

Issues again narrowed in TDC lawsuit

Issues in a suit opposing construction of a state of Texas prison in Scurry County continued to be narrowed Friday with the filing of the plaintiff's "third amended original petition."

The third petition was filed one day after the second petition—representing a court-ordered consolidation of five suits—was filed. The third petition is similar in most aspects. The latest filings, however, fail to question the city's agreement to furnish water at a discounted rate to the TDC.

Also eliminated is a request to stop the city from building an overhead water storage facility at the prison site. The earlier plea that the court order the city to first correct deficiencies in the city's water system before expending funds for TDC purposes was also eliminated from the latest filing.

Plaintiffs still ask that the conveyance of the industrial building be set aside and that the agreement by the city to provide sewer services and garbage disposal at a discounted rate be set aside and enjoined.

Also, plaintiffs still seek that the agreements between the county and TDC and between Cogdell Hospital and TDC be set aside and enjoined.

District Judge Joe Evins of Edinburg, who was appointed to hear the case in 132nd District Court, on March 11 ordered consolidation of the five suits with amended pleadings by 5 p.m. Friday.

Defendants have filed motions for both summary judgments and dismissal. Both sides have until April 15 to file motions in the suit after which Judge Evins indicated he will set a date for a pre-trial motion.

Ceremony to fete construction start for prison facility

The chairman of the Texas Department of Correction board will head a delegation of TDC board members and staffers participating in the groundbreaking ceremony of the Snyder TDC unit on April 18.

Charles Terrell, TDC board chairman and Dallas insurance executive, will participate in the 10:30 a.m. groundbreaking ceremony at the site northeast of Snyder.

Terrell, a member of the Dallas mayor's advisory committee, will be keynote speaker at a joint civic club luncheon which will follow the groundbreaking.

Serving lines for the luncheon will begin at 11:30 at the National Guard Armory. The program will start about 12:15 and the program will conclude by 1 p.m.

Cost of the barbecue luncheon will be $6 per plate. In addition to civic club members, interested citizens are also invited to attend.

Snyder one-act vies Monday to advance at 2-AAAA event

The top two winners from east and west zone competitions held Tuesday will meet Monday in Big Spring for the District 2-AAAA one-act play contest.

Both Snyder's entry, "The Corn is Green," and Lamesa's presentation of "A Canterbury Tale" advanced from the east zone. From the west, the entries will be Andrews' production of "Tom Jones" and Monahans' production of "Picnic."

The competition will begin at 2 p.m. in the Big Spring High School Auditorium. Snyder is slated as the second performance with an approximate startup time of 3 p.m.

The order of play presentations will be Lamesa, Snyder, Monahans and Andrews.

The play competition will count toward points for the UIL Literary Meet for District 2-AAAA, which was scheduled Saturday on the campus of Howard College in Big Spring.

Snyder's entry tells the story of a Welsh school teacher in the early 1900s who sets up a school to serve the children of the Welsh minefields.

Two plays will advance from district to area competition, scheduled at Worsham Auditorium here April 8—a Friday.

It will be followed by regional competition April 23 in Brownwood and the state finals May 6 in Austin.

Snyder High School one-act plays have advanced to the state finals 19 times.

Sentence phase Monday...

Kidnapping case has guilty verdict

A 132nd District Court jury late Friday afternoon found 25-year-old Grady Davis guilty of aggravated kidnapping in the drug-related abduction of a Snyder man last Oct. 27.

The eight-woman, four-man jury will reconvene at 9 a.m. Monday to begin the punishment phase of the trial.

After hearing final arguments Friday morning, the panel began deliberations at 11:30 a.m., broke for lunch until 1:30 p.m. and came back with the verdict at 5:30 p.m.

Davis, a state parolee who is originally from the Dallas area and a former Sweetwater resident, faces a sentence of five to 99 years or life.

The verdict ended a week-long trial in which District Attorney Ernie Armstrong and defense attorney Pete Greene wrangled over every legal point and wrapped up their efforts with an hour each of vigorous final arguments on Friday morning.

Greene attacked the credibility of prosecution witnesses Lafayette Griffin, the victim, and his cousin, Arthur Lee Ollison Jr., who paid some $58 for Griffin's release, while Armstrong contended that all of the substantive elements of the case had been proved.

In January, the first of three defendants in the case to be tried, Larry Dan Beard, received a 25-year sentence, the minimum that could be given him because of a double enhancement of the offense on the basis of two prior felony convictions.

The third defendant, John

Holy Week services set

Holy Week services are scheduled here Monday through Friday as part of rites planned by the Ministerial Alliance in connection with Easter.

Services will be conducted daily at noon Monday through Thursday at the First Presbyterian Church. The week will be capped with a morning service Friday at First United Methodist Church.

The morning rite on Good Friday will be a "tenebrae service" of readings and candles. It will begin at 7 a.m. and will be followed by a breakfast in the church fellowship hall.

During the noon services Monday through Thursday, brief messages will be brought each day by alliance members. Many of the services will include also special music.

Speakers will include Glenn McCathern of Colonial Hill Baptist Church on Monday; Terry Lyles of Avenue D Baptist Church on Tuesday; Terry Templin of Union Methodist Church on Wednesday; and Tim

Buildings offer tornado shelter

With the arrival of the spring tornado season, Snyder Civil Defense officials remind that the local emergency management plan includes a listing of buildings where individuals may seek shelter in the event of dangerous storms.

Most of these are structures with basement areas, many of these public facilities which civil defense officials are required to open to the public when storms like tornadoes threaten.

The locations range from the downtown area to the campus of Western Texas College.

In and around the downtown area, three locations are always opened in the event of severe weather, the police station, the fire station and the basement of the county courthouse.

Snyder city hall is also listed as a potential shelter. While it does not have a basement, its vault area is listed as safe from storms.

If it is ever required, there are other buildings around the square which have basements to be used for shelter. These include the Hugh Boren and Son Insurance offices, the old C.R. Anthony building, Snyder National Bank and Thompson's Shoe Store.

Private facilities which may offer shelter in the immediate

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Most of the lying done by men can be blamed on women—they insist on asking questions."

For area farmers and ranchers, it's been a good year in Scurry County. Folks in agriculture were overdue, but while basking in the current success, there is one sour note.

It all began a few weeks ago when the Snyder Lions Club began a membership campaign. At each Lions Club meeting, a member's name is drawn. If that person has not brought in a new member, he is awarded custody of a goat for one week.

A recent winner was Marvin Ensor—county agent, goat country native and graduate of Texas Tech's school of agriculture.

Lion membership chairman Max von Roeder and Lion President David Kattes felt secure that the goat would be properly cared for under the "care, control and custody" of Ensor, a respected specialist in his field.

The goat died.

The agriculture community and Lions Club are in mourning. Said von Roeder, a fellow Tech grad, "It is heart-breaking for those of us to depend upon the expertise and advice of this agriculture leader in Scurry County. It is a frustration for those who seek his educated counsel on matters of gravity with regard to our industry."

In traditional Lion Club fun, everybody got in their licks on the county agent. Said Aggie vet Charles Church, "The county agent deserves 500 lashes—but Tammy Faye already has 'em."

But don't feel badly if you weren't invited to Ensor's spring break barbecue.

A couple we know in Snyder are practicing a novel method of birth control.

They have videotaped their three kids at their worst behavior. Before going to bed each evening, the couple plays the tape on their VCR.

So far, the system has worked well.

Q. — Recently on a TV commercial, Crystal Bernard, who plays on the syndicated show "It's a Living" on KJTV Channel 10, claimed her hometown was Snyder. Does anyone have any history on her as to when she lived here or any other information?

A. — We contacted the public relations office for KJTV. They said on her resume she indicates her father was a minister and one of his assignments was Snyder. She apparently did not attend high school here, so this must have been before she reached that age.

City to meet

The Snyder city council has three sessions planned Monday, two related to the cable television franchise agreement now under consideration.

At noon and at 5 p.m., the council has work sessions related to the franchise scheduled. At 7 p.m., a called meeting is due at city hall to consider authorizing an engineering study of the city sewage treatment plant in preparation for the State Revolving Funds department.

For 8th grade

All parents or guardians of eighth grade students are invited to a meeting Monday at the high school auditorium for a program related to requirements faced by the students as they enter high school.

Counselors from Snyder High School will be present to explain the curriculum and graduation requirements. Parents are asked to bring the registration material their child received at junior high.

Photo opening

The public is invited Sunday to the Western Texas College Fine Arts Gallery for the opening of a photo exhibit of works by the Caprock Photographers Club in Post.

A reception marking the opening is slated from 1:30 until 3:30 p.m. The exhibit will remain in place through April 14 and can be seen on weekdays without admission charge.

Photographers whose work will be included are Robert Arriola, Ann McDonald, Joe Miller, Bill Muller, Ed Neff and Marie Neff. About 25 prints, color and black and white, will be shown.

Celestial light show caused by rocket from Soviet Union

DALLAS (AP) — Part of a rocket launched by the Soviet Union to resupply its manned space station re-entered the atmosphere over San Antonio, lighting up the sky with celestial fireworks seen in three states, officials said.

The rocket burned up on re-entry around 10:50 p.m. Friday, blazing its way across the Texas sky from southwest to northeast in a light show visible for more than a minute in Texas, Arkansas and Oklahoma.

Radio stations, police and the National Weather Service in Fort Worth said they were besieged by calls from curious skywatchers.

"I saw a meteorite once that was pretty spectacular, but this one just blew that away. This was the most amazing celestial event I've ever seen," said Chuck Farr, 33, of Round Rock, who watched from his front yard.

Although the rocket was bigger than a railroad boxcar, it was unlikely that it caused any damage on the ground, said Lt. Col. Ivan Pinnell, a spokesman for the North American Air Defense Command, or NORAD, in Colorado Springs, Colo.

Pinnell said the rocket was used to launch a cargo satellite carrying food and other supplies to the Mir space station manned by two cosmonauts.

The Soviet Union launched the Progress 35 satellite Thursday, according to a report by the Soviet news agency Tass. Pinnell said NORAD had been tracking the rocket since its launch and had expected the re-entry, but had not known when or where.

The reference book "Soviet Military Power" lists the SL-4 as the type of rocket normally used by Soviets to launch such a payload, Pinnell said.

The SL-4 weighs about 720,000 pounds and is about 91 feet long, Pinnell said, citing the March 1988 issue of Aviation Week and Space Technology.

"When an object like that re-enters, it breaks up in the atmosphere, and you have these smaller pieces and sometimes you have quite a show," Pinnell said.

He said he didn't know if the supplies had made it to the Soviet Union, were on their way, or burned up on re-entry. "I would have to refer you to Tass," the spokesman said.

There was no official comment in Soviet media on the re-entry.

Easter party set Thursday

Easter bonnets and Easter eggs will be featured in the Senior Center's Easter party on Thursday.

Prizes will be given for the women's best hat, the best men's hat and the best decorated egg. Senior citizens are also invited to bring a few colored eggs for an egg hunt, and there will be some unique "eggs" in the hunt.

The Easter party will begin at 10 a.m. and prizes will be awarded at lunch time.

The center will be closed all day Friday and also on Monday, April 4, for an Easter holiday.

Senior Center volunteers will be honored at the annual recognition banquet on April 8 and reservations for the evening are due by April 5.

Activities in the center this week include a ceramics class at 9 a.m. on Tuesday; the daily exercise class at 11 a.m.; Sunshine Choir and Kitchen Band rehearsals on Wednesday; and the women's reducing class at 3 p.m. on Monday. This class normally meets on Mondays and Fridays. Bowlers will bowl at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon at Snyder Lanes and the swimastics group will meet at 2:15 p.m. Tuesday and Thursday at the Western Texas College swimming pool.

State Bar workers charged tax-free liquor from '84-87

AUSTIN (AP) — State Bar of Texas employees charged $19,713 worth of tax-free liquor from November 1984 through November 1987, most of the time not listing a reason for the purchases, a weekly publication for Texas lawyers reported.

Texas law prohibits state agencies from buying liquor or reimbursing employees for liquor with state funds.

But state Bar executive director Larry Montgomery said the purchases are supported by lawyer's dues and were not a major part of the Bar's overall budget, according to the March 28 issue of The Texas Lawyer.

Several leading public figures, including the Texas Supreme Court liaison to the Bar, Judge Franklin Spears, said the organization should regulate more closely the purchase of alcohol.

Attorney General Jim Mattox, former Bar president Bill Whitehurst and officials from Common Cause of Texas and the Texas Civil Liberties Union also criticized the practice. Montgomery said he doesn't see a problem with using Bar funds to pay for the liquor bills, which average about $548 a month.

"Nobody thinks it's inappropriate," he said. "It's not a question of doing something differently from state agencies, except there is one very distinct difference, and that is we're not using state funds."

Mecham explains his actions

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Gov. Evan Mecham, defending himself against charges he misused $80,000 from a protocol fund, said he was never told it was public money and was given carte blanche to do nearly anything he wanted with it.

Mecham testified at his Senate impeachment trial Friday that when the proceeds of his inaugural ball were converted into a protocol fund, nobody questioned whether it should be considered public money instead of private.

Mecham, taking the stand for the second time in his trial, said inaugural committee Chairman Bill Long told him, "We've gone through all of this rigamarole" in determining that the inaugural funds could not be used to pay off campaign debts.

Mecham said Long told him, "You can spend it for any damn thing you want" — those are his words — "except you can't spend it for politics or for personal living expenses."

Mecham is accused of misusing $80,000 from the $92,000 protocol fund by loaning it to his car dealership, Mecham Pontiac.

The governor is scheduled to resume testifying Monday.

Mecham has testified on the first charge against him: that he tried to thwart an investigation of an alleged death threat by a state employee.

The Senate plans to begin hearing testimony next week on the third charge: that Mecham concealed a $350,000 campaign loan.

Mecham, 63, also faces a recall election May 17 and an April 21 criminal trial on six felony charges of hiding the $350,000 loan.

The prosecution contends the protocol fund was state money, and that Mecham Pontiac needed the loan to meet its July payroll.

A prosecution witness testified earlier this week that the dealership had about $3.7 million in loans against an appraised value of $3.35 million.

Prosecutors have said Mecham tried to conceal the $80,000 loan.

Mecham and his 37-year-old son, Dennis, who has been the dealership's general manager since his father ran for governor in 1986, sought to paint a rosier financial picture.

Dennis Mecham said he borrowed the money simply because his father offered it in an effort to get a higher interest rate for the protocol fund. He said he could always use additional capital in an effort to generate more profits.

"The rumor mill has been rampant about Mecham Pontiac since day one. We've had our lives, every scrap of it, demonstrated to our competitors ... and God and his angels," the younger Mecham said.

Defense attorney Jerris Leonard led the governor through a series of calculations that he said showed that Mecham Pontiac had $2.5 million worth of unencumbered property.

Later, Leonard told reporters, "The numbers are obvious. There was at least $2.5 million worth of real estate value behind an $80,000 loan. I'll take that deal anytime."

However, the governor acknowledged that in July 1987 — the same month the $80,000 loan was made — he was notified that he was behind on repaying a $101,905 loan from Valley National Bank.

"Quite frankly, I wasn't watching my details," Mecham said. "I was a little red-faced when this caught up with me." He said he paid part of the loan and refinanced the rest in a transaction handled by telephone.

A two-thirds vote of the 30-member Senate is required to convict Mecham, and lawmakers also could decide to bar him from holding any future office. Mecham is the first U.S. governor to be impeached in six decades.

Former resident on Who's Who lists

Most people would be pleased to be listed on "Who's Who in America" just once. But Jackie D. Miles, once a long time resident of Snyder, is included several times in the annals of the many biographical titles currently published by Marquis' "Who's Who in America." Miles' name is listed in the 20th and 21st editions of "Who's Who in the West," consisting of the 13 most western states, including Hawaii, Alaska and three of the Canadian provinces. His name also appears in the 24th and 25th editions of "Who's Who in Finance and Industry" whose editors present comprehensive coverage of many North American and international professionals who are of current business reference interest.

He is also listed with Marquis' 8th edition of "Who Who in the World," which contains substantial biographical information on important individuals from every nation.

Miles' name also appears among the regional and topical listings of the 44th edition of "Who's Who in America."

The persons sketched in these Who's Who volumes represent virtually every important field of endeavor. Included are executives and leaders in business, finance, banking and education, construction, engineering, science and law and many other vocations, trades and professions.

These sketches are profiles of men and women who influence the nation's development and thus make them subjects of widespread reference interest and inquiry.

Miles is the second son of 12 children born to the late Mr. and Mrs. A. O. Miles, formerly of Snyder. He is the brother of the late Gene Miles who lived and worked for the city of Snyder for many years and brother to Faith Blocker and Nancy Lee currently of Snyder.

He was born in Oklahoma and moved with his parents to Snyder in 1938.

He attended local schools for the first 11 years and then moved with his family to Rotan where he graduated from Rotan High School.

The Miles family lived on farms as tenant farmers around Snyder for a few years before they eventually moved into town.

With such a large family, Miles recalls his early life as a time of very hard work and considerable poverty. He remembers "chopping cotton" and "pulling boles" in almost all parts of Scurry County.

He recalls the following as a typical school year. He would enroll for classes in late August or early September, attend school for two or three weeks and then leave classes to work in the cotton fields gathering the crops until after Christmas, then return to his classes to pick up with his fellow students to complete the school year.

Miles also worked during his high school years as a "sack boy" and "clerk" at the Banks and Banks Supermarket and other stores in Snyder.

When asked about his background and knowledge in finance and industry he replies, "I acquired that knowledge in the cotton fields and super markets of Scurry County, Texas."

After high school he served four years with the U. S. Air Force, was discharged and accepted a position with the federal government where he worked for 10 years in California. During those years he attended college part time at Solano College and Sacramento State College.

He is married and has two children and two grandchildren.

Miles established his first company in the construction industry in the mid 1960s and since then has built several companies of his own as well as being a consultant to other companies. His main endeavors have been in land development, general contracting and homebuilding, electrical contracting, retail and manufacturing. He has also been involved in real estate for several years.

He currently resides in Suisun City, Calif and is preparing for the leisure years "motor homing" across the United States. He delights in visiting the West Texas and Scurry County area to reminisce about the "tough old days."

Police breakup Catholic rally

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Riot police backed by water cannons beat and arrested hundreds of candle-holding Roman Catholics in western Czechoslovakia who staged a rare protest for religious freedom. Western reporters said today.

About 2,000 people in the Slovak capital of Bratislava gathered Friday in front of the National Theater for a rally banned by Communist authorities, who tightly control religious activities.

Nicaragua became in 1945 the first nation to formally accept the United Nations Charter.

Snyder mentor Coach of Year...

Scott, Garza All-South Plains

Snyder Coach Larry Scott, who proved prognosticators wrong by taking the Tigers to the Class 4A basketball playoffs, has been selected as South Plains Coach of the Year by the Lubbock Avalanche Journal.

Tiger senior Terry Garza was named to the elite All-South Plains Team, along with Cedric Mason and Dwight Mason of Lamesa, Brian Mayfield of Big Spring and Gym Bice of Andrews.

Others were Scott Moore of Levelland and Dustin Miller of Pampa.

Snyder was picked to finish fourth in District 2-4A this past season, but the Tigers instead tied with Big Spring for second place, then defeated the Steers in a playoff to earn post-season rights. Snyder defeated Levelland at the bi-district level before losing in overtime to eventual state finalist Wichita Falls Hirschi.

Snyder fashioned a 24-9 season record under Scott, who said the credit should be shared.

"A lot of credit goes to Bud Birks on that. He's really a varsity assistant coach first and then the junior varsity coach. A lot of the success we had goes to him also," said Scott.

Garza, a 6-4 senior, averaged 20.2 points and 6.5 rebounds for the Tigers.

A two-year starter for the Tigers, he has also been named Texas Association of Basketball Coaches (TABC) second-team All-Region, and will be announced Sunday as a member of the Abilene Reporter News' all-area squad.

Cedric Mason, a 6-1 senior who paced Lamesa to the District 2-4A championship, was chosen All-South Plains Player of the Year.

Underclassmen on the team are Bice and Miller, who will be seniors next season, and Dwight Mason, who will be a junior.

State champion Levelland dominated the Girl's All-South Plains Team. Named from Coach Dean Weese's team were Carol Bailey, Rachel Hesse and Josephine Longoria. Canyon put Tammy Williams and Missy Kraai on the squad. Also chosen were Yolanda Brown of Pampa and Katrina Thompson of Big Spring.

Williams, a 5-10 senior, was Player of the Year. Weese was Coach of the Year.

NCAA Tournament roundup...

K-State cools Boilermakers

by The Associated Press
Purdue flattened Kansas State with a quick 10-count but couldn't score a knockout.

As a result, the Boilermakers, the nation's third-ranked college basketball team, became the first regional top seed to bow out of the NCAA Tournament.

"I thought we could put them away," Purdue Coach Gene Keady said after the Boilermakers raced to a 10-0 start only to blow their advantage when No. 20 Kansas State wiped out a nine-point halftime deficit with a 12-1 run to start the second half and held on for a 73-70 victory in the Midwest semifinals.

"We wanted to get up 15, but do it gradually, but it wasn't to be and they came back."

—It was Fatal Friday for the Big Ten as second-ranked Arizona trounced No. 17 Iowa 99-79 and seventh-ranked North Carolina disposed of No. 10 Michigan in the West semis. In the other Midwest semifinal, Kansas trimmed Vanderbilt 77-64.

—On Sunday, Arizona meets North Carolina in Seattle and Kansas plays Kansas State in Pontiac, Mich.

Saturday, No. 1 Temple met No. 5 Duke in the East final at East Rutherford, N.J., while fourth-ranked Oklahoma played Villanova in the Southeast final at Birmingham Ala. The winners advance to next weekend's Final Four at Kansas City, Mo.

Mitch Richmond scored 27 points for Kansas State, eight of them, including two 3-pointers, during a 12-3 run as the Wildcats broke away from a 54-54 tie.

Purdue got within 69-67 with 1:29 left on Everett Stephens' fourth 3-pointer. But Kansas State then made four of six free throws and Purdue could only muster another 3-pointer by Stephens while committing two critical turnovers, one with no pressure from the defense.

Stephens led the Boilermakers with 20 points.

"We didn't change that much. Hey, we were down 10-0 to start the game," Kansas State Coach Lon Kruger said. "We talked at halftime primarily about that we didn't do the things we do every day in practice. We went out, regained the pace and gained control of the game."

Arizona 99, Iowa 79
All-American Sean Elliott scored 25 points and Arizona opened the second half with a 24-9 run. Anthony Cook added 16 points while Steve Kerr and Tom Tolbert each had 17. B.J. Armstrong led Iowa with 27 points. Arizona, led by former Iowa Coach Lute Olson, also defeated the Hawkeyes 66-59 in Iowa City in December.

Arizona's second-half spurt gave the Wildcats a 62-43 lead with under 14 minutes left and enabled them to regain control of the game after an 11-2 Iowa run in the final two minutes of the first half pulled the Hawkeyes within 38-34.

North Carolina 78, Michigan 69
The Tar Heels used strong inside play by Scott Williams and J.R. Reid to pull away from Michigan. Williams scored 19 points and Reid had 18, including a tip-in with 48 seconds to play. Sophomore guard Rumeal Robinson scored 29 for the Wolverines, 10 more than his previous high. But Gary Grant, Michigan's All-American guard, sat out 10 minutes because of foul trouble and was on the bench when North Carolina took control in the second half. He finished with seven points.

Mavs burn Portland, 106-101

DALLAS (AP) — Roy Tarpley scored 25 points and the Dallas Mavericks strengthened their hold on second place in the NBA's Western Conference standings Friday night with a 106-101 victory over the Portland Trail Blazers.

Dallas boosted its lead over third-place Portland to three games. The Los Angeles Lakers scored a commanding lead in the conference race, which determines homecourt advantage in playoff games.

Mark Aguirre added 17 for Dallas, which won the season series with Portland, three games to two. The two teams could meet in the second round of the Western Conference playoffs.

Jerome Kersey and Clyde Drexler led Portland with 21 points each.

Derek Harper hit two free throws to give the Mavericks an 83-81 lead with 8:44 left in the game, and from that point Dallas never trailed.

James Donaldson, who led Dallas with 14 rebounds, and Tarpley scored on dunks to push Dallas' lead to 93-87 as the Mavericks won for the 16th time in the past 20 games.

Tarpley clinched the victory by hitting two free throws with 11 seconds remaining, pushing the Mavericks' lead to 106-101.

Portland center Steve Johnson was ejected by referee Mike Mathis with 3:25 to play when Johnson screamed at Mathis about a no-call on the previous play.

Lewis may make changes...

Andrews pops Snyder Tigers, 10-0

ANDREWS - Andrews shook up the Tigers here Friday night and Snyder baseball coach Albert Lewis may do the same next week.

"We'll probably make a few changes. We're not going to stand still and we're not going to quit. But we're not getting contribution from enough players right now and we may have to find some other players that will help us out," challenged Coach Lewis after the Tigers were defeated 10-0 by the 10th-ranked Mustangs.

Andrews plugged Snyder for sixth runs in the fourth inning and four more in the fifth to win by the 10-run rule. It was Snyder's second straight District 2-4A loss after falling to Pecos 2-1 on Tuesday. Next action for the Tigers will be Tuesday in Monahans at 7 p.m. Snyder takes a 6-7-1 record into the game, and at 0-2, will still be searching for a district victory.

Starting pitcher Lee Fletcher kept the Mustangs under control for three innings Friday, but began to struggle in the fourth. A couple of hits, a walk and three errors combined to sentence the Tigers to an early shower as Andrews made good use of what Snyder gave the Mustangs. Coach Lewis brought in Kevin Dollins to get out of the inning. He also had problems, however, giving up four runs in the fifth.

Andrews clubbed seven hits in the contest, including a two-run homer by Jason Graham in the fifth inning.

Snyder batters were frustrated by Andrews pitchers Michael Hernandez and Brent Leffingwell, who had to battle their way out of several jams. The Tigers put runners on the bags several times, but could never get the key hits.

"We're not patient enough at the plate," said Lewis.

In the first inning, Wayne Ware walked and Van Echols and Randy Morris both singled but no runs came in. In the second, Tracy Odom got two-out walk and Bert Merritt followed with a single. Still, Andrews was able to locate a third out without allowing a run.

Fletcher took the loss in three and one-third innings work. Hernandez didn't figure in the decision. Leffingwell, a sophomore righthander, took the victory - his seventh this season against no losses.

Lewis said fans should not give (see TIGERS, page 7A)

Stewart leads Players classic

PONTE VEDRA BEACH, Fla. (AP) - Payne Stewart completed a 7-under-par 65 with an eagle on his final hole Friday to take a one-shot lead after the second round of the Players Championship.

Stewart finished two trips over the windswept TPC at Sawgrass, the home course for the PGA Tour, in 8-under-par 136.

First-round leader Mark McCumber and Mike Reid shared second place at 137 at the halfway point of the $1.25 million tournament that is billed as the championship of golf's touring pros.

Stewart missed only one fairway and one green and capped his round with a 3-wood second shot that set up a 14-foot eagle putt on his final hole of the day.

"A great round of golf; probably the best round I've had this year, taking into consideration the conditions and the golf course," Stewart said after missing the course record by a single stroke.

Reid, who broke a career-long non-winning streak last fall, had a bogey-free 69.

McCumber, whose home is about three miles from the course, had a hard-won round of 72 in the tricky winds that could have cost one player a fine.

"I should have been fined for slow play on the seventh hole," said Morris Hatalsky, who was two shots back at 138.

"I just could not pick a club. While I was trying to play my second shot, the wind shifted five times on me. It got so that I actually forgot what I was trying to do," he said.

He eventually made a scrambling par on the hole, then pitched in from 70 yards out for an eagle on his final hole of the day for a 68.

Hatalsky was tied with Dan Pohl and South African David Frost, who had a 71. Pohl shot a 69.

Greg Norman of Australia, one shot off the pace after the opening round, made a double bogey from the water that surrounds the island-green on the 17th and took a 74 that left him at 140.

Western fares well at collegiate rodeo

CANYON — Western Texas College women got off to a shaky start at the West Texas State University NIRA Rodeo here but the ladies appear to be headed for the finals in at least one event.

Meanwhile, it was non-team members who made the biggest impact for WTC as the rodeo moved into its third day Saturday. The rodeo was to continue with performances at 7 p.m. Saturday and 2 p.m. Sunday.

Jessie Colburn put the WTC women's team in the light by clocking a 14.69 in the barrels. Her run is holding down second place.

Colburn timed a too-long 17.7 in the goat tying, however, and teammate Tana Mahoney was 12.4 with a broken barrier in the breakaway roping. Western's third girl in the three-person women's team, Sandy Scott, was to compete Saturday evening in the barrels, breakaway and goat tying.

As mentioned, WTC students who are not designated team members had the best performances Friday. Buddy Reed tied for second in the bull riding with a 79, while Shane Goemmer took over first place in the steer wrestling with a 5.9 clocking. Shawn Goemmer scored a 66 in the bronc riding to take over third place.

Scores posted by WTC team members on Thursday are still holding up well, noted Coach Bob Doty. Adam Brewster is winning the bareback with a 73 and is fourth in the bull riding with a 72. Michael Gaffney's bull riding was upgraded to an 82, and he is still winning that event.

In other action, Clyde Himes and Kenny Taton took a no-time in the team roping. Also, Jim Blain Kenney's 63 is still third in the bronc riding.

"We're doing okay right now. What we need is to get some more people into the short-go and then do well there," said Coach Doty.

The top 10 contestants in each event qualify for Sunday's finals.

Among the team members out for Western on Saturday were to be Scott, Wesley Henderson, Ray Brown and Clyde Himes.

Denver, Dallas, still try to trade Dorsett

DALLAS (AP) — Denver Broncos Coach Dan Reeves said Friday a major problem in trading for Dallas running back Tony Dorsett is that the Cowboys want a player or players in return and Denver doesn't have many to spare.

"We're going to continue to talk with Dallas and see if we can work out a deal that both parties are in agreement with," Reeves said while in Dallas to attend a Fellowship of Christian Athletes meeting.

"But one of the difficult things is that they're looking for players, and even though we went to the Super Bowl, we don't have a lot of depth at a lot of positions. So you've got to hit on a player they are interested in. But we are interested in Tony, and we'll continue to talk."

Cowboys spokesman Greg Aiello said Friday night no deal had been arranged yet for Dorsett, who has asked to be traded.

Case IH put more into the new MAGNUM tractor line than any farm tractor developed in over twenty years. Here's why you'll get more out of it:
MAGNUM means more. Outstanding field performance from a new 505 cubic inch turbocharged engine with reserve power. MAGNUM power.
The MAGNUM tractor's powershift puts 18 speeds of shift-on-the-go workpower at your fingertips—standard. And only MAGNUM tractors offer a full powershift creeper transmission with six additional speeds from 5 to 21 mph... for more control and performance. MAGNUM performance.
The MAGNUM tractor's new larger cab has 48 square feet of window area... virtually unobstructed visibility... more seating comfort. MAGNUM comfort.
It all adds up: The Case IH MAGNUM 7120 tractor sets new standards for the 750 hp (112 kW) class... and for you. See us for details.
MAGNUM means more.

Chambers pleads guilty to charge
 NEW YORK (AP) — A subdued Robert Chambers Jr. pleaded guilty to strangling a young woman during sex in Central Park, ending the 10-week-long "preppie murder" trial that focused attention on the lifestyles of the young rich.
 Chambers, 21, pleaded guilty Friday to a lesser charge of first-degree manslaughter, halting jury deliberations that lasted nine days and raised fears of a possible mistrial.

RESERVE CHAMPION—The reserve champion and Mrs. Roland Key of Gail. Pictured with her is Limousin steer of the 1988 Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo is owned by 17-year-old Ralynn Key, Borden County 4-H member and daughter of Mr. Dennis Poole, Borden County extension agent. The steer was purchased by Polke Ranch in Franklin for $14,000. (Family Photo)

CRMWD holds monthly meeting

A contract addressing the distribution of costs and implementation of financing and construction of pipelines for Stacy reservoir to Midland-Odessa was adopted by the Colorado River Municipal Water District directors at a meeting Thursday in Big Spring. The document will be submitted to Midland and San Angelo, who are contract cities with water interests in the reservoir. The district and each of the contract cities had previously agreed on a distribution of costs for putting an intake substructure in place at a cost of approximately $2,727,000. This is based on the district specifying its maximum quantity at 45,000,000 gallons per day, San Angelo, 25,000,000 and Midland 20,000,000. For purposes of implementing a construction schedule, certain conditions are spelled out under which parties could initiate the building of three segments—from Stacy to San Angelo (47.4 miles) from San Angelo to Big Spring juncture (64.9 miles) and to Midland-Odessa terminal (36.9 miles). Under present conditions, the total cost is pegged at $92,335,000 and if the substructure to Big Spring were built, this would add another $10,135,000. Appropriations from the Contingency and Improvement Fund were approved in the amount of $35,000 for a bucket truck for the electrical department; $7,000 for a trailer to haul backhoe and moving equipment; and $30,000 for a system of radio transmitters to automatically report steam flow conditions on the watersheds. Another $15,000 was provided for annual expenses of participating in public affairs. O. H. Ivie, general manager, reported that he intended to be in Austin Friday, Mar. 25, to confer with the U. S. Corps of Engineers, Texas Antiquities Commission, and prospective field work contractor for pinning down a time and cost schedule for remaining archeological survey work. Work would be completed prior to scheduled closure of the Stacy dam in October 1989. Next week Ivie will meet in Fort Worth with the USCE and the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Services in an effort to settle terrestrial land mitigation, that is land to support wildlife displaced by inundation. Robert Moore II, legal counsel, said the district has filed a motion for summary judgment to have it removed as a defendant in litigation resulting from floods in 1986-87 west of Big Spring. More than 160 people perished in 1944 when a fire broke out in the main tent of the Ringling Brothers Barnum and Bailey Circus in Hartford, Conn.

Thank You

The Family of Velma Thompson wishes to express their thanks to those of you who remembered us in our time of sorrow. We would especially like to thank Dr. R.B. Pierce, the 3rd Floor Nursing Staff at Cogdell Memorial Hospital and the Snyder EMS for the love and care given our Mother and Grandmother during her illness. May God Bless You.

We wish to thank each and everyone for the beautiful floral offerings, the abundance of food, every kindness and helpfulness during the illness and loss of our loved one. A very special thanks to Drs. Dillaha and Allen, the Hospital Staff, the Girls at Snyder Nursing Center who were so loving and kind to our Mother, to Rev. Hatfield and Rev. Branam for the beautiful Memorial Service, the Ladies at Faith Baptist Church for all they did for us. May God bless each of you in our prayer.

The Family of Lucille Bynum

Thank You

Words cannot express our appreciation for the many acts of kindness shown during our hour of sorrow. Thanks to Dr. Gibson, Rev. Miller Robinson, the Staff at Snyder Oaks, and the Staff at the Funeral Home for special care she received while at the Nursing Home and during the funeral.

May God bless each of you.

Audit, tax question on county's agenda

An outside audit report for Cogdell Memorial Hospital and a request to return penalty and interest charges on a county-generated tax bill will be among the agenda items faced by county commissioners Monday.

The accounting firm of Vestal & Co. will present an outside audit of Cogdell Memorial Hospital. A similar report was offered to the county hospital board Thursday.

Alice Gray and Bill Wilson of Trans Tex Tool will appear to ask a refund for the penalty and interest their company incurred when a similarly named Houston company was sent their county tax bill.

County Judge Bobby Goodwin

noted Friday that the county tax assessor-collector does not have the statutory authority to grant a refund in such cases.

Other business will include a presentation by Tony Wofford about public transportation for the elderly.

The court is scheduled to hear the Trans Tex Tool representatives at 10 a.m., Vestal & Co. at 10:30 a.m. and Wofford at 11 a.m.

Drinking related arrests reported

Two men, age 35 and 36, were arrested for disorderly conduct and being intoxicated on a licensed premises at 10:13 p.m. Friday at an East Highway club.

A 44-year-old man was arrested for DWI and driving with his license suspended and his 41-year-old female companion for public intoxication at 10:39 p.m. Friday in the 1300 Block of Ave. M.

A 59-year-old man was taken into custody for DWI at 12:31 a.m. Saturday at the traffic circle, and a 35-year-old woman and 27-year-old man were arrested for public intoxication and consuming alcohol after hours at 1 a.m. at 35th St. and Ave. M.

200 acres burn in Friday fire

Firemen worked from 3:45 p.m. to 8 p.m. Friday to put out a grass fire on the Diamond M Ranch 18 miles southwest of Snyder that burned an estimated 100 to 200 acres.

Firemen had been called to the scene of a nearby fire that turned out to be a controlled burn at 2:10 p.m., and they returned later with three trucks and two commissioners precinct roadgraders to bring the second blaze under control.

A department spokesman said he was not certain what caused the fire.

That committee has worked for more than two years to secure a TDC unit in Snyder, and on Nov. 9 was awarded a 1,000-bed facility which will employ 250 persons with an annual payroll of $6.7 million.

Site preparation work will begin on April 18 and actual construction is due to begin in May. The facility is planned to be occupied in May of 1989.

Circus coming

The Carson and Barnes five-ring circus, the largest circus still performing under canvas, is scheduled here April 9 under the sponsorship of the Knights of Columbus.

The circus will offer two shows at 2 and 7 p.m. on the grounds of the Scurry County Coliseum. Advance tickets are on sale at the chamber of commerce office, Snyder Mattress and Upholstery, F.B. Texaco, Friendly Flower Shop and Carlos Imports.

Advance tickets are $6 for adults and $4 for children. An additional dollar will be charged for tickets sold at the gate.

Reagan skeptical of compliance

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican conservatives in Congress are wary of the Nicaraguan cease-fire, with one saying the United States may have to "take some action with external forces" if the Contra rebels quit the field.

"It's down to that," said Rep. Rod Chandler, R-Wash. "It's definitely a new era."

Chandler was among GOP conservatives attending a retreat Friday in Houston. In Washington, meanwhile, President Reagan said that "there is reason to have caution" about whether Nicaragua's leftist government will keep its agreements.

Reagan's comments were his first statement in any detail on the 60-day nationwide cease-fire announced Wednesday in Sapoa, Nicaragua, by leaders of the Sandinista government and the U.S.-backed Contra guerrilla force.

"Of course we look forward to this and hope it continues, but... just as in some other meetings that have gone on in which I have been involved, I think that we should keep in mind that both parties must be dedicated to the things that are said and agreed to in those meetings," the president said.

"I think there is reason to have caution — they have a past record that indicates that we should be," he added.

Reagan was questioned by reporters as he prepared to meet with President Joaquin Balaguer of the Dominican Republic.

In a formal statement as he appeared with Balaguer in the Rose Garden after the meeting, Reagan commended the Dominican president for hosting previous Nicaraguan peace talks, mediated by Roman Catholic Cardinal Obando y Bravo.

"We both hope for democratic and peaceful solutions to the problems of the region," he said. "We want to see an end to the pursuit of military solutions and to the massive Soviet armament that fuels that pursuit."

During his daily White House news briefing earlier, presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said the administration believes "that this agreement has been reached by both sides in good faith" but is "skeptical of the compliance."

Reagan thinks North is hero

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan said Friday he expects former national security aides Oliver L. North and John M. Poindexter will be found innocent of criminal charges in the Iran-Contra affair, adding, "I still think Ollie North is a hero."

Reagan refused to say whether he would pardon them, saying he could not discuss the case because it was before the courts.

However, that did not stop him from proclaiming the defendants' innocence.

"I just have to believe that they're going to be found innocent because I don't think they were guilty of any lawbreaking or any crime," the president said.

Reagan's comments raised the question of whether a president

For Davis' trial, District Judge Gene Dulaney had instructed the jury to consider, along with acquittal, verdicts of guilty on the charges of aggravated kidnapping, kidnapping or false imprisonment.

Following court testimony, Griffin was briefly held by the three while one of them attempted to regain some $60 he allegedly paid to an uncle of Griffin's for the delivery of cocaine.

Regarding Davis, he allegedly held a gun on Griffin during this time period. Griffin was released after the payment of money was made to the three.

should make a pre-trial judgment of a person's guilt or innocence.

"An ordinary citizen might express his opinion about a criminal trial without harm," said Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif. "But for the chief executive, who is sworn to faithfully execute the law, making such a statement could lead to a miscarriage of justice."

He said Reagan had "contributed to a prejudicial climate which could make it extremely difficult to get an unbiased jury in these cases."

Lawsuit issues consolidated

In motions filed Thursday, two individuals who were previously named—County Judge Bobby Goodwin and Joe Fowler, president of the Snyder Area Foundation—were dropped from the suit.

Several plaintiffs were also eliminated and those remaining include Jeanne Bullard, Gloria Griffin, Jonisue Stiff, Ava Lopour, Joe Lopour and Louise Thompson.

Defendants still named include the city of Snyder, Scurry County Industrial Foundation, Scurry County Area Foundation, the state of Texas, the Texas Department of Corrections, Scurry County commissioners, and the Cogdell hospital board.

Depositions in the case are expected to resume Wednesday as plaintiffs have asked for the depositions of Cy Miller, former Cogdell Hospital administrator; and Tom Hochwalt, current hospital administrator.

Ira FFA teams fare well in judging meets

Ira FFA judging teams have competed in two contests recently.

Fifteen teams competed Saturday, March 19, at Angelo State University. Ira's FFA wool team placed second, beaten only by the national wool team from Ozona.

John Stewart was named second high individual and Anson Luna was seventh high individual.

Teams in third through fifth places were Water Valley, Sweetwater and Wall, respectively.

Thirty teams competed during the livestock contest with Ira's livestock team placing fourth overall in the contest. The first three places were taken by Houston Baytown-Robert E. Lee, Haskell and Wall, respectively. Robert Lee was fifth.

The fifth annual Western Texas College livestock contest was held at the coliseum annex on Tuesday, March 22. Some 52 teams competed in the livestock contest. Ira placed second in the overall contest. They had the first high team in sheep, the fourth high team in cattle and Janna Burrow was named fourth high individual.

Other results were as follows: Robert Lee, first; White Deer, third; Groover, fourth, and Borden County, fifth.

Wearing cowboy hat gets man sentenced to jail

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — State District Judge Don Leonard says he understands about a man's fondness for his cowboy hat, but in his court wearing a hat can get a man 10 days in jail.

"The judge asked if I would remove it and said he could give me six months or a $5,000 fine," said Keven Beard. "I told him I wouldn't, his gavel fell, and it was 10 days in the county jail."

Leonard passed a contempt-of-court sentence on Beard — a General Dynamics toolmaker from Crowley — on Monday for wearing his hat in court and released him three days later after he apologized.

"He said he was sorry, that he knew he had to follow the rules of the court," Leonard said. "I told him I admired his belief, but to save himself for the big battles of life."

New admission standards approved by Texas Tech

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Regents for Texas Tech University gave approval to toughened admission standards, but some say the new requirements don't go far enough.

The plan, which regents approved Friday, gives probationary admission to students who graduate in the lower ranks of their high school class or score low on college entrance exams.

Although an estimated 10 percent of the 1989 freshman class will enter Texas Tech on probation, officials pointed out that no students will be turned away.

Regent James Gulley criticized the plan for lacking minimum requirements and for placing an obscure line between probationary and conditional admission.

"I equate this to kissing your sister," Gulley said. "I think it is important for students planning to come to Texas Tech to know exactly what the standards are."

Based on data from the 1986 freshman class, the new standard would have put 385 of 3,117 students on probation and 1,426 on conditional admission.

Those students on probation would be limited to summer or spring enrollment and be required to pass 12 hours or face suspension.

Conditionally admitted students would not be limited in when they could enroll, and they could fail classes for two semesters before being suspended.

A toughening of the standards over three years would increase the number of probationary admissions, based on the 1986 class, to 1,121 students.

Dr. Don Haragan, vice president for academic affairs and research, said he agreed with Gulley's assessment of the new admissions plan, but added that tougher standards could result in a significant drop in enrollment.

Haragan said that could hurt the university's funding because some state funds are allocated based on enrollment.

But Gulley said Texas Tech has waited long enough to put itself on the same level of quality with the University of Texas and Texas A&M University.

"I think every day we wait is damaging to this institution," Gulley said. "If we are all talking about making this a tier one institution, then this is the first step."

Applications for cosmetology now being accepted

Applications are now being accepted for the cosmetology class starting June 1 at Western Texas College, Judy Border, instructor, has announced.

Financial aid is available for cosmetology students. Paper work for financial aid requires six to eight weeks so students beginning their studies in June need to take care of this now, Mrs. Border emphasizes.

Persons wishing to enroll in cosmetology are to go first to the Student Services office in the Administration Building. Financial aid forms are available there. Call 573-8511 for more information.

Ads are poking fun at Texas

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — Fighting an image that Alaska is cold and forsaken all year, the state tourism division is running new TV ads that get a little good-natured revenge by poking fun at its big-state rival, Texas.

Four years ago, former Texas Gov. Mark White said he didn't believe anyone would want to visit Alaska, which he called a frozen wasteland, said state tourism director Klugherz.

Scurry County Folks...

By Shirley A. Gorman

The fantasy to travel the world is a dream come true for Bill and Evelyn Davies.

In recent years they have traveled to China, Japan, Taiwan, Hong Kong and Thailand. Earlier this year, they joined a tour group for a spellbinding and not soon to be forgotten trip to Antarctica where they encountered what Mrs. Davies calls "the most delightful and inoffensive of creatures"—the penguin.

They were gone from Jan. 28 to Feb. 22 and in addition to Antarctica, the couple also visited Chile and the Falkland Islands.

The first lap of the journey found them on a flight to Miami, Fla. where they made connections to fly to Santiago, Chile. From there they boarded the M.V. Ilyria which had been modified for the trip to Antarctica.

According to Davies, the ship was relatively small and accommodated 92 passengers.

The local couple visited the Falkland Islands first for about three days and then they traveled south across the Drake Passage to Antarctica where they remained for 12 days.

The ship had small inflatable boats called zodiacs which carried the passengers to shore. Most of the landings were "wet" landings, they said. That meant the boat took them part way to shore and they had to wade the rest of the way.

Since the water was at the freezing level, they had to wear specially insulated rubber boots and waterproof pants. In addition they wore heavy parkas and life jackets.

"It was hard for us to walk because we were so encumbered

Riding in a zodiac could be rough and passengers always had to be wary of being sprayed.

Upon landing at the various points in Antarctica, Mrs. Davies said the first thing they did was to visit a penguin colony.

"They are charming and delightful creatures," she said. "We also saw seals."

They saw six of the 17 different varieties of penguins on their trip.

While in the Falkland Islands they saw the Magellanic and Rockhopper penguins. "The Magellanic are shy birds and are the only ones to live in burrows," Mrs. Davies said. "The Rockhoppers were the noisiest we saw because they were all jabbering at once."

The Adelie were the easiest to approach and they and the Kings

ZODIAK RIDE—Bill and Evelyn Davies rode on this small boat called a zodiac a lot during their recent trip to Antarctica. The boat would take them part way to shore and they would have to wade the rest of the way through the icy, cold waters. They said they had more "wet" landings than "dry" ones. (Davies Photo) were named by early explorers. The Kings were "magnificent" they said. They saw 200-300 in a group and they were beautifully colored. They have their own mannerisms and let the tourists get within about four feet of them.

They also saw the Gentoos and Chinstraps. The way all penguins walk and talk is wonderful Mrs. Davies said.

Since a "gentlemen's agreement" existed, Davies said they did not feed the penguins. Instead they eat krill which is similar to shrimp. Davies said penguins spend their life in the sea and come ashore only to breed and raise their young.

Mrs. Davies said the Antarctic waters are teeming with life and all the creatures have to feed in the water since no food exists for them on land.

Very young penguins cannot go into the water because their feathers aren't waterproofed yet. So they must depend on their parents to provide them with food. "They grow very fast and are always hungry," Mrs. Davies said. She also said that when a young chick calls to its parents that it makes a distinctive sound which will be "answered" only by its parents. All penguins have their own call and no other penguin will answer the call of a young penguin not its own.

She said that males and females alike feed their young.

The couple also saw Minke and humpback whales and five kinds of seals to include elephant, crab eater, weddell and leopard seals which they said they didn't like because they eat penguins.

Davies also photographed one leopard seal—much to the creature's dislike.

"Elephant seals smell awful and they chase you and roar at you," Mrs. Davies said.

Crab eaters were smaller than the elephant seals and were beautiful they said. A naturalist usually accompanied the four group on their zodiac excursions.

The Davies said the weather in Antarctica did not turn out to be with clothes," Mrs. Davies said. Passengers had to provide their own gear except for the parkas which were provided by the tour company.

Camera equipment was also carried in waterproof containers. Some passengers wrapped theirs in plastic, Mrs. Davies said.

WEED CONTROL IN TURFGRASS

A vigorous turf is a good control method for weeds. Broadleaf weeds and weedy grasses usually are not a problem when the turfgrass is properly established, fertilized, mowed, watered and adequate plant disease and insect control are practiced. A thin weak stand of bermudagrass will be invaded by weeds. Killing weeds with chemicals will not eliminate them unless followed by management practices that encourage the grass to grow vigorously enough to compete with the weeds. Regular, frequent mowing controls many common turf weeds, but herbicides are effective and are suggested for use in many turf weed situations. Effective use of herbicides in turfgrasses is dependent on a number of considerations:

- Identification of the weed or weeds to be controlled.
- Selection of an approved herbicide that is effective on such weeds.

— Giving consideration to its safety in relation to possible damage to the turfgrass, trees, shrubs and other plants.

— Application at the proper rate and time using the proper method.

— Observing the label precautions for use.

Operators and handlers of herbicides should read the label and understand the instructions on each container before using the contents. Desirable plants must be protected from accidental treatment with herbicides. Accidental damage often is caused by drift from nearby applications or by herbicides being washed by surface runoff to other plants.

A pre-empt backfires

There is really no doubt that taking away bidding room makes it harder for the opponents to get to the best contract. The irony occurs when such pre-emptive tactics push the opponents up to a very optimistic contract, which just happens to make.

When South doubled for takeout, West jumped to three clubs. South now had a comfortable three-heart bid. Although North held only two jacks, he hoped his club shortness would produce tricks, so he raised to game. The hand shows the value of positional honors. When a club was led, East won the king and returned a trump. Declarer rose with the ace, ruffed a club and played a spade to the queen. He ruffed a second club and played a diamond. East was fearful that South might hold a singleton king, so he grabbed the ace, but there were no more tricks for the defense when the trump queen fell under South's king.

Despite the favorable location of the spade king and the diamond ace for declarer, the defense might succeed if the opening lead were the queen of trumps. Now South could ruff only one club, and might well lose two clubs and two other tricks. Even with the opening club lead, there was some chance to beat the contract if East ducked the diamond that was led from dummy. If declarer now misguessed and put in the 10, West could take the queen and return a diamond to partner's ace. A third diamond would then promote West's heart queen for the setting trick.

Couple enjoys Antarctic trip

as cold as they had expected. They were dressed warmly but were never uncomfortable on their trip. "The weather can be very cold and windy so we were very lucky," Davies said.

Nights in Antarctica were very short so they lived in mostly daylight hours.

They wanted to visit the LaMare Channel but the ship couldn't enter it because there was too much ice. They had wanted to visit Palmer Station which is one of four U.S. scientific teams in Antarctica, but there was too much ice for the zodiacs to make the trip.

The local couple also liked the Falkland Islands which had "very lovely" weather while they visited. The population is low—1,600 people—and West Point Island only has four adults living on it.

The Falkland Islands have no trees because of the horrendous winds. Sheep ranching is the area's main business and Port Stanley is the capital. Sheep stations are similar to our ranches and they utilize a lot of dogs.

The couple said people there like to plant flowers even though they get to enjoy them only for a short time.

"The Falkland Islands are very British and they are very proud of it," Mrs. Davies said. "They usually fly to England for the things they can't get in Stanley. Communication is mainly by radio. A ship circulates among the islands carrying groceries and other supplies."

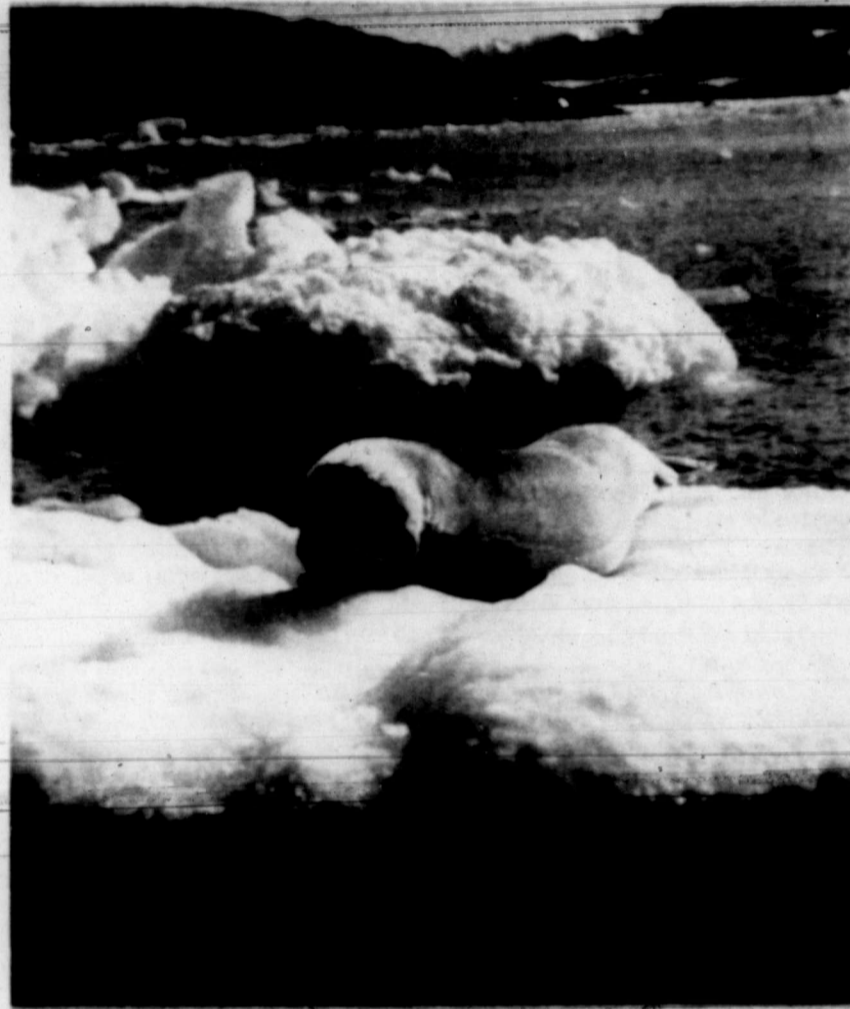

When they left Antarctica, they spent a week in Chile. They said the southern half of Chile needs rain like West Texas does now.

"It was beautiful in Chile. We ate interesting food dishes and we found the climate good and the people friendly and industrious," Mrs. Davies said.

Southern Chile is all mountains and lakes and all volcanic in nature they said. Language was not a problem since the ship's crew was bilingual and there was also an interpreter on board.

While on their trip they also encountered albatrosses which they described as "beautiful birds that liked to follow and stay around the ship."

The Davieses have fond memories of their trip to Antarctica and they will always cherish their experience. They also took a few pictures and a myriad of slides of their experience which they enjoy sharing with friends.

SOLITARY SEAL—This seal seems to be enjoying its solitude. Bill and Evelyn Davies saw seals, penguins and whales during their recent trip to Antarctica. (Davies Photo)

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED — Mr. and Mrs. Don Snider and Jackie Pylant announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Jacqueline Deeann Pylant, to Layton Earl Freeman, son of Mrs. Earl Freeman and the late Earl Freeman of Big Spring. Various factors cause store failures

NEW YORK (AP) — Poor management in which store employees are often lazy and indifferent and rude to customers is one of the reasons why retail stores fail, according to a retailing consultant.

firm which represents more than 250 mens' wear stores around the nation.

"Sales declines over a brief period are a fact of life in almost every store, but a pattern of declines over a period of months signals an erosion of business," says Marvin A. Blumenfeld, president of April-Marcus Inc., a

"The decline may be due to poor buying, sloppy merchandising or a change in the local market."

Other factors Blumenfeld says may account for store failures include creeping overhead which results in a steady rise of operating expenses and inability to pay bills on time.

Machine makes hair picture-perfect

FAIRVIEW HEIGHTS, Ill. (AP) — Kim Seppi of Belleville knows just what she looks like with Linda Evans' hair.

But she didn't have to change her style to find out — thanks to a new piece of equipment at Casablanca Hair and Skin Care Center.

The video imaging machine lets you see how a hair style in a photograph will look on your head. Find the style you like in a magazine and it can be yours in a matter of minutes.

The machine uses two video cameras and a special effects generator to superimpose the two images. One camera focuses on the photograph, another focuses on the client.

The stylist adjusts the cameras to align the two faces, then refines brightness and tones. Magically, your face appears on the TV monitor with the new hair style. Or a new hair color.

"We will bring up six different styles on our video monitor and at the same time explain to (customers) what's do-able and what's not," said Sharon Langenberg, who owns the salon with her husband, Bill. The charge for the service is $20.

"We encourage clients to bring in their own pictures or they can use ours," she said.

Seppi, who has curly, layered, dark ash-blond hair, spent a recent lunch hour trying on new hairstyles. She laughed when Linda Evans' long page boy appeared on her head.

"I'm not quite a Carrington," she said, referring to the character Evans plays on the television series "Dynasty."

"It makes my face a little too long." A minute later, she wore Elizabeth Taylor's short, dark coil. Then a wispy, layered style that belonged to actress Donna Mills.

Seppi's goal was to find a style a bit different from the one she wore, but the drastic changes were fun, too. "I need a new cut for summer," she said. "It'll help me decide on a style that's right for me."

Langenberg said Seppi's thick hair could be styled in a number of ways. But some types of hair don't have that versatility.

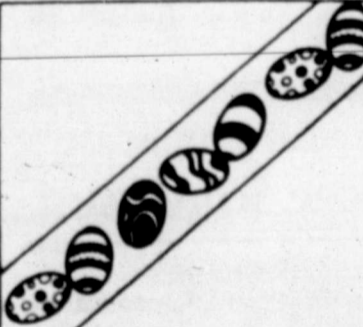

"Just because we can make a picture doesn't mean we can ever do that," she said. If you have thin, fine hair, no matter how good you look beneath Farrah Fawcett's thick layered locks, it's just not going to happen. But you can still have some fun.

Sharon Langenberg advises whether a hairstyle will work, then explains in terms of time and money what it will cost to keep up the look.

"If you're changing your hair color, you can test and see whether a certain hue looks good on you or not," she said. And for $2.50 you can have that look for posterity.

"We can actually take Polaroid hard copies."

Firm takes on Japanese chopsticks

HIBBING, Minn. (AP) — At one time the ultimate definition of salesmanship was selling iceboxes to Eskimos. A Hibbing manufacturer has turned a new idea by exporting chopsticks to Japan. A super high-tech machine tool enables the company to turn out 7 million pair of chopsticks a day — seven times faster than traditional Japanese plants. Japan is a hungry market, discarding 130 million pairs of the utensils daily, reports Metalworking News. Despite their automation efforts in other endeavors, most Japanese companies in the utensil business are very labor-intensive and have a hard time meeting the demand.

EGGS ARE A 'BEST BUY' IN TIME FOR EASTER

Eggs are always a bargain protein food, and prices are going even lower just in time for Easter. Eggs are selling at 30-50 cents per dozen in sales and there will probably be many store specials before Easter. If you're tempted to color baskets and baskets full of eggs for Easter, remember to store them properly or to not eat them. A recent study in the "Poultry Science Journal" showed that hard-cooked eggs stored at room temperature spoil in less than a week. But eggs put in the refrigerator after two days at room temperature keep for three weeks. Hard-cooked eggs kept in their shells and stored the whole time in the refrigerator show the least bacterial growth. It's best to remove the Easter eggs from the basket as soon as possible, refrigerate them and use them within a few days. If children like to carry their Easter baskets around for days, include some plastic eggs for play and refrigerate the real eggs that the family will eat.

SOFTWARE FOR HOME FINANCES

Is your personal computer gathering dust while you struggle through piles of bills and paper to organize the family budget? The right software can help, but won't completely solve your problem, especially if you're not in the habit of keeping financial records with paper and pencil now. Keeping family financial records on a home computer makes it possible to track monthly income and outgo and reduce the headache when doing your taxes or preparing tax records for an accountant. More importantly, computer records make it easier to monitor spending leaks so you can make changes immediately rather than waiting until you're in a financial bind. A computer program can also allow you to project the consequences of a financial decision, such as a new car payment or major purchase, without spending first. The usefulness of any particular family finance software depends on what you want it to do, what kind of output is useful to you and in what format. Consumers can ask the following questions before investing in software: —How does the program accept the data? Can you create your own budget, categories or are they built in the programs? —Is the software designed for a specific task or is it comprehensive financial management? Consider how much of the program is useful for your household situation and how much won't be used. FEATURED THIS WEEK

QUANAH PARKER AND HIS PEOPLE. By Bill Neeley.
The intriguing saga of Quanah Parker and his people is of continuing interest, especially in the Southwest region where they once roamed wild and free. Quanah's life is truly representative of one caught in a turbulent transition period from a nomadic and warrior culture toward a stationary and pastoral state. Surrender did not come easily to him, but extermination by bullets or by starvation seemed inevitable. Once convinced that no other path was open to them, Quanah led his people to the reservation and thereafter for many years ably negotiated with the authorities for their benefit. The name Quanah Parker is synonymous with the term Apache.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

Mother-in-Law's Verbal Abuse Is Testing Woman's Patience

DEAR ABBY: My mother-in-law is the most insensitive person I have ever known. When Harold (her son) introduced me to her, she said: "How do you do. Is your complexion always that bad, or is that a temporary condition?"

She talks endlessly about all the pretty and well-to-do girls Harold could have married. It was a big disappointment to her when he married me. I was poor and plain.

I have never talked back to her because I was taught to respect my elders, but I had trouble controlling my tongue when she announced to a houseful of relatives that she had saved $1,000 for Harold's "divorce." Everyone laughed as though it was a joke.

Harold's father left her when Harold was 4. I will give "Mom" credit for raising a fine son all alone, but it hurts something terrible to have him sit lock-jawed while his mother insults me. Maybe she has mental problems.

Would it be rude and improper for me to speak my mind to her?

HAD ENOUGH

DEAR HAD ENOUGH: First, speak your mind to your husband. It's his duty to stick up for you! It's possible that the woman is having "mental" problems, but problems or not, your husband should not permit his mother to insult his wife. And if he doesn't defend you, you have every right to defend yourself.

I was playing, she whacked my hands with a ruler. Soon I graduated to shot glasses of water, and if I spilled a drop, out came the ruler!

For the next nine years I had a professor twice a week and practiced four hours a day. I was never allowed to play anything but classical — nothing for my own amusement. How sad as a teen-ager to go to a party, be asked to play and have to worm out of it because they wanted to sing and dance, and all I knew was "The Spinning Song."

At 13, I was a concert pianist, wearing floor-length gowns and spike heels. Then my mother died, the professor tried to get amorous and, fortunately, the Depression hit, so I closed up the piano.

The only time I have touched it since was one night after bowling and a few highballs, I arrived home to find my daughter badly mangling a piece of music on the piano. I told her to move over and then proceeded to run through "Marche Militaire," which I had learned on the sly and used to bang out all my frustrations. My daughter was aghast — she never knew I could play a note. And believe me, I haven't since, and I am 72 years old. Woe to the parents who have ambitions not for their children, but for themselves.

MRS. VIRGINIA JOHNSON, WINTER HAVEN, FLA.

DEAR ABBY: Believe it or not, I cannot find this information anywhere, so I am turning to you. What are the seven deadly sins?

DUMB DORA IN ALBANY, N.Y.

DEAR DORA: Anger, avarice, envy, gluttony, pride, lust and sloth.

DEAR ABBY: I just had to write after reading that letter from the woman who spoke for the Sacramento Opera Association. She thought you owed them an apology for repeating the phrase. "It's not over until the fat lady sings."

I happen to be overweight — all right, "fat" — and while it may be harmful to my health, I do not demand an apology every time someone makes a remark about the "heavies." Sign me "Frankly Fat" or ...

ROBERT L. SMITH, TERRE HAUTE, IND.

DEAR ROBERT: Move over and make room for another frankly fat person:

DEAR ABBY: Being a fat lady myself, I take no offense at that expression, "It's not over until the fat lady sings." I weigh 313 pounds and am a reasonably intelligent 36-year-old woman. I am a compulsive overeater and I know it. I've been on all the fad diets since 1966. I've been a four-time enroller in Weight Watchers, which is a terrific program.

I've gone to more Overeaters Anonymous meetings than I can count — great people, very supportive, loving and friendly.

I've also had therapy to help me stay on a diet. I am not giving up on myself. I get a lot of emotional support from my husband and children, but the bottom line is: I've got to do it myself.

You see, in your home, you can ban cigarettes if you want to stop smoking. You can ban alcohol if you want to stop drinking. You can ban drugs if you want to "go straight." But you can't ban food if you want to lose weight. You need food to live. But it's not over for this fat lady, because I've made up my mind that I am going to beat obesity.

LINDA FROM NAPLES, FLA.

fun of Wagnerian Brunhildes, they are really doing a parody of Zinka.

I still remember going with my sixth-grade class to the "Met" to see a matinee of "La Boheme" with Jan Peerce as Rudolfo and Zinka as Mimi. She towered over Jan, and when he sang the aria "Che Gelida Manina" ("What a frozen little hand") to Zinka, who had hands like Primo Carnera, it was too funny for words!

Jan, by the way, was my neighbor. When his father was alive, Jan did not want his father to walk the seven miles to the synagogue on Saturday, so he had a room of his house made into a chapel. He would invite some of the neighbors and his friends from the Met for services. I was in my teens at the time. You can imagine what it was like hearing the hymns sung with Jan, Roberta Peters, Robert Merrill and others in the little congregation. The house practically shook.

IRA D. SHPRINTZEN, NEW ROCHELLE, N.Y.

DEAR ABBY: I noticed with interest the line, "It's not over until the fat lady sings," which appeared in your column. It had to do with a sporting event.

You might be interested in knowing that the expression originated in connection with opera, and the "lady" referred to was a heavyset female soprano who performed in Richard Wagner's opera "Gotterdammerung."

CHARLIE E. MILTON, CAPT., U.S. ARMY (RETIRED), WAGONER, OKLA.

DEAR CAPT. MILTON: Well, I'll be gotterdammerung! Thanks for the interesting input.

Official: plant closed but will reopen

TAIPEI, Taiwan (AP) — The research nuclear reactor at the center of a debate over whether Taiwan has an atomic weapons program has been closed temporarily, but not because of U.S. pressure, a top government official said today.

Liu Kuang-chi, secretary general of the government Atomic Energy Council, told The Associated Press the reactor is being converted to a system that no longer requires heavy water, which is used to control the splitting of atomic nuclei.

Local newspapers have reported the military-run Chungshan Institute of Science and Technology shut down the reactor at Lung Tan, 25 miles southwest of Taipei, after the U.S. government suspended delivery of heavy water.

The New York Times reported Wednesday that the Reagan administration pressured Taiwan to close the reactor and stop work on a secret installation that could have processed the reactor's spent fuel to extract plutonium, a key component of nuclear weapons.

"The reactor was not closed because of U.S. pressure," Liu said during a brief interview as he left a meeting with lawmakers. He declined comment on the report of a secret installation to process spent fuel.

Liu said plans to convert the reactor are four years old and designed to make the facility compatible with the island's three nuclear power plants. He refused to elaborate.

The reactor was closed in January for the remodeling, according to Liu, who would not say when the facility will restart.

He said Taiwan reported the plans to the Vienna-based Atomic Energy Agency last week. He refused to explain why the notification was made two months after the closure.

Chang Kuo-lung, professor of physics of the National Taiwan University, said the remodeling plan was uneconomical.

"This is like buying a car and replacing its engine with one from another car," he said.

Local newspapers, without disclosing their sources, have said the U.S. government learned from Col. Chang Hsien-yi, former deputy director of the institute's Nuclear Energy Research Center, that Taiwan had plans to make nuclear weapons.

Chang has been missing since January, and local newspapers have claimed he is working for the CIA and living in the United States. Taiwan officials say they do not know his whereabouts but are investigating the case.

Government officials have reiterated Taiwan's position that it has not developed any nuclear weapons. Communist China has said Taiwanese production of atomic weapons would be a reason for invading the island, which Beijing views as a renegade province.

Lawmaker Jaw Shau-kong of the ruling Nationalist Party today asked the government to lodge the "strongest protest" to Washington if the United States is found to be involved in Col. Chang's disappearance.

"The United States can have nuclear weapons. Many other countries have their nuclear weapons," Jaw said at the Legislative Yuan, Taiwan's highest lawmaking body. "We may not want to develop nuclear weapons, but we cannot give up our high-technology research work because of this."

Jaw said Taiwan "can never tolerate the Central Intelligence Agency to recruit one of our colonels and then get him to the United States."

A day earlier, Jaw urged the government to ask the United States to resume supplying heavy water so the Lung Tan reactor could continue production of isotopes used in certain X-ray techniques, cancer treatments and scientific research.

President James Garfield was mortally wounded in Washington July 2, 1881, and died 80 days later.

Einstein papers reported missing

AUSTIN (AP) — The culprit who pilfered a handwritten Albert Einstein manuscript from the University of Texas might have been an Einstein devotee bent on owning a page of the physicist's work, officials say.

"There are a lot of people running around with his face on their shirts. He is the object of real veneration by many young people at this time," said John Chalmers, librarian for UT's Harry Ransom Humanities Research Center.

The missing sheet, last seen March 18 and discovered to be missing on Wednesday, was one of six Einstein pages displayed on the fourth floor of UT's Peter T. Flawn Academic Center. The case was locked and its glass unbroken when the theft was discovered, Chalmers said.

The pages are part of a nine-page series in which Einstein tested theories of a rotating Euclidean system.

"Einstein, near the end of his life, was in the habit of thinking about the theories he had developed earlier and he was constantly trying to make those theories more practical," Chalmers said. "In thinking about these things he would take a pen and pursue them on paper."

UT has owned the papers, written sometime in the early 1950s, for 25 years. Einstein died in 1955.

"It is believed the manuscript was removed by an Einstein enthusiast," Chalmers said, adding that Einstein's following spreads beyond the scientific community.

"He wasn't just a theoretical physicist. He played the fiddle. He raised a tremendous amount of money to educate the American public about the dangers of nuclear war," he said.

The missing document has been entered in a computerized national register that notifies dealers about missing items. Chalmers said the document is "priceless" because it cannot be replaced, but added it probably could be sold for several thousand dollars.

Although the library routinely makes copies of valuable documents, the missing Einstein paper "managed to miss all of those processes," Chalmers said.

"It should have been copied, but it wasn't," he said, pointing out a problem in finding the page.

"I really don't know exactly what I'm looking for," said UT Campus Police Sgt. Jimmy Moore, who is handling the investigation.

Chalmers said he hopes the missing Einstein shows up in the mail, courtesy of a remorseful thief.

"It might have been a casual visitor who saw an opportunity and grabbed it," he said.

Oil service industry observers fear price increases, shortages

HOUSTON (AP) — The oil field service and supply industry may be on its way to becoming an oligopoly, worrying some observers that the concentration could trigger higher prices and shortages of equipment.

Since the oil price crash of 1986, hundreds of companies have merged or dropped by the wayside, leaving control of some markets in the hands of three or four power-houses.

Four companies control virtually all of the market for pressure pumping services commonly used to complete a well, estimates Kenneth Miller, an oil field services analyst at Shearson Lehman Hutton in New York. Three firms divide up between 80 percent and 90 percent of the market for drilling mud.

And if the Justice Department raises no objection to Halliburton's proposed acquisition of Gearhart Industries, three companies will control 90 percent of the business in wireline and geophysical services, Miller says.

No one disputes that the recent consolidations were needed to eliminate surplus manufacturing capacity. They already are returning companies to profitability after years of red ink.

But if the trend continues, there could be an undue concentration of power in a handful of large service and supply companies, say some concerned observers.

The shutting of capacity could prompt shortages when the oil industry moves into higher gear, says a purchasing executive for a major oil company. That, in turn, would prompt oil companies to import more steel and some types of equipment.

Prices already are firming in a number of sectors. Producers of oil country tubular goods, among the hardest hit by the oil price drop, have put through two price increases during the past six months.

"That's worrisome," says the buyer. "With those kinds of price increases, the cost of drilling and producing oil and gas will go up faster than the rate of inflation and impact the amount of money the industry is willing to spend for new drilling," he said.

Adds George Gaspar, an oil field services analyst at Robert W. Baird & Co. in Milwaukee, "The petroleum (companies) are going to pay the piper when the industry turns up. There will be more dictatorial pricing."

Although most prices haven't yet returned to the 1981 energy boom levels, they have matched or exceeded those levels for some products, such as wellhead control systems and drill bits, Gaspar said.

Some observers say the industry is only returning to more normal times.

The high prices and frantic drilling activity during the boom encouraged hundreds of startup companies, particularly in drilling mud, pressure pumping and wireline services, where the cost of starting a business wasn't as high for building a plant to produce heavy equipment. They took market share at the expense of the major players such as Schlumberger, Halliburton and Dresser.

"There were 134 pumping unit companies and 150 mud companies," recalls James Woods, the president and chief executive officer of Baker Hughes Inc.

Woods sees the shakeout in the service sector as a return to "more reasonable times." Each segment of the industry traditionally has had five or six strong companies, as well as a few regional firms. "That's the way our industry is set up," Woods says.

The Justice Department intervened in last year's merger of Baker International and Hughes Tool Co., requiring the companies to divest Baker's Reed Tool Co. Otherwise, the combined firm would have controlled nearly 60 percent of the market for drill bits.

James Weiss, chief of the Justice Department's energy, transportation and agriculture section, said the Baker Hughes case was the only merger so far in oil field services that the department believed was anti-competitive. It has yet to make a decision on the Halliburton acquisition of Gearhart, which would combine the second and third largest geophysical companies and two major wireline businesses.

Industries in heavy equipment are fairly concentrated because of the huge capital investments involved. Weiss said, "Is the oil field any more (concentrated) than other types of equipment? I suspect it's not."

Observers say that if the industry was concentrated before the boom, there will be even fewer players in the next era. That's because it isn't just the startups that are disappearing, but more venerable companies such as Gearhart Industries and Hughes Tool that didn't have enough resources to outwait the recent depression.

During the next upturn, banks that were badly burned by energy lending will be more cautious about lending to startups, says Miller. As a result, the major players won't be challenged. They'll hold onto their market shares and keep prices and profits from collapsing, he says.

Richard P. Straley, an analyst at Epler, Guerin & Turner in Dallas, says the leftover idle capacity will discourage startups in the next upturn.

"Just because Halliburton is buying Gearhart doesn't mean the capacity disappears," he said. "When the market gets better, they can bring out 200 Gearhart trucks, and that will keep others from getting into the business."

The concentration of market share has been perhaps the most striking in the geophysical and seismic sectors.

Before the price crash, there were at least 10 major players in the wireline and seismic fields. In 1986, Schlumberger, the lord of downhole logging, bought an interest in GECO, a Norwegian geophysical company. Last year, Litton Industries merged its geophysical operations with Dresser's wireline business to form Western Atlas, which later bought NL's McCullough wireline business.

Halliburton's proposed acquisition of Gearhart would transform the Dallas oil field service company into the third largest in this field. The company plans to merge Gearhart's wireline business with its Houston downhole logging subsidiary, Welx.

Halliburton also would combine the second-largest seismic company — Geophysical Services — with the third-largest, Gearhart's Geosound.

The field of drilling mud and fluids also has experienced a huge shake-out. Baker Hughes' Milpark Drilling Fluids brought together four different companies: Baker's Milchem unit, which had previously formed a joint venture with the creditors of Newpark Resources, and Hughes Drilling Fluids, which was a venture with W.R. Grace. Milpark purchased Grace's interest in that company.

Meanwhile, Dresser and Halliburton merged their mud and fluids businesses in a joint venture, M-I Drilling Fluids. The company is considered to be rivaling NL Baroid for the dominant position in that market.

While consolidation has been most apparent in the service industry, it also has been under way in oil field equipment. Last year, Cameron Iron Works purchased the McEvoy-Willis division of Smith International, giving the combined company at least 20 percent to 30 percent of the market for pressure controls, estimates the oil company buyer.

In oil country tubular goods, many of the dozens of companies that sprang up to process or broker the steel are gone.

Not all sectors of the service and supply sector have joined the fray. Noticeably quiet have been the drilling contractors, also hard hit by the downturn. Most of the offshore contractors are too saddled with debt to be attractive takeover candidates, says Gaspar.

Those companies will have to demonstrate that they are viable competitors before merger talks can even begin, he says.

Thrift losses heavy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The heaviest savings institution losses since the Great Depression underscore the need for federal regulators to begin cleaning up the mire of insolvent institutions in the Southwest, savings and loan lobby groups say.

The Federal Home Loan Bank Board said Thursday that the nation's 3,147 savings institutions lost $3.2 billion in the fourth quarter of 1987, pushing red ink for the year to $6.8 billion, the worst loss since the agency began keeping track in 1934.

"I hope it's the worst we'll ever see," said James W. Christian, chief economist of the U.S. League of Savings Institutions, the industry's largest trade group.

The bank board said S&L losses were heavily concentrated in states like Texas, Oklahoma and Louisiana, which are dependent on the ailing oil and gas industry.

The worst 20 institutions — most of them in the Southwest — lost a total of $2.1 billion in the final quarter of last year, accounting for two-thirds of the overall industry loss.

"The No. 1 item on the agenda is to stop the bleeding in the Southwest," Christian said. "That's in the bank board's lap. ... And we hope they do it sooner rather than later."

Until recently, the bank board has been forced to keep insolvent institutions open because it lacked the money to pay off depositors or entice a healthier S&L into merging with the sick institution.

The bank board said 345 S&Ls were insolvent at the end of the year, 109 in Texas alone. An S&L is considered insolvent when its loans and other assets are worth less than what it owes to depositors and other creditors.

By the tougher accounting standards the bank board will be using next year, 510 would be considered insolvent.

Yet, regulators closed only 17 institutions in 1987 and provided assistance for the merger of 26 others.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Don't stand by idly today if something in which you're involved isn't being managed properly. If you think you can do a better job, step in and put your talents to work.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) It matters that affect your work or career are running smoothly, don't do anything to rock the boat today. Just continue to flow with the tide.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) There are strong indications that your optimism regarding something new in which you're involved will be justified at this time. Hold positive thoughts.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your wisest course of action today is to handle challenging assignments yourself instead of delegating them to others. Your will to succeed may be stronger than theirs.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Conditions in general look promising for you today, especially in situations where you are working in close conjunction with one or two associates.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Trade on the business acumen of a trusted confederate today rather than on your own impressions. This person might be more in tune at this time.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Things should work out to your liking today if you are neither too assertive nor too laid back. Sticking to the middle ground will have its advantage.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Personal ambitions can be advanced today, provided you go about it in a methodical fashion. Set definite objectives before proceeding.

Pickens' top deal maker resigns to go into his own business

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — The accountant who helped oil man T. Boone Pickens Jr. make his corporate raids for the past decade plans to leave the firm to start his own consulting business, according to a published report.

David Batchelder, 38, told the Wall Street Journal Thursday that he will leave Mesa Limited Partnership at the end of May to begin his own company in San Diego.

Batchelder, who helped Pickens launch takeover attempts against Phillips Petroleum Co., Gulf Corp., Superior Oil Co., and Unocal Corp., among others, said he was not leaving because of any dispute with Pickens or the company.

"Ten years in Amarillo is enough," Batchelder said. "It's a significant sacrifice to live in Amarillo," which he likened to "a large truck stop."

The Oklahoma native came to Pickens' firm from the Houston office of the accounting firm Deloitte, Haskins & Sells, where he made $30,000 a year as an audit manager. He began at Mesa as an assistant to a vice president, but rose to the rank of comptroller within two years and ultimately to the presidency of Mesa Petroleum Co. When Mesa later became a limited partnership, Batchelder began as a consultant.

"Anytime someone leaves, it's an opportunity for someone else," Pickens told the Wall Street Journal. Pickens said he and Batchelder will continue to do business.

Batchelder said when he talked to Pickens about his decision to break with Mesa that Pickens said that "he hated to see a great team start to split up, but that he understood."

Batchelder refuted claims that his departure signals discontent with Mesa's recent failed or aborted takeover efforts. In fact, he said, he expected to be involved in more decisions with Pickens.

"I will bring deals to Boone," as well as other potential backers, Batchelder said. And if, for instance, Pickens renews his interest in obtaining Homestake Mining Co. or in increasing his stake in Texaco Inc., Batchelder said he "expects to participate."

Surgery tightens sagging skin

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm 40 and recently lost quite a bit of weight. The area under my chin is looking pretty awful — loose, saggy skin. Is this fixable by exercise or is plastic surgery the only way out?

DEAR READER: I'm sorry to say that the inelastic skin you describe is unlikely to be tightened up by exercise, creams, lotions or any other non-surgical treatment. Although the skin may contract with time, plastic surgery — to remove the excess tissue — is probably your best bet.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have one leg a quarter-inch shorter than the other. One hip is also higher. Seven years ago the short leg began to go numb and cause pain when walking. Routine tests are normal. What is the next step?

DEAR READER: Routine tests are not normal. One leg is shorter than the other. This can cause pelvic tilt and chronic back strain that may progress to actual damage of the hip and spinal column. You could possibly be helped by a lift in your shoe. Therefore, your next step ought to be into the office of an orthopedic surgeon or qualified podiatrist to see if a quarter-inch lift would relieve your symptoms.

DEAR DR. GOTT: This winter my husband, daughter and myself suffered a cold. We all lost our senses of smell and taste. Why could this happen?

DEAR READER: In the presence of an upper respiratory infection or an allergy, several changes take place in the nose, where the delicate smell receptors reside. Increased production of mucus and swelling of the nasal membranes will inhibit the perception of odors. Since most taste is dependent on smell, food will taste flat. Hence, people with colds almost always complain of taste loss, as well as diminished smell. Once the irritation, congestion and mucus secretion have disappeared, the blessing of smell will return.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm 69 and keep myself clean, but am beginning to have trouble getting the foreskin back on my penis. What could be the problem?

DEAR READER: As a result of chronic, low-grade inflammation and the skin changes that come with age, the foreskin may become too tight. See a urologist to determine if a simple surgical procedure may spare you further difficulty.

It's important that you find a doctor who suits your needs — and Dr. Gott tells how in his new Health Report, CHOOSING A PHYSICIAN: MAKE A DECISION FOR GOOD HEALTH. For your copy, send $1 and your name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

HMO treatment may not be best

If you are foolish enough to believe the advertisements, health maintenance organizations are the wave of the future. Maybe, maybe not. The philosophy is appealing. You and/or your employer subscribe to an all-inclusive medical program that handles all your health needs, at age 65, Medicare takes over. In theory, you have no financial surprises, your needs are taken care of and, as with standard insurance policies, the high number of healthy subscribers essentially pays for the relatively few patients who require extensive attention for illness.

The practical aspects of HMOs are less appealing, however. Take doctors, for example. Most HMOs contract with physicians, meaning that certain physicians and surgeons agree to participate in the program and to cross-refer to other contracted doctors. In return, they are guaranteed a percentage of their usual fees, depending on the patients' diagnoses and the services provided. The figure that is bandied about is 80 percent. The remaining 20 percent is put aside as a form of tax, called a withhold. At the end of each year, the withhold is split among the participating doctors and each receives an additional sum as a bonus.

The withhold acts as an incentive for every physician to hold down charges. If all the doctors in the HMO behave themselves and are stingy about lab tests and procedures, the amount in the year-end kitty will be high and the healers can recoup most or all of the 20 percent that was originally set aside. On the other hand, if the HMO has to pay out more than it predicted in a given year, the withhold will be proportionately reduced and each practitioner will receive less profit — or no bonus at all. For example, a series of patients who receive care outside the HMO — say, for special surgery — can deplete the HMO's resources and exhaust the withhold bonanza. Similarly, the more tests performed, the more additional fees the HMO must pay and the pot shrinks. Here is the rub.

Doctors don't need a Ph.D. in economics to appreciate that each expense incurred by a patient means a reduction in the withhold. Therefore, in order to make a profit, HMO contractors must limit their testing, procedures and surgery. Although this

TV show's creator writes all scripts

NEW YORK (AP) — Watching the opening credits on the season finale of CBS' "Designing Women" Monday night will be something akin to witnessing the final out in a no-hitter.

When the "written by" card goes up on the screen, it will say "Linda Bloodworth-Thomason" — just as it has on every one of the 22 episodes this season.

Bloodworth-Thomason is the first person in television history to single-handedly write every episode of a show for a whole season, a feat for which she has been nominated for inclusion in the Guinness Book of World Records.

She said in a telephone interview that she wrote each script in a marathon session on the Sunday before shooting began the following week.

"We've never been one script ahead, which is kind of harrowing," she said. "It's kind of like walking a tightrope each week without a net. This is what would give the network a heart attack."

Not only did she write all the scripts, but all the scripts were unusually good — not formula sitcom fare, but thoughtful essays on such diverse subjects as AIDS or the ordination of women.

In Monday's episode, "Reservations for Eight," the women are stranded in a ski lodge with their boyfriends for what turns out to be a tour-de-force battle of the sexes.

Bloodworth-Thomason says no matter what subject she takes on, the network has not interfered.

"They have never, ever told me anything that I cannot do. They have never disapproved of any subject I've wanted to do. I just decide what I want to write about and I write it. There has been zero censorship."

"It's 23 minutes of prime-time television every week to address any topic I want," she said. "I've tried to be responsible and fair, but I'd be lying if I didn't say I put my personal opinions in. I do get my own propaganda in, but that's what I think makes it interesting. My big complaint about television is the characters are too homogenized. You don't know where they go to church or how they feel about issues. Our women all are very, very opinionated."

Bloodworth-Thomason grew up in Poplar Bluff, Mo., in a ideologically rambunctious family, where, she recalled with a laugh, "If you didn't have an opinion you got sent to your room."

"I like stirring things up. Everyone in my family is an attorney. My grandfather, all my uncles, my brother, my father. Even when I was little, he (her father) would come in and say, 'You know, girls aren't all that smart.' I would cry and say, 'They are, too!' He knew what he was doing. He would always make me defend my positions."

Bloodworth-Thomason and her husband, Harry Thomason, a one-time high school football coach from Arkansas, are co-executive producers of "Designing Women," and Thomason directs many of the episodes.

Bloodworth-Thomason created the show specifically for Annie Potts, Jean Smart, Dixie Carter and Delta Burke, the latter two of whom starred in Bloodworth-Thomason's viciously funny but short-lived "Filthy Rich." With "Designing Women," Bloodworth-Thomason aimed to make a show about smart Southern women.

The show was a hit as soon as it premiered last season, though CBS almost killed it by repeatedly changing its time period, sparking an almost unprecedented outcry by fans. The show has finally settled into Monday night.

Bloodworth-Thomason, whose first script, for "M-A-S-H," won an Emmy, never doubted that a show about a bunch of wisecracking Southern belles would succeed.

"I'm one of these people that's always optimistic," she said. "I always think everything's going to work out just like I want it to."

She laughed, then added, "That makes it all the more poignant when I'm flattened out like a cartoon character when the steamroller has run over me."

Bloodworth-Thomason expects to hire a writing staff for next season, since she and her husband are producing a new series for MTM, and she is writing the script for Bette Midler's new movie about an all-woman band in the 1930s.

She said Midler had seen "Designing Women," called her up and asked, "Can you make my mouth move like Dixie Carter's?"

Lemonade business may end

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Famed 8-year-old lemonade salesman J.J. Merrick beat City Hall to keep his lucrative stand open, but he may have trouble going up against his parents.

The Merricks must decide in the next few months whether they want to buy the house they have been renting on one of Fort Worth's most-traveled residential thoroughfares, or move to another home. For J.J., that decision could mean the end of his business.

J.J. and his brothers, Chip, 15, and now Ty, 6, have sold lemonade and homemade chocolate-chip cookies from a stand in front of their home on Hulen Street for the past three years. Considered the "driving force" behind the venture, J.J. has raised money for family vacations and a home computer through his sales.

This week, J.J. was bringing in about $25 a day from his stand, which has brought in as much as $110 in a single day.

Last year, the stand attracted considerable media attention when the city closed the operation for a zoning violation — operating a commercial enterprise on residential property. Authorities later decided the zoning ordinance did not apply to single-station lemonade stands operated by children.

J.J., however, downplays his concern about the loss of the stand. "The house we might move into has a pool and a spa," he said. "I'd rather be swimming in a pool and resting in a hot tub than running a lemonade stand."

But other family members discount his nonchalance, saying if J.J. is not selling lemonade, he may start a lawn service, or a neighborhood newspaper.

"Knowing J.J., he'll probably come up with something," Chip said.

Already last fall, J.J. started branching out when he offered Halloween insurance for his neighbors. For a $1.50 policy, homeowners were assured that if holiday pranksters messed up their house, J.J. would clean it up for them.

Cat fund grows

PITTSBURGH (AP) — More than $2,000 has been donated to a legal defense fund for a 16-year-old cat called Smokey who is accused of scratching a woman.

Cards and gifts also have been given to the green-eyed, gray cat which reclines on a cash register and window sills at its home, the 136-year-old J.R. Weldin Co. office supply store downtown.

Nicole Sikorski of Upper St. Clair Township is seeking $3,000 in small claims court.

Underbudgeting may bring layoffs, delay

DALLAS (AP) — A budgeting error by the Department of Energy could lead to delays in site selection for the "super collider," a Dallas newspaper reported.

Energy Undersecretary Joseph Salgado told the House Space, Science and Technology Committee Tuesday that his department had underestimated by $8 million the money needed for research and development of the project this year, the Dallas Times-Herald reported.

"It was a mistake," Salgado said. "It was a screw up."

Texas is one of seven sites vying for the $4.4 billion high-energy physics atom smasher that will be used to research the basic foundation of nature. The proposed Texas site is in Ellis County about 25 miles south of Dallas.

Salgado said the department failed to budget funds for demil-ed environmental studies at each of the proposed sites. The studies will push up 1988 budget estimates for site selection and research from $25 million to $32 million.

Unless the House and Senate appropriations committees approve transferring other funds, Salgado said the department will either postpone the site selection or slow development of the superconducting magnets by laying off researchers.

"None of these are pleasant options," Salgado said.

The Energy Department is seeking the release of an unobligated pool of money in an account earmarked for 1988 administrative expenses.

But some officials who could unlock the funds remain unconvinced that the money is needed and question whether DOE actually miscalculated the budget or just overspent it, the newspaper reported.

The idea that Japan is about to clobber the U.S. is a notion starting to show up in funny places.

That is, first you see a full tilt news article related to it in Time, Newsweek, Atlantic Monthly or the Sunday New York Times. Then it's on the evening news and a gag in Johnny Carson's opening monologue.

Next, it's a cartoon on the editorial page, a feature photo concept over the wires and finally a topic of conversation after church.

You turn around and see that old notion has, of a sudden, broadcast a lot of seeds.

For example, lately someone is trying to tell us that the Japanese method of teaching their kiddoes makes America look like a one-room school house.

If you've tuned in to any of the above-mentioned sources, you're vaguely aware of the rigorous requirements placed on Japanese students in order to be admitted to a college. That same admittance then ultimately promises the most desirable jobs, luxuries and benefits of that society.

If their method sounds like "teaching the test"—something Texas educators are now worried about with the newly implemented Texas Educational Assessment of Minimal Skills (the so-called TEAMS tests)—that's because that's what it is.

The Japanese apparently aren't too worried about it. They just study up for three or four years, walk in and takes their chances.

If you pass, following the lines of a recent song, your future's so bright, you gotta wear shades.

Let us say this about that. We figure success in education is comprised of two elements—the discipline to wade through the boring stuff and the spark which is literally an itch to learn something new.

Which comes first is like the chicken and the egg riddle.

Some are born with the spark and the discipline is easy. Others only develop this itch after long hours of being made to study, the discipline generated by teacher or parent.

But if the spark is there, regardless if it is kindled by inner or outer sources, the ultimate result is the same. Whether you bloom early or late is left up to the individual.

The Japanese method definitely works, because it guarantees that those with the spark, hidden or self-known, will have it ignite. In America, it's more of a chancy deal because the individual, following the whole logic of our country, is given that dangerous option called freedom of choice.

We say dangerous, because the American way of leaving it up to the individual is bound to have some waste product.

But we wonder if the Japanese method also doesn't have waste—there's at the back end rather than the front.

In America, late bloomers might keep that creative spark driving longer. But in Japan, having discipline pounded into you at an early age must blunt some of the pleasure that knowledge can stir up.

Which brings us to a little proverb, and it isn't even Japanese. You can make a mule plow by whacking him across the back side. Just don't expect him to love the smell of turned earth.

Country Life

By Deanie Francis Mills

"Do you ever do stories about people who don't live in Scurry County?" asked the voice on the phone, who identified himself as Jerry Collins.

"Well, er, if it's something folks can relate to or would enjoy reading or could learn from, sure."

"Good, because I know of a very nice lady who could use your help. Her name is Margie Hart, but everybody calls her 'Ma,' and she lives out in Kent County in Clairemont. Her late husband, Roy B., was an old-time cowboy who used to foreman the Beggs Ranch, and she's an old-time cowgirl."

"A few years ago, Ma took a beat-down old fillin' station and turned it into a nice little roadside store. She's a sweet little old lady who's worked her butt off, and I'll be darned if she hasn't been robbed four times! On March 1, she got hit again, and those (expletives deleted), pardon my French, cleaned her plumb out. She hasn't got any insurance, and like the rest of us country folk, she's too proud to ask for help."

"I thought if people could read about her story, they might be willing to lend a hand. Folks out here are like that."

Now, I happen to know that Jerry's own house burned just last year, but he was willing to reach out a helping hand to somebody else who was hurting.

For three consecutive column-weeks, I kept intending to pay Ma Hart a visit, but unfortunately, illness prevented that, so I enlisted the help of Scurry County Sheriff's Deputy Andy Anderson. He graciously provided me with a list of the items stolen from Ma's store on March 1, almost $2,500 worth. There were belt buckles, work gloves, gold and turquoise rings, watches, gold chain necklaces, pendants shaped like unicorns and/or the state of Texas, earrings, $150 worth of cigarette cartons, an Electro radio-cassette player, dominoes, an Army ammo box full of tools valued at $300, knives, key chains, velcro wallets and two cases of motor oil along with a few auto parts like windshield wipers.

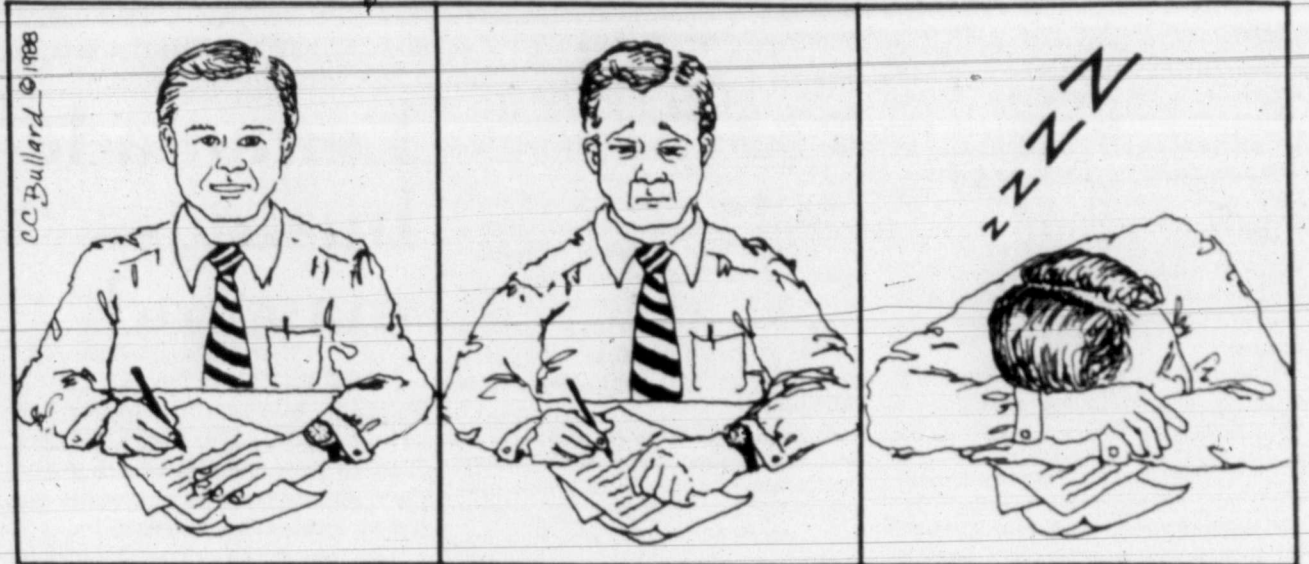

Anderson says the most common items stolen from rural areas are farm tools, electric welders, grinders, cutting torches and the like which are kept in open or easy-access sheds out back. Also saddles and tack, as Charlie Henderson can attest to. (It doesn't matter to the thief if it has sentimental value or is stamped with a rodeo title.) From the home, thieves take guns, microwaves, VCR's and the like. They also take heirloom items.

He says that, although houses right up on major highways are the most vulnerable, everyone stands a chance to get robbed, especially since there are usually no neighbors to notice anything. Sometimes, robbers will approach a house, tell the owner that his cows are out down the road, and rob him while he's gone. Otherwise, they will cruise the country, looking for nobody home.

Most burglars steal in order to support a drug habit. Stolen items can be fenced at 10 cents on the dollar, or simply traded for the drug itself. Sometimes these robbers are quite desperate to get their drugs as soon as possible.

Though rural burglaries are difficult to prevent (if somebody wants in badly enough, it's easy to chunk a rock through a well-locked window), you can make it much easier to recover stolen items. First, write down the make, model and serial number of all your small appliances and computers and the like. Second, mark the items with a "scriber," a device that scratches I.D. into the surface. (The last four digits of your driver's license or social security number work well.) The Scurry County-Crime Prevention Officer is Charlie Reynolds. He will gladly talk to you, and you can check out one of these scribes right from the sheriff's department.

Also — and this is a personal note — I'd be careful about leaving young children alone, even for an hour or so. Burglars look for houses without vehicles. If a burglar breaks into your home and confronts your terrified child — there's no telling what could happen, especially if he's got the jitters from drug withdrawal.

I greatly appreciate Jerry Collins for bringing this important matter to my attention. And let's not forget about Ma Hart. Jerry has set up funds for her at the local VFW Ladies Auxiliary and also with the Mobil Salt Creek Field Producing Unit.

Let's see if we can help this lady out. And while we're at it, take care of our own stuff, too. Thanks.

(P.S. If you know anything about this crime, please contact any of the deputies here in Scurry County, and they'll pass the word along to the Kent County authorities. You can do it by phone, and you don't have to give your name.)

SDN Week in Review

MONDAY March 21

The resolutions and delegates to state conventions slated in June and named to county conventions held by local members of both the Democratic and Republican Parties were reported Monday.

Local Republicans proposed a slate of nine resolutions for their party, while Democrats offered only one.

Scurry County commissioners Monday morning rejected all bids for a new supply of tables and chairs at the county coliseum because some of the bids did not meet published specifications.

Court members told coliseum manager Wes Partain that state law would permit him to purchase the tables because the purchase price apparently would be under $5,000 and thus would not have to be bid.

City councilmen Monday night set May 7 for a $2,750,000 bond election to finance the extension of water and sewer services to the Texas Department of Corrections unit near Snyder.

Voters will be asked to decide the issue in two parts — revenue bond issuances of $1,375,000 each for the water and sewer extensions.

City council members Monday heard Landmark Cablevision representatives protest the city's proposal of a new franchise contract to go with the sale of SCAT TV Cable to Landmark.

Area Landmark manager Dale Mathis of Colorado City, attorney Chuck Jones of Sweetwater and Sweetwater certified public account Ronnie Williams protested that the $7.2-million transaction is losing $1,500 per day in interest while the new franchise contract is being developed.

TUESDAY March 22

With one day remaining to file, three more candidates have surfaced here for Snyder-based boards which face May 7 elections, it was reported Tuesday.

The new filings create a three-man race for place 5 on the Western Texas College board and two contested spots on the Snyder school board slate.

At WTC, newly filed is John Fagin, 57.

Also newly announced for the Snyder school board are, in place 5, Mrs. Wayland (Ann) Walton; and, for place 3, Ruben C. Martinez.

Snyder High School drama students, hoping to make their 20th appearance at the state one-act play contest in May, took the first step Tuesday by qualifying to advance to district.

The SHS production of "The Corn is Green" was chosen along with the Lamesa High School entry "A Canterbury Tale."

Snyder cast members were singled out also for individual honors Tuesday, to include Kirsten Miller, named best actress.

WEDNESDAY March 23

A slate of candidates for the Snyder city council election was completed Wednesday morning and the indication is that of four expiring seats on the seven-member board, at least three will be filled with new individuals after the May 7 ballot.

The latest candidate to file Wednesday was for place 1, the post now held by Fred Castillo, who has indicated he will not again be a candidate. Announced is Walter E. Cox.

After being shutoff around 11 p.m. Tuesday, the water supply from Lake J.B. Thomas was flowing once again into the Snyder water treatment plant by 7:30 p.m. Wednesday.

The 20-hour plus "down time" allowed for the connection of a new rapid mix basin at the water treatment plant.

Startup operations for the Western Texas College farm, at an estimated expense of some $60,000, were agreed to Wednesday by board members meeting in special session.

The final afternoon to file as a candidate for Snyder-based boards produced four new office seekers and the first race where an incumbent on any of the three governing bodies is challenged.

That race will involve place 6 on the Western Texas College board, a seat now held by R.C. Patton. Filed for the post is Billy Sam Houston.

New candidates surfaced also for the Snyder school board and city council-Jerry House at the school and, for the council, Vernest Tippens and Evelyn J. Malone.

THURSDAY March 24

Acting on court orders to consolidate, plaintiffs in five suits seeking to block location of a Texas Department of Corrections unit in Snyder Thursday filed a second amended original petition.

The new petition—filed one day prior to Friday's court-mandated deadline—dropped two individuals from the suit, County Judge Bobby Goodwin and Joe Fowler, president of the Scurry County Area Foundation.

Calling it "a painful step," Cogdell Memorial Hospital Administrator Tom Hochwalt Thursday recommended a "down sizing" of staff at the facility which will result in the termination Friday of 18 employees and the elimination of an estimated 31 "fulltime-equivalent" (FTE) positions.

To temper the decision, he recommended also pay adjustments for the remaining staff which will see registered nurses receive a 22 cent per hour pay raise and most other staffers earn a substantially higher amount for working the evening and night shifts as well as weekends and holidays.

Wendy Hodge, Sam Raborn and Debra Quintela brought home first place wins from the UIL Literary Meet for the district. Hodge is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Greg Hodge and won in journalism; Raborn is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Edward Raborn and took honors in science; Quintela is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Domingo Quintela and won in shorthand competition.

Mark Lyon, SHS cast member in the one-act play presented at UIL district competition, was named Best Actor at the event. Other SHS students singled out for attention were Calvin Wimmer, Ramona Murphy and Dana Parham who were named to the district all-star cast. David Etheredge, Kelly Farquhar and Mickey Broach earned honorable mention.

Final approval for WTC's nursing program was given by the Board of Nursing Examiners following over a year of planning and effort and $21,000 raised for equipment needed for the program.

10 YEARS AGO

Scott Crenwelge, Tracy Witherspoon, Mitch Mackey, Alvin Ollison and Richard Crayton were named to the Snyder Baseball Tournament all-tourney squad.

Blanche Murray and John Eaker were winners in an Easter bonnet contest sponsored by the Senior Center.

WTC Mr. and Miss Trailhands were Rachel Phillips of Snyder and Robert Brown of Baltimore, Md. They are elected by the student body in a contest sponsored by Phi Theta Kappa.

15 YEARS AGO

Paul Gilbert won the Best-in-Show award with a photograph while Paul Williams won a $100 scholarship in photography at the high school art exhibition and workshop held at Western Texas College.

SDN Letters to the Editor

To the editor,
I am Roscie Williams and I live on Route 2, Box 223, Snyder, Texas and I want to address the issue of the prison which will be located in my front door.

First and foremost, I want it to be understood that I am for everyone having his or her own opinion. At the present time, to my knowledge, there are eight to 12 people who have put their name on the line being against the prison. Also to my knowledge, there are over 700 people who have put their name on the line for the prison.

Concerning the scare tactics of the prison, it's also my knowledge that as far back as I can remember, we have always had a prison in downtown Snyder. At this time, we run at least 50 to 75 prisoners all of the time. I have been there on numerous occasions, visited prisoners, the sheriff, the drivers license division, and at this time I have not as much as caught a bad cold while there.

Also, it is known that when prisoners are sick they are taken to Cogdell Memorial Hospital.

I will also say that in the jail of Scurry County there are murderers, rapists, dopers and you name it, they are there.

As far as the cost of the prison to the citizens of Scurry County, should we expect something for nothing? If we do, that's what is wrong with the world today.

It's my understanding that the payroll will be well over six million dollars a year. Simple arithmetic tells me that within 10 years that will be well over 60 million dollars. If it turns over five times as has been said, we can see in 10 years that would be over 300 million dollars.

Designer said shooting for high-caliber style

CANONSBURG, Pa. (AP) — Every week or so, Patty Ludwin lugs a rifle out to the back yard, casually aims at a pile of jeans on the ground, then fires once, twice, so many times she loses count.

"It's putting bullets to a good use, rather than going around killing people with them," the fashion designer said, blasting holes into a pair of blue denims.

The 33-year-old entrepreneur sells her bullet-riddled Calamity Jeans for $45 a pair. Her trademark is a leather bull's eye stitched to the right hip pocket and a spent .357-caliber Magnum cartridge that dangles from the patch.

She also creates Calamity Jewels: earrings, necklaces, belts, boot bracelets, key chains and just about anything else she can make with dull, lead bullets and the shinier brass and nickel casings.

Her jewelry, which ranges in price from $4 to $65, triggered intense interest at specialty stores from Pittsburgh to Hawaii.

"You couldn't wear it with a business suit or a nice dress. That would be kind of strange," said Debbie Bragle of Pittsburgh's trendy J. DeStefino Cosmetique shop. "But with the right outfit, it's great."

There are those who wouldn't be caught dead packing the "loaded" look.

"I wish I were there. I'd picket her. I think it's sick. I honestly think it's sick," said Mr. Blackwell, a Los Angeles fashion designer and creator of the annual 10 Worst Dressed List.

Still, the acerbic arbiter of haute couture isn't surprised by the appeal.

"There's a certain amount of fashion madness that will be bought," he says.

She took up designer jeans in 1986 after a friend invited her over for target practice on a roving boyfriend's treasured possession.

"She said he was cheating on her and she was going to take his favorite pair of blue jeans and shoot holes in them," Ms. Ludwin recalled, laughing.

Afterward, when the women pulled the tattered trousers down from the tree, Ms. Ludwin liked what she saw.

So did the boyfriend.

And a style was born.

The next step was to stock up on bullets.

"I had to go to these gun shops and these guys looked at me like I was a space alien," Ms. Ludwin says. "I'd say, 'Do you have anything in silver?' And they're like, 'What? What do you mean silver?'"

Once she got the ammunition home, Ms. Ludwin carefully pried open the .22-caliber cartridges and dumped out the gunpowder. She then faced the problem of detonating the primer in the shell that explodes and ignites the gunpowder.

Being rather gun-shy, she fried the casings in a skillet. "I covered it, then I ran because I didn't know what was going to happen," she said. It was "like popcorn," and it worked.

She forged the de-activated casings with bullets into jewelry, then peddled her wares from store to store and at craft shows.

Buoyed by her success, Ms.

Ludwin borrowed a friend's .22-caliber rifle and branched into jeans last year, using her back yard or occasionally a friend's farm as her shooting range.

So far, she has shot and sold more than 200 pairs of jeans, mostly to folks in their teens, 20s and 30s.

She has orders for dozens more as well as for skirts, vests and jackets peppered with small, frayed holes.

Requests come from as far away as Europe, where people have read about her efforts.

Although she's sold more than $21,000 worth of merchandise, the divorced mother of one barely is breaking even, due largely to business start-up costs. Still, she believes hers will be a genuine "rags to riches" story.

Two rival associations are fighting over movie rights

MIDLAND, Texas (AP) — A volunteer involved in the dramatic-rescue of Jessica McClure says infighting between rescuers over a planned TV movie may be an indication a retelling won't do justice to the heroic exploits.

Rescuers were tightly knit together during the 58-hour ordeal last autumn that captured the nation's attention when the rescue of the 23-month-old girl was broadcast live on network television.

But now the unity has unraveled with two groups sparring while they wait for the girl's parents to decide who should produce the movie — a producer working with a group of rescue volunteers or one recommended by 11 city employees involved in the rescue.

Volunteer Bruce Peeler has decided to remain neutral on the issue, but he says he sometimes doubts whether the story could be in the movie?"

Peeler said he and other neutral participants have been trying to bring the two groups together without success.

"I have taken a stand that if a movie is made, let's make sure that everyone gets involved who was in the deal," Peeler said.

Jessica's parents, Chip and Cissy McClure have said they don't want to profit by their daughter's story, but do not want to stand in the way of the story being told. McClure spokesman Pete Snelson did not return phone calls Thursday by The Associated Press.

Los Angeles producer Larry Spivey, president of Highland Communications Group Inc., organized the 11-member McClure Rescue Association to consult on a TV movie deal. The group, which includes O'Donnell, Police Chief Richard Czech and Fire Chief James Roberts, broke with Spivey later.

How can anyone come up with the idea that out of over 300 million dollars there would not be a lot of tax dollars for the city and county?

To the editor,

It was very nice of Stan Paregean to say that "only a few old sore heads" were against building the prison in Snyder. It definitely shows how he feels about the quotation in the Bible to "love thy neighbor as thyself." Also by wanting to load a bunch of criminals on our shoulders.

There are only a few people who can, or will, speak out for various reasons. Some would risk loss of their businesses; some wouldn't dare express any opposition against the Big Shots' opinions.

I believe if we had a secret ballot voting, even now, that the few would outnumber the prison builders. Most of us voted for Texas to build more prisons, but not in our front yards.

There are plenty of wide, open spaces where an escapee would hesitate leaving for fear he'd have to walk too far.

Now that all is settled, I hope at least that our police force will be tripled and their salaries as well. They are underpaid, regardless of what they get because they risk their lives for us almost daily. So do the firemen. While many union members are overpaid due to the minimum wage law.

To the editor,

January was especially busy for the Cogdell Hospital Blood Bank. Forty-six units of blood and 21 units of fresh frozen plasma were given to hospital patients.

United Blood services really rendered this hospital the best possible service at one point during the ice storm. More blood was needed in a hurry and UBS went so far as to contact the Flight for Life helicopter to see if they could deliver it. The weather was too bad to fly, so an employee of UBS drove the blood to Snyder.

An extra THANK YOU to the Snyder Police Force for picking up blood at the local bus stop at 3:50 a.m. and bringing it to the hospital so hospital personnel could remain on the job and not

To the editor,

The American Cancer Society Crusade has been scheduled for April 9th through the 16th. We would like to enlist the help of everyone in Scurry County to make this year's drive a success.

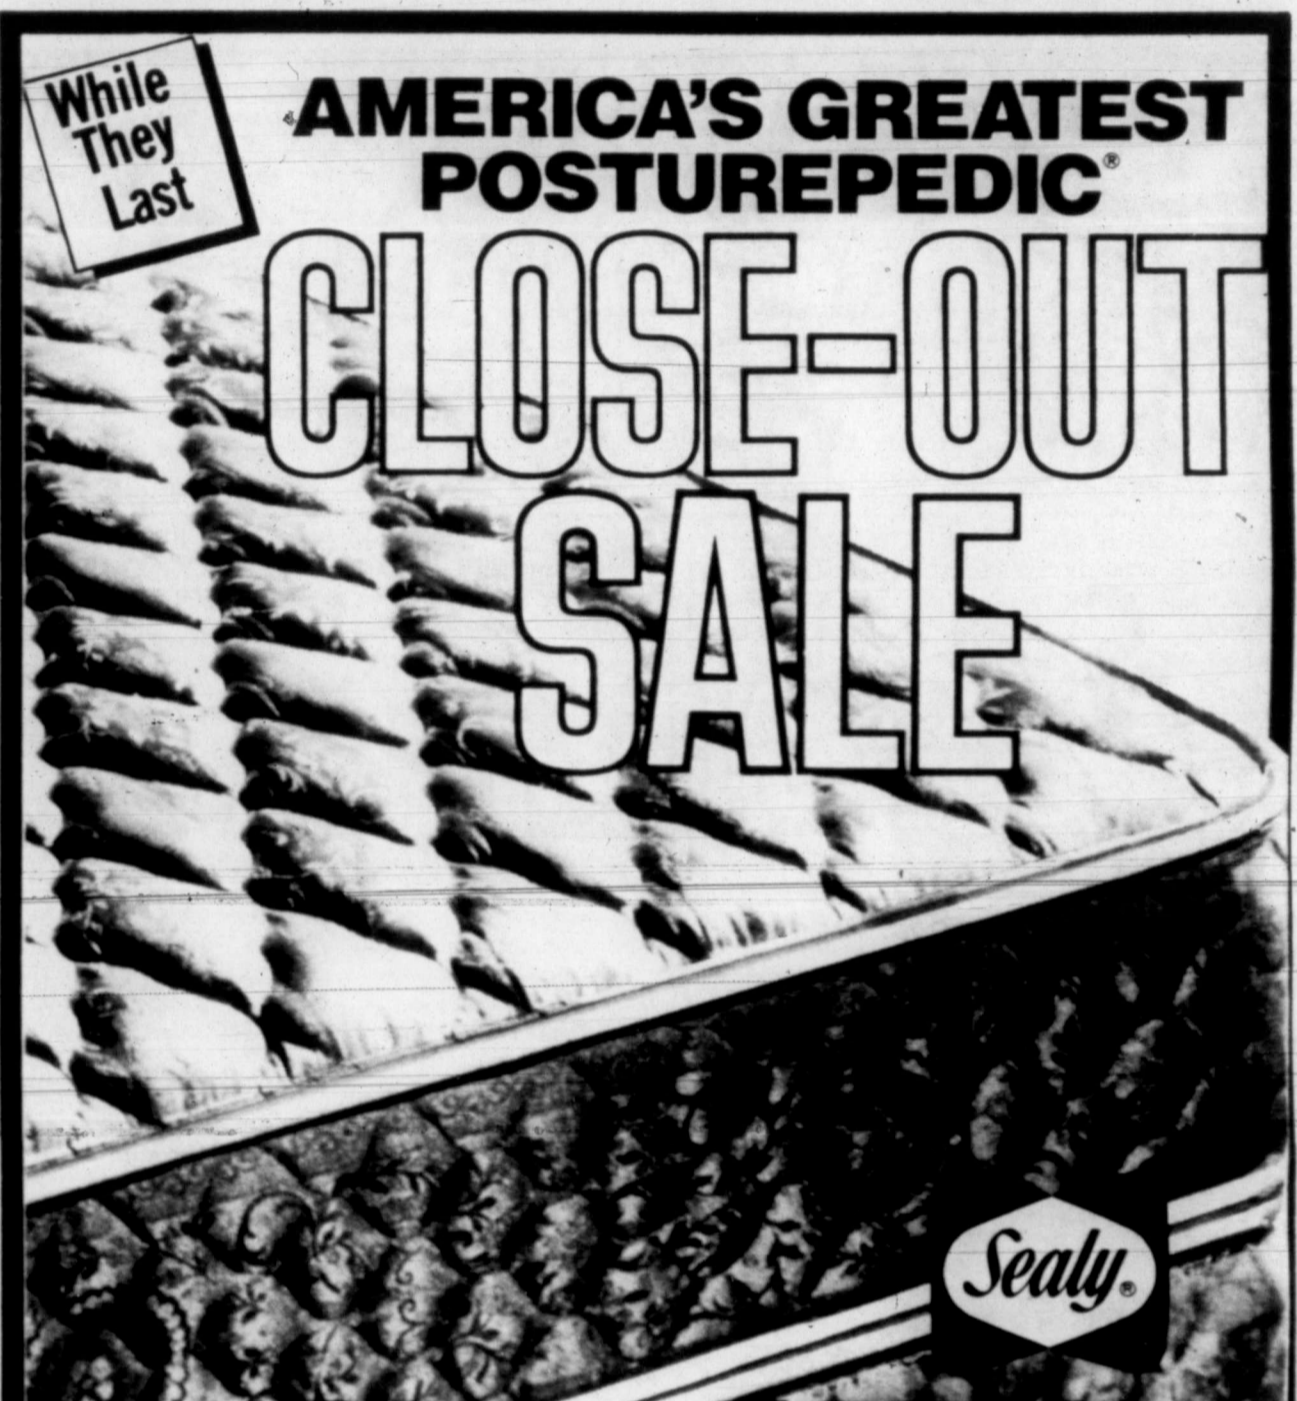

Although tremendous strides have been made, cancer has, or will, touch the lives of all of us in some way and it is vital that public education in cancer prevention and detection be continued. This year's crusade focuses on the importance mammography plays in the reduction of deaths caused by cancer of the breast.

I would also like to call attention to the services provided locally by the American Cancer Society. During the past year services valued at $56,685 were provided by the American Cancer Society in Scurry County. These services include patient education, transportation, equipment loans, and gift items. Educational programs are provided by professional and lay volunteers to youth and adult groups and printed materials, speakers, films and exhibits are provided upon request.

Many volunteers are needed for this important project. Anyone who has not been contacted and would like to help may call me at 573-0407.

'Real' price of wheat said lowest in years

WASHINGTON (AP) — An Agriculture Department economist says farmers could be forced to accept the squeeze between costs and prices as a permanent way of life if wheat price trends are an indicator of how the farm economy may develop in the future.

Clark Edwards of the department's Economic Research Service says farmers "make more money when they become more efficient, they expand, or their terms of trade improve."

Advances in technology have boosted yields of crops and livestock. Farms have gotten larger because of people leaving the land. But prices farmers get in relation to costs have tended downward over the years.

Thus, Edwards said, two of the three ingredients for profitability have been working for farmers. But the third — prices — has worked against them. That results in the "cost-price squeeze" that has chewed on the farm economy for generations.

Edwards, who is economics editor of Agricultural Outlook magazine, examined the price history of a single commodity — wheat — since 1800.

Rising prices reflected growth in domestic and export demand from the beginning of the 19th century through the Civil War, which included inflated prices triggered by shortages during the 1861-65 war years.

"From then on, for more than a century, U.S. agriculture has shown a capacity to grow faster than its markets, and the trend in real wheat prices has been downward, with cycles from wars and depressions," Edwards said.

In economic parlance, the "real" price of a commodity includes an adjustment for inflation. The "nominal" price does not include an inflation adjustment.

During World War I, wheat prices spiked higher, but still were below the Civil War peak. In the 1920s, wheat prices declined as a farm depression took hold. Further downward pressure came in the Great Depression of the 1930s.

Wheat prices rose again in World War II but were still below the levels of World War I.

"The real price (of wheat) fell from its World War II high throughout most of the 1950s and 1960s," Edwards said. "There was a gradual downtrend in the nominal price, and inflation picked up, particularly since 1965."

But prices received by farmers in the '50s and '60s were steadied by "massive government programs" which boosted the U.S. domestic price of wheat above the world price, he said.

As fears of global hunger and grain shortages developed in the early 1970s, wheat prices were driven up to record levels and heralded a return to wide annual fluctuations, Edwards said. Even so, the real price of wheat at its 1973 peak was below the World War II high point.

Wheat prices dropped in 1986, reflecting changes in federal supports authorized by the 1985 farm law, he said. That allowed lower market prices to induce more export and domestic use, while maintaining farm income through direct payments to growers.

"The price is edging up a little this year," Edwards said. "Even so, the real price of wheat is well below what it was at the depth of the depressed 1930s, and the lowest it has been since Revolutionary times. At the same time, wheat yield per acre now is about three times what it was in the 1930s, and the wheat acreage per farm growing wheat is 10 times what it was."

Edwards acknowledged that wheat accounts for "a small percentage of total food outlays" by American consumers and that the margin between the farm value of wheat and the final food product has been growing as a result of higher transportation, processing, packaging and other costs.

"Therefore, a stable consumer price is consistent with a decreasing wheat price," he said.

"Even so, wars, depressions and food crises are reflected in the price of wheat, and the price of wheat may be a useful proxy for long-run farm and food price trends."

If that is the case, Edwards said those who think that farm prices in the coming decades will rise relative to costs "are calling for a fundamental change in the long-run trend."

He added: "It would appear more reasonable to expect farmers (and help them when necessary) to continue to find ways to make a living in the face of prospective long-run cost price squeeze, as they have done for the last century."

WASHINGTON (AP) — Existing organizations and private funds could help the federal government move ahead in rural development, says Bob Bergland, executive vice president and general manager of the National Rural Electric Cooperative Association.

A partnership between private and public interests is necessary because rural communities must not be left behind as the U.S. economy continues to change and grow, he told the Senate Budget Committee on Thursday.

"Unfortunately, many of these communities have experienced rapid declines during the last several years," Bergland said in his statement.

Loss of population, sluggish job growth, high unemployment or underemployment, poverty and an education gap were cited as major problems.

Bergland, who was secretary of agriculture in the Carter administration, said the association he represents is an example of existing networks that can be used to help with rural development. The NRECA, he said, provides service to 25 million people in 2,600 counties in 46 states.

"Today, the problems facing many rural communities have spurred electric cooperatives to increase their initiatives and activities in community and economic development," he said. Bergland recommended that the Rural Electrification Administration in the Agriculture Department be authorized to make financing available to REA borrowers for rural development of business, industry and public works.

REA is the federal government's chief lending agency for the rural electric and telephone cooperatives.

The financial assistance could take the form of guarantees, loans, grants and the ability to create private revolving funds, he said.

Committee to study Medicaid lien law

AUSTIN (AP) — A lawmaker whose bill allowing liens against certain Medicaid recipients' homes sparked an outcry from older Texans, says a special committee will study the law.

"It seems to me that there has been so much emotion generated by all of this that it is time for us to step back and do a study in the light of reason, and to decide whether this bill is in fact good public policy, and if it is, how we can best administer it," Rep. Jack Vowell, R-El Paso, said at a Thursday meeting of the Texas Sunset Advisory Commission.

"To give in to the idea that we can't do something because people are upset is to admit that the process under which all of us work and operate is not a viable one," said Vowell, who heads the sunset commission.

Vowell has asked that the Board of Human Services, which has delayed implementing the Medicaid lien law, wait for the panel's report before taking action.

"We need to clear the air ... no one need be afraid to receive medical services because of anything the Legislature has done," he said. Protections exist in the law for surviving spouses and others, he said.

A waiting period also is advisable because it is possible the federal government will institute a similar lien provision for Medicaid, he said.

The lien provision is part of the sunset bill approved for the Department of Human Services in a periodic review by the Legislature last year. Some lawmakers said they were not aware the provision was in the lengthy bill when they voted on it.

Under the new law, the department can go to probate court against the estates of certain Medicaid recipients who have died. The provision was designed to recoup money to allow expansion of the Medicaid program, said Sen. Chet Edwards, D-Duncanville, who sponsored the bill with Vowell.

Drug smugglers' weapons sophisticated

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — A couple of flat tires at the right time may have saved four Border Patrol agents from a deadly firefight with drug smugglers armed with AK-47 assault rifles, an official says.

The incident Tuesday underscores the increasing danger Border Patrol agents face as drug smugglers arm themselves with more sophisticated weapons, said Gus De La Vina, deputy chief agent.

More and more smugglers are being caught with other kinds of automatic weapons, accurate high-powered rifles, night-vision devices and even shoulder-fired anti-tank rockets stolen from the Army, he said.

In the Tuesday night incident, agents were alerted that someone was trying to cross the Mexico-New Mexico border about 35 miles west of El Paso.

The agents were dispatched in pairs in separate vehicles, but they were slowed when both trucks developed a flat tire.

The smugglers were gone by the time agents reached the border crossing, although they followed footprints and tire tracks to a horse trailer filled with 2,387 pounds of marijuana and arrested two men there.

Later, the agents were told they would have been met at the border by seven to 10 people armed with AK-47 assault rifles. The men stayed in Mexico and were not arrested.

"If the guys hadn't had flats, there would have been a hell of a firefight," De La Vina said, adding that the agents are armed with handguns.

Agent Richard Moody, who daily patrols downtown El Paso, agreed with De La Vina's assessment.

"If the agents had pulled up to the scene, I have no doubt they would have been fired upon," he said. "Those people are going to protect their loads. They don't care about shooting a Border Patrol agent."

The AK-47 was developed by the Soviet Union and is the Soviet army's version of the M-16. Drug smugglers have been caught with AK-47s and other kinds of assault rifles, De La Vina said.

Smugglers are becoming bolder and have shot at agents five times in the past five months, De La Vina said. No agents were injured.

De La Vina said he is worried that a big shootout is inevitable, given that smugglers seem to be moving some operations from the Florida and Georgia Gulf coasts to the El Paso area and are taking more measures to protect their loads.

"A year ago, a seizure of 500 pounds (of marijuana) was a big deal," he said. "Now we're seeing much larger amounts — tons. Compared to what we had last year, it's alarming."

Since last October, Border Patrol agents have seized $28 million worth of drugs in the El Paso sector. During the same period a year ago, agents seized $8 million worth of drugs, De La Vina said.

The Border Patrol's regional office is trying to get 250 agents to add to the 550 now employed in the El Paso sector.

"It's to give us parity with the smugglers," De La Vina said. "The smugglers, in essence, have declared war. We hope the area east and west of El Paso, and even downtown El Paso, doesn't become a battlefield. With the type of weapons we're seeing, that's a possibility."

Legislation proposed following 2 jail deaths

AUSTIN (AP) — The state must take immediate steps to forestall jail inmate deaths, said a lawmaker, pointing to recent deaths of prisoners jailed in Sabine County and Cleveland.

"If an incident like this breaks out in the Harris County jail or city of Houston jail, it wouldn't be just one person dying. There would be a lot of folks dying," Rep. Ron Wilson, D-Houston, said Thursday.

"If we don't come to grips on this problem right now, I think it's going to end up being just an incredibly serious one. It's going to be too late," he said.

Wilson said the Sabine County jail should be closed because of the death of inmate Loyal Garner Jr., and all Texas jails investigated.

Garner died after being detained in Hemphill in December. Kenneth Earl Simpson died in the Cleveland jail last week.

Three officers pleaded innocent Thursday in Tyler to murder charges filed in connection with Garner's death.

Wilson said he is preparing legislation, including proposals to place city jails under the Texas Commission on Jail Standards and require a peace officer to have two years of college or its equivalent.

Robert Viterna of the Commission on Jail Standards said his agency inspected the Sabine County jail after Garner's death and has no reason to shut it down. Official procedures and staff numbers follow state standards and the jail is certified, he said.

Apparently the Hemphill incident occurred when "some people decided to do something contrary to accepted practices, as far as the jail procedures are concerned," Viterna said.

The Cleveland Police Department referred calls to James Jasper, city attorney. Jasper said the city would have no comment on Simpson's death until after the FBI and Texas Rangers complete an investigation.

While the U.S. still makes more tires every year than any other nation, the "tire capital" of the world, Akron, Ohio, no longer produces a single tire, according to Armstrong Tire Co.

Board changes not enough

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas Police Association leaders say they may continue to try and have a citizen's police review board abolished because restrictions placed on the panel by the City Council aren't strong enough.

Beach crackdown planned by sheriff

PORT ARANSAS, Texas (AP) — Port Aransas Mayor Dale Bietendorf says he wants drinking laws enforced in the wake of last weekend's beach rioting, but he doesn't want a "police state" situation in the island city.

Bietendorf made the comment Thursday after Sheriff James T. Hickey said he will crackdown this weekend on lawbreaker at the Port Aransas beach.

Deputies will arrest all drunken beachgoers, underage drinkers and adults who provide alcohol illegally to minors, Hickey said.

The sheriff said he would have as many as 40 deputies on the beach and vans ready to transport prisoners to jail.

"Near-riot conditions erupted on Port Aransas beaches last weekend," Hickey said at a news conference. "Two fatalities and numerous stabbings were reported, all alcohol-related."

A melee broke out late Saturday and early Sunday on the beach at Port Aransas after a San Antonio girl was hit by a car. A crowd of spring-breakers overturned the car and set it afire.

Officers arriving at the beach were pelted with beer cans. Several stabbings were reported. Nearly 100 units were called to the officers' aid and tear gas was used to subdue the crowd.

Two San Antonio men died in a separate incident when their car went through a ferry barricade and plunged into the ship channel.

As many or more young people are expected on the beaches this weekend, Hickey said.

The sheriff said he had been thinking about beefing up his beach patrols, "but no doubt, what happened last weekend had an effect on my thinking and planning."

"Beachgoers have to know that this is not a wide-open county," he said. "Lawlessness will not be tolerated."

incrimination when testifying before the board and provide for the automatic dismissal of any board member who divulges confidential information about a case.

But association leaders say the restrictions don't go far enough and they may still push for a city charter election to dissolve the board.

Association president Monica Smith said in a speech to the Dallas Salesmanship Club Thursday that the association cannot consider accepting the changes until they are put in a written, binding contract.

The board has the power to investigate police shootings and complaints of alleged misconduct. The board cannot reprimand or fire officers but can recommend policy changes to the city manager.

The council also approved Wednesday the addition of 150 officers to the force each of the next four years.

"I hope the Dallas Police Association respects what we've done," said Mayor Annette Strauss. "If the DPA has any concerns left, put them on the table and let's see them."

Earlier this week, Ms. Smith and three other DPA board members criticized the changes, which were drafted by the Mayor's Advisory Committee on Crime last week after meeting with the DPA.

EXERCISE & CANCER

A Harvard University study of 5398 college graduates shows that breast cancer rates among nonathletic women were nearly twice as high as among those who exercised regularly. Cancer of the uterus, cervix, ovaries and vagina were 2-3 times more frequent among the nonathletes. Exercise is beneficial to health.
