

Heroes emerge in fiery crash

CARROLLTON, Ky. (AP) — Two 16-year-olds helped pull their friends from a bus that burst into a fireball after it collided head-on with a pickup truck on an interstate highway, killing 27 in one of the nation's deadliest bus crashes.

"They were just laying down in the back door, stacked up on top of each other, and no one could get out 'cause they all fell down on top of each other," said Larry Flowers, who escaped from the bus and helped evacuate it with Jamie Hardesty. "I grabbed their arms and pulled."

A pickup truck going the wrong way on southbound Interstate 71 late Saturday plowed into the right front side of the bus, which was filled mostly with teenagers from the Assembly of God Church in Radcliff returning home from an amusement park outing near Cincinnati, police said.

Nine of the 40 hurt sustained critical injuries and four serious ones, including the driver of the pickup truck, who was alone.

Those killed were charred beyond recognition.

Survivors said that as flames erupted in the bus' front, screaming passengers rushed toward the rear emergency door.

Oklahoma prison riot... Convicts free hostages

STRINGTOWN, Okla. (AP) — Inmates released their last two hostages this morning and brought a peaceful end to a three-day prison riot that had caused $2.5 million in damage.

The hostages were released after officials agreed earlier today to televise the inmates' surrender.

"For all practical purposes, it's over," prison spokesman Jerry Massie said in Oklahoma City. "It's a great relief that it's over."

Ronnie Scott, a corrections officer, was freed about 10 a.m. Thirty minutes later, Sgt. Harold Yoder was released.

Both men were undergoing medical examinations, but Massie said they were apparently fine.

When Scott came out, he told officials Yoder was in good shape and had not been mistreated. Massie said Scott was fine as well.

Separate groups of inmates had held Yoder and Scott, Massie said. The inmates were checked and loaded onto a bus brought to the prison, to take the 20 inmates to an unidentified state prison.

The destination would be revealed, Massie said, once the bus was loaded and on its way.

Eight hostages were initially taken in the riot that began Friday night.

The tentative agreement to free the last two hostages was reached early this morning in negotiations involving the inmates, prison officials and legislators.

Officials also agreed to a demand from the approximately 20 inmates that three state legislators the convicts met with Sunday would witness today's surrender, Massie said.

The agreement was reached after a guard held with the others since the uprising began was released late Sunday, officials said.

One inmate and one guard sustained minor injuries during the takeover.

In Brief

Three killed

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Two gunmen opened fire on a lunch-time crowd in a pub patronized by Roman Catholics, and police said three people were killed and six wounded.

The gunmen escaped in a stolen taxi after the attack on Sunday.

The incident fueled fears of reprisals in the sectarian warfare that has ravaged this predominantly Protestant British province since 1969.

An anonymous telephone caller to the British Broadcasting Corp. claimed responsibility in the name of the Protestant Action Force.

More fighting

AMRITSAR, India (AP) — Security forces today stepped up pressure on Sikh extremists holed up in the Golden Temple, pounding two lookout towers with machinegun fire and incendiary bullets amid calls for the gunmen to surrender.

Seven Sikhs who surrendered on Sunday were brought to the complex to appeal to comrades still inside the holy shrine, the center of the Sikh separatist movement.

"The officers are good to us. None of us have been troubled. Please come out with your hands in the air," Skatter Singh pleaded over a loudspeaker set up on a rooftop.

Sleepy burglar

NEWBERRY, S.C. (AP) — A man who broke into a convenience store, drank several beers and fell asleep was arrested when it opened the next morning, authorities said.

Stephen Ray Kirkpatrick, 21, of Newberry County, was charged with burglary in the break-in at Buddy's Open Air Market, authorities said.

Kirkpatrick was arrested early Thursday after the manager found him sleeping behind the counter, with nine packs of cigarettes in his coat lining and surrounded by 16 cans of beer, several of which were empty, said Sheriff's Chief Deputy Tom Summer said.

Store manager Mac Jones said the man told him he was waiting for the owner, "but it looked to me like he just broke in and had himself a little party."

Kirkpatrick, who is unemployed, was being held on $5,000 bond in the county detention center, authorities said.

Waller-Carriker political contest has no Democrat

By DONNY BROWN
SDN Managing Editor

The nomination of Steve Carriker (D-Roby) as the Democratic candidate for Ray Farabee's senate seat for the moment clears the Democratic side of the ballot in the 78th District representative race involving Republican candidate and ex-Snyder mayor Rod Waller.

Carriker indicated Monday, however, that his party remains "strongly committed to offering the voters a choice" and that party leaders are now mapping out a legal strategy to determine how to place a second Democratic candidate on the November ballot to oppose Waller.

Carriker said he expects some announcement regarding this within the next few weeks. This will come from Democrat party chairmen in the 78th District, to include Scurry, Cottle, King, Knox, Lynn, Garza, Kent, Stonewall, Fisher, Jones, Nolan and part of Taylor County.

On Saturday, the 30 county Democratic chairmen serving the 30th Senatorial District—a list which in part overlaps with the 78th House District—voted in Carriker as the party nominee for Farabee's senate seat. Scurry County Democratic Chairman Earl (Hassie) Sneed was one of 18 party chairs supporting Carriker.

In November, Carriker will face Republican Bobby Albert, a Wichita Falls businessman.

The vote at Saturday's meeting, held in Seymour, was 18 chairmen supporting Carriker, 11 supporting Charles Finnell (D-Holliday) and 1 supporting Helen Farabee.

After the roll call was completed to indicate individual voting, Carriker was selected by acclamation of the party chairs.

At the start of the meeting, the party chairman from Wichita Falls, home base for Mrs. Farabee, offered a motion that the 30 chairmen postpone their decision until after an Aug. 13 special election to fill out the remainder of the senate term.

That motion failed 25-5. Carriker, Finnell and Mrs. Farabee are all announced candidates—although none have officially filed—in that August election. The deadline for filing is July 13.

Regarding the attempt to place a second Democrat on the ballot for the 78th District House seat, the last date the party can name a replacement is Sept. 12. The last date the party chairman can nominate this replacement is Sept. 9.

Whether they will be able to nominate such a candidate remains to be determined, however.

Earlier this month, Secretary of State Jack Rains, a Republican appointee, offered an "advisory opinion" that indicates they will not.

Rains said since Carriker already had a Republican opponent for his House seat, the Democrats would not be able to name a replacement candidate.

Democrats are arguing, however, that by winning the Senate nomination, Carriker is "ineligible" for the House nomination. And an ineligible candidate can be replaced on the ballot, they say.

Court renews contract with state hospital

Scurry County commissioners Monday authorized County Judge Bobby Goodwin to sign another year's cooperative contract with Big Spring State Hospital, which augments the services of the Snyder-Scurry County Health Unit.

The contract helps to pay the salaries of two mental health professionals who regularly work here, Goodwin explained.

Besides bill-paying and the approval of minutes from last week's meeting, the state hospital contract was the only item on the 10 a.m. agenda.

THE SALE — A large crowd watches the Senior Citizens Center's annual May Day quilt auction Saturday in the coliseum, where more than 800 people ate barbecue prior to the sale. The event produced a Month is up 10.7 percent...

Sales tax report plus 9.6 percent

An expanded tax base is helping, but Snyder's 1 percent sales tax return also appears to be running ahead of last year at this time without the added taxable services.

The latest report, reflecting sales made in March, shows the local return at a plus 9.6 percent for the year-to-date and a plus 10.7 percent for the month.

It has been estimated that the expanded sales tax base, which went into effect in January, would add from 6 to 7 percent in returns to the 1,041 cities and 81 counties that levy local option sales taxes. The comptroller's office reported also the monthly return for Scurry County, which began levying a 1/2 cent sales tax in January.

So far this year, this has returned some $39,576 to the county, funds to be used to offset ad valorem taxes next year.

May's checks represent March sales and filings submitted to the state comptroller's office by April 21.

In Snyder, the 1 percent sales tax generated $75,488. For the same monthly period last year, $67,374 was returned. The year-to-date figure now totals $316,571 as compared to $288,742 last year.

A sampling of area cities includes:

—Lubbock: plus 10.9 percent with $5.9 million returned to date compared to $5.3 million last year.

—Abilene: plus 8.6 percent with $3.2 million returned to date compared to $3 million last year.

—San Angelo: minus 0.51 percent with $2,401,227 returned to date compared to $2,413,495 last year.

Big Spring: minus 0.40 percent with $623,670 returned to date compared to $626,159 last year.

—Sweetwater: plus 12.2 percent with $317,815 returned to date compared to $283,262 last year.

—Snyder: plus 9.6 percent with $316,571 returned to date compared to $288,742 last year.

—Colorado City: plus 33.9 percent with $138,727 returned to date compared to $103,550 last year.

—Post: plus 18.2 percent with $69,914 returned to date compared to $59,102 last year.

Lawyer returns to hometown after service with Texas AGs

After two decades in the Texas Attorney General's office and five years of owning a sporting goods store in Austin, Snyder native Marvin Sentell has returned to his hometown to open a law practice.

Sentell, 56, graduated from Texas Tech University with a finance degree in 1952, earned his law degree at the University of Texas in 1955 and was an Army artillery officer at Ft. Sill, Okla., and Ft. Hood before working as an assistant district attorney in Fort Worth for a year.

Will Wilson was the first attorney general he worked for, beginning in 1959. He was in the highway division, condemning land for the construction of the interstate highway system, and also began his lengthy service in the AG's bond division under Wilson.

He practiced law in Snyder with his father, the late John Sentell, for two years and in Waco for a year before returning to Austin to participate in the latter stage of Waggoner Carr's term and to begin his long and, in his words, "enjoyable" association with Crawford Martin.

Sentell later worked for John Hill in the AG's bonds, transportation and energy divisions and left the office in 1980 to open a sporting goods and luggage store, Le Sportsac, in Austin's Highland Mall with his wife, Julie.

They sold the store after about five years, and after a period of inactivity in which Sentell became restless and the couple decided that Austin "had gotten too big" for them. See SENTELL, page 9.

Poll says Americans favor arms treaty

NEW YORK (AP) — Americans overwhelmingly favor the U.S.-Soviet medium-range nuclear missile treaty but share fears in Congress that Moscow cannot be trusted to comply, according to a Media General-Associated Press poll.

The poll also found that Americans view Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev nearly as favorably as they do President Reagan, and Gorbachev out-polls Reagan among college-educated Americans.

Seventy-three percent of those polled in the national survey supported the accord to eliminate medium-range missiles, and as many said they would back a treaty to cut each nation's long-range arsenal in half.

But 61 percent said the Soviets can't be trusted to live up to their arms control agreements. That reflected sentiment in the Senate, which last week demanded clarification of the anti-cheating rules in the pact.

The poll was conducted among a random sample of 1,204 adults interviewed by telephone from April 29-May 8, ending less than a month before Reagan and Gorbachev meet in Moscow.

As strongly pro-treaty as they were, a near-majority of Americans were not willing to drop Reagan's proposed missile defense system known as "Star Wars" in exchange for a Soviet agreement to a big cut in nuclear arms. Forty-nine percent opposed such a trade while just one-third supported it.

The public was split on the issue along political and ideological lines: Republicans and conservatives strongly opposed dropping Star Wars for a big missile cut, while Democrats and liberals favored such an agreement.

Without an agreement, 56 percent said work on Star Wars should proceed as it is now or be increased, while 30 percent said it should be reduced or dropped. There again was a political division: 73 percent of Republicans wanted work on Star Wars kept up, compared with 41 percent of Democrats.

Similarly, there was an ideological division in support for the medium-range treaty and for a treaty, if one can be reached, to halve the long-range arsenals. The pacts fared worst among conservatives — 20 percent were opposed — and best with liberals, whose opposition was in single digits. About 67 percent of conservatives and 83 percent of liberals were in favor.

The survey found broad support for Reagan's handling of U.S.-Soviet relations, with 71 percent approving, and a high positive view of Reagan generally, with 59 percent rating him favorably.

Nearly as many — 54 percent — expressed a positive view of Gorbachev, the poll found. Among college graduates, 71 percent rated Gorbachev favorably while 62 percent viewed Reagan favorably; among those who have done postgraduate work, 76 percent saw Gorbachev favorably, compared with 50 percent favorable for Reagan.

Reagan had the approval of the poll's respondents for his May 29-June 2 summit with Gorbachev in Moscow. Seventy-eight percent said the president and the Soviet leader should meet at regular intervals even without any major items on the agenda.

The survey gave a mixed report on U.S.-Soviet competition. Forty-one percent said the United States had more political influence in the world and just 14 percent said the Soviets had more political influence. Thirty-eight percent said the countries were about equally influential.

The rating was closer on military strength: 33 percent said the Soviets were stronger militarily, 28 percent said the United States was stronger and 29 percent said the countries were about equally strong.

Dear Abby

Reader More Likely to Frown After Being Exhorted to Smile

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1988 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I could have written the letter from "Insulted," who was always being told to smile! All my life I've had people walk up to me and say, "Who are you mad at?" Abby, I'm not mad at anybody; I guess I just have one of those sad-looking faces.

You were right to say that most people have a serious look — or even a frown — on their faces when they're deep in thought. That's me, but I don't think I should go around grinning like a Cheshire cat for no reason at all.

Thanks for understanding that it hurts to be constantly reminded to smile. Maybe if you print this, people will think twice before they say it.

SAD FACE IN TWIN FALLS

DEAR SAD: I never realized until I ran that letter from "Insulted" how many people had the same problem. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: At last, I am no longer alone. I, too, am one of those people with sad-looking faces who are always being told to smile. Thanks for saying, "Folks who go around smiling all the time for no reason at all are often followed by a non-smiling person with a butterfly net."

I agree with you, Abby. Perpetual smilers look like idiots. Nobody can be that happy all the time. I'm basically a happy person, but it doesn't show on my face. Thanks for printing that letter. I feel better knowing that I'm not the only one with a grumpy face and a happy heart.

SACRAMENTO SOURPUSS

DEAR ABBY: Perhaps the person who is constantly told to smile should read what Dale Carnegie had to say in his book, "How to Win Friends and Influence People":

THE VALUE OF A SMILE
It costs nothing, but creates much;

It enriches those who receive, without impoverishing those who give;

It happens in a flash, and the memory of it sometimes lasts forever;

None are so rich that they can get along without it, and none so poor but are richer for its benefits.

It creates happiness in the home, fosters good will in a business, and is the countersign of friends.

It is rest to the weary, daylight to the discouraged, sunshine to the sad, and nature's best antidote for trouble.

Yet it cannot be bought, begged, borrowed or stolen, for it is of no earthly good to anybody until it is given away.

Nobody needs to smile so much as those who have none left to give.

M&F Plastic Pipe has variety of sizes

M & F Plastic Pipe is your locally owned dealer for polyethylene pipe, sales and rental, with a wide range of sizes and pressure ratings.

Polyethylene pipe is now replacing steel pipe and PVC pipe in many areas. It is much more versatile than PVC and more economical than steel. Its flexibility makes it easier to handle, therefore saving you time and labor. The durability of this pipe has been proven under all kinds of weather conditions and it can be re-spooled and re-laid several times without damage to the pipe.

We have spooling trailers, reel trailers and a spooling truck to handle pipe up to three inches. Pipe that is four inches or larger comes in joints and must be laid by hand. It is "welded" together by using an electric iron that melts each end of the pipe and then it fuses when put together. This eliminates the worry about leaks from bad threads or not being tight enough such as in steel pipe or the hassle of cleaning and gluing as in PVC.

Poly pipe can be used for water lines in homes, stock tanks, water wells, water supply for drilling, transfer lines, gas lines or production flow lines.

They will lay new or used pipe, provide you with valves, fittings, ditching, etc. to suit your needs and will also repair your lines, relocate it or replace it if necessary.

M & F Plastic Pipe is owned and operated by Ricky and Teresa Trammell. Please feel free to call them or Darby K. Scott, manager, for prices or information at 573-8612.

Doctors are people, too

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: As with most people, I've had my share of bad experiences with doctors. I'm wondering if most problems people have with doctors aren't simply due to out-and-out fatigue. I know that I snap at people when I'm tired.

DEAR READER: Good point. Being human, doctors can become grouchy and nasty when they're tired. Certainly, some "bad experiences" do result when physicians are exhausted and overworked. All doctors go through these phases, and we hope that our patients understand, accept — and forgive — our lapses.

However, the thrust of much of my writing is directed toward a more in-

U. S. is leading soybean producer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The soybean has an Asian-sounding name, with its origins rooted in long-ago China. And the peanut has a real American punch to its name, raising images of baseball parks and street vendors.

But the United States is the leading soybean producer, while China is a distant third behind Brazil.

China, meanwhile, is the biggest peanut producer, with India second and the United States third, according to Agriculture Department analysts.

In all, global production of oilseeds in 1987-88 is expected to be a record 203.7 million metric tons, up 5 percent from last season, says the department's Foreign Agricultural Service. Projections indicate output may rise further in 1988-89.

Based upon various USDA reports issued last week, including the May 10 supply-and-demand projections for 1988 harvests, the United States will continue to hold a comfortable lead in soybean production.

Of the 203.7 million tons of oilseeds produced in the world, soybeans will comprise 101.1 million tons, or almost half the global harvest. The U.S. soybean share is more than 51.8 million tons.

A metric ton is about 2,205 pounds and is equal to 36.7 bushels of soybeans.

sidious and chronic form of medical misbehavior. Some doctors are downright rude, unpleasant, unfriendly, uncommunicative, self-centered and haughty — not because of fatigue, but because they have an attitude problem. Such healers tend to forget the service qualities of their profession.

You snap at other people when you are tired. So do I. So does everybody. Nonetheless, doctors have an obligation to keep this at a minimum. When it progresses to the point of being a chronic problem, patients tend to say: "Whoa, what's going on here? Is this what I'm paying for? Then they have to educate their doctors in how to shape up — or change practitioners."

I'm glad that you shared your concerns about over-tired physicians. I hope that other readers will be as understanding and will give their doctors the benefit of the doubt. On the other hand, people should be wary of M.D.s who seem to equate snappiness with being a doctor; this is simply bad manners and bad medicine. To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report, "Choosing a Physician." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1 and their name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Using recombinant DNA methods, doctors have created synthetic nerve pathways which were then transplanted into people's brains to restore functions to brain-damaged individuals. What can you tell me about this?

DEAR READER: Recombinant DNA research — the alteration of basic genetic material — promises to be a breakthrough for the treatment of many diseases. However, the technique is still in its infancy. Much of the recombinant DNA work is still experimental and confined to the laboratory. I cannot comment on the potential uses of this method because it is highly technical, I don't understand it completely and it is not yet generally available. Perhaps in a year or two I'll be able to answer your question.

When your contract looks cozy if all the suits split nicely, it's time to figure out what you can do if the key suits misbehave. At first glance, today's six-diamond contract looks easy, with a good chance for an overtrick. Nevertheless, there are pitfalls, and declarer trapped himself in one of them.

After winning the opening trump lead, South immediately played another high trump, and West showed out. South could not afford to give up a trump trick to East, since East would surely lead right into dummy's A-Q of clubs, eliminating an entry before the spade suit was established. So South cashed one more high diamond and then played A-K of spades. Alas, East ruffed the second spade. Eventually, despite taking a successful club finesse, declarer had to concede down one.

South can succeed if he guards against a bad spade distribution. At trick two he should lead a spade to the ace and then ruff a spade. This loses only if he is overruffed by West, but there is little chance that West has a singleton spade, since he didn't lead it. After ruffing a spade, declarer can ruff a heart to dummy and ruff another low spade. The spade suit is now good, and all declarer has to do is play his high diamonds and give up a diamond to East. The ace of clubs will be the entry to dummy and he will have plenty of tricks. The problem with playing a second high diamond before testing spades is that there will not be enough ways of getting to dummy to establish the long spades when the suit breaks badly.

Astrology didn't hurt Reagan like Iran-Contra scandal did

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan is always looking for good news, and if the experts are right there's a sunny way of assessing the disclosures in Donald Regan's book.

According to historians and political scientists, Reagan has not been damaged much by the former aide's revelation about astrology at the White House and his portrayal of Reagan as an out-of-touch leader who merely followed a script from his staff.

On the other hand, they say the reason the latest disclosures haven't hurt him is that Reagan already had been devastated by the Iran-Contra affair and couldn't be hurt much more.

Lucky for Reagan that all of this is coming out at the end of his presidency instead of at the beginning. Imagine how a new president would be weakened and ridiculed when the world learned that an astrologer commissioned by his wife played a role in White House affairs.

"Virtually every move and decision the Reagans made during my time as White House chief of staff was cleared in advance by a woman in San Francisco who drew up horoscopes to make certain that the planets were in a favorable alignment for the enterprise," wrote Regan, who was the president's chief of staff until he was ousted with a push from the first lady.

Regan also documented that the president issued no orders, but "listened, acquiesced, played his role and waited for the next act to be written." Embarrassing as those stories are, they come at the end of Reagan's administration, when he doesn't have much of an agenda left to push and his reputation has been established.

"The world leaders who are his friends probably won't pay much attention to the latest news. And his enemies already had a negative view of him, anyway."

Tom Griseom, the White House chief of communications, brushes aside suggestions that Regan's book, "For the Record," has wounded the president.

"I don't think it really matters one way or the other," Griseom said. "I think this president has had a tremendous impact on the policies of this country. I think nobody will be able to take that away from him. It's there."

Moreover, Griseom believes it will not spoil Reagan's summit with Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev in Moscow May 29-June 2.

Harvard University historian Adam Ulam agrees. "I don't think they pay any attention to it. Why should they?" Ulam said. "I think that they deal with facts. They don't deal with... gossip."

Duke University political scientist and author James David Barber said, "I don't know that this (disclosure) is really going to sustain itself very long. Reagan has this talent for joking these things off."

More important than the news about astrology, Barber said, is the picture of Reagan as president. Barber said it showed Reagan as "a smiling loafer... like Harding or Taft."

Police officers okay compromise proposal

DALLAS (AP) — Police voted to delay a decision on continuing their push for a public showdown on a controversial review board after most officers approved a compromise plan for restructuring the panel, a spokeswoman said.

Dallas Police Association President Monica Smith would not reveal the results of weekend balloting Sunday, but said most officers were in favor of the plan.

"My feeling is that they felt that this was a well-thought-out plan, and they were praising (City Manager) Richard Knight for his efforts," she said. Smith.

The plan was developed by Knight, along with an attorney for Dallas billionaire H. Ross Perot and other city leaders. About 800 of the association's 2,200 members voted on the plan during a series of six meetings with Perot, who explained the plan to officers.

Ms. Smith said that only after the Dallas City Council considers the compromise May 25 would the association decide if it will turn in the 30,000 signatures it has collected to force an Aug. 13 referendum on the board.

"The membership has said wait and see what the City Council does with the plan," she said.

Mayor Annette Strauss and a majority of City Council members have already said they approve of Knight's plan.

The police association wants the 7-year-old review board abolished or stripped of its power to subpoena officers and conduct independent investigations.

Officials involved in drawing up the compromise plan declined to discuss specific proposals, but officials have said the proposal alters the board's subpoena power and forces Dallas lawyer Pete Lesser off the board.

Lesser has represented several clients in lawsuits against officers.

Lietzke wins playoff to cop top honors in Nelson Classic

IRVING, Texas (AP) - Don't mess with Bruce Lietzke in playoffs.

Clarence Rose did on Sunday in the Byron Nelson Golf Classic and he discovered what Gene Littler, Ray Floyd, Tom Watson and Andy Bean already knew. Lietzke is poison when the heat is on.

Winning his fifth playoff in seven attempts on the PGA Tour, Lietzke made a 20-foot birdie putt on the first playoff green to beat non-winner Rose and earn the $135,000 first place prize.

Rose made $81,000 after shooting a final round 69 while Lietzke bogeyed the last hole for a par 70. They were nine-under 271 over the Tournament Players Course at Las Colinas.

"It was nice to be in contention again," Lietzke said. "And to be able to work through all the problems and win again. It was a match play tournament with Rose and I just tried to relax."

Lietzke was surprised the winning putt fell, thinking he had hit it too hard.

"I wish I could say I had a magic feeling when I hit that putt but I really didn't," Lietzke said. "I just knew on the left side and right lips all day but that one went straight into the hole. I thought it would be too hard and maybe just catch a part of the hole but it didn't."

He said it was great to win, after four years, the last being the 1984 Classic.

"I felt good once I got into the playoff," he said. "I've got a pretty good record there. I've beaten some big names:

It was the first time in four years I had a chance to win and I did it."

Rose said he wasn't nervous although he walked to the 16th tee and Lietzke took the luxury car ride the tournament provided.

Lietzke, who has moved his family to Plano, Texas, from Grove, Okla., said he may only play golf for two more years.

"My predictions don't hold a lot of water but I really want a change from the tour life and spend more time with my family," Lietzke said. "I've been saying 'only two more years' for six years."

"I could leave in two years but I have a concern about how I would earn an income. I was a security guard once and that wasn't a lot of fun."

Lietzke, who has now won 11 tour events, admitted "I've never ever wanted to be the best player in the world. I could leave the tour tomorrow but I couldn't quit playing golf."

He last won the 1984 Honda Classic and among his 11 tour victories is the 1981 Nelson Classic.

Lietzke has won $2,572,000 but has never won a major.

Rangers win streak stopped

by The Associated Press

The Texas Rangers tried, now, the Chicago White Sox are doing the same. But it's going to be awfully hard to catch the Oakland Athletics in the American League West.

The Rangers' team record-setting eight-game winning streak ended Sunday with a 5-4 loss to the Kansas City Royals. The White Sox won their third straight by beating Toronto 6-5 in meanwhile, Oakland continues to win. The Athletics beat Baltimore 7-4 and are 16-4 on the road. They are the best in baseball at 26-10 and are seven games ahead of Chicago and 7½ in front of Texas.

"We knew we weren't going to win 100 in a row," Texas' Larry Parrish said. "What we're looking for is consistency."

In other AL games, New York

Boston 11-7, Minnesota trounced Detroit 10-2 and Cleveland beat Milwaukee 9-5.

Texas trailed 5-0 before Ruben Sierra's RBI single in the fifth. Parrish hit a solo home run and Curtis Wilkerson singled home a run in the sixth that got the host Rangers within 5-3.

In the seventh, Royals reliever Bud Black balked home a run. Gene Garber then took over with the bases loaded and no outs, but made a great escape by getting Parrish to ground into a forceout at home and inducing Geno Petralli to bounce into a double play.

"How about Harry Houdini?" gushed Royals manager John Wathan about Garber, who earned his fifth save.

Garber preserved the victory for Mark Gubicza, 4-4.

Aguirre explodes, lifts Mavs to win over Denver, 124-103

DALLAS (AP) - Impatient Dallas Mavericks fans had been clamoring for a blowout victory and finally they got one with Mark Aguirre's signature on it.

Aguirre exploded out of a scoring slump with 34 points Sunday night, leading the Mavericks to a 124-103 victory over Denver in their NBA playoff series.

The victory evened the best-of-seven Western Conference semifinal series at two games each and helped ease the pain of Saturday's 107-105 loss to Denver in the final three seconds.

It also soothed Aguirre, who spent the final minutes of Saturday's loss on the bench when Coach John MacLeod decided to go with a big lineup.

"I wanted to come out and play as hard as I could in this game,"

Aguirre said. "I know Coach MacLeod's goal is to win basketball games."

"We had a nice talk today. It was basically that he was behind me. It makes you feel good to know someone is behind you 100 percent."

The Mavericks struggled to put teams away in the playoffs, including Saturday's game when they never trailed until the final three seconds.

But they jumped on the injured Nuggets Sunday from the start, and took the lead for good at 24-22 with 2:06 to go in the opening period.

The lead increased to 63-48 at the half and MacLeod finally emptied his bench for the first time in the playoffs during the final minutes.

"We weren't emotionally ready, that's all," Denver Coach Doug Moe said. "I could tell early we had a chance only if we were fired up."

Lafayette Lever and Jay Vincent sat out the game with injuries. Lever has a strained knee and Vincent has a pulled calf muscle.

"We had a strong incentive because we let one slip away yesterday," Mavericks forward Sam Perkins said. "We let it go by, so we knew we had to come out and play this one as a team."

Dallas had a 31-15 halftime edge in rebounding and they finished the game with a 64-48 advantage.

Roy Tarpley led the Mavericks with 13 rebounds and scored 24 points.

"I'm happy with the way I played," Tarpley said. "Every team needs a spark and I like to be it. I know sooner or later I'll get my chance to start."

Alex English led the Nuggets with 24 points and Blair Rasmussen scored 23 points.

Aguirre scored 13 points in Dallas' quick-starting first quarter and again led his team with 10 third quarter points. He hit 14 of his 20 shots and sank six of seven free throws.

Knight turns down NMU job according to published report

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) - After spending the weekend mulling over an offer from the University of New Mexico, Bobby Knight apparently will remain as basketball coach at Indiana, according to a published report.

Knight, quoted in today's Star Tribune, said he told Indiana University president Thomas Ehrlich of his decision Sunday night.

"The first thing I told Mr. Ehrlich was that I was staying at Indiana," Knight told the Minneapolis newspaper during a telephone interview Sunday.

New Mexico athletic director John Koenig, who conducted interviews with Knight at Albuquerque last week, expressed surprise at the report when contacted at Anaheim, Calif., by the Associated Press.

"We're still talking," Koenig said.

He added that he assumed Knight would have contacted him had the coach reached a decision on his coaching future.

"I've received messages all day," Koenig said, "and there wasn't one from him."

Ken Johns, an influential Albuquerque businessman who was close to the UNM-Knight talks as a member of the university's board of regents, said he "hadn't heard anything at all. That's news to us."

Indiana University sports information director Kit Klingelhoffler, asked late Sunday to comment on the Minneapolis report, said: "I don't know anything about it." Knight, he added, "hasn't said anything to me."

Arkansas men, Lady Longhorns win titles

AUSTIN (AP) - The speed of the Lady Longhorns and the stamina of the Arkansas men carried their teams to titles at the 73rd Southwest Conference Track Championships.

The Joe Falcon-led Razorbacks reclaimed the SWC men's championship, finishing with 155 points at the two-day meet Sunday.

The Razorbacks' point total included 77 in four distance events as they won their first title since 1985 at Fayetteville, Ark.

Defending champion Texas was second with 149 points.

The Lady Longhorns, led by Carlette Guidry, won 12 events on their way to their fourth consecutive women's crown as they rolled up 233 points, 114 better than their nearest competitor, Arkansas and Rice tied for second with 119 points.

Guidry, a freshman, had a triple win in the 100 and 200 meters and the long jump. She also ran a leg of the winning Texas 400-meter relay, earning a total of 32½ points.

Guidry set a new SWC meet record in the 100 with a time of 11.18.

"I wish I could say I had a magic feeling when I hit that putt but I really didn't," Lietzke said.

"I just knew on the left side and right lips all day but that one went straight into the hole. I thought it would be too hard and maybe just catch a part of the hole but it didn't."

Parties warming up for November election

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — At an advertising agency for Shimon Peres' Labor Party, image-makers showed off a new brochure picturing a checked Arab headdress — a symbol of Palestinian nationalism — with a black slash across it.

On the same day, Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir of the rival Likud bloc worked a crowd of Jewish settlers in the West Bank, telling them the Israeli-occupied land was "thirsty for Jewish settlements."

The campaign for Israel's November general elections is getting into gear, and the main battleground for the left-of-center Labor Party and the rightist Likud is the Arab-Israeli conflict, brought to a boiling point by the Palestinian uprising.

Both Shamir and Peres have told voters the outcome of the balloting will be crucial for the survival of the Jewish state.

Peres, foreign minister in a strange bedfellows coalition with Shamir, has warned that Likud's refusal to withdraw from any part of the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip will cost Israel its Jewish majority and democratic values.

Shamir has charged that Labor's willingness to exchange some land for peace will deliver Israel into the hands of its Arab enemies.

"It's the first time since the 1973 (Middle East) war that the peace process is a major issue in an election campaign," said political scientist Peter Medding of Hebrew University.

Pollsters say Labor is in a more difficult spot, noting that many voters have adopted more hard-line views because they feel threatened by the violent Arab uprising in which more than 180 Palestinians and two Israelis have died since Dec. 8.

A survey of 1,200 Jewish voters at the end of March showed Labor has lost 3 percent to 4 percent to Likud since December, with Labor now at 35 percent of the vote and Likud at 30 percent, said pollster Hanoch Smith.

The rest of the vote is divided among more than a dozen smaller parties that are potential coalition partners for either Labor or Likud.

If elections were held tomorrow, Smith said, the two camps each would get roughly the same number of seats — a repeat of the stalemate in the 1984 elections that forced Labor and Likud into shared rule.

Their coalition, always fragile, has all but disintegrated since the uprising. But neither Labor nor Likud has formally ruled out joining another mixed government in case of a stalemate.

Labor's campaign, run under the slogan "Move with Strength and Brains," is aimed at winning right-of-center voters without alienating the left.

As a first step, strategists have softened the Peres peace plan by assuring voters they will have a final say before concessions are made to the Palestinians.

"We will emphasize the idea that there will be a plebiscite before any major move, such as returning territory," said Ruth Ofir of the Keshet Barel advertising agency hired by Labor.

Labor's peace program also contains a list of "no's," such as "no" to a Palestinian state, "no" to talks with the Palestine Liberation Organization, "no" to a return to the 1967 borders.

The new brochure with its crossed-out Arab headdress is meant to illustrate the point. It also pictures an Israeli soldier guarding the Jordan River, which Labor says will remain Israel's security border.

Political scientist Yitzhak Galnoor of Hebrew University predicted the strategy would backfire.

"They are going to fall between the chairs and lose on both sides," said Galnoor. "The idea that you can compete with the hardliners of the Likud proved unsuccessful in the campaigns of 1977, 1981 and 1984."

Annual 'spring council' to plan summer gathering

LUFKIN, Texas (AP) — Rainbow Family members say will challenge federal efforts to regulate their planned summer gathering on U.S. Forest Service land.

During the weekend, members of the self-styled back-to-nature group met at an undisclosed location in East Texas to discuss legal strategy and select a site for the July "Rainbow Gathering of the Tribes," said spokesman Stephen Principle.

He said attorneys of the group will go to court today to challenge parts of a temporary restraining order banning the group from meeting on U.S. Forest Service land without a special use permit, which the group refuses to request.

The order was issued Thursday by U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice.

On Sunday, Principle said group members were not meeting on U.S. Forest Service land, but the meetings covered legal strategy and site selection for the July annual gathering of several thousand family members.

He said the group will ask Justice to rewrite the restraining order to allow members to meet on developed recreational areas in national forests.

Forest Service officials fear the large July gathering could attract as many as 20,000 people, causing sanitation and safety hazards and enormous traffic jams.

A federal magistrate in Lufkin, a town about 120 miles northeast of Houston, postponed until Thursday a decision whether to prohibit the annual summer gathering at an East Texas forest, which has been requested by the Forest Service. Family members say they plan to fight the request.

Neither federal attorneys representing the Forest Service nor Larry Daves, the attorney representing the family, could be reached for comment Sunday.

If the permanent injunction is ordered, Principle said, "Then we will gather en masse on the Texas border and call our people out of Babylon."

Principle, however, has questioned the strength of any government action designed to block the gathering and said no state has ever stopped the annual summer meeting, called the Rainbow Gathering of the Tribes.

Magistrate J. Michael Bradford's recommendation to Judge Justice concerning the temporary restraining order said that the weekend council meeting could violate "laws relating to drugs and nudity, in such substantial numbers that law enforcement would be rendered effectively unmanageable."

"The evidence is clear that any gathering by the Rainbow Family in mass numbers on national forest system property without a specific-use permit would violate federal law," Bradford wrote.

Soviet troops begin pullout from Afghanistan

KABUL, Afghanistan (AP) — Gunfire rang out in the distant hills as 1,200 Soviet soldiers pulled out of a besieged garrison town near the Pakistani border, leaving behind a war the Soviet Union has waged for eight years.

The convoy that withdrew from Jalalabad on Sunday marked the beginning of the Soviet pullout. After traveling 88 miles to Kabul, the troops in the 300-vehicle convoy planned to depart for the Soviet Union today.

its daylong journey through mountains teeming with guerrillas. It passed through crowds of Afghan children who threw flowers and an occasional clod of dirt or dung.

Anti-communist guerrillas fighting the Soviet-backed government of President Najib took control of the mountainous regions through which the convoy passed. Shots were heard in the distance as the convoy crossed the mountains.

The leader of a Moslem guerrilla faction vowed on Sunday to seize Jalalabad as soon as the estimated 6,000 Soviet troops that were stationed there withdrew.

"We'll continue our jihad (holy war). We are fighting against an idea," said Mahmood, a commander in the radical Hezb-I-Islami guerrilla faction.

In Kabul, about 2,000 Afghans lined four miles of highway leading into the city, said a Western photographer.

Many of the newcomers were soldiers or members of communist youth organizations, dressed in red shirts with white scarves.

"Today the Soviets are leaving. I'm happy for them," said Abdu Samir, 20-year-old Afghan soldier, as he watched the procession move into Kabul.

Soviet troops are expected to complete their retreat from the city in two weeks and be replaced by up to 12,000 Afghan army troops.

Mahmood said he had 10,000 men under his command but could not predict when Jalalabad, a strategic city 45 miles from the Pakistan border, would be in guerrilla hands.

On Sunday, the Communist Party leadership in Moscow thanked the departing troops.

"Days of severe trials lie behind you," said the party Central Committee address, printed on the front page of the party daily Pravda. "You have fulfilled the order of your homeland."

"There will be a lot of army there. It will need a lot of pressure," Mahmood said in Peshawar, Pakistan, headquarters for the U.S.-backed guerrilla factions.

Edmund McWilliams, deputy chief-of-mission at the U.S. Embassy in Kabul, said on Sunday the insurgents have moved closer and stepped up their rocket attacks on the city, the capital of Nangarhar province.

Twenty Western journalists were brought to Jalalabad to ride with the convoy to Kabul, and during the night spent in Jalalabad they heard heavy bombardment and felt the impact of a surface-to-surface missile that landed 30 feet from their hotel.

Information about the start of the withdrawal was provided by a Reuters news agency pool report. Associated Press reporters were barred from covering the event. Soviet officials said the exclusion was the result of questions asked by the AP during a previous trip to Kabul.

In the past month, insurgents reportedly have overrun dozens of security posts in eastern Afghanistan as Soviet forces handed them over to Afghan army troops.

The Red Army convoy arrived in Kabul on Sunday at the end of Soviet troops and tanks moved into Afghanistan on Dec. 27, 1979, to fight the anti-communist insurgency and replace one pro-Soviet government with another. The United States has supplied arms to the insurgents.

Robertson ready to drop out of race

By The Associated Press

Former television evangelist Pat Robertson, whose faithful following struck fear for a time into Republican Party regulars, today was abandoning what he described as a divinely inspired presidential bid. George Bush, the GOP nominee-to-be, was campaigning in Washington state, the scene of Robertson's only Super Tuesday triumph.

The two Democratic presidential contenders, Jesse Jackson and Michael Dukakis, were gearing up for another primary battle. Oregon votes Tuesday, with 45 delegates at stake.

wayside as Bush rolled up an insurmountable lead.

The vice president clinched the delegates needed to nominate last month, in the Pennsylvania primary, and got President Reagan's formal endorsement last week.

Robertson, who has 46 delegates to Bush's 1,344, finally faced facts last week. He told reporters then he was backing Bush and would make his own exit official today. He was expected to turn his delegates over to Bush at the Republican National Convention this summer.

An upbeat Dukakis, addressing Democrats in New Jersey on Sunday, declared: "I smell victory in the air." But Jackson, turning a tale of pride and perseverance into a campaign parable, urged college students in Virginia, "Keep hope alive."

Following what has become a pattern in recent contests, Jackson was engaging in primary-even campaigning today, while Dukakis was home in Massachusetts devoting the day to gubernatorial business.

Up until today, Robertson was the sole Republican remaining in the race against Bush. Pete du Pont, Alexander Haig, Jack Kemp and Bob Dole all fell by the

he said.

Bush spent most of Sunday rafting on Oregon's Rogue River. He did a little fishing too, but said he didn't catch anything.

The vice president was starting off the day today in Washington state, where Robertson won a straw poll on Super Tuesday. Bush attended a Seattle fundraiser on Sunday night.

Jackson and Dukakis crossed paths on the campaign trail Sunday, when both made appearances at New Jersey's state Democratic convention. The two held a brief meeting, which Dukakis described as "warm, pleasant, respectful."

Dukakis predicted a Democratic win in the fall, and although he didn't directly say so, his talk of beating Bush made it clear he does not view Jackson as much of an obstacle to the nomination. By the latest Associated Press delegate count, Dukakis has 1,610 to Jackson's 956.

Dukakis said. "No question about it."

Jackson, however, wasn't giving up. He spoke at a college commencement Sunday that had special meaning for him — his 61-year-old mother-in-law, Gertrude Brown, was among those receiving diplomas from Hampton University in Virginia.

"She is of strong character, and she never surrendered," Jackson said, describing how Mrs. Brown, a onetime high-school dropout and unwed teenage mother, spent a dozen years pursuing the degree while working full time, after raising five children.

"Never surrender," he told the students.

Later, at a rally in Newark, N.J., Jackson appealed for support in New Jersey's June 7 primary.

"No valley is too deep when our minds are made up," he said. "We've come too far to turn around now."

Present drought may boost cattle prices

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Nationwide cattle inventories may continue to drop if the drought conditions prompting early cattle sales results in significant reductions in heifers and cows, experts predict.

A lack of rain and loss of forage has encouraged some early, out-of-season cattle sales that may result in tighter beef supplies and higher prices, the marketing experts say.

Some Texas cattlemen said the problem is so bad that cattle are dying, and the lack of pasture that is affecting ranchers in parts of Texas is also hurting ranchers in the northern Plains states.

In a normal year, many of the cattle being sold now would not be sold until fall.

"Some ranchers sold 20 to 30 percent of their herds and some cattle were so weak and thin they couldn't be shipped," said Jack Scoggins, co-owner and general manager of Starr Feedyards Inc. near Rio Grande City.

"Without more rain, we could see some more sales and maybe more dead cattle," Scoggins said.

In California, enduring its second straight year of drought, ranchers started selling feeder cattle in March rather than during their regular sale season of May or June.

"About 70 percent (of the cattle) moved out a month earlier," said Ellington Peek, manager and owner of the Shasta Livestock Auction Yard in the northern California town of Cottonwood.

Alan May, Brown County extension agent in Aberdeen, S.D., where pastures are a dead brown instead of the usual lush green, said some ranchers are moving cattle to better pastures while others are selling parts of their herds.

Sentell returns to open practice

too big," they made the decision to come to Snyder and establish a general practice, with Mrs. Sentell working as her husband's secretary.

Sentell liked all of the attorneys general that he worked for, but he liked Martin best personally and had the most professional admiration for Hill.

He felt that Martin had a strong enough political base, possibly, to have been elected governor if his health had not failed.

"They all had their good points and bad points," he said. "Crawford was my favorite. He was such a fine man, although maybe not the best attorney general."

"I would have to say John Hill was the best I worked for. He was the most active and put together the best staff. He is just a tremendous lawyer."

Sentell's office is at 1814 26th St., on the south side of the square.

The Sentells have four children, Holly, a Dallas advertising woman; John, a financial analyst for AMOCO in Midland; Mike, a student at Southwest Texas State University in San Marcos; and Erin, a student at the University of Texas in Austin.

In Movie Theaters

SUNSET (R) Blake Edwards is the most uneven director in Hollywood. For every charming "Pink Panther" or "Victor/Victoria," he's made something ineffectually bad like last year's "Blind Date." Or like this ineffectual movie that imagines a friendship between Hollywood cowboy Tom Mix (Bruce Willis) and real-life cowboy Wyatt Earp (James Garner).

There's some promise in the fanciful notion that Mix and Earp became buddies in Hollywood in 1929, while the former was playing the latter in a movie. But as the cowboys team up off-camera to investigate the slaying of a prostitute, the movie pours on melodramatic nastiness and picturesque decadence — little of which turns out to be fun. There's something unseemly about the blend of fact, fiction and kinkiness in a buddy-movie format. Even the Hollywood lore doesn't amount to much.

The actors don't stand a chance. Bruce Willis as the cowboy-hatted Mix is pretty silly casting to begin with. As Wyatt Earp who still has a fight or two left in him, Garner seems sabotaged by the script and direction. Malcolm McDowell, meanwhile, is reduced to glowering ickiness as the powerful movie studio mogul who's also no surprise — a sadist.

THE MODERNS (not rated) Here's another dose of Alan ("Choose Me," "Trouble in Mind") Rudolph's perfumed romanticism — intoxicating, classy, but quickly evaporating. A gorgeously designed portrait of expatriates in Paris in the late '20s, and a project that Rudolph had been planning for years, the finished film nevertheless fails to come together. It seems suffocating, airless and studied.

The main characters indulge Rudolph's penchant for edgy, overripe passion. There's the unfulfilled painter (Keith Carradine) who forges masterpieces, his long-lost lover, an alcoholic femme fatale (Linda Fiorentino), and her grasping, dangerous art patron husband (John Lone).

Drifting in and out are caricatures of real-life expatriates of the era — Hemingway, Gertrude Stein and Alice B. Toklas. The best — and oddest — performance is given by Wallace Shawn as a gossip columnist who fakes his own suicide, and then goes into hiding dressed in drag. If only Rudolph could come up with a foreground story of conviction to match his remarkable grasp of milieu and mood. GRADE: ★★ 1/2

Birthday spent in detention cell

CIUDAD JUAREZ, Mexico (AP) — Rawn Yates spent his 18th birthday in a Juarez juvenile detention center where he was being held in connection with the May 7 shooting death of one Mexican policeman and the wounding of another.

But prosecution and defense attorneys both have predicted release, perhaps as early as today, for Yates, of El Paso, who claims he's a victim of mistaken identity.

Sunday, Yates' mother, Bobbie Mikkelsen, and his stepfather, Bob Murr, took him a cake made by friends and held a celebration, which they invited other detainees to join.

"We cut it (the cake) into little pieces and tried to make sure that all the kids ... got a piece," Murr said.

Mexican authorities took Yates and Kelly Martin, 18, of Dell City, Texas, into custody May 7 on suspicion of involvement in the shooting death of Juarez policeman Pedro German Vera and the wounding of Jose Zuniga Acevedo.

Saturday, a Mexican judge handed down formal charges against Martin, who is in jail at the CeReSo Prison south of Juarez.

Ex-trooper not worried about chair

ATMORE, Ala. (AP) — Joe Duncan, whose dark-blue state trooper uniform has been traded in for the prison whites of death row, says if all legal appeals fail, he will beg to be executed for the murder of his trooper girlfriend.

"If we develop the evidence we expect to in the next few weeks, I'll get a new trial," Duncan said last week during his first interview from death row at Holman Prison.

But if the appeals fail, the only choices are life without parole, or death. Duncan, 33, speaking amid clanging metal doors and inmates' yells, said he would prefer execution.

"If I had no chance of getting out of this institution ... I'd beg them to put me in the electric chair," he said.

Duncan was sentenced April 12 in the shooting death of Trooper Elizabeth Cobb, 31, whose body was found Oct. 12 in her parked patrol car behind a church where Duncan said they used to meet. She was shot three times in the head.

Duncan initially denied even knowing where the church was located. But he changed his story, saying he found Miss Cobb's still-warm body, and failed to tell anyone for fear of being implicated.

Jurors recommended life without parole for Duncan after prosecutors presented a case based mostly on circumstantial evidence stemming from Duncan's taped statements to investigators.

Circuit Judge J.C. Norton, however, overturned the recommendation and sentenced him to death.

On May 12, Duncan's attorneys formally asked Norton for a new trial. Among their reasons was an allegation that an unidentified juror may have known Duncan and Miss Cobb.

Officials believe Duncan is the state's first law officer to be sentenced to death.

"There is no way (to explain) what it's like to go from an Alabama state trooper — and I'm talking about probably the most prestigious law enforcement job in this state — to death row in six months," said Duncan.

Prosecutors said Duncan killed Miss Cobb to collect $350,000 from a life insurance policy that went into effect 10 days before her death. They said the policy was taken out June 30, and that Duncan was named as beneficiary.

Duncan said he developed a "romantic relationship" with Miss Cobb in early June and that they almost immediately began discussing marriage.

"If Joe Duncan had put a gun to Elizabeth's head and killed her for money, he ought to be put to death," said Duncan.

But Duncan, a 10-year law enforcement veteran, said he could have pulled off Miss Cobb's murder had he wanted. "I could have done it in a manner that wouldn't have pointed a finger at me."

He said the chief prosecutor, Assistant Attorney General Bill Wasden, misrepresented the facts while the judge allowed jurors to hear illegal evidence.

Homeless cheated in rehab program

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Local and state authorities are concerned that a foundation offering drug and alcohol rehabilitation and jobs for homeless men may be abusing its workforce.

The Second Chance Foundation, a self-described non-profit drug and alcohol rehabilitation house with 96 beds, promises food, shelter, therapy and a full-paying job in 90 days, the Fort Worth Star-Telegram reported Sunday.

But former residents and social service and government workers in Tarrant County say the 3½-year-old foundation is not delivering on its promises.

"Our concern is that people not employed are being brought in or bused in to our community and are being taken advantage of, and in effect are supplying free labor for someone else's profit," said Stephen Chaney of the Tarrant County District Attorney's Office.

"We get a whole lot of people who have gone through their program and they don't seem a whole lot better off," said the Rev. Andrew Short, director of Fort Worth's Presbyterian Night Shelter.

"That's why generally they're coming to us. They need a place to stay, they're out of work and broke," he said. "I have a lot of questions about the place."

Charles Palmieri, executive director of Second Chance, said that officials who criticize his program have never visited the foundation. But the Star-

Telegram said he refused to be interviewed for their report.

According to former residents, the men at Second Chance are put to work through contracts for lawn work at apartment complexes, labor at construction sites, housekeeping at hotels and other unskilled jobs for private firms. They also work at the foundation's car wash.

The private firms pay Second Chance from the minimum wage of $3.35 per hour to $6 per hour for the men's labor. The foundation, meanwhile, pays nothing to boarders during their first month. For the next two months, they are supposed to get $5 per week along with the promise of food, shelter, a chance of clothes and substance abuse counseling.

"I saw what it was — a rackety," said Leon Morrow, 35, who left after three days. "They get paid by the contractors for your work."

"It's a slave camp," added 31-year-old Willie Gibson, who says he was brought from Los Angeles in a Second Chance van.

Former residents said there are no professional counselors on staff and that therapy consists mostly of reading literature from other agencies. Many leave before ever seeing their first $5 payment and join the ranks of the homeless in Fort Worth.

"They are increasing the burden this community has for providing for the homeless," said Robert Scott, director of the Union Gospel Mission. "At least they could send them back home."

Alexander's can keep homes termite free

As a homeowner, you can't ignore the threat of termite damage. The cost of the termite problem in the United States is approaching one billion dollars a year with about one in every 50 homes being damaged.

Craig Alexander, owner of Alexander's Pest Control, tells us that this time of the year is the most active for termites and that termites will do more damage to homes this year than all fires, hurricanes, and tornadoes combined.

When termites swarm in the spring, they are often mistaken for flying ants, because both have wings. Swarming termites quickly shed their wings, though, and burrow into the ground to start new colonies. Chemical treatment is the only method of termite prevention and control ever proven to be totally effective. Alexander's Pest Control surrounds your house with a chemical barrier, so termites can't get in. This also kills any termites which may already be inside.

Instead of hoping termites don't attack, make sure they can't. Instead of being worried, be protected. All it takes is a call to Alexander's Pest Control at 573-7133.

Your home is the largest investment you have, so you don't want to take any chances with it. Call the professional - Craig Alexander.

Whites & blacks opinions vary

DALLAS (AP) — A newspaper survey of Dallas residents showed whites and blacks have sharply different views on problems in the community.

The Dallas Morning News reported Sunday that many whites are frightened by rising crime and are impatient of minority criticisms, while minorities feel frustrated that they still do not fully share in the city's power and opportunities.

"I think it's at a boiling point in this city," said Pettis Norman, a black Dallas businessman and co-chairman of Dallas Together, the mayor's task force on ethnic relations.

The survey showed 42 percent of blacks believed Dallas is more racially divided than other cities of similar size, compared to 31 percent of whites. Forty-four percent of respondents of both races said race relations had deteriorated in the past five years.

"Police relations may be where it explodes, but economics is the real festering problem," said the Rev. Mark Herbener, a white minister who has preached in the predominantly black Mount Olive Lutheran Church in south Dallas for 26 years.

A racial controversy has been brewing in the police department since 1986 when a white officer shot and killed a 70-year-old black woman who had summoned police to report a burglary next door. In January of this year, a mentally disturbed black man, reportedly egged on by a few black youths in a crowd, shot and killed white Officer John Chase on a downtown street.

The survey showed 67 percent of blacks interviewed said it was definitely or probably true that Dallas police are more likely to mistreat blacks, compared to 35 percent of whites.

The recent flare up in race relations ironically comes at a time when the city has appointed a black city manager, initiated a major set of police reforms and hired its first black school superintendent.

The survey consisted of interviews with 395 white and 396 black residents, using a combination of randomly selected households with telephones in all areas of the city and targeted households in census tracts with more than 30 percent black residents.

Hispanics were excluded, as were people without telephones. The survey's margin of error was plus or minus 5 percentage points.

Some community leaders say perceptions vary partly because white residents don't really see the problems of poor minorities.

"It's a dead end to think so many people in this city can be undereducated, underemployed, underfed, underutilized and it will all work out," said Jack Lowe Jr., president and chairman of TDI Industries and one time chairman of the Dallas Alliance.

Lowe, who is white, said minorities' struggle is often overlooked.

"An awful lot of my friends are just oblivious to it. They say, 'What, I thought that was all over 20 years ago.' It's just not a big deal in their lives," he said. "And on the other side of the gorge are a bunch of angry people who see prosperity all around them but who have been unable to get a piece of it."

Monk parakeets are the only members of the parrot family that build community nests in trees. They live among bundles of twigs that form an apartment house for the birds.
