75,000 young people are descending upon this town of 1,000 this week, the busiest of the spring break season.

"There are kids coming in here that don't have any place to stay, and we're having trouble finding places for them," said Breeze Carlile, executive director of the South Padre Island Visitor and Convention Bureau.

A cold front that kept temperatures below 70 most of the week put a damper on beach fun, but not the daily and nightly blow-outs students said.

"We've been partying massively every day and night," said Stacy Berman, 21, from the University of Maryland. "That's the only way we can get through this vacation, because otherwise I guess we'd be really bored, because there's nothing to do here during the day except party, because there's no sun out."

She and some friends threw themselves on the ground as soon as the sun peeked through the clouds Thursday.

Cars lined every no-parking zone as the heavy-metal group "Triumph" blared across the sand dunes during the second of two free beach rock concerts for the week.

Few at the beach, however, bothered to sun-bathe or swim Thursday.

"Everybody's wearing sweat-shirts instead of short sleeves," said 21-year-old University of Iowa student Debbie Johnson. "Last year we had a sunburn by now."

Indoors, some of the parties have gotten out of hand, said 20-year-old Tom Zirkl from the University of Wisconsin at Milwaukee.

"There's a lot of destruction going on," said Zirkl, adding he fears he will lose his $30 security deposit at the condominium complex where he and friends are staying.

"I didn't see some guy going down and breaking the light bulbs," Zirkl said. "I just walked down the hall and there's glass on the floor and no light bulb there."

Ms. Carlile said only about half of the island's accommodations rent to spring breakers. Others charge steep deposits.

"As far as I can tell, we've booked about 640 kids in the jail since the first of the month," said Capt. Tommy Atkinson of the city's police force of 18 full-time officers.

Two poor risks? Choose neither

By James Jacoby

It is true that good players can frequently sniff out the winning finesse when there is a choice. But what can you do when there is no winning finesse? Willy Nilly, today's declarer, held up on two rounds of spades, finally won the ace and played five rounds of diamonds, throwing a heart from his hand. Meanwhile West, who had two discards to make, let go a heart and a club. Give West credit — he managed to blank his club king nonchalantly. So Willy Nilly played the 10 of clubs from dummy and finessed. West won the king and took two more spades to set the hand.

Careful Charlie would have done better. He knows that if you are given a choice of finesesses, the best thing is to let your opponents play for you. So Charlie would have taken the second spade. He would then have cashed exactly three diamonds, keeping an entry to dummy in the suit, and then have played a spade. West would then take three spade tricks, on which declarer would discard a heart and a club, but then West would have to lead away from one of his kings. That would give Careful Charlie nine tricks, and he could save his finesesses for another deal.

Petitions circulated against site of the 'super collider'

MAYPEARL, Texas (AP)—Like frontier families of the past, who moved westward when civilization began creeping up on them, Jay and Kathleen Paul fear their peaceful, rural area is about to be ruined.

So they are doing something about it, circulating petitions to keep the "super collider" out of their Ellis County neighborhood.

Ironically, they are taking the action despite a massive, expensive effort by officials at the local and state levels to lure the massive project to the area.

The couple moved to Oak Cliff, a neighborhood in south Dallas, 15 years ago from Wilmington, Calif., just as Los Angeles was devouring their hometown. Then, a few years later they moved southward to Ellis County and built a home in the tree-covered hills about two miles from Maypearl, about 40 miles from Dallas.

The Pauls and about a dozen other Ellis County residents say their rural lifestyle is being threatened by a proposal to build the $4.4 billion project nearby.

The giant project, designed to break down protons into smaller subatomic particles, would allow scientists to study the building blocks of matter.

The Pauls formed Texas Against the Supercollider and began circulating petitions and advertising in an attempt to keep the project out of Ellis County.

"There's a lot of people who are against (the super collider), but won't do anything by themselves," Jay Paul, 39, a sheet-rock contractor, said Thursday. "We thought if we formed a group, it would give them something to focus on."

Just two miles from the Paul's home is the site of the proposed campus, where 2,500 "super collider" scientists would work.

If the Ellis County site is selected from among the seven recommended sites, 4,500 construction workers would come to dig a 53-mile-long oval-shaped tunnel for the "super collider."

Proponents say the project would be a much-needed boost to the area economy, creating thousands of jobs and drawing high-tech research firms.

The Pauls and some others in the area fear the project will ruin the area's pastoral quality, bringing congestion, higher taxes and more crime.

More than 400 people would be forced to sell their land to the government.

They also point out that federal officials have said there will be no federal aid to pay for the cost of additional government services needed to handle the influx of people. But officials say the area's tax rolls will be swelled by new businesses and residents, offsetting such costs.

In the first two weeks of their effort to gather signatures on the petitions, the Pauls and others have collected more than 100 signatures. They plan to send the petitions to legislators and the Department of Energy.

"And we've just begun," Kathleen Paul said. "They (supporters) have been working on this for four years."

Snyder Tournament roundup...

Lobos outlast Tigers, 11-10

Lamesa, Brownwood, Levelland and Pecos were victors in first-round action of the Snyder Baseball Tournament here Thursday - action which saw some heavy hitting despite almost numbing temperatures that dipped well below freezing with the wind chill factor.

Snyder's debut in the three-day tournament ended in disappointment as the Tigers fell behind Levelland early, then caught up in the top of the seventh, only to lose 11-10. In other games, Lamesa edged Brownfield 8-7, Brownwood clipped Big Spring 6-4 and Pecos slapped Vernon 15-5 via the 10-run rule.

The tournament was to continue this morning with Brownfield and Big Spring meeting at 11 o'clock. Lamesa was to play Brownwood at 1:30 p.m. In afternoon-evening action, Snyder takes on Vernon at 4 p.m. and Levelland challenges Pecos at 7 p.m.

All of the action is taking place at Moffett Field in Towle Park. "I was especially proud of our younger kids," said Snyder Coach Albert Lewis. "It was just tough luck we weren't able to hold Levelland, but they have a real strong hitting ballclub. We knew that."

Nobody put the ball in play better than Snyder's Randy Morris, who went five-for-five with a home run, three doubles and a single. He accounted for three RBI. Kevin Dollins was three-for-four for Lewis' bunch, who managed 14 hits off of the Lobos.

Levelland enjoyed a 10-hit attack, led by Dane Dewbre, who slammed a pair of home runs and locked up a cool half-dozen RBI.

Two Lobo home runs accounted for four scores and a misread fly ball let two more in as Levelland powered out to a 6-1 advantage over Snyder. Both teams scored in the third inning - Levelland twice - to give the game a 10-2 look.

Snyder mounted a late rally, scoring two runs in each of the fifth and sixth innings and four more in the seventh to tie the game at 10-all. In the seventh, Tracy Brazier walked to get things going. One out later, Dollins and Todd Odom cracked back-to-back singles. Brad Gartman then slammed a two-run basehit. Van Echois slapped a sacrifice fly, and Morris doubled before Levelland reliever Ronnie Mata could get the final out.

The Lobos, who had held the lead with sharp hitting, took a different route to win. Teddy Latham accounted for the winning run after Snyder's Lee Fletcher struggled with a hit batsman and three straight walks, sandwiched between a pair of outs.

Mata picked up the win in relief of Latham. Fletcher was tagged with the loss after relieving Bert Otto in the second stanza.

Tim Prado also slugged a home run for the Lobos, now 5-6. Snyder takes a 4-5-1 record into today's game with Vernon.

In Thursday's opener, Lamesa got two seventh-inning runs to get past Brownfield, 8-7. Cedric Mason was the winning pitcher in relief while Joe Garcia went the distance to take the loss for the Cubs.

The game was delayed almost an hour and a half while workers scurried to ready the field, which soaked up some early-morning drizzle.

Bobby Gonzales clubbed a home run for Brownfield while Tim Cortez and Robert Bermea knocked a double each and Garcia added two singles.

Lamesa found some strong hitting from Johnny Ellis, who put together a home run and two doubles, from Tim Demerson, who cracked a home run, and from Armando Jiminez, who had a triple.

Three sixth-inning runs lifted Brownwood past Big Spring in a game which pitted two highly-touted teams. Damon Treadway was the WP in the game. Aaron Allen was the loser.

Sammy Burnett and Kurt Jones unleashed a home run apiece for the Lions, now 6-4.

Both came in the big sixth inning for Brownwood. Treadway also hit a double.

Matt Burrow uncracked a home run for Big Spring. Felix Rodriguez had two singles.

The first-round nightcap witnessed a 12-run third inning by the Pecos Eagles, another team picked to do well this season. Jim Workman picked up the win for Pecos, 5-4 now. He gave up only two hits.

Vernon suffered through an unofficial 10 errors and gave up 15 hits, including a triple to Renee Rayos and a double each to Danny Gonzales and Edwin Jacques.

FIVE-FOR-FIVE - Snyder's Randy Morris (10), is congratulated by teammates after slapping a home run in Thursday's first-round, local baseball tournament game with Levelland. Morris went five-for-five from the plate - including a trio of doubles - despite Snyder's 11-10 loss to the Lobos. (SDN Staff Photo)

Mustangs stop Irish, 83-75; Baylor, North Texas defeated

by The Associated Press
Southern Methodist had something better than luck when they played the Fighting Irish in a first-round NCAA tournament game - Kato Armstrong - but other Texas teams weren't so fortunate.

Armstrong scored 19 of his 29 points in the second half as the Mustangs took an 83-75 victory over Notre Dame in an NCAA Tournament East Region first-round game Thursday.

Baylor, the second-place finisher in the Southwest Conference behind SMU, fell to Memphis State 75-60, while North Texas State was downed by North Carolina 83-65.

In NAIA play, Paul Quinn was upset by unseeded Grace, Ind., 97-89 and David Lipscomb of Tennessee downed East Texas Baptist 89-63.

The only other victorious Texas team Thursday was Houston, which notched a 69-61 victory of Fordham in NIT play.

Playing in Chapel Hill, N.C., on St. Patrick's Day, the Mustangs weren't phased by the fabled Irish luck, turning a 51-50 halftime advantage into a 72-64 lead with 2:10 remaining.

Armstrong, who averaged 15.8 points for the Mustangs this season, said he followed the advice of teammate Vernon Perdue.

"In the second half, Vernon came to me and told me to take charge," Armstrong said. "I just started pushing the ball up-court."

Notre Dame was led by Jamere Jackson who had 20 points.

Southern Methodist will meet fifth-ranked Duke Saturday, which beat Boston University Thursday 85-69.

Memphis State got a career-high 22 points from Rodney Douglas in the win that sent them into the second-round of the Midwest Region against Purdue Saturday.

The loss sends the Bears, led by Darryl Middleton's 22 points, home with a 24-10 record.

Baylor Coach Gene Iba said he warned the Bears at halftime, with the Tigers leading 33-30, to expect a press, but they didn't heed him.

"I think the problem we had was the six-minute period (to open the second half), not the press," Iba said. "After the intensity changed, the press changed. Certainly that period of time beat us."

NTSU had hoped to play the role of giant-killer against second-seeded North Carolina, but the Tarheels grounded the Eagles as North Carolina's J.R. Reid scored 29 points, two short of his career high.

NTSU got 15 points from Tony Worrell and 19 rebounds from Ronnie Morgan.

North Carolina plays Loyola-Marymount, a winner over Wyoming, in Saturday's second round in the West.

In the National Invitational Tournament, Houston got 17 points from Rolando Ferreira Thursday night as the Cougars won their first-round game.

Richard Hollis followed with 14 points and Craig Upchurch had 13 for the Cougars, who improved to 18-12.

Senior forward Tom Parrotta led Fordham with 18 points and Joe Paterno added 12.

In the NAIA, Paul Quinn, the 13th seed, fell to unseeded Grace in Kansas City. Brooks Koble scored 27 points and Tylor Coley and Paul Zeltwanger 18 each for Grace.

Billion-dollar advance by feds said good news

DALLAS (AP) — Federal officials say a $1 billion cash infusion to First RepublicBank was an interim step to steady the bank, shaken by a run on deposits, and outside investors are being sought to help put the company on surer financial footing.

The Federal Deposit Insurance Corp.'s advance Thursday helped calm jittery depositors and slow a run on deposits that has drained reserves from the ailing company, bank spokesman Joseph C. Bowles said.

"As soon as the FDIC action was made available to the public, the deposit outflow stopped," he said. But there was little good news for Texas' largest bank-holding company's investors, he said.

"This action by the FDIC guarantees creditors and depositors and not the holding company. The shareholders certainly are at risk in this situation."

FDIC Chairman William Seidman said in Washington that the assistance was only a short-term step.

Seidman said the FDIC was seeking a long-term solution to the holding company's problems and was talking to private investors who may want to participate in a restructuring of the company.

Seidman pledged his agency to fully protect all depositors of the banks as well as general creditors. That goes beyond the minimum: the agency would normally be expected to insure, which is deposits of $100,000 and less.

Without the cash infusion, "basically the bank would have failed," said independent banking consultant Frank Anderson. But it still remains to be seen if the bank can overcome its financial problems, he said.

In the short term, however, "this effective action by the FDIC will provide a stable environment for our customers," Gerald Fronterhouse, First RepublicBank's chairman and chief executive officer, said in a statement.

"The action today confirms that all depositors and other general creditors of First RepublicBank's banks will be fully protected."

Bowles and other bank officials refused Thursday to say how much money has been withdrawn since Tuesday when First RepublicBank announced its decision to seek federal help.

Last month, the bank lost $600 million in deposits over a five-day period amid rumors that it was in danger because of billions of dollars in bad loans, particularly in real estate.

Customers at the company's lead bank in downtown Dallas indicated that they were not worried about losing their deposits.

"I have confidence in the people running the bank. It'll survive," said Alex Cochrane.

Gail Scott added, "It's pretty scary. I hope they can work it out." A woman who declined to identify herself said she wasn't worried because the FDIC insures accounts up to $100,000, and "before they go under I will have spent my money."

An Associated Press reporter was escorted out of the bank under guard Thursday as he tried to interview customers and bank officials.

Meanwhile, George Reagan, investment manager of the Texas Teachers Retirement System, a major institutional First Republic investor with 498,000 shares, said the FDIC money will provide a cushion for the bank until the economy recovers.

"This will allow First Republic to get through the hard times. No one, especially First Republic, realized that we would go through such a hard time with the Texas real estate market for so long," he said.

Reagan said the bank's problems would not affect the teacher pensions since the investment represents a fraction of 1 percent of the system's holdings.

H.R. "Bum" Bright, owner of the Dallas Cowboys and Bright Banc Savings Association, is the largest individual investor with more than 1 million shares.

Nine months ago, those shares were worth $24 million; today, they're worth approximately $1.5 million. Bright did not return repeated calls from The AP Thursday.

State Treasurer Ann Richards said the federal action "assures that all depositors, including the state treasury, are safe."

First RepublicBank is one of four state treasury clearing banks, and as of Wednesday held $152 million in state deposits. Ms. Richards said the deposits are fully collateralized and therefore protected.

First RepublicBank-Dallas is the company's largest holding. In descending order, the next-largest First RepublicBank subsidiaries are in Houston, San Antonio and Austin.

Huge bank bailout rivals the largest one in history

WASHINGTON (AP) — The first step in bailing out Texas' largest bank holding company is raising concerns about the long-term health of the fund that insures deposits in most of the nation's commercial banks.

Thieves use opportunity for school cafeteria vandalisms

The suspects who broke into the Hermleigh school cafeteria and elementary school late Wednesday or early Thursday took a large quantity of food out of the refrigerators, splattering it on the cafeteria walls and floor, a Scurry County deputy said Friday.

believe it could turn out to be the first big hit of a bad year for the fund. FDIC Chairman L. William Seidman isn't saying how much he believes his agency ultimately may have to spend to rescue the $33.2 billion holding company, the largest in Texas and the 13th biggest in the country.

Cut your own taxes and save

If you're caught in the IRS web
By Robert Metz and Sidney Kess
(Last of 14 parts)

There are two basic things you should know about the Internal Revenue Service's audit program for individual tax returns. One is that fewer than two out of 100 individual tax returns are audited.

But before this tempts you to stretch your deductions beyond what is warranted, you should also know a second thing — that the IRS is quite good at selecting returns for audit that will yield additional tax owed.

Assuming that you have filed an honest return, chances are you have little to worry about. Of course, there is the possibility that you have made some mathematical error or you innocently neglected to include an item of income.

If the computer catches a mistake, the IRS will refigure your tax on the basis of the additional income and inform you of how much you owe. The first thing you should do before consenting to IRS demands is to double-check the return you filed, because the IRS can make mistakes, too.

If that happens, write a letter to the agency pointing out that you did report the disputed income and note where on the return. Do not sign an IRS consent form; await word.

If your re-examination of your return shows that the IRS is right, you can sign the consent form and send it along with the additional payment.

But this does not necessarily mean you are home free. Even after correcting it, your return could still be selected for audit.

Should you receive a letter requesting that you come into an IRS office for an audit review, first make sure you are thoroughly familiar with the return you filed. Generally, the IRS agent will focus the questioning on those items that were checked on the form letter you received about your audit.

Say the IRS is asking to see proof for some of the deductions you claimed. Make sure you have the proof, such as paid bills or canceled checks.

If there is some item of proof you can't find, don't concede the point right away. Even if you don't have a receipt for interest on your life insurance policy, for example, you could get a letter from the insurance company.

Remember to take the proof with you to the interview. And never ignore your appointment. If the time they have chosen is inconvenient, call the IRS a week ahead of time to reschedule it.

If anything, dress down for your date with the IRS. Work clothes are better than a sophisticated suit. Treating an IRS agent as an enemy won't win you any points. If you give the agent a bad time, he or she may look harder for flaws in your return.

Nor should you go overboard in the opposite direction. Don't try to make a friend of the agent. And don't volunteer information he or she wasn't looking for.

If the agent requests proof of a deduction that you didn't bring with you, but you know you can obtain quickly, say that. Rather than settling now on a tax liability you don't owe, you can come back another day with the proof.

Arguing that a certain deduction was never disallowed before also is likely to get you nowhere. On the other hand, remember that the agent may be open to some honest tradeoffs.

If you and the agent agree on all issues, he or she will tell you how much in additional taxes it's going to cost and will suggest you sign an agreement form. Once you've signed, you will have lost your rights to appeal, so you may want to delay signing and study the agreement.

The fund's income from interest and from premiums paid by member banks — $3.3 billion last year — is increasing at a slower rate than deposits, he said. The ratio of FDIC assets to insured deposits has fallen from more than $1.20 per $100 in 1981 to close to $1.10.

Still, the FDIC fund is in far better shape than its sister fund for the thrift industry, the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp. Unlike FSLIC, the FDIC probably would still be in the black after accounting for all of the problems suffered by its member institutions, Ely said.

Industry experts are skeptical of the chances for FDIC's efforts to attract private investors to take on some of the risks of operating a restructured First RepublicBank.

"I'm sure there probably are people who are kicking the tires and have expressed an interest to the FDIC," said Stephen Skaggs, a senior analyst for Sheshunoff & Co., an Austin, Texas, consulting firm.

"But I just don't see that there's any great appetite for investments (like First RepublicBank) unless the FDIC is willing to assume substantially all of the risk."

According to Sandy Flannigan, an analyst with Paine Webber Inc. in Houston, the search for private capital for First RepublicBank does not improve the chances for other Texas banks such as MCorp to attract new investors.

First City, which is getting $500 million from a private investment group in addition to the FDIC money, "was first to the well," she said. "They are in far better shape than those who follow. There isn't an infinite number of investors interested in Texas banks."

Ironically, the deepening bank crisis comes amid signs that Texas' economy is improving.

"The whole thing is just a very sad situation," said Paul Getman, senior financial economist of The Wefa Group, a Philadelphia-area consulting firm. "Just when people thought the situation in Texas might turn around, it has in fact worsened."

The overall economic situation ... has picked up a bit, it has just not improved fast enough to help these banks. ... It's just too little too late."

Demos decry Farabee seat August ballot

ABILENE — Gov. Bill Clements said here Thursday he expects to set Aug. 9 as the special election date to name candidates for party nominations for the 30th Senatorial District seat vacated by Ray Farabee.

The date prompted Ed Martin, executive director for the Democratic Party of Texas, to cry "politics," noting that setting the ballot in August rather than May will allow possible Republican candidates time to build name recognition.

So far, three Democrats are announced for the post, Helen Farabee of Wichita Falls, wife of the departing senator; Charles Finnell (D-Holiday) and Steve Carriker (D-Roby).

Cut your own taxes and save

If you're caught in the IRS web

By Robert Metz and Sidney Kess
(Last of 14 parts)

There are two basic things you should know about the Internal Revenue Service's audit program for individual tax returns. One is that fewer than two out of 100 individual tax returns are audited.

But before this tempts you to stretch your deductions beyond what is warranted, you should also know a second thing — that the IRS is quite good at selecting returns for audit that will yield additional tax owed.

Assuming that you have filed an honest return, chances are you have little to worry about. Of course, there is the possibility that you have made some mathematical error or you innocently neglected to include an item of income.

If the computer catches a mistake, the IRS will refigure your tax on the basis of the additional income and inform you of how much you owe. The first thing you should do before consenting to IRS demands is to double-check the return you filed, because the IRS can make mistakes, too.

If that happens, write a letter to the agency pointing out that you did report the disputed income and note where on the return. Do not sign an IRS consent form; await word.

If your re-examination of your return shows that the IRS is right, you can sign the consent form and send it along with the additional payment.

But this does not necessarily mean you are home free. Even after correcting it, your return could still be selected for audit.

Should you receive a letter requesting that you come into an IRS office for an audit review, first make sure you are thoroughly familiar with the return you filed. Generally, the IRS agent will focus the questioning on those items that were checked on the form letter you received about your audit.

Say the IRS is asking to see proof for some of the deductions you claimed. Make sure you have the proof, such as paid bills or canceled checks.

If there is some item of proof you can't find, don't concede the point right away. Even if you don't have a receipt for interest on your life insurance policy, for example, you could get a letter from the insurance company.

Remember to take the proof with you to the interview. And never ignore your appointment. If the time they have chosen is inconvenient, call the IRS a week ahead of time to reschedule it.

If anything, dress down for your date with the IRS. Work clothes are better than a sophisticated suit. Treating an IRS agent as an enemy won't win you any points. If you give the agent a bad time, he or she may look harder for flaws in your return.

Nor should you go overboard in the opposite direction. Don't try to make a friend of the agent. And don't volunteer information he or she wasn't looking for.

If the agent requests proof of a deduction that you didn't bring with you, but you know you can obtain quickly, say that. Rather than settling now on a tax liability you don't owe, you can come back another day with the proof.

Arguing that a certain deduction was never disallowed before also is likely to get you nowhere. On the other hand, remember that the agent may be open to some honest tradeoffs.

If you and the agent agree on all issues, he or she will tell you how much in additional taxes it's going to cost and will suggest you sign an agreement form. Once you've signed, you will have lost your rights to appeal, so you may want to delay signing and study the agreement.

Otherwise, you'll receive a written report in the mail, along with a bill for the additional taxes plus interest. If coming up with the cash all at once would constitute a hardship, ask the IRS to set up a payment schedule.

If at some point in the inquiry you feel you are not being treated fairly or that proper attention is not being paid to your statements, you have a right to ask for a hearing before the IRS appellate level and in the courts.

Avenue D Baptists set revival Mar. 20-25

Avenue D Baptist Church will have its "Looking Higher" revival Sunday through Friday. Sunday services are at 10:45 a.m. and nightly services begin at 7 p.m.

Russell G. Flatt will be the revival speaker and Virgil Mott is in charge of the music.

Each night of the revival has special activities.

—Sunday: A coffee and cookie fellowship after the 7 p.m. service.

—Monday: A 6 p.m. hot dog supper for elementary school age children.

—Tuesday: Bring a friend to higher ground.

—Wednesday: Sunday School night.

—Thursday: Brotherhood night with fellowship after the service.

—Friday: Youth night. B.Y.O.B. after the service. (Bring your own banana split.)

Mott has served in several churches in Snyder. His "This Is Your Time" has been a long standing program on KSNY radio. He has served as both pastor and minister of music. He is presently serving at Avenue D Baptist Church.

Flatt has spent all but eight years of his life committed to serving Jesus Christ. As a young man he was very active in his church and community. His first pastorate, at the age of 20, was in 1966. Since then he has pastored in Tennessee, Kentucky and Louisiana.

Flatt has served on several boards and is very active in teaching several different seminars for religious education and practical ministries such as disaster relief through the Southern Baptist Brotherhood. Everyone is invited.

Eight children are now on their own

AZLE, Texas (AP) — In her final months, Alice Marie Luntz lived in a white-frame house on a knoll north of town, working two jobs to support eight children, yet finding time to take her younger kids to ball practice and church.

When she died March 11 in the collision of a pickup and tractor-trailer rig, Mrs. Luntz left behind 44 years' worth of bruised dreams, seven sons and a daughter — children now on their own.

David Luntz, at 24 the oldest son, is an Army sergeant stationed at Fort Campbell, Ky. He and his wife, Joan, also in the Army, have two sons. They are seeking guardianship of the children, the youngest of whom is 6.

"We plan to bring everybody up to Fort Campbell, where we'll get post housing," David Luntz said. "It's gonna work out. Joan is all behind me."

Mrs. Luntz, a Tarrant County criminal courts clerk for the last 1 1/2 years, died with two other people in the crash at 2 a.m. at the intersection of Silver Creek Azle Road and Farm Road 1886.

The Tarrant County Sheriff's Department said the pickup in which Mrs. Luntz was riding failed to yield to the truck, skidding into its back wheels and exploding on impact.

Mrs. Luntz; Vicki Butler, 30, of Azle; and Terence Lee Davies, 21, of Cisco, were burned beyond recognition and identified by dental records. A fourth passenger, Kenny Ejem, 22, of Fort Worth, was thrown from the pickup. He is in the burn unit at Parkland Memorial Hospital in Dallas, where he was in fair condition Thursday.

One police source told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram that the pickup's occupants had attended "Ladies' Night" at a Jacksboro Highway club. The investigation of the wreck — including blood-alcohol tests on the charred remains of Davies, who owned the pickup and is assumed to have been the driver — is continuing.

David Luntz said he "talked with Mom about an hour before the wreck and she was stone sober. I don't worry about that part. I worry about the kids."

Luntz said his mother was divorced from the father of the two oldest sons about 15 years ago and that David Natero, her husband and father to six of the children, "hasn't been in our lives since at least 1980. ... I haven't seen the man since then."

Natero, who records show has been convicted of theft by check, was in Tarrant County Jail. He has been charged with violating probation and driving while intoxicated.

"When I was at home, I was the father," David Luntz said. "When I left to go in the Army six years ago, it was hard. I felt guilty about it, but I had to do something with my life to give all of us a base to fall back on."

"Ever since I got home, the little kids have had trouble sleeping. They'll have bad dreams one right after another. I've been getting up, talking to one of them, then going back to bed and another one would have a bad dream."

"We're all hurt pretty bad, but the young ones, they're at an age where they'll ride it out. They're tough. It'll just take time."

Being in charge is nothing new to the oldest boys, said the Rev. Warren Murphy, priest at St. Thomas the Apostle Catholic Church in north Fort Worth who described Mrs. Luntz as "a very nice lady and a good mother."

Catholic Charities occasionally helped the family; parishioners sometimes provided clothes and food.

"The way we've had to live, it really wasn't her fault; it was just the predicament she was in," Keith said. "Her kids, especially the little ones, they were what she lived for. She taught us to be the best we could. She always said that money and material things didn't mean anything. Our family was important, and we all knew we'd survive because we had each other."

Environmental groups call on Washington

AUSTIN (AP) — Environmental groups opposed to the operation of the South Texas Nuclear Project are asking Texans to call on their congressmen to halt licensing of the power plant.

Several groups on Thursday said they don't agree with a new Nuclear Regulatory Commission report that clears the plant of safety allegations.

"The decision to license this plant is based on promises and prayers," said Barbara Dugelby of the group Earth First.

"The NRC has failed to look at over 240 of the 400 allegations about safety at the plant and is relying on five reports that will be submitted later to assure that the plant is safe," she said.

The plant, near Bay City, has been licensed for low-power testing by its operator, Houston Lighting & Power Co. The NRC is scheduled to hold a hearing Monday in Washington on whether to grant a license for full-power operation.

Earlier this week, the NRC released a report on its investigation of safety allegations by the Government Accountability Project.

That report concluded that there were no safety related problems with STNP that would prohibit it from being licensed.

"We don't think this is true," Ms. Dugelby said. "We ask Texans to call their congressmen and ask them to contact the NRC to demand that it postpone licensing of this plant until all the allegations are investigated and all the reports are submitted to and analyzed by the NRC."

Tom Smith, Texas state director for the Ralph Nader group Public Citizen, said there were at least 16 things wrong with the NRC's latest report.

He charged that the report was incomplete, ignored a number of "hardware" problems, and that the agency failed to fully investigate allegations against STNP.

"The NRC tried to complete this investigation on-site in four days, thus failing to do the full investigation required," Smith said.

Lang Baker, of the Lone Star Green group, said environmentalists and others would file a petition seeking a delay in the NRC's vote on an operating license for the nuclear plant.

"It is clear that the NRC has not fulfilled its legal responsibility to protect the public health and safety. It is inconceivable that the NRC can properly fulfill that duty without conducting a thorough investigation of the significant and substantial allegations," Baker said.

Meanwhile, the Austin City Council Thursday unanimously approved a long-negotiated plan to transfer its share of the STNP to HL&P.

IRS reports slower returns

AUSTIN (AP) — Internal Revenue Service officials report that tax returns are coming in at a slower pace this year than last, and they say taxpayer errors are up because of changes in tax laws.

IRS spokesman Steve Pyrek in Washington said that by the end of last week, 42.4 million tax returns were received nationwide, about 400,000 fewer than at the same time in 1987.

Lagging returns to the Austin IRS regional center accounted for more than half the total.

Austin IRS spokesman Jack Crum said 4.25 million taxpayers in Texas and four other states have filed returns so far, about 250,000 less than the regional service center had received at the same time last year.

About 11.7 percent of the standard 1040 forms received in Austin by mid-February were delayed by mistakes, compared with 9.8 percent the previous year.

Crum said 31 percent of the notices that Austin IRS employees have sent taxpayers informing them of errors concerned an additional document needed to claim children not living at home as dependents.

He said other common mistakes related to the revised tax code include overlooking the standard deduction and not filing the simplest form available.

Traditional errors that still trouble taxpayers include claiming too few or too many dependents, not signing returns and forgetting to attach W-2 forms, he added.
